The President Elected

Now Let's All Go to Work to Make Good Times for Everybody Again

The people can buy the Dry Goods and Apparel they want at this store and pay much less for them than by buying at other establishments.

Many other goods, of which we had full stocks—even though we paid the higher prices for them—are now marked at lower prices, based on the new market values, regardless of the losses that we must bear.

We all know that this period of change had to come, and we know that money had to be lost. But we are now looking to the future—working for the happier days when prices shall rise again.

In the mean time we shall serve the people of this community, who are depending upon our service, to the best of our ability and regardless of the temporary disadvantages that we now face.
