HAWKEYES IN GOOD TRIM FOR CHICAGO BATTLE SATURDAY

Every Man Comes Out of Purple Game in Good Condition Says Writer

IOWA RESPECTS CHICAGO

Maroons Do Not Look Any Better Than Iowa, Says Colonel Mumma—Lohman One of Strongest Cogs in Old Gold Machine Saturday—Slater Puts Up Unusual Game

Returned from a decisive triumph over Northwestern at Evanston, the Iowa football team has entered a strenuous week of practice in preparation for the all-important battle with Chicago next Saturday. Since the Maroons humbled Coach Yost's touted Michigan eleven, Hawkeye fans, as well as Hawkeye players, have come to realize that Stagg's machine is one of the strongest in the Big Ten and that a victory over the Midway crew by the Old Gold would be the achievement of the season.

Eligible for Top Honors
Iowa's standing in the Big Ten conference was raised two notches by the victory over the Purple. From a tie for sixth place, the Hawkeyes leaped to a tie with Wisconsin for fourth position and a win over the Maroons will make the Old Gold eligible for top honors should Illinois and Ohio State suffer defeat.

Col. Morton C. Mumma, who acted as umpire at the Chicago-Michigan encounter and also at the Chicago-Illinois game, stated last night that the Maroons do not look any better than Iowa and that with hard careful playing, the Hawkeyes can annex the long end of the score this week end.

Purple Uses Trick Plays
Although Iowa gained a decision over the Purple by a margin of one touchdown, the difference in the strength of the two elevens was more than the score indicates. Twice the Old Gold team smashed its way to the Northwestern one-yard line in the second quarter only to lose the oval. Upon one of these occasions the ball actually rested on the goal line but Referee Eckersall decided that no point of the oval extended over the last chalk mark, and con-

THIRTY-SIX MAT ARTISTS TRY OUT

Several Members of Last Year's Wrestling Team Form Nucleus of Squad

Thirty-six men are enrolled in the varsity wrestling class for this year, and more are expected soon, according to E. G. Schroeder, physical training director. A wrestling meet has been scheduled with Ames and Mr. Schroeder expects to schedule more later in the year.

Among the men of last year's team who are with the team this year are Lee White, 175 pound class, who is now out for football; Ray Jensen, 145 pound class, who has had two years experience; and Robert Smith, another middleweight. Chas. Sweeney, Frank Shuttleworth, John Heldt and Ray Parrot are good promises for the coming season, having made good development last year.

The freshman team will also be out all season and will meet at 5 o'clock Monday and Wednesday, while the varsity team will meet Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 5 o'clock.

Mr. Schroeder states that he is hoping to stage a boxing tournament sometime later this year. Pat Wright will probably take charge of boxing and varsity wrestling this year.

ANNUAL ALUMNI DINNER HELD IN DES MOINES

The annual alumni dinner held each year at Des Moines for those in attendance at the state teachers' meeting took place in Younker's tea room, at 6 p. m. Friday, November 7.

Frederick W. Sargent '01, law, was the toastmaster for the evening and was first responded to by Carl F. Kuehnle '81, who spoke on "The Glory of Old Gold." He was followed by Romola Latchem '19, whose topic was "Alma Mater the Beloved." Vernice Weems '15, used the slogan "Iowa Fights" for her part on the program. She was followed by Myra Bloom Sheurman '00, with a toast to "On the Firing Line." President Jessup ended this phase of the program by an address on "The University of Tomorrow." The program was completed when every one arose and sang "Old Gold."

ANNUAL CLASS SCRAP PROMISES INTEREST

Pushball Contest Planned for Homecoming Will Settle Class Disputes

If the spirit expressed by the newly elected Freshman president is the general one, a hotly contested battle may be looked for Homecoming day when the freshmen and sophomores mix at ten o'clock on the Iowa field in the annual pushball scramble. When asked as to the chances of the sophomores, Van Epps replied, "When we get through with them, there won't be enough left of them to fill the pushball."

Alvin Ehresman, the sophomore president, when asked about the outcome of the scrap said, "We are out to win." In the last nine years that this contest has been held the freshmen have defeated the sophomores six out of the nine.

Interest is always high in these battles and with the large freshman class there should be big developments says E. G. Schroeder. He added that the contest was one in which all disputes could be settled as nothing was barred except slugging and foul play. Any ugly work will be promptly stopped should anyone lose his temper. The big bladder costing around seventy dollars will be on hand as it has been ordered and delivery promised. Information obtained gives the ball as weighing over twenty-five pounds, with a six-foot diameter.

Game is divided into three periods of ten minutes each with five minute intermission between first and second period, and ten minutes between second and third periods. During the first two periods each class is represented by a captain and twenty men. The results of these periods decide the contest. In the last period the entire strength of either class may enter. Since the freshmen outnumber the sophomores about five to one the last period ought to furnish the most murder. In case neither class scores the class in whose territory the ball lies at the end of the second period loses. According to Director Schroeder, during the nine years of play there have been on major injuries of any sort.

ORGANIZE DAVENPORT CLUB

The Davenport club now being organized is at present in the hands of ten men from Davenport, of whom the chief promoter is David M. Richardson, a sophomore in the college of liberal arts. They will have dinner at the Jefferson Hotel, Wednesday night, after which they will hold a meeting with free discussion to decide upon the policy and organization of the club. Its main purposes are social and to promote interest in the University in Davenport.

FAVORS LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Says League is Hope of the Human Race and Not the Dream of a Theorist—Thinks of America as a Great Adventure of the Spirit

"America can make the League or it may break the League. Thus far, we have emerged from the war with empty hands. Leave war behind us not with empty hands untainted by booty, but with hands that are full of blessings to all the peoples of men." These were the concluding words of the lecture on "America and World Peace," given by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise at the natural science auditorium last night. His few words on the "Adventure of world companionship" at the vespers services Sunday formed the keynote to last night's address.

Every seat in the auditorium was filled and eager listeners lined the aisles and walls. Many were unable to get into the hall.

Rabbi Wise spoke of the League of Nations as the inescapable hope of the human race. "It is not," he said, "an academic dream or a professional device which a dilettante statesman is seeking to foist upon a reluctant world. The League is necessary, to avert the rise of Prussianism anywhere or at any time hereafter."

VAN DOREN GIVES OUT NAMES OF BAND MEN

Director Says Band This Year Is Best Ever—May Go to Chicago Game

Members of the University band who will accompany the football team to Chicago, November 15, if the present campaign for funds is successful, have been selected. Dr. O. E. Van Doren, director, states that the band this year is better than formerly due chiefly to the fact that many former service men are playing. They are much further along at the present time in point of training than previous organizations he has had experience with.

The following men have been selected as members of the University band:

J. E. O'Grady, W. M. Noble, R. A. Culbertson, C. A. Sullivan, J. A. Rotton, A. Bossen, L. V. Robinson, E. G. Hammerschmidt, D. K. Shore, W. J. Hohl, H. Stinson, A. F. Hardwig, R. C. Lande, M. H. LAWS PLAN TO FORM TEXT BOOK LIBRARY

A library from which students might rent text books by the year is being proposed by the Law Students' Association. Edward L. O'Connor, senior law president, explained the proposition as follows. "At present the laws buy their text books from one of the local book stores at catalog price, about forty dollars a year and resell them at the end of the year for less than half price. The same books are resold by the store at full price the next year. With from seven-hundred to eight-hundred dollars we could buy these books next spring and make rent sets of them next year. They would rent for about eight dollars a year."

James A. Hollingsworth, senior law, said, "We now have about five hundred dollars in the treasury. We plan to devote the proceeds of the law jubilee, this year, to the fund, which should give us enough to buy the books."

Clyde Doolittle, Ray C. Clearman, Frank L. Kostlan, Edward F. Rate, and Zeno White have been appointed to formulate plans for the library.

PROF. NUTTING SPEAKS TOMORROW EVENING

Conclude Lecture on Barbados Expedition Illustrated With Moving Pictures

Marine photography beneath the water showing fish and other marine animals in their native habitat will be a feature of the second lecture on the Barbados-Antigua expedition which is to be given on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in the natural science auditorium by Prof. C. C. Nutting. The lecture will be illustrated by moving pictures, of which the sub-marine views make up a part.

The pictures used in this second lecture, which is the sequel to the first popular talk given last Wednesday, relate solely to the island of Antigua and deal more particularly with the work of the expedition in a scientific sense. In connection with this, however, are some very fine coastal views of the rocks and surf, including a scene which shows the Pillars of Hercules, natural columns of great beauty.

The University scientists are shown at work both in tidal pools and in deep water dredging. The deep water motion pictures of marine life in natural surroundings are unusually successful for this type of work. A sea anemone is depicted capturing and devouring a crab, while a sea turtle sends out the S. O. S. The movements of big land crabs 18 inches in diameter are shown with such clearness as to permit analysis of motion. There is a view showing the heart action of a devil fish and the holothurian dance of one of the sea fauna.

One reel is devoted to the sugar industry on the island of Antigua. Mr. Rieker mounted a high girder at the risk of his life and took panoramic views which look down upon the big sugar factory. Both primitive and modern methods of making sugar are included in the views.

RAINBOW VETERANS HOLD BANQUET

University Members of Famous Division Celebrate Armistice Day at Jefferson

Hotel Jefferson's second floor janitor is putting the strong furniture in the banquet room. Twenty-eight University men who were formerly members of the Rainbow division, meet there at 7 o'clock tonight, exactly one year after the official notice of the end of hostilities was posted at the 168th regimental headquarters near Sedan.

Entertainment will be of a semi-formal nature, according to a statement of Joseph B. Bengel '21, chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements. The four course banquet will be followed by a smoker and a short program of after dinner speeches. James E. Thomas, toastmaster of the evening, announces the following program: Clyde H. Doolittle, junior in the college of law, will speak on the subject "Wops." He is followed by John E. Mulroney, freshman law, speaking on "Rookies," and Kenneth B. Hunter '23, liberal arts, closes with a reminiscence of "Parties on the Rhine."

The printed programs contain a small photo of a group of 168th men transporting food to the front lines under fire. The photograph is a copy of one of a large number secured by Thomas from the collection taken by the signal corps of the division.

Eight members of the old regimental band will be on hand to warm up on some of the old war-time marches.

POSSIBILITIES

That the new student council will fill a dire exigency in the life of the campus is evidenced by the function it is fulfilling today. Even though the organization of the council has not been completed, it has found opportunity to promote a student's program which commemorates a memorable occasion and which is worthy of the University's patronage this morning.

Today's program is only a beginning. It is a prediction of what the council may do; an intimation of what it may accomplish and allusion to its possibilities.

In the past the students have lacked a central organization through which they might express their plans and carry them through successfully. Those who desired to create an innovation on the campus or had an idea which they wished to put in vogue for the welfare of the University, have been solely dependent on themselves to promote the project. The possibilities of the student council do away with such factors and gives the students a central organization in which their beneficial ideas may culminate.

There are many undertakings which the council may place on its program of making the University a Greater Iowa. The Iowan believes that the council's opportunity lies in fostering a greater enthusiasm, more traditions, and more student enterprises.

Iowa needs a pep club. The council is in a position to advocate and promote one. "A Four Hundred Club," membership to which would be voluntary and whose purpose would be to engender a University spirit should be promoted. Girls athletics and an athletic field day in the spring, is another matter for the council's consideration. The inauguration of an annual May day festival is yet another.

Many alumni have aptly criticized the lack of traditions at their Alma Mater and their criticisms are justified. A step in this direction might be taken in establishing traditions with the freshmen classes. The blanket tax proposition which was dropped last year should have its share of re-consideration. A student's post-office is another question. These and many other subjects are worthy of the thought of the student council in whose power the students must look for achievements.

The action of the council in arranging today's program typifies the interest and possibilities of the council. It will be the nucleus for greater things when the organization has been perfected and completely organized. The council has great possibilities and it will attain results in so far as the students of all colleges lend it their cooperation.

ARMISTICE DAY

One year ago today the greatest war in the history of the world ended when the central powers signed the armistice offered by the entente allies. At 11 o'clock on the morning of November 11, the monster guns belched forth their last shells on their errand of death, the birdmen circled and sailed back to their hangars in France and Belgium, and the muddy and weary doughboy fired his last round across No Man's Land.

In the twelve months that have passed since that eventful November day, practically every American soldier has sailed from France. Only a few regiments are stationed along the majestic Rhine to see that the terms of the armistice are carried out. A few battalions in some arms of the service are helping with the reconstruction work in France. But the great mass of the civilian army has returned.

There are many however who will never return from the fair republic across the seas, and it is in memory of them that we observe Armistice day. Fifteen thousand or America's best, are resting on the sunny hills of France. They gave their best, their all, for us. They died that we might live.

We who yet live must not forget them. Their memory will become more holy as the fleeting years go by, for their greatness is American greatness. The least that the students of the University can do in memory of their comrades who died in France or elsewhere in the service, is to attend the memorial exercises given by the students this morning in honor of their fallen comrades.

HAWKEYES IN GOOD TRIM FOR CHICAGO BATTLE

sequently the Purple crew took the pigskin on downs.

For the most part the Hawkeyes relied on straight football to win. Bachman's proteges used a dazzling repertoire of open formations, criss crosses, delayed forward passes and shifts in a desperate attempt to stave off a fourth defeat at the hands of a conference school.

Lohman Plays Best Game

Captain Lohman was one of the strongest cogs in the Iowa offense at plunging in old time form, played one of the best games of his career. Time and time again he bored his way through the Purple forward wall for gains of eight, ten and twelve yards. He seemed to be the most successful member of the Old Gold backfield quartet in the smashing attack. The Hawkeyes declare that the Northwestern line was the strongest forward wall they have hit this season.

Parker and Aubrey Devine, alternating at booting the oval and lugging it from punt formation, gained considerable territory, and were the mainstays of the Iowa offense. Aubrey sprinted fifteen yards through a broken field from such a formation for the first Iowa touchdown.

Belding on the receiving end of forward plasses again proved himself one of the best wing men in the conference in this respect. It was a pretty sight to see him pull in A. Devine's long heaves while on the run.

In the middle of the line, the giant Slater was always conspicuous. His huge form loomed up in every play and several times he spilled Purple runners for losses. Iowa fans are wondering how the officials and sports critics can overlook the Old Gold tackle when they pick an All-Western eleven.

Watson is a "Wizard"

Jack Watson's prowess in keeping the varsity in condition was again demonstrated Saturday when every Iowa player came through the game without sustaining any disabling injuries. During the fray it was apparent that the Hawkeyes were in far better condition than their opponents. The latter took out a great deal of time for injuries, while Jones' men halted only twice, when Charlton threw his shoulder out of place, and again when Captain Lohman received a bad blow that left him groggy for a minute. Not a man has been lost to the Old Gold varsity on account of injury in the last two years during which time the best competition in the middle west has been met. "Wizard" Watson is the reason. Unless something unforseen happens every Hawkeye will be "raring to go" when the first whistle blows on Stagg field the afternoon of Nov. 15.

THE LISTENING POST

PURELY PERSONAL STUFF

A friend, discussing home town events and personalities, asked the other day if we knew such and such a girl from the city of our birth. We admitted no personal acquaintance and he, in more or less amazement, gasped, "You seem to be overlooking a keen woman." With a grin (and a stutter or two) we shot this back at him: "You're mistaken there. She's overlooking me."

Whenever we see a suit of khaki upon the campus we feel that some poor fellow doesn't know that the S. A. T. C. has been disbanded.

PROF. HARDIN C. CRAIG SPEAKS ON WAR TOPIC

The value of courage, mental alertness, and physical excellence learned in military service, to civil life was stressed in the lecture of Hardin C. Craig, head of the English department, on the subject "After Effects of the War On America," given Sunday evening at the Presbyterian church. He pointed out the value of following a simple plan with a fixed objective until it proved a success or failure. His ideas were emphasized with illustrations drawn from military life.

IOWA IS FAVORITE OF VISITING RABBI

Approves of Work of Student Council and Thinks Iowan is Interesting Paper

"Of all the many universities and colleges at which I lecture, the University of Iowa is my favorite," said Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, who addressed a University audience last night, when interviewed by an Iowan reporter. The Rabbi is highly impressed with the sympathy and understanding of his audiences at this time. While in Old Capitol, Rabbi Wise noted the new student council in session last Sunday afternoon and spoke with them a few moments. He is glad to see Iowa taking such a step toward self-government and remarked that it had proved successful in many other schools.

The Rabbi enjoys his acquaintance with the members of our faculty and believes that we have many notable men here of whom we should be proud. The committee in charge has asked him to speak here again next year.

The Daily Iowan is a most interesting paper, according to Rabbi Wise. "It was there that I read about A. Devine," he said. He felt greatly honored at being received by band music and cheering at his train Sunday morning until he discovered it was all for A. Devine, not the his soldier son said to the Rabbi. "Say to your countrymen we know that no League of Nations can guarantee peace, but the absence of a League of Nations will be a guarantee of war's renewal."

"The Adventure of Life and Death," following that Bible text in which the children of Israel were bidden to "go forward", was the subject of Rabbi Wise's vespers sermon. He named his audience of 1200 persons "royal adventurers" for being present on such a rainy afternoon.

A clearer meaning of "Thy will be done" was given when the Rabbi said "Obedience to God never implies invertebrate acquiescence. God wills that I will even as He wills." He drew a sharp distinction between adventures that are trivial and perishable and the great, exalting adventure which is the quintessence of things divine.

America Connates Adventure
"Pioneering in the boundaries of the spirit, the most daring of all pioneering, is yet to be undertaken," he said. "Safety first is death to the soul." The history of his own people is to Rabbi Wise a collective adventure of the soul. America, he said, does not mean to him a country so much as it connates an adventure of the spirit. The world knows nothing finer in all its annals than this adventure of America, he stated.

Death, he calls the adventure of all adventures. He is opposed to all the common evasions and equivocations to veil the reality of death. He described a flag at half mast over a God's acre in France. To him it was an altar symbolizing immortal youth which had faced a great adventure greatly.

Rabbi Wise was introduced to his audience by Dean George F. Kay. The University orchestra, in its first appearance, and the vespers choir, furnished the music Sunday. The Rev. Ira J. Houston gave the invocation and benediction.

City's Program

Iowa City's observance of armistice day will start at 1:30, with the playing of the University band at the Jefferson hotel corner. All stores are to be closed at noon. A program of wrestling and athletic events is to be held this afternoon on the athletic field, followed by a football game between the University high school and the Lone Tree high school.

The day is to be a homecoming for all Johnson county service men. They will be guests at a dinner at 6 o'clock at the new O'Leary garage, served by the D. A. R. Early in the evening, at 7:30, will be the gigantic peace pageant, at the armory, at which 400 seats will be reserved for service men.

Three Free Dances
The peace pageant, effectively staged with picturesque costumes and elaborate dances, is expected to represent the spirit of Armistice day. Fully 500 different members are in the cast, and the program will include singing and dancing as well as a number of beautiful tableaux and patriotic scenes.

Mrs. William Hart, Jr., is coaching the pageant and has the assistance of a group of University girls, instructors in physical education, and teachers of the three high schools.

At 9 o'clock Iowa City, as represented by the Commercial club, will entertain at three dances, which will be free to the public, at Company A hall, Majestic hall and the O'Leary garage.
