TENNIS FINALS

TO BE PLAYED

Manauh and Gammersfelder will face each other in the single finals of the tennis tournament this afternoon. The preliminaries were played off Thursday afternoon and were followed by the first sets. In the preliminaries Manauh won from C. C. Gammersfelder: score 2-6, 6-2, 6-1. P. G. Gammersfelder won from Fannon, 6-2, 6-3. The firsts were then finished with some very fast playing. The scores ran as follows: Sherman against Sorden, Sorden winning after a struggle 5-7, 6-4, 6-0. Gammersfelder against Strom, Gammersfelder winning by a perfect score, 6-0, 6-0. Wright against Manauh, Manauh winning easily 6-0, 6-1. Blackstone against Ream, but Ream defaulted through sickness, giving Blackstone the match.

This left the semi-finals to be played Friday afternoon, Sorden facing P. G. Gammersfelder and Manauh opposed to Blackstone. Gammersfelder won his match after little difficulty, score 6-4, 6-0, his play growing smoother as the game progressed. Manauh carried off the honors with little trouble in his match, 6-1, 6-0. This leaves two racket experts facing each other tomorrow in the finals. It is a game that should be speedy, interesting and full of surprises and thrills. The opposing players seem well matched, both excellent racket men and both speedy. Gammersfelder has a powerful and accurate serve but Manauh matches it with the ability to be in all parts of the field at the same time. The outcome of the match is being watched with interest by tennis fans.

ARSENAL TOUR PLANNED

Excursions Will Be Made to Rock Island and Oakdale

Two tours are to be conducted this coming week for University students. The first will be to the tuberculosis sanatorium at Oakdale, Iowa, on Wednesday, and the second to the Rock Island arsenal, Rock Island, Illinois, on Friday.

The Oakdale party will take the 3:10 interurban and will return about 6:00 o'clock after a complete tour of the sanatorium and grounds. The party going to the Rock Island arsenal will leave Iowa City on the 10:05 train and arrive in Rock Island about 12:30. After lunch they will go to the arsenal, where a government guide will show them all phases of the work done there. Colonel Jordan, in charge of the arsenal, has asked that no one be allowed to join the party excepting University students and faculty members because of the precautions that have to be observed. Therefore all who wish to go are requested to sign up before Friday morning, at 301 L. A., with Bruce E. Mahan, who will conduct the excursions.

RELIGIOUS MEET CLOSES A SUCCESS

Conference to End on Sunday With Lecture by Theodore Soares

The fourth annual religious conference, which has been in session since July 8, will virtually close today at noon. Dr. Theodore G. Soares, head of the department of theology in the University of Chicago, however, will speak at the vesper service in the natural science auditorium, Sunday, July 18, at 5:00 p. m., on the "Epic of Elijah."

According to Charles H. Weller, director of summer session, the committee in charge of the religious conference is so well pleased over the results accomplished that they intend to carry on this work next year.

Although the attendance was not as large as was expected, it was as large as it was last year. The fact that many ministers are taking their vacations at the present is largely responsible for the number not exceeding that of last summer. According to information received at the extension division office, the letters announcing the religious conference will be sent out earlier next year so that those who must make their plans in advance will be able to be here.

There will be lectures by Dr. Esther A. Gaw, Dr. Clarence A. Case, and Dr. Carl E. Seashore this morning.

TWELVE DO FIELD WORK AT LAKESIDE LABORATORY

The Iowa Lakeside laboratory at Okoboji has an enrollment of twelve students who are carrying on field work in botany and zoology, under the direction of Prof. Robert B. Wylie, of the botany department.

Four of the students are University professors from other schools. Three are working for degrees and the others either have their advanced degrees or are collecting material for them.

ENROLLMENT FOR SUMMER PASSES TWELVE HUNDRED

Official Figures Give 1265 as Full Registration For First Summer Session

IS LARGER THAN LAST YEAR

Compares Favorably With 1919 Total; First Term Shows Increase of 142 Over Attendance For Year Previous; Similar Increase is Shown at Other Universities it is Shown

Registration for the first summer session reached the mark of 1265, according to complete figures which have been given out for the first time by the registrar's office.

These figures show a considerable increase over the first session of summer school last year, when the total enrollment was 1142. For the two sessions of last year, the total reached was 1292, which is only twenty-seven more than are here for the first summer session of 1920.

From 150 to 200 more students are expected here for the second session, and this will probably bring the registration up to the 1500 which has been prophesied.

Prof. Charles H. Weller, director of the summer session, has learned from correspondence with the universities of Michigan, Wisconsin, and Northwestern, that a like increase in summer school enrollment exists at those schools.

As many students as attended the University during the regular year in 1903 or 1904 are enrolled during the summer now, according to H. C. Dorcas, University registrar.

EIGHTY WILL TAKE DENTAL TESTS HERE

Applicants Are Also Being Examined Today at Des Moines and Sioux City

Eighty applicants for the admission to the college of dentistry are expected to appear for vocational tests at 9 o'clock this morning at the three appointed laboratories of examination as follows: liberal arts assembly hall of the University; West High school at Des Moines, Iowa; and High school at Sioux City, Iowa, according to word given out by the registrar's office yesterday.

These vocational tests for the admission to the course of dentistry limiting the freshman class of 1920-1921 to 125 matriculants will mark the first limiting of registration and the first application of vocational tests as an entrance requirement in the history of the University. Adoption of the tests was made by the committee of classifications owing to the limited capacity for instruction of advanced classes in the college of dentistry and in order that each student may receive the full advantage of (Continued on page 4)

"VALUES" IS SUBJECT

"Values" will be the subject of the address which Prof. C. C. Nutting will deliver at convocation Tuesday, July 27.

This will be the final convocation of the first summer session, and the time of the granting of the degrees to graduates.

SECOND AMANA TRIP WILL BE MADE TODAY

Amana tourists leave today at 1 p. m. on the second trip to Amana. They will spend about six hours studying this interesting colony where community ownership is being successfully practised. The party will be led by Bruce E. Mahan and will consist of some forty tourists: Bessie Mulholland, Mrs. Spiers, Miss Duncan, Miss East, Miss Johnson, Opal Carter, Maude McCann, Dorothy Gregg, Mr. and Mrs. Fishwild, L. D. Henderson, Lillian L. Finn, Alma J. Thomson, Francis Glick, Ferne Weeks, Faune Weeks, Betty J. Brown, Ollie Mae Shelburne, Mrs. Heden, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Bolsinger, Amelia Rhynsberger, Zelma Rule, Blanche Beyers, Mrs. Ritter, Lenore Caspard, Lucile March, Constance Chapman, Silvia Dolechek, Emma Rehm, Gladys Wilson, Kitty Snow, Luella Overn, Rose Edie, Miss Hoskins, Louise Bolsinger, Vida Rickey, Mabel Rickey, Lorle Streeter, Mrs. William Streeter, Anne Sweitzer, Louise Divorsky, Bora Swallowell, Blanche Leisman, Elizabeth Brunton, Alpha A. Finn, Ruth Glenn, D. Lambert Scoles, Eleanor Douglass, Dora Thusen, Cornelia Widney.

TEACHERS ARE ASKED TO SUBMIT STORIES

Prizes Are Offered For Best Essays on Subject, "Why I Like to Teach"

Teachers who are now enrolled in summer school are being asked to compete in a contest for the best story on "Why I Like Teaching," which has just been opened by the Institute for Public Service. For the story judged best there will be a prize of $25, for the second best $10, and for the third $5, and for the ten next best articles $1.

The object of this contest, those in charge say, is to bring before the ablest boys and girls of the high schools, the rewards and opportunities in teaching. The present shortage in teachers which promises to increase, emphasizes the importance of presenting the attractive and happy sides of the teaching profession as an aid to securing teacher recruits.

The contest opens July 12 and closes August 15. The papers will be judged by a committee composed of a layman, an editor and an educator. Manuscripts are limited to 400 words, and should be sent to the Institute for Public Service, 423 West 120 street, New York City.

Dr. Harlow Is Dead

Dr. Darvey Harlow of Zearing, Ia., who received his degree of doctor of medicine from the University, died July 9 at Rochester, Minnesota. Dr. Harlow took hospital work here before commencing practice at Zearing where he has been a number of years. He leaves a wife and one child.

MRS. BOERNER DIES IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Mrs. Ed Boerner, formerly of Iowa City, the mother of Adelaide Boerner, a graduate of the University, and her sister, Mrs. Emma Cogan were killed at Eanta, California, July 16, and Miss Adelaide was badly injured in a collision between the automobile in which they were riding and an electric car. Miss Boerner will recover from her injuries.

FROLIC AT CURRIER HALL NETS $55 FOR HOSPITAL KIDDIES

Dormitory and Gymnasium Students Cooperate in Benefit For Youngsters

CLEVER PROGRAM PRESENTED

Folk and Feature Dances, Stunts, Burlesques, Form Entertainment; Over Two Hundred Attend; Money Will Go to Buy Playground Things For Perkins Children

Summer session students and faculty watched a group of Currier hall and gymnasium co-eds frolic so well, on the Currier hall lawn last night, that they netted over $55 for the sick and crippled children of the Perkins hospital.

The evening was a "stunt night," with dances, games, and burlesques cleverly and originally presented. In the early dusk, Highland costumes, oriental costumes and the burlesque attire of the masquers gave a picturesque touch to the affair.

Over Two Hundred Attend
Chairs were placed for two hundred and they were filled early, so that a number were left standing. At the close of the entertainment, a collection was taken up among the audience and in a few moments, something over $55 was raised. Something more will be added to this by the results of the ice-cream sale, which have not yet been computed.

One of the features of the program was a number of dances by Thelma Green, a student in the elementary school, who won the approval of her audience immediately. Other dances were successfully presented by Marcella Lindeman, who gave an Oriental dance, and a solo dance by Miss Marion Lyon, acting head of the department of physical training for women. The folk dancing class gave a highland fling.

Program Is Varied

The program as it was given was as follows:

- Hairophone
- Highland Fling
- Minstrel Show
- Reading, Bernice Rafferty
- Games, Playground class
- Oriental Dance, Marcella Lindeman
- Burlesque Tragedy
- Dance, Thelma Green
- Banjo Song
- Witches' Dance
- Solo Dance, Marion Lyon

Currier hall women and members of the folk dancing and playground classes at the women's gymnasium, under the direction of Miss Marian Taylor and Miss Marion Lyon, cooperated in the entertainment. Jean Spiers was in charge of the program and Blanche Brown managed the selling of ice cream cones.

The money will be used to buy playground and schoolroom equipment which has long been needed for the children at the hospital.

Jessup Is Recovering

President Walter A. Jessup is recovering very well and it is thought that he will be back at his office fulfilling his official duties soon, according to information given by Mrs. Jessup.

"I believe we have room for but one soul loyalty, and that is loyalty to the American people." —Theodore Roosevelt

IOWA HISTORY

Of interest in connection with the new publication of the state historical society, the Palimpsest, which is expected to do much to popularize the history of Iowa and familiarize the people in the state with it, is an editorial which appears in the Des Moines Capital.

It deals with a history of the state which is being written by Cyrenus Cole of Cedar Rapids as follows:

"He scores Hamlin Garland and his 'Main-traveled Roads,' which series of stories he maintains depicted the ugliness of rural life and gave them exaggerated importance to satisfy the somewhat morbid cravings of a literary realism that was then coming into American vogue."

"Cyrenus Cole tells of the beauties of Iowa; of the great natural beauty places we are developing, of the concrete roads we are building, of the first of the national parks, 'Devil's Backbone,' in Delaware county on whose fissured walls are written the stories of geological ages and from whose sentinel pines unnumbered tribes and unknown races may have kept their vigils, reaching to the times before Babylon fell or Adam sinned."

"In his history of Iowa, Mr. Cole says he has sought to show that Iowa is not a place of 'sordid drudgery and of greed, with the click of the cash register and the odor of the barnyard.' For this impression he blames our own public speakers and our own writers who have always talked more of Iowa's corn and hogs and of Iowa's wealth, than they have of her educational facilities, her natural beauties, her spiritual development and her citizens."

"The glimpse of the history the New York Times has given us shows promise of a great literary and historical achievement. We shall await, very eagerly, the completion and publication of the book."

WOMEN IN COLLEGE

Although the reflection about its being too "detached" or too "cloistered" scarcely applies, we wonder why the New Republic editorial writer failed to give the education of women at co-educational universities any place in his editorial which follows:

"The woman who has graduated from college, looking back to her four years of academic life with a non-sentimental eye, can generally find a good deal of specific fault with it. Here and there it failed; it was too bookish, perhaps, too cloistered, too detached from the real world. But, on the whole, whether gained at Smith or Holyoke or Bryn Mawr, it did prepare her for life. It taught her scientific method. It set her free of certain feminine inhibitions. It gave her something like an equal chance in the world of men. It gave her practical weapons with which to achieve economic independence, and, on the side of spirit and intellect, an entry into a world whose treasure is not to be measured in dollars and cents.

That is why Smith and Barnard and Bryn Mawr and Holyoke, and Vassar and Wellesley and all the other women's colleges as well, each of which has an individual and special contribution to make, should be liberally endowed by the whole American community."

CARRYING ON

In the crucial days of '17 America turned to her college men for leadership. It was a young son of Harvard enlisted in the American Field Service who was the first American to give his life in the conflict, it was the college youths of the Lafayette Escadrille who first came in conflict with the Huns under the American flag, and it was to her universities that America turned when the problem of providing officers for the national army arose.

Today we are faced with the no less vital problem of reconstruction. In the words of Mazzini, "The Morrow of victory is more crucial than its eve." Now that democracy has been saved from autoocracy, democracy must be saved from itself. We are too apt to cast aside the evening paper with unconcern when its headlines tell of the battles raging between capital and labor, conservative and red, and of the troubles arising over the peace treaty and the operation of the league of nations.

Yet it is upon the solution and the right solution of these issues that the ultimate "winning of the war" will depend. America has the right to look to her college students as a class trained at the expense of the state for leaders in citizenship in the present crisis. The nation that is worth dying for ought to be worth living for. In time of peace there is no higher form of patriotism than that which concerns itself not with national prejudice and flag waving but with the problems of these days of reconstruction. Conversely indifference to the social, political and economic battles now on is the surest way in which the citizen can work against the cause of democracy. It is the duty of every American and especially the college student to "carry on."

Rietz Speaks Sunday

Professor Rietz will address the University students at the Methodist Sunday school next Sunday at 9:30 a. m. His subject will be "Studying the meanings of certain terms and phrases much used in religious discourse."

MANY MERMAIDS ARE FOUND AMONG YOUNG GIRLS, SAYS COACH

Young girls learn to swim very much easier than older women, according to Helen Hayes, instructor in swimming for the summer session. Miss Hayes has classes of girls from 7 to 15 years old, who are summer students in the University elementary school, as well as classes of young women and middle-aged women.

"Girls are not afraid of the water as many women are," says Miss Hayes, "and they enjoy the swimming pool whole-heartedly. Older women do not play and splash in the water like the children. They take their swimming lessons more seriously. They want to learn to swim, but not with the same excited interest. They are stiff and unnatural in the water."

"Young girls are very different. They learn the swimming movements and adjust themselves to the water more quickly. No one can fight the water and learn to swim, and children who are at home in the pool get along more rapidly because they are not afraid."

The star swimming pupils of the summer session are all young girls. Eloise Walker, 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Walker of Iowa City, swam sixty feet at the end of the fourth week of instruction and dives from the diving board without the slightest fear. Allaire Fleming, 9, swam at the end of five weeks. Dorothea Starbuck, 11, and Catherine Horack, 11, wear red bathing caps indicating that they are swimmers of next to the highest ability. Aileen Carpenter, 14, swam 200 yards after five weeks of instruction.

All the girls are now passing off their swimming requirements rapidly. Miss Hayes plans to have a swimming meet for the class of younger girls at the end of the second quarter of the summer session.

HISTORY LEADS OFF AMONG NEW VOLUMES ON LIBRARY'S SHELF

The student with the historical mind has been more than usually favored in the new books at the library this week. Books on diplomatic relations, political science, and bibliography, which are branches from the historical tree, are also numerous. Fiction takes third place in the new books, and some miscellaneous subjects follow.

The volumes of history or of subjects pertaining to history and bibliography are: The history of England, by Mahon, a work of seven volumes; three volumes of Diplomatic Correspondence; six books on political works by Bolingbroke; Sir H. Nicholas' History of the Royal Navy, a work in three volumes; "The Responsibilities of the League," by Eustace Percy; "Life of Colfax," Hollister; Wise's "Bibliography of Ruskin," in two volumes; "The Puritan in England and New England," by Byington; "History of Nova Scotia," Campbell; "Life of Lorenzo De Medici," Roscoe; "Hungary in the Eighteenth Century," Marezali; "Egypt from 1798 to 1914," Weigal; "Remains of Kirke," in two volumes, by White.

Books of fiction and poetry are: "Sakoontala, or the Lost Ring," a drama of India, by Williams; "Marryat," Frank Mildmay; Spencer's poems; Carey's poems; "Douglas Jerrod and Punch," by Walter Jerrod; "The Scottish Heiress," by R. M. Daniels; "Things by Their Right Name," by Narbauld; and "Riquet of the Tuft," by S. H. Brooks.

The books on miscellaneous but interesting subjects are: "Domestic Manners of the American," by Trollope; "A Lace Guide for Makers and Collectors," Whiting; a Greek book of Luciani, on Samosatensis Opera; "Public Parlor Reading," by Monroe; Schiller's "Robbers," "Early Drama," and "The Ghostseer;" a French book by P. Leroy-Beaulieu, "Le Collectivisme;" a German book, "Arbeit und Boden," by O. Effertz; and three volumes of miscellaneous works by Mackenzie.

MUSICAL DISCRIMINATION TESTS HELD THIS MORNING

The third of a series of musical discrimination tests will be given by Dr. Esther Allen Gaw at 8 o'clock this morning in the liberal arts assembly hall.

Auditory time discrimination, sense of consonance and musical memory will be the points examined this morning. Each person who takes the test will be able to establish a comparison between his work and that which is correct, in order to be able to gauge his musical ability along these lines. A number have taken the previous tests.

HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETE TO ENROLL AT S. U. I.

Glenn "Doc" Miller of West Waterloo high school, one of the most widely known high school athletes in the state, has announced his intention of enrolling at the University of Iowa in September, where his prowess in football, basketball, and track will be turned toward boosting the Hawkeye standing in these sports. Miller was practically unanimously selected for all-state high school football teams in 1919. In track last spring he won individual honors both at the University and State College meets. He excels in the dashes and weight events.

CATALOGUES FOR NEXT YEAR MAY BE SECURED

University catalogues for the next collegiate year of 1920-1921 have just been secured from the printer.

The catalogue gives a thorough survey of the courses which will be offered in all colleges for next year, as well as a list of students and faculty for the year just completed. A number of changes have been made, and new courses have been added.

ACCOUNTING COURSE MAY BE CONTINUED

The course in principles of accounting may be continued during the second summer session, according to F. G. Hill, who is teaching it this session. Half a dozen students of the present class have petitioned to have the course continued.

The course extended over two sessions would cover approximately one semester's work in accounting. Students who would be interested in taking this course are advised to consult with Mr. Hill immediately, at his office at room 316, liberal arts building.

Professor Nutting Lectures

Prof. C. C. Nutting, of the zoology department, delivered one of a series of lectures on the Barbados-Antigua expedition before summer school students Thursday morning at 8 o'clock, in the liberal arts assembly hall.

MANUAL ARTS WILL OFFER MANY COURSES

Full Schedule Planned in This Department for the Second Term

The department of manual arts plans an extensive schedule for the second term of the summer session, with a number of changes. Prof. D. G. Higbee, head of the department, will have charge of the drawing and drafting, and Louis Neimeyer will teach the shop work. The department plans not only to repeat the last session work as stated in the catalogue but also to carry those who have had one term into advanced work.

At present there are over seventy enrolled in the department, about thirty in the drawing classes and the remainder in shop work. A large percentage of these men plan to remain for the second term and carry on advanced work. The work being taught in the shop is of the most practical kind. It includes the making of hall racks, bookracks, pedestals, plant stands, library tables, secretaries and other cabinet work. The use of turning lathe is also taught to those sufficiently advanced. Mr. Neimeyer, in charge of the shop work is an experienced man in this line, having had 24 years practical experience as machine operator, foreman, superintendent of plants, designer and carpenter of furniture, cabinet maker, and millwright. He covers also the subject of finishing of the different kinds of wood, both in oil and water, that are used in practical work.

Owing to the large number of school superintendents who take work in this department special arrangements have had to be made for the second term of the summer session as the great majority of the students are compelled to leave before the end of the term to take up their work. To benefit this group such people may, by petitioning the head of the department leave at the end of the fourth week, arrangements having been completed for them to do enough extra work to gain full credit.

It is also to be arranged so that those students so desiring may by doing sufficient extra work gain full six weeks' credit for five weeks' work.

CLINICAL COURSE ENDED YESTERDAY

The special clinical course in the medical college which has been attended by fourteen physicians from all parts of the state, ended yesterday.

The course was under the supervision of Dr. Lee Wallace Dean, dean of the college of medicine, and included a review of clinical methods.

GEOLOGY STUDENTS
JOIN WORK AND PLAY IN FIELD CLASSES

Work and play are not often combined in school work but the summer courses offered to the advanced geology students seem to unite these two elements. Two field courses of unusual interest are being given, one in the Black Hills of South Dakota and the other in the district around Baraboo, Wisconsin.

The class at work in the Black Hills is composed of thirteen members with Professor Runner as guide and instructor. A permanent camp is maintained at Whitewood, South Dakota, where students may study the rock structure of a mountainous region to the best advantage. According to plans made previous to starting, Professor Thomas says the class works in groups of two or three. They leave camp with a lunch and spend the entire day in the field. At the end of the term the members can walk 14 to 18 miles per day and are perfect specimens of the outdoor life.

In addition to the training in recognition and interpretation of general geological phenomena the Black Hills district and regions nearby contain other sights of special importance.

Professor Thomas says excursions will be made to the Big Bad Lands of the White and Cheyenne rivers, the Wind Cave of National Park, the famous granites and pegmatites of Harney Peak, and the great Homestake gold and tungsten mines.

The Baraboo field course is cooperative with the University of Chicago. This year the instruction is given by Professor MacClintock of the University of Chicago. Four Iowa students and six from the University of Chicago make up the class.

The Wisconsin field offers special advantages for the study of glacial drift. When the great glacier came down an area of considerable size was not covered by the ice drift at Baraboo. The work of the class is done on the fringe, according to Prof. A. O. Thomas. They may study the effects of the glacier and compare with this region that has been left intact. Devil's Lake, one of the lakes of glacial origin, the soil and drainage of the region are studied and maps made of the region.

Four weeks are spent in intensive study by the members of these classes and then two weeks are given to making reports of the work done. The work began June 16 and will close at the end of the six weeks' session. These courses will be repeated the second term of the summer session.

SUCCESSOR TO MAURY
KENT IS APPOINTED

E. W. Meanwell has been chosen to succeed Maury Kent, former University of Iowa athletic coach and star athlete, as head basketball coach at the University of Wisconsin. Kent recently resigned at the Badger institution to become head baseball and basketball coach at Ames. He is the second great Iowa athlete to join the coaching staff of the Cyclone rivals. Clyde Williams, a former star Hawkeye athlete, having served the Aggies for several years as coach and athletic director. During Williams' regime, the Cyclones won more athletic contests from Iowa than under any other man, which only demonstrates the Old Gold superiority in a striking way. Ames loses game after game to the Hawkeyes and is at last forced to install Hawkeye coaches in an attempt to avert more disasters. It will be an interesting session next winter when Coach Jimmie Ashmore sends his Old Gold basketball quintet against Maury Kent's Aggies—and also an interesting session next spring when Ashmore's baseball nine crosses bats with Kent's Cyclones.

Dick Jessup Is Better

Richard Jessup, son of President Walter A. Jessup, is recovering slowly from his recent operation but his improvement is as well as could be expected, according to information given by Mrs. Jessup.

TAKE DENTAL TESTS

clinical training and use of individual equipment of the dental infirmary.

Admission for tests have been determined by validity of 15 unit high school credentials as sent in by prospective students. Other qualifications are equal except in that residences of the state of Iowa are given preference for selection to fill vacancies existing at the time of their application, over non-residents.

"The nature of the tests is not to be known before hand," Prof. Carl E. Seashore of the psychology department in charge of the tests said. "The vocational tests are planned to assist in judging the natural capacity of the candidate for achievement in the fundamental sciences required in dentistry and dental technics. The tests require no preparation."

To accommodate late applicants and students not able to be present at the tests today a second series of tests are to be offered some time in the month of September. All applicants will be notified as to the exact date, when it has been determined.

The preacher, my boss an' everybody

gave me — for having that word in my ad the other night—But the Boss isn't so sore as he was since he's seen the way his white ivory goods are leaving the store.

It's a crime to tsink of all that good looking white ivory being sold at 10 per cent off when it hadn't ought to be even opened for 3 months yet. But what the Boss says goes, and I can't blame you for taking advantage of it.
