"Hyacinth Halvey" as written by Lady Gregory, an Irish dramatist, is a typical one act play, bringing out common scenes of Irish life.

"Three Pills in a Bottle," by Rachiel Fields, a little fairy tale put in one act, will also be given tonight. "Owing to the limited time for coaching and preparation, scenery and costumes must naturally be abbreviated," said Mrs. Hunt. "The plays will be more of a demonstration of the class work over the five weeks than a formal entertainment." No admission will be charged.

TWO NEW FACULTY MEN ARE ANNOUNCED

Kirby and Knight Will Join Staff of Education Department Next Fall

Thomas J. Kirby, professor of secondary education, and Frederick B. Knight, assistant professor of psychology and education, are two new members of the University faculty whose appointments are announced from the office of President Walter A. Jessup.

Professor Kirby comes to Iowa from the University of Pittsburgh, where he has been professor of secondary education since 1915. He has had wide experience as a teacher, has taken advanced degrees from the teachers' college of Columbia University, including the degree of doctor of philosophy in 1913, and during the war he worked in the personnel division of the army on the formulation, revision, standardization, and administration of army trade tests.

Boston University, Harvard, and Columbia all claim Professor Knight as an alumnus, but his highest degree, doctor of philosophy, is from Columbia. He is a native of Massachusetts, and has been superintendent of schools at Ipswich and Danvers, Mass. He is a member of Beta Theta Pi, Phi Delta Kappa, and Phi Beta Kappa fraternities.

These two notable additions to the faculty of the University's college of education will greatly strengthen an instructional staff already recognized as one of the best in the middle west. Dr. Kirby and Dr. Knight will take up their work at Iowa with the opening of the regular academic year on September 23.

AMES HAS ENROLLMENT OF 801 FOR SUMMER

Enrollment in the summer school at Iowa State College at Ames has reached 801, according to the news bulletin issued by the college.

"This is the largest in the history of the school," says the bulletin. "Of this number 26 are school superintendents, 74 are high school teachers, 196 government students, and 324 regular college students."

BARBADOS FILM WILL BE SHOWN AGAIN AT GARDEN

Motion pictures of the "Barbados-Antigua Expedition; Antigua," with lecture by Professor Charles C. Nutting will be continued by request at the Garden theater, Wednesday, July 21, at 1 p. m.

LIFE OF BECKER EXEMPLIFIED OLD SLOGAN—"IOWA FIGHTS"

"Iowa Fights" has been the slogan which has urged many a hard pressed Hawkeye team on to victory on Iowa field. The records of 1917-18 show that the same spirit went with the University's men in the far sterner game of war.

Iowa has on her records no finer example of her "Old Fight Spirit" than that found in the life of Fred H. Becker, who was killed in action at Chateau Thierry two years ago tomorrow. Fred Becker was born November 6, 1895, at Waterloo, Iowa. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Becker, of 224 Newell street, Waterloo. He graduated from the East High school, Waterloo, in 1915, and entered the University of Iowa in the fall of that year.

Playing his first year of collegiate football in 1917 he made such a success that he was placed in Eckersall's all-American first team as right tackle, and his case was eulogized by Eckersall in the Chicago Tribune as "unparalleled in Iowa football annals and an exceptional one in any case."

Becker's career as an athlete only pointed to the splendid part in the great game of war which called him from his University work in May, 1917. After a three months training course at Fort Snelling he graduated with the rank of second lieutenant, and was then ordered to report to the commanding officer at the port of embarkation, Hoboken, New Jersey, to join the first detachment of two thousand officers to be sent to France.

He sailed from Hoboken on the "Manchuria" on September 5, arriving in France about September 25. After three months in an officers' training school he was assigned to the 55th Co. of the Fifth Regiment Marines, and was with this company continuously until May, when he was transferred to the 18th Co. of the same regiment. While with the 55th Co. he was mentioned in dispatches as having led a successful night raid against a superior force of Germans. On June 3, 1917, he was slightly wounded in the shoulder by a fragment of a bursting shell, which confined him to a hospital until July, when he rejoined the old 55th.

A letter from W. R. Matthews, captain in the Marine Corps, written February 6, 1919, from France, gives the details of Becker's life from this time. It seems that they were close together and friends from the time he came back from the hospital until the time of his death, and he and the captain went over the top together again and again.

"The last I saw of Fred," he writes, "he was walking along with his gigantic strides, his hands in his rain coat pockets, at the head of his platoon, as calmly as though he were walking down a city street.

"In regard to more detailed circumstances concerning his death, our division was relieved in the Chateau Thierry sector the evening of July 16. We marched back a way and were loaded into trucks. We rode all that night, came down through Meaux, turned north and were unloaded, the morning—nearly noon—of the 17th, up behind the Villers Cotteret forest near the town of Crepy. We were issued hard rations and started hiking.

"We jumped off on the morning of the 18th in the biggest battle ever waged. That evening we received orders to continue the attack and to make a real break through, and reach the Chateau Thierry-Soissons road. It was in this attack that Fred was killed by a shell fragment when the Boche barrage came down.

"While Beck will not come marching home with the rest of us, you have indeed a wonderful heritage to cherish. He died a most glorious death in the 'Battle of Liberation,' as the French call the battle that began at 4:35 a. m., July 18, 1918."

For his splendid service he was awarded the distinguished service cross, the croix de guerre, and the Belgian war cross, posthumously. Lieut. Becker was a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity while in school.

SEVENTY-FIVE TRY OUT FOR DENTISTRY

Vocational Tests Are Given to Prospective Students in Three Cities

Seventy-five prospective dental students took the vocational tests for admission into the college of dentistry in 1920 at the Des Moines, the Sioux City and the University laboratories of examination last Saturday, July 17. Forty-two out of the seventy-five reported at the liberal arts assembly hall at the University. "Not as many appeared as were expected, probably because the applicants failed to send in their credits and could not be notified in time," said Dr. Mabel C. Williams, associate professor of psychology.

"It will take about a week or ten days before the results of the tests can be determined and tabulated," said Dr. Williams. The applicants will be notified as to their standing as soon as the results can be worked out.

FULL AMOUNT RAISED AT CURRIER FROLIC FOR HOSPITAL IS $64

Not only the youngsters of the Perkins hospital, but all the women who took part in the Currier hall frolic Friday night, are congratulating themselves on the amount of money raised to purchase equipment for the hospital. When the collection was counted, it was found to amount to $58, and the sale of ice cream cones added $6, making a total of $64.

In just what way the money will be spent, it has not been fully decided. A part of the money, it is believed, will be used to buy apparatus for physical training, and that which remains will be drawn on from time to time as it is needed, according to Miss Mame Rose Prosser, principal of the Perkins school.

KEEP UP THE FIGHT

It is two years ago tomorrow that Fred Becker, Iowa athlete and football star, gave his life in the great war.

The anniversary of his death should bring just a moment's pause to students in the busy round of life, a few moments' thought to the not very far distant past when Becker and others who were heroes with him, fought the good fight.

Although the memory of it cannot die, the day for heroism of that sort is, for the present, over; but the spirit of fight which carried these men on to the last, to give all, can well be transferred to some of the affairs of ordinary life.

May the memory of men like this be a constant and living inspiration when ideals threaten to crumble and the fight does not seem worth while!

GIVE HER CREDIT

Were you at the benefit for the Perkins' children at Currier hall last Friday evening? If so it is not necessary to tell you what the women there did in the interest of the playground which they wish to make possible at the hospital across the river.

But for you who were not present—one woman with a great deal of enthusiasm organized the women at Currier hall and said, "Let's do something for the children across the river." No sooner was it said than they agreed and the benefit of last Friday night was the result. With the help of the faculty members of the physical education department, a clever and original program was planned and everyone present enjoyed it very much.

The collection which was taken up during the evening was $56.87 and with the proceeds from the sale of the ice cream cones $64 was the entire sum netted. This money will be spent in buying equipment for the playground or other useful things for the children.

All from a woman who is interested in others and had a few minutes in which to see and plan for their good! And from another woman who is either jealous or ignorant came the criticism, "It's third grade stuff."

That isn't very harsh, of course, but neither is it very kind. One is never too old either to join in or at least enjoys others at "third grade stuff." At any rate give the interested woman credit for the cause for which she worked was without doubt worth while.

THE EIGHTEENTH OF JULY

Two years ago, on the eighteenth of July, began the Allied attack at the Marne which definitely ended the chances of German victory and world domination. Almost without a break, the lines moved toward the Rhine from day to day, and the end of actual combat drew nearer and nearer. While our soldiers were plunging forward against hitherto invincible enemies, the nation at home was straining every nerve to carry its part of the struggle to a successful finish. Pettiness and private ambition had little place in the scheme of things, and every effort was for country. The peril and the gloom of that day are memories. Have we forgotten as soon the lessons of the war? Our boys have put away their olive-drab and our camps are empty. Our ships sail the seas laden with the fruits of peace instead of the grim panoply of war, and our factories make guns no longer. Have we put by as well the spirit of sacrifice and of common weal that blossomed two short years ago?

To every American the day should give pause, should demand whether he is justifying the hecatombs which sanctified the fields of France. Is his attitude the attitude of one for whom men have died, for whom other men drag out broken lives, or is it again the outlook of the self-seeker who owes no duty to his fellowman? Is he working as his ability gives him to work to make his country a better place wherein to dwell; his state a leader among her sisters, his city a city of which all men can be justly proud? If our people are not doing these things and doing them heartily, if they have lost the clearer vision and the deeper loyalty, they are traitor indeed to the huddled heaps that once were men which dotted the far-away wheat fields two short years ago.—Des Moines Capital.

THE DISHWASHING STANCE

Certain problems of "the new poor" are discussed in the current Labor Review, and with a sympathy which has hitherto been confined to the manual worker—but which is now, in his case, becoming rapidly superfluous. Do housewives who once enjoyed the services of a cook find domestic labor difficult? They have only to apply the principles which they have long practiced in outdoor sport and the problem is solved. "With the same form and spirit we can find as much health and exercise in housework as in a game of tennis or golf. Can't we?"

In dishwashing, as in golf, a matter of primary importance is the stance. Stand easily but solidly upon both feet. "When will women stop wearing their old high-heeled pumps for housework?" The clothing also should be "loose and sensible," so that, in dishwashing as in golf, it will come natural to play each stroke through. It is very important to "use the back properly." If doubt arises as to just how to use the back, the newly poor housewife is informed that the University of Cornell "has a whole bulletin on this important subject." Above all, put the same "rhythm and spirit" into dishwashing that so signally triumphs upon the links. Don't get down-hearted. A dishwasher may be down, but she is never out. Presumably, those who feel that way may be permitted to address the dish. This, however, is a detail in which the newly poor housewife is already proficient. And first and last, keep your eye upon the dish, also upon the knife and spoon, and especially upon the fork! No woman can develop her full game as a dishwasher without remembering to keep her eye upon the fork.—New York Times.

MISS BERTHA COOPER VISITS UNIVERSITY

Miss Bertha Ann Cooper, formerly a member of the University of Iowa school of music faculty, is visiting the University, en route to Lockport, N. Y., where she will participate in the National Music festival, singing twice on the program. Miss Cooper is now head of the voice department of Texas Christian university, at Fort Worth, Texas.

SAMUEL JOHNSON HAS FIRST PLACE ON NEW BOOKSHELF FOR WEEK

Samuel Johnson occupies first space this week on the shelves devoted to the new books. His works are contained in twelve volumes, and are in old English script. The student of old English will enjoy the quiet humor of Johnson in its original form. Dryden's Fables, also, will prove of interest to the English student.

Drama occupies a larger space than usual, for there are four volumes of Dekker's dramatic works, and two volumes of Brome's dramatic work. W. L. George has a new book on Dramatic Actualities, which, although not drama, shows that drama may be connected with actual happenings.

Only one book of poems is found on the shelves this week: "Wild Honey," by Michael Field. The novels of this week are: "Invisible Links," a book translated from the Swedish of Selma Lageröf to English by Bancroft Flach; and "Traacherous Ground," by Bojer.

Historical works are: New America, by Dixon; Schiller's "Thirty Years War and the Revolt of the Netherlands;" "Women of the Revolution," by Mrs. Ellet, in three volumes; "Fifty Years in Oregon," by Geer; "History of Canada," in three volumes, by Tracy; "An Old Frontier of France," Serverance; and "The Gold Seekers of '49," by Webster.

Works in biography are: "Life of David Belasco," in two volumes, Winter; "Letters and Times of the Tylers," also in two volumes; "Life and Times of Defoe," by Wilson; "Memoires of General La Fayette," by Reynault-Warh; and Fascal's "Abraham Lincoln."

Other books are: "The Story of the Rainbow Division," by Raymond Thompkins; "Transactions of the American Surgical Association;" "The New Church Law on Matrimony," by Petrovits; "Papers on the Legal History of Government," by Bigelow.

UNIVERSITY TO HAVE CHANGES FOR 1920-21

Social Life Will Be Changed as Well as Departments and Courses

The social life of the University as well as the faculty roll will be found to be different with the opening of the academic year of 1920-21.

A mid-week "dating" rule, which prohibits social engagements for freshman girls except Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights, will be one of the most radically different things in the life of the school. The new rule is intended to discourage social activities in the interest of other activities, such as literary work, studies and athletics, according to Mrs. Nellie S. Aurner, dean of women. The desire is to have the rule ultimately apply to all women and not just to freshmen, according to Mrs. Aurner.

Among the faculty, some of the greatest changes will be found in the departments of economics and of chemistry. Prof. C. C. Ruggles, the new head of the department of economics, will be in Iowa City soon to take charge of the department, and oversee the new changes. A new instructor, Prof. R. W. Stone, will take the place as assistant professor of Prof. Paul S. Peirce. Professor Stone is an expert in his line. He will give special work in labor problems, management of men, and will oversee the special instruction in case work by experienced field workers. Another new course added to the department of economics is the course in Red Cross Home Service training. This will be taught by Professor Haynes. The main phases of social service taught will be child welfare, community organization, public health, Red Cross service, social case work for home service, and general social work and community organization.

Several vacancies in the department of economics will be filled under the direction of the head of the department. Men will be chosen to fill the place of Professors Russell A. Stevenson, H. B. Whaling, and Nathaniel R. Whitney, who are leaving this year.

The new head of the department of chemistry, Prof. Edward Bartow, has charge of the new changes in the chemistry department. Professor Bartow will come to Iowa City about July 20, to make arrangements for the changes in his department. The department in chemistry has grown so much that it will be necessary to have a new chemistry building. The plans for this building are in the charge of the new head. Professor Bartow has been looking up laboratory equipment and studying the structure of various chemistry laboratories during his trip east this summer.

One new professor has been added to the department of English, Prof. Thomas A. Knott. Esther L. Swenson and Luella M. Wright will take places in the department of English. The department of graphic and plastic arts has added a new instructor to accommodate the increased numbers in the department. Helen Grotewohl is the new instructor. Verness Fraser is new in the music department. No one as yet has been appointed in the place of Dr. Esther Allen Gaw, who will be in the University of California this coming year.

Prof. S. Bose, in political science, will be on leave this next year, for the purpose of travel. No one has been appointed in his place as yet.

PROFESSOR SOARES SPEAKS AT WEEKLY VESPER SERVICES

Head of the Department of Theology at University of Chicago Talks Sunday Afternoon

EPIC OF ELIJAH IS SUBJECT

Invocation is Given by the Rev. L. S. Shumaker of the Iowa City Baptist Church—University Choir Sings Special Number of Which Lester Soares is Author

Prof. Theodore G. Soares, head of the department of theology in the University of Chicago, was the speaker at the University vespers held in the natural science auditorium Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

The "Epic of Elijah" was the general topic on which Professor Soares spoke. He stated that the epic as written in the Bible is divided by some history of other lands and other people and the fact that there is an epic is not generally realized by most people who read the Bible. The further fact that it is cut by chapters, verses and books makes it more difficult to realize the epic which is really there.

Divisions Are Made

The "Epic of Elijah" is divided into two parts. "The Test of Fire" and "The Silence of Sinai" were the two important divisions.

Each topic was given a very vivid and colorful description. The beauty of the entire life of Elijah will be better appreciated after having heard Professor Soares. The talk was not full of the terms of theology which men interested in that line of work are apt to give to a subject of this description.

Choir Gives Special Number

The vespers was opened with a hymn. The invocation was given by the Rev. L. S. Shumaker of the Baptist church. "The Lord is my Salvation" by Lester Soares was sung by the University choir led by Prof. W. E. Hays of the school of music.

Professor Theodore Soares received his A. B. and A. M. degrees at the University of Minnesota in 1891-2; his doctor of philosophy degree at the University of Chicago in 1894; and his doctor of divinity degree at Knox college, Illinois, in 1901. He was ordained a Baptist minister in 1894.

Professor Soares is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity, and the Phi Kappa Psi, social fraternity. During the year 1918 he was in France for the Y. M. C. A. speaking at American camps. He has written several books on theology and is a contributor to theological magazines.

DR. GAW TO TALK ON

VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE

Dr. Esther A. Gaw will give the last of a series of lectures Saturday, July 24, at 8 a. m., in the liberal arts assembly hall. The subject of the lecture will be "Vocational Guidance."

In the lecture Dr. Gaw will summarize the previous work and explain the use of the five tests in choosing a profession. She will probably show the apparatus used in giving the tests, also.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brueckner of Fullerton, Calif., announce the birth of a son, Saturday, July 17. The father is the son of Reverend and Mrs. Herman H. Brueckner of this city, and the mother was formerly Miss Helen Wilson, who is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Philip Souers, B. A. '19, formerly of Des Moines, a member of Beta Theta Pi, spent Sunday in Iowa City en route to Akron, Ohio.

OAKDALE EXCURSION IS WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON

The excursionists to the Oakdale tuberculosis sanatorium will leave Iowa City Wednesday at 3:00 p. m., on the interurban. The cost of the round trip will be $.25 and all who desire to go should notify Bruce E. Mahan, 301 liberal arts building, before Tuesday night. Prof. C. H. Weller, summer session director, will lead the excursion.

The Oakdale sanatorium and grounds comprise 275 acres of land upon which farming, sheep, cattle, and hog raising and dairy farming are carried on quite extensively. Most of this work is done by state employes as the majority of the patients are unable to work. Oakdale is one of the most important health institutions in the state. It was founded in 1908, as the result of a long and intensive educational campaign on the part of the medical authorities of the state. When first opened it received only two patients whereas it now carries more than 150 cases at one time and handles more than a thousand cases during the year. When the sanatorium was first founded incipient cases only were handled but recently an annex has been built handling all stages of the disease.

The excursionists will be put under the direction of the superintendent of the institution upon their arrival and will visit all parts of the sanatorium including the new hospital, the open air porches, the fine state dairy herds and other points of interest.

READING COURSE IS READY TO OPERATE

Correspondence With the Extension Division Will Bring Book List

The National Reading Circle, organized by the United States Bureau of Education and conducted in Iowa by the extension division of the University, is ready for business.

A plan of co-operation has been perfected between the federal bureau and the extension division in connection with home reading courses which are designed to broaden the reader's education and brighten life for those who wish to make a definite study along some particular or general literary lines.

Joining the National Reading Circle is very simple. A letter addressed to the Reading Circle Manager, Extension Division, Iowa City, will bring a list of books which are to be read in the course desired. Sixteen courses are offered, including groups of reading for parents, for girls, in fiction, history, biography, American literature, American heroes and statesmen, French history, seamanship, iron and steel manufacture, ship-building, and machine shop work.

It is required that the books in group one, including Homer's "Iliad" and "Odyssey," Dante's "Divine Comedy," the greater dramas of Shakespeare, and Goethe's "Faust" be read twice within three years after enrolling in the National Reading Circle. A limited examination is given upon completing each group of books and if the course is finished successfully the extension division recommends the reader to the bureau of education for a certificate. No fees are connected with the National Reading Circle and outlines of the work are furnished free of charge.
