SCHOFIELD DELIVERS PATRIOTIC ADDRESS

The College Men Know Duty.

Prof. Schofield said, "I do not know how you feel about it out here, but in the East, we have been seriously in the war since the start. Our boys slipped off one by one from school during the early months of the great struggle. Not for adventure, but for the caring of humanity, they have conserved their bodies for their soul's desire. Thirty-eight of our Harvard sons fell before America's entrance. They, too, like Alan Seegar and many more have found their "Benediction with Death."

"College men everywhere have realized that they were privileged ones and they have felt the solemn call to duty. They are risking all for the cause of justice, they understand. Our boys have a new vision of the world and we ourselves are on the horizon of the new vision of inspiration.

Restoration of New Spirit.

The theme of the masterful address brought a world of meaning to his listeners when he made a plea for us at home to be worthy of our boys' conservation. As the gold stars increase in our service flags let us adopt an attitude of humility and pride.

"The war is breathing out a new spirit of democracy and religious day by day. Our non-nation and know the spiritual things in "Our Man's Land" and we shall live our soldier lives through the realization of young America's conservation," concluded Professor Schofield.
