KEEPING UP WITH WOMEN

The current school of citizenship for women, with its series of addresses on practical political affairs, and the interest which it seems to be arousing among the women of the University and of Iowa City, suggests that a brother institution would not be grossly out of place and time.

One of the chronic attacks at the college man is his disregard for questions of political, social, and economic import in the world outside of University walls. It is quite true that this accusation is without warrant in the case of a great number of undergraduate men, perhaps of a majority, but it is also true that great waves of public feeling in the world at large do not create much more than a respectable ripple in campus sentiment.

Without question this is not a bad indication. Perhaps it means that college men are taking the thing somewhat more intelligently, and laconically. But a lack of interest in world affairs is patently evident. The presidential campaign, and its kindred drives are rarely heard mentioned in student conversations. Yet a large number of University men and women will be expected to cast an intelligent vote in a few weeks in the wind-up of this campaign. Now is a good time to vindicate a college education in the eyes of some of its rabid critics. Let the college man's vote be an intelligent one. Current reading matter is available in sufficient quantities to afford every man his own little school of citizenship.

LISTENING POST

Wonder what a class president thinks about?

Explaining Myself Away!

Dear Nero: Alas! Your prose in unworthy of your poetry. . . . You assign me to the ignorant and label me "mis-informed," merely because I called your waistcoat a "weskit!" Let me inform you that "weskit" is London cockney slang and that I picked the phrase up last summer during my sojourn in the British Isles. . . . Incidentally, I had gone there in search of a hat which was stolen from me last spring. My girl had scratched my name in the chapeau which is why I prized it so dearly. —Ed.

Patriotism

In this morning's news we observe that President Woodrow Wilson enjoys a good joke and as a consequence the Frivol editors are thinking seriously of putting him on their mailing lists.

Now that food has gone up it is almost certain that love affairs among the student body will not be developed in Iowa City cafes.

Prithee Let No Word Be Spoken

Speaking of pursuing the unimportant, of being snared by the insignificant and of fretting about the trite and the trivial, what about this: "Oh! There is Franklin P. Roosevelt."

Famous Charges

The Charge of the Light Brigade. Governor Cox's Charges. Taxi Charges. State Attorney Hoynes's White Sox Charges.

Let us take up a collection and buy some cough drops for the Howling 300? H. A.

Do you remember that moving editorial about writing home to mother? Do you know what the business manager tried to do that day? He wanted to run a billiard academy ad right opposite.

BOOK BY PATRICK OUT SOON

New Work of Philosophy Professor Discusses Current Problems

Circulation of a recently written book, "The Psychology of Social Reconstruction," by Prof. George T. W. Patrick of the department of philosophy and psychology, is expected soon if it is not already on the market.

The writer holds that the present radical programs for communism and the abolition of the capital system is contrary to the fundamental processes of human psychology.

Although the date set for publication was October 22, and the first copies have not been received by Professor Patrick, the book has been mentioned in reviews in the Survey and the Atlantic Monthly, and is listed in the fall catalog of the publisher.

DILL RETURNS FROM ISLANDS

which the island is noted. This island was the scene of a former expedition from the University, of which Professor Dill was also in charge.

After gathering specimens from among the islands for about a month the party sailed for San Francisco, August 11.

Party Blazes Own Trail

During the stay at the islands, Professor Dill attended the Pan-Pacific Scientific Congress as the delegate from the University of Iowa.

The second expedition under the leadership of Professor Dill set out from Seattle, Washington, August 18, to go into the north-eastern part of that state for specimens of various birds and animals. The expedition was joined at Seattle by Curator C. J. Albrecht of the Washington State Museum, a former student of this University, and B. E. Manville of Iowa City.

Crossing the state from Seattle to Pateros, Washington, the party traveled up the Metnow Valley to Deadhorse Camp, a distance of sixty-nine miles, by stage coach. From Dead-horse Camp the party proceeded to Billygoat Pass by pack train. The first camp of this expedition was established there and the party spent ten days securing mountain goats, birds and small mammals. Camp was then moved to the foot of Nannygoat mountain, in the Lost River county. The trail here, according to Professor Dill, is entirely unbroken and the party was forced to cut a passageway for the horses with axes. This camp was made the permanent camp of the expedition and it was in this vicinity that most of the specimens were secured.

Fine Collection Secured

The party was able to secure a complete collection of the mountain goats. They also secured specimens of whistling marmots, pack rats, four different species of squirrels, not found in Iowa, mountain beavers, rock rabbits and several species of grouse, crows, Canadian jays and many smaller birds. "The expedition was a very successful one," stated Professor Dill "because we got what we went after. In view of the fact that the mountain goat will be entirely gone in a few years we were exceedingly fortunate in having secured them." In the two trips the parties covered a distance of 12,500 miles.
