SHOULD COOPERATE WITH OFFICIALS SAYS STUDENT COUNCIL

Representatives of All Colleges Discuss Present Situation at Noon Luncheon

RESOLUTION TO STUDENTS

Says Student Body Must Remember That Administration Knows All the Facts—Is Not Matter for Council to Act on With Official Intention, President Says

WHEREAS, the fuel shortage has resulted in a situation whereby rooms in some buildings are improperly ventilated, several fraternities and sororities will be forced to close soon, conditions of discomfort are prevalent throughout, and a situation is created not conducive to the best work, and

WHEREAS, the Student Council believes that the student body wishes classes to be continued if it is consistent with the welfare of all concerned, and

WHEREAS, we believe the authorities of the State University of Iowa have full knowledge of the conditions and will take such action as will be best suited to the needs of the University as a whole, and

WHEREAS, the Student Council, a representative body, composed of duly elected members from every college in the University of Iowa, feels that it should express the sentiment of the student body, therefore

BE IT RESOLVED, that we hereby express our belief that any action taken by those in authority in the University during the emergency will meet with the full approval and cooperation of the student body.

The situation resulting from the present coal shortage was discussed at a meeting of the Student Council held in the Mad Hatter's tea room (Continued on page 4)

MILITARY BALL POSTPONED TO APRIL 9

Coal Shortage Influences Committee to Change Date of Formal

The military ball has been postponed from January 9 to April 9, according to the report of Verne Meyers, cadet colonel of the R. O. T. C. and chairman of the committee. "Because of the coal shortage my committee of twenty-seven commissioned men of the cadet regiment has not been able to arrange for the formal before Christmas," said Mr. Meyers.

At a conference of the committee, Mr. Meyers, chairman, Col. Morton C. Mumma, commandant of the R. O. T. C., and R. E. Reinow, dean of men the date of the military formal party was changed to April 9. This is the first Friday after Lent, and that it is late enough in the spring so that the coal situation will not hinder preparations, is the opinion of Mr. Meyers. "No arrangements or further plans for the ball will be made until a later date," said the chairman.

HOLMES TO REPRESENT ENGINEERS AT COLUMBIA

George G. Holmes will represent the University of Iowa at a national convention of the students of applied science, to be held at Columbia, Mo., December 5 and 6. This is the initial convention of engineering students and the object of the convention is to nationalize all associations of applied science holding annual celebrations similar to Iowa's traditional Mecca Day.

Mr. Holmes, chairman of the engineers' parade committee, expects to receive numerous suggestions for Mecca Day at the convention. He leaves for Columbia tonight.

WILLIAM KELLY ELECTED CAPTAIN

Robert Kaufman Runs Little Quarterback Close Race for 1920 Leader

William S. Kelly, quarterback of the Hawkeye eleven for two years, was elected captain of the 1920 football team by his teammates at the banquet given by the University athletic board at the Jefferson hotel Wednesday night.

Bob Kaufman, right guard on the 1919 eleven, ran him a close race. Five times the ballot stood tied before a winner was declared. The fourteen letter men then cast another vote to make the election unanimous.

Kelly piloted the team in every game of the 1918 schedule and took up the reins at the beginning of the present season. His weight was against him, and sickness before the Minnesota game compelled him to leave the game. Since that time Kelly had stiff competition for his old position. Bob Kaufman was one of the most popular men on the squad but he had played only one year, although he is a junior. He was not in school last year.

One hundred and twenty-five men were present at the banquet, including both the varsity and freshman squads, faculty members, former Hawkeye football stars, and other backers of the team.

Two snappy boxing matches were put on by Allen Smith and Penfield, featherweights, and Pillars and Dugan, in the 158-pound class.

Following the election of the captain speeches were given by Judge R. P. Howell, Dean Robert E. Reinow, Coach Howard H. Jones, followed by short talks by Captain Lohman, Captain-elect Kelly, and the other "T" men.

WELLER RETURNS FROM SUMMER SESSION MEETING

Dr. C. H. Weller, director of the University summer session, returned Wednesday from the annual meeting of summer session directors held in New York city Friday and Saturday of last week.

About fifteen delegates were present at the convention, according to the Iowa representative, coming from Michigan, Wisconsin, Harvard, Pennsylvania, and Iowa. Their work was of an advisory and contemplative nature, he said.

On the trip Dr. Weller took the opportunity to visit at Ann Arbor, Michigan, and inspect the new Union building there. He reports that it is a building of a similar nature to the one proposed for Iowa, and seems to be proving very popular.

PRESIDENT JESSUP EXPLAINS UNIVERSITY'S PRESENT POLICY

In answer to repeated inquiries, I wish to announce that for the present the University is to continue in regular session. Several of the buildings have been closed entirely, and all buildings except the hospitals, dormitories, and libraries, part of the time, and the University Observational Schools have been adjourned, in order to conserve coal.

Our supply of fuel is very meager, but a limited number of cars have been released for our use, and we understand it to be the policy of the fuel administration to furnish us with the necessary coal so long as this can be done. Arrangements have been made for a reserve supply as an ultimate protection to the hospitals of the city.

I wish to urge upon every member of the University community the importance of saving light and heat as carefully as possible. Constant and serious consideration is being given to the conditions which prevail, and we believe at present that continuance of our regular work with such curtailments as are necessary, is the most patriotic service the University can render and the least likely to produce inconvenience and suffering among all who are concerned.

Circumstances may change at any moment, and we must hold ourselves in readiness to respond to the needs of State and Nation with the utmost cheerfulness. Meanwhile it behooves every one of us to take up and carry his burden with a calm spirit of self-sacrifice and cooperation.

W. A. JESSUP.

COLD GYM FAILS TO DAMPEN ARDOR OF VARSITY SQUAD

Coach Ashmore Sends Two Teams Through Snappy Practice For Cornell Game

BIG SHAKEUP IS PROBABLE

Captain Nicolaus, Finlayson, and Worth of Last Season's Quintet on First String—Frohwein and Shimek Play Forwards—Seconds Make Only Basket

The Iowa basketball squad is gradually getting into condition for its first game with the Cornell college quintet at Mt. Vernon December 13. As yet the definite line-up of the varsity five is a toss-up and four teams of candidates are being given a chance every afternoon to display their merits in scrimmage. The armory is still unheated but the cold fails to affect the ardor of the athletes who manage to keep warm by working fast.

Last night Coach Ashmore started a temporary first team comprised of Frohwein and Shimek at forwards, Finlayson at center, and Captain Nicolaus and Worth at guards. A second team, consisting of Aubrey Devine and Muckler, forwards; Rich at center, and Prentiss and Barnes at guards, more than held the varsity even. Muckler scored the only basket made by either team, in the last minute of the tussle. For the most part, the men shot wild from long distances and failed to come close to the cage. The guards on both teams played air tight defensive ball and Prentiss and Nicolaus were particularly clever in breaking up plays.

Battle for Center

The pivot job is still open to a capable player, although Finlayson has made a fair showing to date. He has the speed and the basket eye for the position but is inclined to dribble to excess and is a little lax in covering his man. Ed Rich, member of the 1919 football team, made his first appearance in scrimmage last night. He played center on the second five and exhibited a surprising amount of fight and ginger. He may surprise some of the dopesters.

UNIVERSITY HIGH SCHOOL CLOSES

University High school and Elementary school were closed yesterday, not to reopen until Jan. 5, according to Prof. E. E. Lewis, principal. This action was taken as a result of the serious coal-shortage problem which is now facing Iowa City homes and business houses.

In order to lessen, to some extent, the effect of this long period of vacation, lessons for two weeks have been issued to the pupils, who will be given examinations covering this work, on their return to school.

MUMMA TO EXPLAIN INSURANCE RULINGS

Urges All Ex-Service Men to Attend Meeting at N. S. Auditorium Today

New decisions on the reinstatement of government insurance will be explained by Col. Morton C. Mumma, head of the department of military science, to interested ex-service men in the liberal arts assembly hall at 4:10 p. m. today.

Colonel Mumma explains that a number of the decisions which have just been made by the Bureau of War Risk insurance differ materially from those which were in force at the time of the discharge of most of the men. He added that they are of extreme importance at this time because some of them will be closed December 31.

The text of his announcement follows:

"A number of recent important decisions have been made by the Bureau of War Risk insurance which have to do with reinstatement of insurance by former soldiers who have allowed their policies to lapse. Every former soldier who has dropped his war risk insurance should come to liberal arts assembly hall at 4:10 o'clock Friday, December 5, and hear the latest decisions explained. Questions concerning conversions of insurance will also be explained."

OVERHOLSER TO CONVENTION

Ralph E. Overholser, editor-in-chief of the Daily Iowan, left yesterday for Champaign, Illinois, where he will attend the national convention of Sigma Delta Chi.

UNIVERSITY DENIES RUMORS THAT CLASSES WILL BE SUSPENDED

President Makes Statement to Student Body That Clarifies Situation Very Much

FUEL SUPPLY IS MEAGRE

Strict Conservation Measures Adopted in Effort to Continue Normal Schedule—Many Reasons for Not Desiring to Suspend Classes—Kay Warns Against Hearsay

Disturbing rumors and false reports to the effect that the University would close down today on account of the coal shortage were flatly denied by Pres. W. A. Jessup in a statement made last night. That the situation is a critical one, and may develop new problems in the immediate future is admitted, but the president is optimistic and believes that the present system of conservation, if properly followed, will probably enable the University to remain open until the scheduled date for its closing, December 19.

The conservation plan which has been adopted closes several of the buildings entirely, and others part of the time. University observational schools have also adjourned in order to conserve coal, but hospitals, dormitories, and libraries remain open.

In his official statement President Jessup said: "Our supply of fuel is very meagre, but a limited number of cars have been released for our use, and we understand it to be the policy of the fuel administration to furnish us with the necessary coal so long as this can be done."

UNIVERSITY HANDBOOK APPEARS ON CAMPUS

Comprehensive Manual Giving Useful Information Issued To Students

Do you know how many "A" grades are necessary to win Phi Beta Kappa honors? Are you acquainted with the marking systems used in the different colleges of the University? These and numerous other questions are answered in the new University Handbook issued yesterday from the Registrar's office.

The compilation of this year's Handbook has been accomplished with the aid of the different departments and activities in the University. The University editor, Prof. C. H. Weller, and his assistants have had direct charge of the gathering of material for the book.

This is the first book of this kind to be issued for five years. Due to the unusual conditions of the last few years the University was caused to abandon the annual publication of the handbook. Efforts of the compilation have been directed toward making the book of a more comprehensive nature than formerly. Those who have had the publication of the book in charge ask for suggestions in regard to the arrangement of the manual to make it of greater use to the students of the University.

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF CURIOSITY

A fundamental knowledge of human nature is to be curious. In fact someone, poet or sage, once said that curiosity killed a cat. We wonder what the cat wanted to know.

A lecture on the psychology of uncertainty would be very interesting at the present time. The student on Iowa campus has evident opportunity to experience the unrest of uncertainty, whether or not he knows the reasons underlying his mental status and strain. The great majority of the students do not want school to close; they merely want to know whether or not it will close before scheduled time. Of course no one can answer this unanimous query at this time.

The Daily Iowan realizes that it is impossible to give a definite decision on the matter of closing school. There are many important considerations that the student fails to realize, otherwise the prevalent unrest and curiosity would not be.

One must assume that the students of the University are here to get the fundamentals of an education. They will do well to forget the possibility of school being dismissed before schedule time. They will do well to prepare their lessons and carry out their daily program, with the exception of making distant plans, as though there were no coal shortage at all. They must rest assured that their comfort and the best interests of the University are the two foremost thoughts in the minds of the administration officials, now working day and night, on the question that the present shortage of coal has so abruptly brought to the center of thought and action of students and faculty alike.

DESERT DIPLOMACY

The Lion growled and set the machinery and armies of the Carranza government in motion. In less than twenty-four hours a kidnapped Britisher was set free. For months the Eagle has shrieked for the protection of its citizens who have been murdered, kidnapped, and ransomed with frightful regularity. The only response has been a series of diplomatic notes assuring immediate action and then offering excuses for delay.

American citizens are being outraged every day while the Mexican government stands idly by. The dignity of the government has been scorned, its protests have been to no avail. An American consul conducts his business from behind the bars of a Mexican penitentiary.

When one government becomes incapable or refuses to deal out justice it is time for another to adopt radical measures for this protection. The patience of the United States has gone the limit. The armies and navies were once used to dethrone a tyrant who thought nothing of the rights of others; they might again be used to uphold the same principle; the Eagle's talons have not yet become dulled from its recent combat.

A single projectile describing an arc from an American warship to the Carranza domicile might have more influence on Mexican politics than a trainload of literature.

A greaser carries his argument in his belt. Five million of such documents are now hanging in United States arsenals.

Cactus brush and Mexican deserts afford a poor stage for diplomatic arguments.

statement of the amount of coal on hand and to say how much the University is consuming daily. J. M. Fiske, superintendent of grounds and buildings, refused to make a statement on this subject, but explained his silence in the following words: "In view of the delicateness of the situation, it is the policy of the president to prevent any speculation on this subject, and such statements must come absolutely from him. The present strained condition must not be aggravated with gross misstatements or exaggerations.

Dean George F. Kay of the college of liberal arts believes that it is the duty of the student body to place implicit confidence in the University authorities, since they understand every phase of the situation. "Discontent arising from false rumors only aggravate the situation," he said. "Most of the students are here for business and would regret to see the University unnecessarily closed.

Some Expect to Graduate

Another official says, "A number of students expect to graduate this quarter," which explains partly the efforts which are being made to continue classes.

SHOULD COOPERATE WITH OFFICIALS

at noon yesterday. Representatives from every college on the campus were present.

Up to Administration

"The unanimous opinion of the Council is that the matter of closing school is entirely one of administration and not one that the Council should presume to act on or even suggest," said a member of the Council last night. "The University officials are doing what they think best and they have access to all the facts while the student must know them only partially."

A very few students seem to think that the Council should take definite action with reference to the present critical situation, according to another member of that body. But the Council feels that the coal shortage and the situation it has created are matters for the administration to consider, he added. "The students must feel that the administration officials have the best interests of the students at heart."

Urges Co-operation

"We have discussed the situation as it exists in every college and each representative is firm in his opinion that the students in the various colleges wish to continue classes just as long as it is consistent with the welfare of every one concerned," said the president of the Student Council after the meeting. "The University officials have all the facts and the Council feels that the students of the various colleges can best co-operate by giving their heartiest approval to any action those in authority may see fit to take."

COLD GYM FAILS TO HALT SQUAD

Kaufman are showing up to advantage. The latter has the beef that the coach is so anxious to find for the team, and Prentiss, while he is handicapped by his size, plays a hard, heady, defensive game and frequently gets into the offense for a shot at the hoop. Coach Ashmore has transferred Worth from center to guard and the big fellow handled himself well in the new position last night.

Among the forwards Shimek and Frohwein have the call at present but it is extremely doubtful whether the latter can hold his place against such men as Riddelsbarger, Aubrey Devine, Ehresman and Muckler, who have been alternating on the second string. There is still plenty of room for improvement in the playing of the whole squad. While the individual play is brilliant in spots, the team work is ragged and uncertain and it will be the chief concern of the coach to develop this important fundamental before the Hawkeyes stack up against the clever Cornell five next week.
