TAG SALE TO SEND BAND ON CHICAGO TRIP

University Women's New Pep Club Takes Job of Paying Part Of the Expense

ATHLETIC BOARD WILL HELP

Expenses Were Shouldered by Band Men on Former Occasions — Game is Played October 23 — Sale of "On Iowa" Today Figures in Fund — Twenty-four Sales Women

Iowa women are going to send the band to Chicago. The "Mysterious 300", the women's pep organization, now seeking its official title, is backing the campaign which will start Thursday, October 14.

In shouldering the responsibility of sending the band along with the football team, October 23, this organization is undertaking a work which has formerly been left to the members of the band.

The money will be raised by selling tags next Thursday for twenty-five cents each. Twenty-four women, members of the pep club will conduct the sale.

Since the railroad fare alone to Chicago is twenty dollars a man, the students are not asked to finance the entire trip. According to a statement made yesterday afternoon by Joe Bengt, drum major of the band, the athletic board will pay part of the expenses. Copies of "On Iowa" will be sold at the Cornell game this afternoon.

Jean Spiers, the promoter of the pep organization, is in charge of the sale of tags. Assisting her will be Ada Yoder and Lue Prentiss, the two yell leaders, and the following members: Huberteen Kueneman, Dorothy Lingham, Claribel Wright, Helen Peterson, Lorna Ludwig, Alberta Vasey, Helen Hays, Beatrice McGarvey, Lucile Ben-nison, Josephine Thielen, Mildred Waddell, Ruth Van Law, Florence Barnes, Isabel Davis, Eileen Young, Gladys Taggart, Agnella Gunn, Mar-ion Brierly, Ruth Wilson, Helen Evans, and Margery Meardon.

"BEST LAID PLANS OF MICE AND MEN" WOBBLE NOW AND THEN

Liberal arts politicians are beginning to get things lined up for the class elections. So far most of the activity has been in the senior class, but there has been enough there to make up for any apparent quietness in the other classes. As a matter of fact, when the liberal arts senior class is strong in politics, and it certainly is this year, the fourth year men are perfectly willing to pick up slates for all the other classes.

The present lineup in the liberal arts senior class is Marquis M. Smith against the field. Smith is running for president and has been at work for the past week or two perfecting his organization. At one time it looked as if he had everything cinched so that no one would even be nominated against him.

Some of the men, however, on whose support Smith has been relying most are now talking of deserting his standard and putting up a man against him. Up to a day or two ago no rival candidate had been selected. Bob Kaufman, football and basketball star, it is believed could get practically the unanimous vote of the class if he would run, but so far he has refused to allow his name to be put up. Clyde B. Charlton is another senior who could poll a lot of votes, but Clyde seems to be willing to rest on his laurels which consist of being freshman president and chairman of both subsequent dance committees.

If Kaufman and Charlton won't run it is going to be hard to pick a man who can give Smith a battle. Billy Kelly, football captain and president

DID YOU ALWAYS GET AN ANSWER?

Co-ed Blond met co-ed Nondescript in the library at 10 a. m. yesterday. "How's your voice?" "All right. Why?" "Thought you'd probably be hoarse from saying 'hello'." "Not me. I got disgusted and put my tag away an hour ago." "Me too—I just came to my 8 o'clock ten minutes early just to say 'hello' to a lot of people, and everybody that I spoke to looked at me in blank astonishment."

Professor (.....) at 11:33 rushed into his office, deposited his class role, and begins. "What's all this about 'hello day'? I just passed 175 people that I didn't know in the hall and not a one of them spoke to me....."

CARL RANDKLEV DIES SUDDENLY

Funeral of Delta Tau Delta President Will be Held On Sunday Afternoon

Carl Bernhard Randklev, junior in the college of liberal arts, died yesterday morning at four o'clock, a victim of pleural complications. Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Randklev, 313 South Dodge street.

Mr. Randklev was born in 1896 at Lake Preston, South Dakota. He received his high school training at Norfolk, Nebraska and entered the University in 1916, enlisting in the S. U. I. ambulance unit in June, 1917. During his overseas service he won the Croix de Guerre, but experienced a gas attack from which he never fully recovered.

In 1919 he resumed his work in the school of commerce of the University and at the time of his death was president of Delta Tau Delta fraternity and a member of the inter-fraternity council. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Randklev and his brother Albert who is a sophomore in the college of liberal arts.

of the class last year, is not a particularly available candidate because of the prejudice against electing a man president two years in succession.

Hence, the young men who have their knives out for Smith face a considerable problem in picking a flag bearer who will appeal to the few independent voters in the class. Bob Finlayson, Ed Hoffman, and Bob Hayes have been mentioned as possible opponents for Smith, but there seems to be objections to each one. Meanwhile the search continues.

At present Douglass F. Boynton is the only man who has done much work for the junior class nomination and he has not done a great deal. It is understood, however, that he will run.

Gordon Locke, star fullback on this year's football team, is being mentioned quite generally for sophomore president. The outlook in the freshmen class is the same as always; that is, half a dozen men will probably be put up by as many different organizations with the chances favoring the election of the Iowa City candidate if there is only one of him.

Not much importance need be put yet on the candidates from the three lower classes because when the senior class slates decided upon efforts are usually made to see that candidates in the other classes are picked with the idea of helping the senior office seekers. These same remarks apply to nominees for subordinate offices in the senior and other classes.

Class officers get into the class dance free, and the class president appoints the dance committee.

Pep Meeting and Stunts at Armory Close Successful Inauguration of Pleasant Custom

SMILES WERE THICK AS TAGS

Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. Workers Show One and All a Grand Time—Aubrey Devine Made Speech —It Was a Thrilling Day While It Lasted—University Band Plays

With a rather bashful smile and a feeling that the yellow tag on the lapel was a little too conspicuous, Iowa students ushered in the first "Hello Day" the University has ever known with a broadside of genial greetings. The general bustle of activity started in and around the liberal arts halls long before the bell in Old Capitol tolled the hour of eight yesterday morning for the committee was busy as bees preparing the "Hello Day" tags for distribution among the students. In fact, they had been busy before this as they had made a visit to every fraternity and sorority house to Currier hall and to the Quadrangle the night before, to see to it that every man and woman had a tag.

Our Aubrey Makes a Few Remarks

As a starter for the evening of "Hello Day", a giant mass meeting was held by the Howling 300 on the liberal arts campus. The program consisted of a few short speeches and the learning of the new yells. Aubrey Devine, half back on the team, expressed appreciation in behalf of the team for the enthusiasm of the student body. Marquis M. Smith, secretary of the Howling 300, said that a surprise was in store for the student body in the program for the game this afternoon. Barney Donore, Howling 300 president, said that an increase in the membership of the

A Good Time Was Had by All

An all-University party was held at the Armory at 7:45 following the mass meeting. It was estimated that almost 2500 students attended the party, according to Douglas F. Boynton, chairman of the general committee.

The program for the evening was as follows: Band concert at the Armory, club swinging, speech by Dean Kay, Currier hall stunt — "A Bachelor's Reverie", dancing, Cosmopolitan club, jui-jitsu, Howling 300 boxing match. Refreshments of doughnuts and apples were served at the close of the program.

HOWLING 300 WILL WEAR SKULL CAPS AND CANES

Wearing little black and gold skull caps, and carrying small canes with streamers attached, the Howling 300 will make its debut for the season at today's football game with Cornell on Iowa Field. The 300 will form in a parade behind the band and march into the section reserved for it.

Howling 300 should get skull caps and canes for game this morning in the tower room of Close hall. The 300 will meet on the campus and march behind the band to special section reserved for them.

All members of the Howling 300 will report this morning between the hours of 9 and 12 at the tower room of Close hall and receive the caps with numerals 300 on them, the compliments of Bremer's Golden Eagle, and the canes with black and gold ribbons attached compliments Townsend's studio. The Howling 300 will meet on the southeast corner of the campus at 1:30 p. m.

The four newly elected yell leaders will be there to lead the attack. Every one is asked to learn Cornell's yell and give the visitors a cordial welcome said "Grease" Searle, yell leader.

The yell is spelled out as follows: C-CCOR-N-N-E double L Cornell.

VISITORS EXPECT TO FIGHT HARD

Coach Finger to Bring Two Full Teams to Iowa—O'Neel Not in Game

By C. L. Overholser (Assistant Editor of Cornelian) Mount Vernon, Ia., Oct. 8—Special to Daily Iowan:

Slightly handicapped by the absence of one of the best tackles in the state the Cornell team will go into the battle Saturday against the Iowa team with the determination to fight to the last whistle. O'Neel, the 200-pound tackle, a second choice for the first string all-star state eleven last year, has been called hom and will not be able to play Saturday.

However, the rest of the team came out of the fracas with Upper Iowa last Saturday in the pink of condition and are now practicing every afternoon in preparation for the contest with Iowa.

In regard to the game next Saturday Cornell dopsters do not expect a victory but they predict that the score will not be as heavy as the Iowa fans expect, and also they predict, although they do not expect to frighten Iowa, the Big Ten Conference contender, that after the game the Iowa eleven will realize that they played a bunch of fighters.

Cornell won easily from the Upper Iowa eleven last Saturday by a score of 34 to 7. This victory signifies one thing and that is that Cornell won from a team that had not been beaten for three years.

Coach Finger will take two full teams with him to play the Iowa game. Men such as Danskin, Fischel, Captain Gowans, and Dee will take care of the line in fine shape. The backfield will be composed of such men as Huddleson, Peterson, Nichols, and Thompson. Besides these men Finger has such men as Maxwell, Betts, Lakey and Mores to rely on for the backfield positions and Olson, Isaacs, P. Dee, Kennedy and Scovel for the line.

The following is the probable lineup that will begin the game Saturday.

West	.....	LE
Danskin	.....	LT
Kepler	.....	LG
Dee	.....	C
Gowans	.....	RG
Fischel	.....	RT
Lawrence	.....	RE
Huddleson	.....	Q

NO DOUBTFUL DOPE HAUNTS THE BIG TEN

Cornell is Expected to Attempt an Imitation of Coe's Defeat of a Big Four Team

AMES GAME DRAWS INTEREST

Drake Clash with Illinois Will No Doubt be Illini Victory — Chicago and Michigan Should Win from Purdue and Case — Northwestern Ought to be Easy for Minnesota

By M. F. Carpenter

If Iowa is a contender for the western championship and even W. Eckersall has discovered by this time that Iowa must be counted in the running. The Cornell game should present no serious difficulties. Cornell seems to have a good team; it usually has. But it is unthinkable that it has a team that can beat Iowa. The question this afternoon is simply the size of the score. And, within reasonable limits, that score will be what the Iowa coach and the Iowa team decide to make it.

This does not mean that Cornell will not fight hard or that all that the crowd will see this afternoon will be a series of processions down the field with Iowa carrying the ball. Cornell will be anxious to repeat Coe's performance of last week of beating a "Big Four" team and will have plenty of heart in its playing. It will be strange if Coach Finger has not taught his men some trick plays and some interesting formations. He must have done so, if he hopes to have his team score, and to score against Iowa will be the next best thing to victory.

Drake Victory Possible

A game in the state that will attract a great deal more interest will be played at Grinnell this afternoon. Ames comes down to play Grinnell in its own back yard and will do its best to take the taste of the Coe game out of its mouth. A large-sized bear-story walked out from Grinnell early in the week. In the course of the game with Penn, which Grinnell won 42 to 0, an incredible number of men were injured. This is, of course, too bad, but it would be much worse if a similar Bruin had not wandered out of the menagerie just before Grinnell played Penn. The fact is that Grinnell hopes to win, and, judging from last Saturday's games, it has a good fighting chance to do so.

Drake plays Illinois at Urbana, and many Iowa students are wondering more about that game than about the one on Iowa Field. Illinois ought to win, though the chances are that Drake thinks otherwise. The score will probably be close for two reasons, first, because it is very evident that Drake is represented by a good team, and, second, because Illinois has a habit of winning by close margins. A victory for Illinois by a small score will mean nothing in particular, while a victory by a large score will argue an unexpected weakness on the part of Drake. A Drake victory, which is possible, will go a long way towards showing that Illinois is not in the championship running this year.

Ohio and Wisconsin Should Win

Chicago plays Purdue at Chicago, and Michigan plays Case at Ann Arbor. Chicago and Michigan should win, and, if their teams are at all strong, should pile up big scores. If

HANGING OUT LATCH-STRING

The twenty-four and some odd men who trot out on the field in Cornell sweaters this afternoon may go back to Mount Vernon with a report of defeat at the hands of the Hawkeye eleven. They may, by some odd chance of luck, go back and paint their quiet little town with crimson in honor of victory. Things like that have happened. At any rate they can go back with a kindly feeling toward the men and women of Iowa.

As far as the team is concerned no question arises. There has never been a charge of unsportsmanlike conduct against them individually or as a squad. For that matter there is no concern for any of the student body. Iowa is unlimbering herself to the fact that she has a great University spirit. This spirit is big enough to be considerate and courteous and hospitable to the students of another institution. Make Cornell feel at home. Our men will play better for it; all men will play cleaner for it. Today's game will be more enjoyable for a congenial atmosphere of good sportsmanship.

No one need wonder any more why so many of our young bloods wear heavy gold rings with a fraternity coat of arms embossed on them in high relief. The coat of arms is even better than a rough thumb nail to strike matches on.

The freshmen don't look any funnier in their new hats than the senior laws do with their new canes.

LISTENING POST

These From the Sports Editor.
Much Obligated!

"There are a lot of things we don't know about to-day's game... Lots of uncertainties.

For instance, we wonder whether Cornell will demand that Aubrey carry a piece of custard pie in his left hand during the whole game, or whether they will be content with merely a ball and chain on his leg.

Or maybe they can compromise on distinctive caps for Belding and Kadesky... with smoked glasses to match.

A checkerboard for Slater ought to help a lot. W. L. B.

Attention Faculty!

Why don't the authorities act on the matter of keeping the library open all night? The phrase "Never closed" ought to connote something other than gastronomic delight, and indeed we are confident that it would in time.

Besides it is extremely annoying to be awakened every evening at precisely 10 o'clock, don't you think?

Campus politicians and embryo class presidents are fashioning their miniature campaigns after that of the great Republican party, laying particular stress on Warren Harding's famous front porch policy. Leaving the "house" the campaigner explains to the brothers that at the Alpha Xi Delta house he intended to hold hands from 8 until 9 o'clock; from 9 until 10 he intends to cinch twelve or more Pi Phi votes by talking about the moon... After 10 he would shoot pool at Kirk's with strangers, all the while talking about a good man whom he intended to vote for because he sure deserved to win.

When women really get into the political game it is not mere fancy to predict that all the fashions will be set by the government. Morning papers will carry stuff like this: The house passed Miss Smith's bill, this morning, that rolled stockings must not be worn earlier than February 1st.

Are you in love or did you have to buy only one "I" ticket?
H. A.

they can not get within the neighborhood of thirty points, the chances are that there is something wrong. Mr. Stagg and Mr. Yost, if they have real teams, have a splendid scoring machine in operation for their first game. If Michigan or Chicago is held to a low score, it means that the students at that university had better begin to figure on a championship next fall.

Minnesota should beat Northwestern handily. If Dr. Williams has as good a team as he seems to have, the score will be large. A low score will mean that last Saturday's win was a false alarm. The same comment holds for Ohio in its game against Michigan Agricultural college. Oberlin is probably stronger than Ohio Wesleyan, and Michigan Agricultural is at least as strong as Lawrence. But neither one is likely to bother a team like Ohio or Wisconsin.

Open Practice Sportsmanlike

Indiana plays the Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical college which usually has a strong team. The game will give a fair test of the strength of Southern football when compared with Middle Western, provided the day is warm. If the Mississippi men reach Bloomington at the same time with a cold snap, their performance will be pitiable through no fault of their own.

Those who follow newspaper reports of practices at other universities and then follow the work of the Iowa team every evening cannot but be impressed by one thing; Iowa never has had a secret practice. This is a splendid evidence of the gentlemanly sportsmanship of those in charge which cannot be praised too highly. Nothing could show more clearly the intention of the Iowa team and the Iowa coaches to do nothing underhanded or tricky than this clear demonstration that they expect nothing small or sneaking from their opponents.

Act of Gentlemen

This does not mean that at those universities where secret practice is common that those in charge are treacherous themselves or that they expect treachery from others. Such an assertion would be a blanket charge against the sportsmanship of the Western Conference, which has taken the lead in all movements for gentlemanly athletics and which, in spite of an occasional black sheep, has as clean a set of coaches as can be found in the country. There are plenty of excellent reasons for secret practice besides the fear of hostile spies. The presence of a crowd on the field often hampers a coach; loose gossip on the part of the student body about new plays and new formations may be carried to an opposing coach who would himself do nothing unfair; and much more that is all very true.

But, the willingness to throw open the gates every night, to let anyone who is interested see what the team is doing, to forget the disadvantages and difficulties that may come from such freedom, is a fine thing. It is the act of a gentleman who is willing to stand some trouble to show that he believes that his opponents are gentlemen as well as he is.
