ILLNESS PUTS FINLAYSON OUT OF BASKETBALL

Results of Appendicitis Will Keep Old Forward Out of Running

REGULAR PRACTICE IS LIGHT

Absence of Coach Ashmore, Kaufmann, and Devine at Football Banquet Gives Varsity Easy Workout—Ehresman, Olson, and Dyke Show Up Well in Practice Work

Bob Finlayson, stellar forward of the last year Iowa basketball quintet will be unable to play this season on account of an attack of appendicitis last year which has incapacitated him for this winter. It was thought that he would be able to try out after Christmas holidays but late developments will prevent that.

Coach Ashmore, Captain Kaufmann and A. Devine were all out of the city last night which gave most of the regulars a rest for the evening. Coach Jenkins scrimmaged two sets of teams after a session at shooting and handling of the ball by the varsity.

Ehresman continues to be a contender for the forward position and has played regularly with Shimek since A. Devine's absence on the trip to Waterloo and Cedar Rapids, to football banquets.

Olson, a forward who tried out all last year has developed an accurate basket eye and is caging them regularly in practice.

Dyke continues to have the edge at center although he is not getting in condition very rapidly. Klatt and Loahman stand a good chance to make themselves heard from at guard if their present work continues.

A freshe team which will be picked late next week is expected to furnish some good scrimmaging competition for the varsity immediately after the holiday vacation.

FISH COLOR PLATES WILL BE ON DISPLAY AFTER THE HOLIDAYS

A series of about sixty color plates of the fish caught on the Hawaiian Island expedition last summer have now been completed by assistants to Prof. Homer R. Dill of the zoology department and will be placed on exhibition shortly after the holiday vacation. These plates are very vivid, displaying the fish in all their colors and hues, and tend to give a clear conception of the finny tribe.

To those who have seen the plates the success of the special preserving fluid for fish, perfected by Professor Dill is apparent.

Previous to this time it was extremely difficult to make accurate mountings of fish, since they lost their color and shape soon after they were caught. With the aid of this new fluid however, the shape and color of the fish have been preserved so that accurate color plates have been made. When the fish are mounted they will be painted by referring to these color plates.

Professor Dill states that work on mounting the fish will be begun after the formal opening of the Louisiana exhibit is held, which is now expected to be sometime in January.

With the mounting of these fish a valuable new exhibit will be added to the University museum, since, at the present time, there are no mounted specimens of fish on display.

FISH TO SPEAK TO GRADUATES

Historian Will Give Address To Graduate Students Mon- day Afternoon

Prof. Carl Russell Fish, historian from the University of Wisconsin, who will lecture here Monday night on "The Pilgrims," will give an address Monday afternoon at 4:30 to the graduate students of the departments of history, economics, sociology and commerce. At 6 o'clock the history department will entertain him at dinner at the Jefferson hotel.

The "Pageant of the Pilgrims," which precedes the lecture, will begin at 7:30 o'clock. The pageant centers about the first landing of the Pilgrims and the first Thanksgiving. It will be accompanied with appropriate music and the performers, young people of the Congregational church will appear in costume.

In Professor Fish's lecture on "The Pilgrims" he will show why the whole world is joining in paying tribute to this little band of pioneers at a time when both the old and new worlds are torn with grave national jealousies and unprecedented social disturbances, according to Prof. Arthur M. Schlesinger, head of the "Pilgrim Day" committee.

PLAY AT NEWTON A SUCCESS

"Her Husband's Wife" Presented For Memorial Union

The presentation of "Her Husband's Wife" by the University Players cast at Newton Thursday night, December 9, was highly successful both financially and in regard to the quality of the production, according to Ralph G. Grassfield, director of the Iowa Memorial Union.

Mr. Grassfield said yesterday that the play was remarkably well given and that the cast showed little less than professional ability in their interpretation of the characters of the play. He also expressed satisfaction at the support given the production by the alumni of Newton and believes that the Memorial Union will receive hearty cooperation from them in the future.

Mr. Mills will arrive in Iowa City on Wednesday afternoon and will be the guest of the City Conservation circle at a 6 o'clock dinner to be given in the Commercial Club rooms that evening. Elmer R. Reservations for the dinner may be made by communicating with Harold L. Hands, 109 Washinton street. On Thursday, Mr. Mills will be the guest of the Iowa City Rotary club.

Mr. Mills' home is in Long Peaks, Colorado. He was born in Kansas City but early in life went to Long Peaks where he established his home in a cabin. He has extensively explored the Rocky Mountains, alone, on foot, and without firearms. For some time he served as a guide on Long Peaks which he has climbed over 250 times. He is a self-educated man and has gained a national reputation through his articles, addresses, and lectures urging bird, wild flower, and scenery protection and development of national parks.

Mr. Mills leaves here Thursday afternoon for Mount Vernon, where he will deliver an address on that evening.

RECEIPTS FROM MONEY BOXES START PERKINS CHRISTMAS CAMPAIGN

The campaign for funds for the Christmas celebration at the children's hospital is now well under way. Boxes were placed in the corridors of the liberal arts and engineering buildings, and in cigar stores and banks, and F. T. Gilbert, A2 of Estherville, chairman of the committee in charge of the campaign, said that considerable money has already been received in the boxes.

Gilbert said, "A nickel helps. The children are looking for a real Christmas and we do not wish to disappoint them. We are going to furnish material and let the children do their own decorating and they are anxious to begin work. Any assistance and donations are welcome."

Gilbert further said, "There will be no personal solicitation, but we want to give every student a chance to contribute." It is estimated that there will be about 100 children here during the holidays. There are about 150 in the hospital now but many of them will go to their homes for Christmas.

Plans for intensive rehearsals and definite arrangements for the holiday concert tour of the men's glee club have been made. Prof. William E. Hays, director of the club, announced yesterday that eighteen men, or possibly nineteen if an entertainer is obtained, will make the trip.

Professor Hays announced that the following sixteen of the thirty-two members of the glee club had been selected to go on the tour: (First tenors) Leslie M. Hays A4 of Seymour, Alfred G. Hoelzen A3 of Burlington, William A. Bockoven M4 of Cresco, and Robert A. Rockhill L1 of Larchwood; (Second tenors) Holger N. Hoegh M3 of Clinton, Vernon B. Thomas A2 of Corning, Marian G. Kellam A3 of Indianola, and Helmer D. Luglan D2 of Radcliffe; (Baritone) S. L. Bickel P2 of Fort Dodge, Eugene R. Zacker A2 of Clinton, Palmer W. Good A1 of River Forest, Ill., and Robert A. It is the plan of the club to give a varied program consisting of songs that will appeal to the different tastes of the public besides some numbers by the quartet and probably some selections by an entertainer.

The exact time of Mr. Thompson's appearance before the classes has not yet been arranged, but according to Miss Sherman it will probably be either Tuesday or Wednesday. Mr. Thompson has filled engagements with various universities and is just returning from a coast to coast reading tour.

PACKED HOUSE GREET'S DEBATE ON EXCLUSION

Delta Sigma Rho Entertains Debaters at Smoker After Forum

ORCHESTRA PLAYS PRELUDE

Conrad, Van Law, and Kreiner Uphold the Negative — Greenburg, Shapiro, and Haas of Minnesota Speak for Affirmative — Dean George F. Kay Presides

The first inter-collegiate debate of the year was held at the natural science auditorium last night. The Iowa team, composed of Max A. Conrad L2 of Burlington, James H. Van Law A3 of Marshalltown, and Carl B. Kreiner A2 of Ottumwa, upheld the negative side of the question against Minnesota's affirmative team. The Minnesota men were, Simon Greenburg, Max Shapiro, and Alexander Haas. They arrived in Iowa City yesterday afternoon.

The question was, "Resolved, that the Japanese should be excluded from the United States by an act of Congress similar in essential details to the Chinese exclusion act." No decision was given since the debate was conducted on the open forum principle. A discussion by audience and debaters was held immediately after the more formal presentation. Prof. George F. Kay, dean of the college of liberal arts, presided.

The University orchestra, under the direction of O. E. Van Doren, gave three selections immediately before the debate. They were: "Jacinta," a selection by Robyn; "Flight of the Birds," a ballet by Rice; and "The Golden Sceptre," an overture by Schlegel. This was the orchestra's first public appearance this year.

Delta Sigma Rho, honorary forensic fraternity, entertained the debaters, the members of the forensic council, the presidents of the literary societies, and several members of the faculty who have been interested in forensics, at a smoker in the Zeta-gathian room at Close hall immediately after the debate.

UNIVERSITY TO HEAR RECENTLY ORGANIZED CHORUS DECEMBER 12

The new University chorus which has just been organized this year under the direction of Prof. Philip G. Clapp and Prof. William E. Hays will make its first appearance Sunday, December 12 at the Christmas vesper service. It has been customary in past years to have a special musical program twice a year at vespers instead of a speaker. These two occasions are Christmas and Easter. This year the program consists of a cantata entitled, "The Righteous Branch" by Clough-Lighter. Prof. Philip G. Clapp will conduct the cantata and Rev. F. C. Doan, minister of the Unitarian church of Iowa City, will offer the invocation, prayer, and benediction.

The presentation of the cantata requires a chorus of eighty parts and four solo voices. The solos will be sung as follows: Alice Ingham A2 of Iowa City, soprano; Mrs. Mildred G. Paddock, instructor in the department of music, alto; Prof. William E. Hays of the department of music, tenor; and A. Ingalls Swisher, '14, mayor of Iowa City, bass. The accompanists will be Vervess M. Fraser G of Chicago, Ill., and Marian Davis A3 of Scranton.

The membership of the chorus is between 110 and 125 University men and women. This is too large a number to stand on the natural science auditorium stage at one time. Therefore arrangements have been made to enlarge the stage in order to accommodate all of the chorus members.

A SANE CHRISTMAS

Looming in the near future, heralded by window decorations, shopping hints, book lists, advertisements, club announcements, and Sunday School programs, is Christmas.

Whatever Christmas may mean to those who have put more years behind them, it is preeminently the big red-letter day in the life of a child. It is a climax in the child's round of games to play, books to read, things to eat, and bits of finery to wear.

Occupied by the happy memory of Christmas mornings by a contented fireside, one suffers a rude shock on reading a press report that children in the Near East, struck by a wave of starvation have "...lost all semblance of childhood. Boys of ten or twelve have the faces of overworked men of forty. Children have long ceased to cry from hunger. They sit with their little emaciated bodies hunched, unable to take a step alone."

One need not go to Poland, Austria, Hungary, or Czecho-Slovakia to find children in need. Across the river a plea is made for gifts for children under treatment at the Perkins hospital. Toys, fruit, books, and similar gifts will be received, but the big demand is for clothing.

This seems a good year for a sane Christmas. If a few clubs and social groups would cancel the holiday house party, and a few individuals curtail some rash holiday expenditures, and put the time and money to good use, the twenty-fifth of December could be a sunny day for a lot of little people.

Of course this is old stuff. Charity? Poor old overworked word. Bunk. But healthy childhood, in any corner of the globe is a sound asset, a boy's happy, honest grin is worth a lot, and the old stuff is not always bad stuff at that.

EN RETARD

Most typical of the typical,
Most glypic of the glypical,
Most flyppic of the flyppical,
Is the girl who always comes in
Late for eight o'clocks.

George Washington at Delaware
Divulged a sort of bravery,
But viewed beside this debonaire
Old George's work was knavery.

She wears a self-condoling smile,
A mark of stage ability
And runs the gauntlet center aisle
With poorly feigned tranquillity.

Most typic of the typical,
Most glypic of the glypical,
Most flyppic of the flyppical,
Is the girl who always comes in
Late for eight o'clocks.

—Apollo.

Someday we intend to write a line or two on the puppets over in the library and, after the manner of Briggs, entitle it, "Wonder What a Puppet Thinks About?" Of course you understand that we are speaking of the little Javanese puppets, or dolls, which are on exhibition in the little glass case.

There is some consolation in the fact that the typical Iowa woman will not be judged by her picture.

Some of us are so blood-thirsty that it is almost impossible to satisfy our depraved taste, and when we read a murder story in which only two or three people are murdered we feel as if we have been cheated.

Alas! To-day we are in Bad luck. We had expected
A contribution of real literary
Merit from a campus poet
Who contributed semi-monthly,
But the editor of this paper
Having praised him so highly for
A previous contribution
That he has decided to send
The effusion to a magazine that Pays real money and
Now we have to fill the Space with merely
Talking about it.
Sorry!

The girl who wears a tight skirt will never make any great strides on the road to success!

PATRICK'S BOOK SAYS
REFORM MUST FOLLOW
OLD RACIAL INSTINCTS

Prof. G. T. W. Patrick's latest book, "The Psychology of Social Reconstruction," has been published in the last month by the Houghton Mifflin Press. The book is taken up with an examination of proposed social reforms in the light of certain recent psychological studies. Hitherto these utopian plans have been considered from an economic or political viewpoint and it is the intention of the author to apply to these plans the test of their conformity to the facts of human nature. Bolshevism, socialism, anarchism, communism, and similar projected reforms fail notably to provide for the exercise of the deep-seated and permanent instincts of man. Human beings have lived for untold ages under condition giving free play to these impulses, and drastic reforms such as those proposed could result only in disaster unless they are changed to conform to the demands of human nature, and the old paths of human behavior.

It is the authority of science that the author brings to this problem, and it is from the viewpoint of psychological science that he considers the current and popular plans for social reform. In a later chapter is given the writer's own thought as to the direction social reconstruction should take if it is to conform to the facts of human nature.

Life More Important Than Wealth
"Our Social-reform movements," the writer says, "seem to have a somewhat romantic character. They represent restless endeavors to realize certain ideas which stand as symbols of our age for ultimate desired ends—such as wealth, liberty, opportunity, equality and peace. The agitations for these things have a dramatic character which perfectly typifies the action of the human mind; but it remains an open question whether that form of social organization by which it is proposed to realize these ideas would appeal strongly to human nature."

"Just as the economic interpretation of history is giving way to the synthetic and psychological interpretation, so we are coming to see that social reconstruction must be conceived in its larger psychological aspects. If there is to be a new social order it must be more than an order in which certain evils, such as war and poverty and inequality, are absent. It must be an order in which fundamental human instincts and interests shall be satisfied. It must be an order in which human beings can live. The attentions of our social reformers will have to be centered less upon wealth and more upon life."

Has Note of Optimism
"Perhaps," writes Dr. Patrick, "with our headstrong and wayward northern races, and our increasing populations, and our large social groups, there is no solution of the problem of social discipline apart from that defensive or offensive gregariousness which can no longer be invoked because it leads to war and ruin. Possibly modern civilization has come to an impasse. Probably what we need is some new interpretation of religion which shall sweep the world and snatch us out of our devotion to self and our narrow class interests. That failing, education and the organization of intelligence will be our only hope."

The book closes on an optimistic note. Probably nothing so cataclysmic will happen. In free America at any rate such an outcome is improbable. The great body of our people are sober-minded and level-headed. At heart they appreciate the joy and freedom of democratic America. After the disturbing influences of the war are past—influences which may indeed for a time bring about real suffering and distress—our country will right itself. We shall go forward on our way and then we shall be face to face with the real evils that threaten an industrial age, an age actuated by industrial and materialistic motives, namely stagnation and the loss of the higher values of life."

This new book has met with an enthusiastic reception in the literary press. Says one writer, "Dr Patrick is an uncommonly wise, lucid, and humorous writer. His style has a zest and rapidity that makes psychology read like a good story, and his general point of view on social questions is sane and far seeing."

Investigators for the Y. W. C. A. report that the girl students at the University of Missouri are not getting enough sleep. Six and a half hours is the average. Why not, then, extend the class room hours to eight hours a day.

MISS BELL'S ART WORK FEATURE OF DECEMBER FRIVOL

Blossoming in a cover of black and purple, red and white, designed by Edith M. Bell of the department of graphic and plastic arts, the first few copies of the Critical number, the December Frivol, campus humorous publication, left the press yesterday.

Miss Bell's drawings are perhaps the most distinctive feature of the current Frivol. A decoration for one of the jokes about an evening gown, a full page Pierrot sketch, and the cover design, a footlight representation, are all of unquestioned merit. Joseph B. Bengé A4 of Winterset, Jane Coventry A2 of Des Moines, Alma M. Held A4 of Waterloo, Mary Jean Forbes A2 of Pine River, Minn., and Helen L. Stewart Au of Iowa City have drawings in this issue.

The humorous writings for the critical number seem to run somewhat to long selections, a dramatic number, "If it Isn't Love What is it?", "What Every Co-ed Believes", "The Diary of Our Own Little Soviet", "High Lights, Written Purely in Malice", and a "Soliloquy".

The Y. M. C. A. committee in charge of collecting money for the crippled children started their campaign yesterday, by placing the boxes in University corridors, cigar stores and banks. F. T. Gilbert, A2 of Estherville, chairman of the committee said there would be no personal solicitation, but that it was the intention of the committee to give everyone in the University a chance to contribute.

Gilbert further said, "A nickel helps. The children are looking for a real Christmas, and we do not wish to disappoint them. We are going to furnish material for the children to do their own decorating and they are anxious to begin their decorations. Any assistance or donations are very welcome."

Contributions of clothing, toys, and fruit from the town people are being solicited by the women's clubs of the city under the direction of Mrs. Charlotte W. Eastman. The University is being asked for money, which will be placed in a fund to buy decorations and Christmas trees, and to provide gifts for any child who might be missed otherwise.

Last year's campaign conducted by the Daily Iowan provided a motion picture machine for the children, and it requires about $20 a month to keep up the weekly shows. If there is any money left, it will be used for that purpose.

Some of the children will go to their homes for the holidays, but it is estimated that about 100 children will be here.

STUDENTS IN MUSIC DEPARTMENT WILL PLAY IN RECITALS

The school of music is now offering an opportunity to the students in that department to appear on a program before all other music students and members of the faculty. These programs are arranged once a week, and about fifteen or twenty persons appear each time. "By appearing on these programs," says Professor William E. Hays, "the students who are preparing for recitals gain self-confidence and overcome timidity and stage-fright".

The students taking violin and voice lessons have their programs arranged for every Wednesday afternoon from 4 until 6 P. M. and those taking piano lessons, every Friday afternoon at the same hours. These programs are open only to the students and teachers in the music department because they are primarily for the purpose of helping the students.

Every student is given a chance to appear at least once every month. Each time that they are on the program they give the selection which they have been working on in their lessons since the last time they appeared. "The help which the students gain from these appearances before the faculty and from the comparison with other students is invaluable in preparing them for individual recitals," said Professor Hays.

MICHIGAN PRICES DROP

Ann Arbor Dairy Products Start for Lower Plane

From the Michigan Daily:—Following the general tendency for falling prices in food stuffs, milk and butter prices were cut by local dealers yesterday. The Ann Arbor Dairy company led in the reduction, quoting butter at a lower figure than other distributors.

The new milk rate as announced by the Ann Arbor Dairy company reduces the retail price of a quart from 15 to 14 cents. The wholesale price was cut from 13 to 12 cents. A case of 20 half pints is now selling for 70 cents, instead of the previous price of 75 cents. This is three and a half cents a bottle. Restaurants and lunch rooms have been selling these bottles for seven and a half cents.

Butter, which has been decreasing for several weeks, continued on its downward course. The lowest quotation, obtained from the Ann Arbor Dairy company early yesterday afternoon placed good creamery butter on sale at 58 cents retail and 53 cents wholesale. Leading stores and wholesale houses whose butter rates were higher, ranging from 60 to 68 cents, explained that they could not lower their prices until they bought a new supply later in the week.

$5 PRIZE ON TYPICAL WOMAN
PRODUCTION AWARDED SUNDAY

If Iowa women were as wonderful as those depicted in many of the essays and poems characterizing her, she would in fact be the W. F. W.—world's finest woman.

The contest closed at 6 o'clock last night with a number of selections on hand, some good and some not so good. The general trend of opinions was that the Hawkeye girl leaned more toward the frivolous than the serious, yet all gave them credit for having many stable characteristics.

Canoeing, skating, swimming, and other outdoor sports were attributed to her likings as well as teas and dances. Several tried to characterize her as an all-round girl. None neglected to mention that she was pretty.

The contest committee will announce the winner of the $5 prize in Sunday morning's Iowan, and the winning essay or poem will be printed.

Students will then be given an opportunity to nominate their choice of girls by voting for the co-ed that best fits the description written.
