TO ACCOMMODATE a roomful of people, the auditorium will be enlarged. The installation of the new doors will be completed next week.

The outstanding event of the week will be the admission of new students to the college. This will take place on Thursday, August 11. The day will be filled with activities, including a welcoming assembly, a tour of the campus, and an orientation program for the new students. The registrar's office will issue their schedules and other necessary paperwork.

The week will also feature a number of guest speakers and workshops. On Monday, August 8, a panel of experts will discuss the importance of nutrition in college life. On Tuesday, August 9, a workshop will be held on time management and effective study habits. On Wednesday, August 10, a distinguished author will speak on the role of literature in contemporary society.

The weekend will be filled with cultural events, including a concert by the college orchestra on Saturday, August 12, and a performance by the college drama club on Sunday, August 13. These events will provide an opportunity for students to relax and enjoy the arts.

In addition to these activities, the week will also feature a number of club meetings and social events. The drama club, the debate team, and the student government will all hold meetings to discuss upcoming events and projects.

Overall, the week will be a busy one, filled with opportunities for learning, growth, and community. Students are encouraged to take advantage of these events and to get involved in the college community.
That is why Smith and Barnard and Brzy Maye and Bab/Desktop and Vassar, and the whole college, look at women's colleges as well, each of which has an individual and special contribution to make to the broad education offered by the whole American community.

CARRYING ON

In the crucial days of '77 America turned to its college men for leadership.
It was a young son of Harvard related in the American Field Service, who was the first American to give his life to the conflict, and a student at the Derry Matern College.
It deals with a history of the state which was written by Cyrus Cole of Cedar Rapids as follows: "With the war, the 'Main-traveled Roads,' and "Main-traveled-Brains," which series of stories he maintained captured the attention of the public and gave that added importance to the summary of the history by Cyrus Cole that was then coming in to American realms.
"Cyrus Cole tells of the beauties of Iowa; of the great natural beauty places of the state. They are concrete roads we are building, of the first of the national parks. Devil's Backbone and "Main-traveled-Brains," which series of stories he maintained captured the attention of the public and gave that added importance to the summary of the history by Cyrus Cole that was then coming in to American realms.
In his history of Iowa, Mr. Cole says he has sought to show that Iowa has been saved from autocracy, democracy in the new publication of the state historical society, the Faust, which is expected to do much to popularize the works of literature.

SUCCESSOR TO MAURY

KENT IS APPOINTED

E. W. Meawoold has been chosen to succeed Maury Kent, former University of Iowa football coach and star athlete, who died as head basketball coach at the University of Wisconsin. Kent, recently resigned at the Badger in order to accept a position as basketball coach at Ames. He is the second great Iowa athlete to join the coaching staff of the Cyclones. Clyde Williams, a former star Haw- kies athlete, having served the Aggies for several years as coach and athletic director. According to Williams' re- ports, the Cyclone squad will be about the same, but he says that the Cyclones will be more athletic and have more interest from the players. Ames loses game after game at the Hawkeyes and is at last forced to install Hawkeye coaches in an attempt to avert more disasters. It will be an interesting session next winter when Coach Jesseph Ashmore sends his Old Gold basketball team against Maury Kent's Angles—and also an interesting session next spring when Ashmore's baseball nine crosses they with Kent's Cyclones.
