ANIMALS AND PLANTS OF LOUISIANA SWAMP IN NATURE EXHIBIT

Dill Assembles Specimens From Southern States For Permanent Display

BELL PAINTS BACKGROUND

Alligators, Birds, Frogs, Lizards, And Native Vegetation Will Comprise Reproduction in Bird Hall of Natural Science Auditorium.

The Louisiana swamp exhibit which is being made by Prof. Homer R. Dill of the department of zoology and his assistants will be ready for display by June, according to the present plans of Professor Dill. The exhibit is being built on the south side of the northeast section of the bird hall in the natural science building opposite the famous Laysan Island exhibit which was assembled by Professor Dill in 1914.

Animal and plant life of the swamps of Louisiana will be portrayed in this exhibit. Professor Dill made the trip to the swamps two years ago accompanied by Alfred Bailey, curator of the Louisiana state museum at New Orleans and a former pupil of Professor Dill. With the assistance of natives large palmetto trunks were cut and carried from the swamps and later brought to Iowa City.

To Rival Layson Exhibit

Small gum trees cypress and maples were brought back, and green leaves of wax casts are now being put on the branches to make foliage for the scene. Leaves of the palmetto have been preserved in wax and used so far in the exhibit. The background for the exhibit is a painting of oils on the wall of the bird hall. This painting was begun a year ago by Mrs. Jean Dayton West who is now living in New Brunswick. She graduated from the University in 1916 and is a member of the Pi Beta Phi sorority. Miss Edith Bell instructor in the art department, is completing the painting. It merges with the preserved life of the plants and animals in a most realistic way.

13 Foot Alligator a Feature

The largest animal exhibit is to be the thirteen foot mounted alligator. Smaller alligators, swamp reptiles and birds, frogs, and lizards will be in the exhibit. Some of the snakes are of wax casts and are being prepared and painted by Kathryn Dayton '20.

"The animals of the swamps," said Professor Dill, "are rapidly disappearing with the advance of civilization. It is my idea to offer an exhibit that will show to our children what such animal life was. I am preparing this exhibit so that it will last a thousand years."

WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB CONCERT IS APRIL 22

The date for the annual women's Glee club concert has been set for April 22. The program is not yet ready for announcement, according to Albert Metcalf, business manager of the club. Definite plans concerning details of the program will be decided at a meeting of the club to be held in the natural science auditorium next Sunday afternoon immediately after Vesper services.

REGISTRAR ISSUES HURRY UP CALL FOR MORE REGISTRATION

The hurry-up call for registration in yesterday's Iowan was little heeded by liberal arts students, according to information from the registrar's office last evening. "Registration is very slow and students have not been registering at scheduled times," said Herbert C. Dorcas, registrar. "The new plan of registering in classes is working quite satisfactorily but the slowness of students to respond to make out their schedules and receive their tuition cards is delaying matters considerably."

Registration will continue today until 4 o'clock and assistants in the registrar's office wish that students would respond to the hurry-up call today. The final date for registration has not yet been set, except that all schedules must be filed by April 7.

RED, GREEN OR BROWN DIVE, SWIM OR DROWN

Colored Swimming Head Gear In Women's Gym Tells Proficiency

Flashing rainbow effects induced by vari-colored swimming caps will make the swimming pool in the women's gymnasium resemble an animated futurist picture when the new order of ranking according to color goes into effect the last of this week. And 'By their headdress ye shall know them' even the mermaids who grace the stony beaches of the women's swimming pool.

The new order rules that non-swimmers must wear black, brown or gray caps, those who have passed the primary requirements may wear blue or green while the artists who rank as A and B swimmers may don a flaming red. Miss Anna Bollin who has charge of the swimming classes suggests that from a standpoint of alluring coloration, this system might be an incentive for the women to climb the ranks to professional swimmers.

MORNING DRILL SCHEDULE

You Can't Get 'Em Up If They Have An Exemption

Students in the R. O. T. C. University cadet regiment must arrange their schedules so as to permit participation in the morning military drill which begins next Monday, April 5, according to general order no. 4 issued from the office of Major Morton C. Mumma, professor of military science and tactics. Petition for exemption will be considered only in exceptional cases.

No petition will be considered which is not in writing and in the hands of the Commandant as follows: for April 24 petition must be submitted on or before April 10; for May 15 petition must be submitted on or before May 1st; and for May 22 petition must be submitted on or before May 8.

Companies A, B, C, D, E, F, G, and H will drill on Mondays, Tuesdays, and Wednesdays; companies I, K, L, and M and A, B, C, of engineer battalion and motor transport company will drill on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays. Assembly will be sounded at 6 a. m. and companies will be dismissed at 6:50 o'clock, according to the order.

BLEYER TO TALK TO JOURNALISTS

Former Editor of Everybody's and Des Moines Editor to Address Colfax Meeting

The number of college newspaper front pages to be judged at the College Press convention at Colfax April 9 and 10 has been changed to three instead of five as previously announced, because some college papers are only published weekly, thus giving them a smaller number of publications to pick from than daily papers, according to Ralph E. Overholser, president of the College Press association.

Any student interested in newspaper work is invited to attend the meeting. Some of the best newspaper men in the state will deliver talks on phases of journalism. Among some of the speakers on the program are Trumbull White, former editor of Red Book and Everybody's magazine, Des Moines, Iowa; Willard G. Bleyer, director of journalism, University of Wisconsin; and W. W. Waymack, managing editor of

SUMMER ENROLLMENT TO REACH 1500 MARK

Courses to Be Offered in All L. A. Departments and in Medical and Other Colleges

The 1920 summer session, June 16 to August 31, promises to be the largest in number of students, instructors, and courses offered in the history of its existence. Fully 1500 registrations are expected by Prof. Charles H. Weller, director of the summer session. Last year the complete enrollment for the summer session totalled 1290.

Over 300 courses will be offered in the special catalog which will be published and made ready for distribution within a week, according to Professor Weller. Courses are offered in all departments of the college of liberal arts; the manual arts section of applied science; courses in anatomy, and clinical course for practitioners, in the college of medicine; and library training.

A series of conferences will be held, among which is the fourth conference of religious workers from July 7 to 18; and the conference of librarians, June 23 to 25.

SON OF PROFESSOR OF FIRST FACULTY VISITS UNIVERSITY

L. O. Leonard, son of the late Nathan R. Leonard, professor of mathematics and astronomy in the University from 1860 to 1887, visited the University yesterday accompanied by his wife. Prof. N. R. Leonard was a member of the original faculty in 1860 and was acting president in 1862. His class room was what is at present President Jessup's office. Professor Leonard was president of the school of mines in Colorado and died in July 1917.

Three children of L. O. Leonard have been graduated from the University, Minnie in 1881, Charles in '82, and Frank in '83.

POLAR BREEZES PUT BAN ON BASEBALLS

Ashmore Talks To Men On Inside Game In Shelter Of Packed Varsity Locker Room

Frigid winds sweeping over the miniature lakes on the athletic field kept the varsity baseballers from chasing the bad ones over the mud flats yesterday afternoon. But Coach Ashmore was not to be outdone by the sudden lapse in the weather and packed his aspirants in the varsity locker room for instruction on the inside of the game.

Before fifty of them he outlined plays and the manner in which to cope with particular situations that arise in the game. Infield flies, bunting, and stealing were carefully explained. "I want a ball club that will be on its toes, and know what it is going to do, and when it is going to do it," said the coach. "When a third strike is dropped I want to see the batter run; run hard, and force a play. Games have been won by just such baseball."

The team has gone into training. Commenting on collegians training Coach Ashmore said, "Leaguers don't train, but college men do and that's the kind of team we will meet. Baseball at some of the universities has been criticized and it has been due to the conduct of the players."

TO ATTEND CONCLAVE OF THETA SIGMA PHI

A "GIFT TO FRANCE" IS SOLICITED FROM UNIVERSITY STUDENTS

Plan Approved By Dean George F. Kay in a Letter to the Daily Iowan

CAMPAIGN STARTED HERE

The Gift Will Follow the Precedent Established by French When They Gave America the Statue of Liberty—Thomas W. Lamont is National Chairman.

"I am in favor of a gift to France as an expression of our spirit toward a nation which made tremendous sacrifices in the great war. Let us not forget that France needs our sympathy and help during these days when she is attempting to recover from the struggle for life through which she has just passed."

Dean G. F. Kay.

This week students of the University are being asked to give to the campaign for an American gift to France. Have you made your contribution yet?

Follows Precedent

America's gift will take the form of a colossal statue to be placed at the site of the first battle of the Marne. It will follow the precedent established by the French people when they gave the statue of Liberty to America.

Money for the statue is being collected from all parts of the country. In order that the gift may truly represent the American people, it is hoped that as many contributions as possible may be received.

Send Money to Iowan

Gifts of money may be sent to "America's Gift to France," at the Daily Iowan office.

The spirit of this gift to France is expressed by Thomas W. Lamont, chairman of the campaign, in these words.

"Soon there shall stand, there on that bank of the Marne where the little cross is now—a statue such as the world has never seen—a statue that our children and to our children's children shall tell of a battle won and of a bond of love between two great nations that will hold until the end of time."

MILITARY TRAINING TO CHARGE FEE NEXT YEAR

All students that take a course in military training next year will be required to make a deposit of five dollars at the beginning of the year to guarantee against loss or undue wear of government property which will be issued to them throughout the year, according to Major Morton C. Mumma, commandant.

"This practice will conform with that of other universities that have R. O. T. C. branches, and although the five dollars deposited will in no way pay for all of the issued property it will help to keep the students from losing their books or mutilating other government property that they may have," said Major Mumma. The money will be refunded at the end of each year, and when a student leaves school, minus that necessary to cover losses.

"I believe we have room for but one soul loyalty, and that is loyalty to the American people." —Theodore Roosevelt

OUR FRIENDSHIP FOR FRANCE

Almost thirty-five years ago, on July 4, we celebrated Independence day in an extraordinary way. From foreign countries came representatives to pay their respects to the republic of the western world. From kings and czars and presidents they came.

Some of the messengers of good will brought with them gifts in token of the friendship that their country bore for ours. France sent us the Statute of Liberty which stands in New York harbor.

Inscribed on a bronze plate at the entrance of the giant statue is this poem, "New Colossus," written by an immigrant woman.

Not like the brazen giant of Greek fame

With conquering limbs astride from land to land;

Here at our sea-washed sunset gates shall stand

A mighty woman, with a torch whose flame

Is the inspired lightning; and her name

Mother of exiles; from her beacon hands

Glow world-wide welcome; and her eyes command

The air-bridged harbor that twin-cities frame.

"Keep," ancient lands, "your storied pomp," cries she

With silent lips. "Give me your tired, your poor

Your huddled masses, yearning to breathe free

The wretched refuse of your teeming shore,

Send these, the homeless tempest-tossed to me.

I lift my head beside the open door."

"Liberty Enlightening the World" was placed on Bedloe island less than two score years ago. Since that time millions of the "homeless tempest-tossed" from the Old World have found in America the haven they have dreamed of; they have found in this country their new birth of freedom.

Then came the World War. France held the "Frontier of Freedom." On the banks of the river Marne, France poured out her life blood in the heroic struggle that turned the German hordes back toward the Fatherland. And while France held the Frontier, the rest of the world prepared for the inevitable struggle.

The Great War ended less than two years ago. France is already rebuilding her ruined cities; she is tilling anew her devastated fields; her people are rebuilding a tortured land. The river that ran red in the days of the struggle are now as before the awful tempest.

But America has not forgotten the debt she owes to France, a debt of gratitude that dates back to the days of '76. She sent two million of her sons across the ocean to fight on Freedom's side; they are back in America now—save those who will forever rest in Flemish soil. But France did not forget when Lafayette and his valiant soldiers had sailed away from free America.

A century later, as a token of her lasting friendship, she sent us "Liberty Enlightening the world." It is proposed that appreciative America do likewise by France. On the banks of the river Marne an enormous statue of a woman, heroic in distress will stand. Though worn and beaten down by the storm of battle she will bear aloft her flag of liberty—dominant, dauntless triumphant.

The people of the United States will give the money to send this gift of gratitude to France. The rich and poor alike will give it, each his share, as did the French who sent us the Statue that guards our eastern gateway.

The money should not come from the chosen few, but from every part of the Republic, even as our vast legions who fought in France were recruited, from coast to coast and pine to palm. No sum is too small; none could be too large. Each should give his share.

We can do no less for France; France did no less for us.

SUFFRAGE IN DELAWARE

The defeat of the federal suffrage amendment in the lower house of the Delaware legislature on Thursday need cause the women of the nation no more than a temporary disappointment. The result of the Thursday vote is not a setback in their fight. It has only delayed a victory that must surely come to them within the next few weeks.

Upon Delaware and its vote rested considerable interest throughout the country, but the decision does not mean defeat for the suffrage forces. They would have welcomed a victory, of course, since such a result would have meant that final triumph had come to them. Now they must again take up their watch.

That watch will not be long. Louisiana will vote upon the amendment early in May and national suffrage leaders are predicting that the southern state will undo the work of the Delaware legislators. Should Louisiana ratify the amendment the struggle will be over since the necessary thirty-six states would then be within the women's fold.

If Louisiana fails to come through, the suffragists will still have Ohio, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Maine and North Carolina to rely upon. The legislature of Ohio has already ratified the amendment but it will be submitted to a referendum of the voters at the general election in November. Oklahoma will likewise submit it to the voters. The state legislature of North Carolina will act upon it in July.

READERS' LETTERS

The Iowan will gladly print communications from its readers. Articles must not be over 200 words in length and must be signed but signatures will be withheld if writer so designates. The editor reserves the privilege of withholding articles from publication which he believes are not sent in good faith. The Iowan does not necessarily agree with the policy of the letters appearing under this caption.

IS OUR GRADING SYSTEM FAIR

In past issues of the Iowan I have read with interest the editorials on the Honor System, Health Fees, and other important questions in regard to the University. In my opinion there is one other worthy of discussion and that is our grading system.

How does a professor know whether to give a student an A or D?

I do not propose to be able to answer this question, but I wish to say that in my opinion the present grading system is very faulty and it is what might be called a joke.

As an example I would say that some of our classes are too large for the professor to be able to call on his students often enough for a recitation. For example a student was called on once for a recitation in a class during the first semester and failed to recite. For his final grade he received B, while in the same class a student who had taken the subject before and recited nearly every day received for his final grade a D. From this we see that the A's, B's, C's and D's do not truly represent the knowledge a student has on a certain subject.

Some professors keep a daily record of recitations and grade by giving A's or O's which in my opinion is much better than waiting till the end of the week and making a big guess at the grades. This might sound as though I was laying all the blame on the professors, but such is not my intention. I do not think they are eventually to blame, for with the shortage of professors their time is so completely taken up with classes that they have no time to consider the grades.

We must admit that some students get better grades than they should while others do not get as good as they should. How can we better the present system is a big question and one not easily decided.

To me the present system of grading means nothing. I know just so much about a certain subject and I will not know any more or any less if the professor sees fit to give me an A or a D. For this reason it makes no difference whether I get A's or D's. With all these faults in the present system I think something should be done.

What would the student body think of doing away with grades entirely and merely let the students come and get all they possibly could out of the course. Surely this is as feasible a plan as the grading system now used in some classes.
