Rath Still Holds Other Half

The Iowa football squad suffered another injury last night when Gary

Lack, fullback, was injured in colliding with a second string man during warm-ups. Lack was not operated upon, however, and is not expected to play in this week's game against Illinois.

This is the second casualty this week. Kaufman is recovering from a broken finger suffered in the Monday night practice, and although he is expected to play today, he will not play unless he is completely healed.

The work out last night was a half-hour shorter than those conducted the previous two days. The squad concentrated the second's offense for the first half-hour and returned to their own end to practice for the first hour by using the single line method.

The seconds received on the second's field for scrimmage.

