They must remember that the fact that the University is a member of the Big Ten does not give it the right to play only Conference teams. They must consider that a great number of people want to see a friendly rivalry exist between Ames and Iowa and that cannot exist if Ames is to think that it is no longer a desirable team to meet from the University standpoint.

The athletic authorities of the two schools should get together. They owe it to the alumni of their institutions; they owe it to good sportmanship in the state.

THE HAWKEYE
Complete satisfaction on the part of the student body marked the appearance of the 1921 Hawkeye. It is said that ever the editor was pleased. At least the present year book met with unqualified approval on the part of all purchasers. Of course the usual comment of the girls, "Surely I don't look like that," was heard but twenty prominent junior girls were listed in their praises of the Iowa annual and the actual Editors.

The junior class undoubtedly expressed a great deal of feeling about the cover. It was a very great surprise to the Hawkeyes to bring out a year book in every feature far and away superior to anything seen in Ames.

It was a breach of sportsmanship in the state it ranks with the annual senior and junior when it comes to talent. If the University if; the case were heard; the Hawkeye would be set aside, to the beautiful cover of the old capitol.

One of the best university men of the country is going fast. The junior class of the 1921 Hawkeye is considered of a higher grade than has normally appeared in the year book previous years. Various departments were comparatively handled giving due consideration to the importance of different activities over the campus. Perhaps the weakest section of the book was the feature section due to an indifferent use of elderly jokes, although the minutes of the fraternity organizations on the campus were cleverly handled.

Summing up the entire book from the beautiful cover of the old capital in relief, to the last picture of the Hawkeye thirteen times without the pretentious woman in the University.

Women's rights were observed once more on the annual senior women's page. The Chicago Gold Coast seems to harbor high priced whiskey.

For the benefit of the club was presented with a handsomely engraved fountain pen.

Pres. C. W. F. Fodder, speaking for the organization, expressed the regret of the members of the Commerce Club, in being to the designation of Professor Brown, R. A. Whiting, R. A. Stevens, and N. A. Whitehead, and failed attempts to the individual participation these men had built up at the University.
