MINNESOTA IS NOT JUBILANT OVER OUTLOOK

Captain Oss and Artson Have The Edge on Both of the Forward Positions

RECRUITS SHOULD VETS

Will Meet St. Olaf Quintet Saturday —Gophers Have Been Practicing For a Month — Will Also Play Hamline and Minneapolis High School in Practice Games

By Henry C. Niles,
Sport Editor of Minnesota Daily
MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., Dec. 11.
—With the opening of the Big Ten contest less than a month away, prospects for the Doctor Cooke's basketball quint do not look any too bright. Minnesota feels keenly the loss of Hammer and McDonald, last year's centers, and the big worry of the Gopher coach this year is making a capable tip-off man.

For over a month a squad of forty to fifty men have been going through the early season training stunts on the armor floor. Several veteran members of the football squad did not report until two weeks ago, but are hitting a terrific clip to make up for lost time.

Minnesota is pretty well fixed with veterans this year in every department but center. Captain Oss and Arnston regular forwards from the 1920 five are back, with McMillan and Crosby sub tossers on last year's aggregation giving them a real battle for their positions. Three very good but not startling guards have returned in Enke, Forrsell, and Kearney.

A host of promising recruits are giving the vets a stiff run for their positions. This is particularly true of the guards. Followers are way up in the air as to just which pair Doctor Cooke will select to face St. Olaf College in the first real practice tilt next Saturday.

Sullivan, a new candidate, a bit slow, but cool, well-versed on the fine points of the game and with a hard accurate pass, may succeed Enke at standing guard. He has the weight, fight and lacks only the experience of his rival in the fast company of Big Ten floor workers.

Hultkranz, brother of the famous All-Conference Joe, has a wealth of speed, endurance and is a shooter above the average. He has been alternating with Kearney at running guard and will undoubtedly hook a basketball "M" this winter.

On the forward end, Fogelberg, a diminutive player with a deadly eye for dropping in the long ones, Patrick of the track squad and a good floor man, Johnson, seek to overthrow the veterans. A big task is cut out for them however, as Oss and Arnston both rank high among Conference forwards and are slowly but surely hitting their stride as the days slip by.

Three tall, rangy, but decidedly green centers are battling it out for the tip-off job. Kioumeni, of the Kingsley type, measuring up six feet four inches, will some day be a center of the highest caliber, if he sticks to the guns, but it is a matter of time and development and Coach Cooke will hardly risk him this season. Grimes and Becker are the other two centers with the odds about even. Grimes has the endurance, but Becker is the better floor worker and fighter.

The Gopher quint has already engaged the Minneapolis high schools in practice tilts and is anxious to get at the much heralded college tossers from St. Olaf and Hamline.

SEARCH IS STARTED FOR THE WOMAN WHO BEST FITS WINNING DESCRIPTION

After reading through a drawerful of sketches describing the typical Iowa girl, and learning new wonders about her at every sentence, the Iowan contest committee finally awarded the prize to the contribution of Marion V. Chase A1 of Clinton. The winning essay seemed to give the fairest representation of the average campus co-ed, showing her at her best and just hinting at what she may be in her not-so-good moments.

Generally speaking, the majority of the other fourteen sketches turned in, tended toward one of two extremes—the writers pictured either a creature of surpassing loveliness and remarkable temperament that never grew on land or sea, or portrayed a type vain, self-conscious and shallow.

In choosing the winning essay, printed below, the contest committee believes it has chosen a characterization which adequately presents the Iowa girl as she is.

The next step in the contest is to find among the 1500, more or less, girls on the campus, the girl who best fits the winning description.

Names of University women whom students believe are typical of Iowa, and who measure up to the characterization printed today, are to be handed in at the Iowan office, care of the contest editor, before six o'clock Wednesday night. These names will then be reviewed by the contest committee and the Typical Girl chosen.

The winner of the contest will have a full page devoted to pictures of her in a future edition of the Des Moines Register. A trip to Des Moines may be included if the Register's photographer is unable to come to Iowa City to film Iowa's feminine representative.

A box will be provided in the Iowan office to receive the names offered.

The winning essay follows:
THE TYPICAL IOWA GIRL

By Marion V. Chase
The typical Iowa girl is the girl typical of the Middle West. Her outstanding characteristic is naturalness. She does not adopt the bluestocking, tailor-made pose of her eastern sister, nor does she cultivate the excessive athletic "line" of her Wisconsin friend. Unlike the Grinnell girl, she does not hold herself up as a model of domestic ability. You gather she can cook, but might occasionally burn the pie. Unlike the boarding school Miss, she does not pretend to know every movie hero on the screen. But she is reasonably informed in art, literature, and the stage—provided she has read the newspaper reviews, "Harper's Bazaar," and "The Literary Digest." The granting of the ballot has aroused her interest in politics. She can tell you what father, Uncle Dan, or brother think about the League of Nations; and even filing a few sensible comments of her own. Like any sincere girl, she is not afraid to be herself, though at times this

WATER TEAM TO BE CHOSEN SOON

First Dual Meet Will Be With Minnesota at Minneapolis on January 28

The best men swimmers of the University will meet January 11 or 12 to establish University records in the water sport. Winners in the different events will have their names and records placed on shields to be hung in the men's gymnasium.

Any man who is eligible to take part in college athletics may compete, according to Coach David Armbruster. The results of the meet will determine, largely, the personnel of the swimming team for the coming season.

The men who are now out for the varsity squad have finished the period of preliminary training and are working on the dashes. The first dual meet will be staged with Minnesota at Minneapolis, January 28. The only team which at present has been scheduled to swim here is the Northwestern team.

Northwestern has held the conference championship for the past five or six years, and, according to predictions, will keep her laurels this year. A meet with Chicago will probably be arranged for the middle of February. The tank squad will enter the Western Intercollegiate meet at Northwestern, March 17 and 18.

Robert A. Brown A3 of Des Moines, individual point winner of last year's team, will be unable to compete this season owing to heart trouble. Brown swam the 40 yard dash in Iowa's pool in 19 seconds last year. This record is one-half second faster than the conference time.

PHILOSOPHICAL CLUB TO MEET AT SEASHORE HOME

The Philosophical club will hold its regular meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the home of Dean Carl E. Seashore. Prof. Bird T. Baldwin, head of the Child Welfare research station, will present a report on the Certification of Clinical Psychologists, after which Paul B. Anderson, '20, who will be in Iowa City for the day, will report on "War Work Among the Russian Prisoners at the Present Time."

TICKETS FOR FIRST FORMAL TO BE PUT ON SALE TOMORROW

Final arrangements for the annual Military Ball, which is to be held on January 7 at the men's gymnasium, have been completed and tickets will be placed on sale at Whetstone's tomorrow morning. Tickets may also be provided from the various members of the committee in charge. According to Cadet-Colonel Carl H. Myrick A4 of Decorah, chairman of the committee, the number of tickets will be limited to 200.

The Military Bay will be the first formal event of the present season. The decorations which are in the hands of the cadet officers, will be unusual, both in material and arrangement, from a statement given out by Cadet-Colonel Myrick. It was further announced that no flowers would be admitted.

Y. W. C. A. TO PRESENT CHRISTMAS PLAY AT MEETING TOMORROW

A Christmas play, "The Lighting of the Candles," will be given at the Y. W. C. A. meeting tomorrow afternoon in the liberal arts drawing room at 4 o'clock.

The purpose in giving the play is to arouse interest in an international Christmas gift for the seven colleges for women in the Orient.

Members who are to take part in the play are; Mildred C. Greburg A3, Pomeroy; Hilma Walker A2, Newton; Catherine M. Nash A2, Oskaloosa; Grace G. Carson A3, Iowa City; Beatrice E. Johnson A1, Sioux City; Frances Williams A1, Burlington; Selma Hobbet A2, Dubuque; Helen L. Starbuck A1, Iowa City; Katherine L. Farthing A1, Creston; and Frances P. Dolliver A2, Fort Dodge.

Prof. Forest C. Ensikn of the college of education will also speak at this meeting. His subject will be "E Pluribus Unum", and will be the last of a series of lectures on "Americanism". He will treat of the process of molding one nation out of the numerous immigrants who are constantly coming to the United States. Following the program tea will be served.

FISH SAYS LEAGUE IS NOT REPUDIATED ASSOCIATION COMING

"The recent election does not repudiate the League of Nations," said Professor Carl Russell Fish of the University of Wisconsin in an interview yesterday afternoon. "It means," he continued, "that the United States will not go into the present League, but that the country will enter some association of nations during Harding's term." Professor Fish does not think that Europe is on the verge of another war. People in this country do not realize how strong are the feelings for peace in the war-stricken countries, he said.

Professor Fish is the sort of a man one would like for an instructor. He is interested in a great number of things, and his classes would never be a bore. He is in fact one of the most popular instructors at the University of Wisconsin.

Cross country and acting are his hobbies. Athletics of every sort interest him. He belongs to a faculty dramatic club, which puts on a play every year.

"The trouble with the college student," he said, "is that he is satisfied with mediocrity. No great achievement comes without strenuous effort and most people are satisfied with merely getting through."

During the war Professor Fish was director of the American Union of Universities in London, which served university men in the service, as the Y. M. C. A. did all men. He is well acquainted with former President George C. McLean, who is now head of this Union, and thinks highly of him and what he has achieved in his work.

CANTATA GIVEN SUCCESSFULLY

Faculty, Students, Townspeople Take Part in Christmas Vesper Service

The Christmas cantata entitled "The Righteous Branch" was given by the new University chorus Sunday afternoon, at vesper service in the natural science auditorium at 4 o'clock. This was the first public appearance of the chorus.

The theme of the cantata was founded on the biblical account of the prophecies and the fulfillment of the coming of Christ. Scripture readings were selected to fit into the story. There were five selections sung by the entire chorus of which "Blessed Is He" was especially good. The melody of this particular song seemed to bring out the best qualities of the voices of all the members. All of the solos were very much enjoyed and revealed some very good musical talent among the faculty, student body, and townspeople.

The solo parts were taken by: Alice H. Ingham A2 of Iowa City, soprano; Mrs. Mildred B. Paddock of the school of music faculty, contralto; Prof. William E. Hays of the school of music faculty, tenor; Hon. Ingalls Swisher LL. B. '14 of Iowa City, baritone. The chorus was accompanied by Miss Verness M. Fraser of Chicago, Ill., of the school of music faculty, and Marion L. Davis A3 of Scranton.

The cantata was conducted by Prof. Philip G. Clapp, head of the school of music. The invocation, scripture readings, and benediction were given by Reverend Doan of the Unitarian Church in Iowa City.

HAARER TO HEAD NURSES

Miss Mary C. Haarer, superintendent of the University training school for nurses, was elected president for the third consecutive time of the Iowa state association of Nurses at the annual convention of the Iowa State association of Nurses which was held at Creston last week.

INJURIES WILL DIM HOPES OF BIG TEN FIVES

Illinois, Wisconsin, and Minnesota Suffer From Men On Sick List

MAROONS ADOPT NEW PLAN

Staff of Coaches Under Stagg Will Do Work of Pat Page—Conference Basketball Teams Have Had Practice Games—Hawkeyes Have Time Enough to Get in Trim

By M. F. Carpenter

In the three weeks that have passed since the last Conference football game, the various basketball squads have been able to get some hard practice in before Christmas vacation. Most of the Big Ten have played one or two practice games; all of them have had hard enough work to get a better idea about the strength of the squad than was possible a short time ago. In general the games with the smaller colleges or athletic clubs that have been played have been encouraging to the Conference teams, though Wisconsin is reported to be disappointed by the ragged team-work of its five, and Minnesota is said to feel that its men do not yet seem to know how to take advantage of two such forwards as Arnston and Oss.

Two of the presumably strong teams of the Conference have been weakened by football injuries. Carney of Illinois and Weston of Wisconsin, the general choice for all-Western ends, were both the worse for wear after November 20, and neither of them has been able to play basketball as yet. It is possible that one or both of them will be out for all season. In case of each of these two men, the loss to the team is a serious one. This is especially true as far as Carney is concerned. His presence or absence may make the difference between a championship team and a very ordinary one at Illinois. He was generally regarded as the most useful player in the Conference last winter.

Odd System at Chicago

The chances are, however, that one of these two stars will be able to get back into the game and that the team so blessed with fortune will make a strong bid for the championship. It does not seem probable that two of the leading players of the Conference will stay on the sick-list. The only other example is that of Oss of Minnesota, who has never been what he was before the influenza hit him.

There is a curious situation at Chicago, if the newspapers are to be believed. For a number of years past the basketball teams there have been in charge of Pat Page, who is now at Butler. He turned out a championship team at Chicago last winter as a valedictory before taking up his work in Indianapolis. Since Page's departure, no one has been named in his place, and the present report is that the team will be in charge of a group of coaches under the direction of Mr. Stagg. A similar scheme has been tried in football at various colleges but it is unusual in basketball.

Plenty of Time for Iowa

A new sets of coaches will of course be a handicap at Chicago. It is, however, a handicap that is shared by both Illinois and Wisconsin, for Dr. Meanwell is new to the present generation of Wisconsin players. At the other universities, as far as is known, the same men are to be in charge.

Iowa has as yet played no games with outside teams, but is apparently none the worse for the fact. There is such a thing as being in too much of a hurry in basketball as Wisconsin found out last year. There is plenty of time yet to get into the best form before the first game against a Conference opponent.

FAIR DISCRIMINATION

A feeble echo from the middle ages is heard in the cry of "No" from 904 members of Cambridge University, on a vote to admit women to that institution on equal terms with men, defeating the 712 who upheld the measure.

The 904 plead that the university is growing too crowded, and that Oxford, its traditional rival, regrets having accorded women an opportunity of receiving degrees. A degree in either Oxford or Cambridge includes membership in the university and a voice in its government.

Women of course are allowed to enter. Since a Miss Agnetta Ramsay, a member of an English family famous in classical scholarship, braved the severity of Oxford examiners at a time when the reign of Queen Victoria was fostering a kindly feeling for women's activities, and went through for a "First Class" in 1896, all of the colleges of the old university have been open to her sex.

Some little ripple of the feeling which prompted the 904 at Cambridge is seen in the action the men of an American university, Cornell, in insisting that women students be segregated.

Why all this discrimination on a purely sex basis? If it is scholarship, as Oxford complained a little, or if it is crowding, as Cambridge argues, why not draw the line on the grounds of mental ability, not sex? And if it is the maintenance of the virile qualities of the institution as Cornell men argue, it can be said that inspired males undermine that more than the presence of women. In all events, the sex discrimination seems medieval.

SIDE LINES

BUNK

The word comeback is not being employed very extensively by the sports writers in discussing the proposed fight between Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey. And when it is occasionally used a frown of doubt or a smirk of sophistication is invariably tacked on. Every true fan knows that Willard is utterly indifferent to prize-fighting as a sport, and that as a ring fighter he is the best business man who ever put the gloves on. The promoters yell, "Jess will come back!" and doubtless Jess remarks under his breath, "Yes; I'll come back! I need a little more of the boobery's kale!" Here's hoping that Dempsey hits him such a terrific wallop that he won't be able to count his share of the proceeds for a week!

Apropos of which one might say that the boobs who paid to see the last fracas will be the one who will truly comeback!

What the Public Wants

Like the successful vaudeville artist the humorist is dominated by what the public wants with the emphasis on the word "public." That is why there is so much rot written on these topics, sex, silk hose, jazz, blue sky laws, powder puffs, oiled hair, the inevitable mother-in-law joke and the tubercular wheeze about prohibition.

Admitting that such "stuff" is unworthy of the dignity of the word "humor" the humorist who indulges a craving for food thrice daily falls back on the old alibi, viz, "It's what the Public Wants." He has no choice in the matter. It is in demand and that is all there is to it. . . . DeMille was dominated by the demand for this sort of thing when he produced "The Admirable Crichton" under the name of "Male and Female." When DeMille or any other great producer stages "The Cloister Or the Hearth," he will probably change its name to read, "The Grip Of Love." He will call George Elliot's Romola, "She Drove Him To It," and "Jane Eyre," "Whose Baby Are You." . . . He will make these absurd changes because they will make the public think it is getting what it wants. If he doesn't change them he will lose money.

Dominated by the belief that America is the land of the free and that there are no sorrows here in the United States all troubles are left behind when the average foreigner emigrates to this country. Not so with the Irish. They bring their troubles along too.

We are all interested in money, even mere sight of it. That is why a local merchant has filled one of his windows with all kinds of foreign money, and all the ad men ought to congratulate him on his cleverness. However, he overlooked the truth that he would attract twice as many people if he would only put some sure enough American money on exhibition.

SEARCH STRATED FOR TYPICAL IOWA GIRL

includes talking loudly, giggly excessively, and gushing profusely.

In dress, the Iowa girl shows moderation and neatness. The freedom of her plaited skirt, the practicality of her dark sweater, the sensibility of her woolen hose, the comfortable cut of her low-heeled shoes—all give her a trim and pleasing appearance. Her feminine weakness, however, crops out in such weird fads as "butterfly" coiffures, rolled socks, and plucked eyebrows. But we forgive her these trifles; they are nothing in comparison to good taste in clothing.

She is a popular Miss. Laughing, sociable—men find her attractive. Daintily attired in flopperies of silk and clouds of tulle, she makes a charming dance partner. Trimly dressed in a trig middy suit, she makes a god companion on the river. No wonder her date book is full!

As an asset to the University, her usefulness lies in the fact that she is an all-round girl. She is not a bril-lian example of any one line, but she has sufficient knowledge and ability in all lines to accomplish her purpose. She is found in all colleges—she takes part in many activities—she is found in places of honor. All in all, there is hardly a place on the campus where you will find she has not done something. Truly, this typical Iowa girl is not a bad sort.

PAGEANT COMMEMORATES LANDING OF THE PILGRIMS

The young people of the Congregational church presented a pageant by Esther Williard Bates entitled, "A Pageant of Pilgrims" to celebrate the tercentenary of the landing of the pilgrims in America last night in the natural science auditorium.

The pageant consisted of a prologue portraying the motive that brought the separatists to America and followed by a scene representing the selection of a suitable place for the location of Plymouth plantation.

Other scenes following were the pantomime representative of the sufferings of the Pilgrims before they became fully established in their new quarters, the treaty of peace with the Indians, and the long famine filled winter that followed. The next scene shows the observance of the first Thanksgiving day, and the arrival of a band of new colonists which saves the old band and Miles Standish from later punishment by the Indians.

In the epilogue, the Pilgrim spirit is shown as being spread across the continent by the pioneers who were answering to the call of adventure.

The last scene of the epilogue shows the travels of the Pilgrims Road of today represented by the Boy and Girl scouts of America who gather about the Spirit of America and the Spirit of Brotherhood.

The Pageant was in charge of Mr. Walter G. Schafer, student pastor of the Congregational church, and the dancing was under the instruction of Mary H. Schell A4 of Iowa City.

Describes Problems of Reconstruction After Civil War

Professor Carl Russell Fish, of the University of Wisconsin, addressed a joint conference of history seminar in the library of the Historical Society yesterday afternoon, describing especially the problems of research and investigation for the Civil War period. He laid stress on the importance of prices, the return of the civil war veterans into the ranks of industry and the need of intensive study of the other neglected fields. Professor Fish is at present preparing a book on the civil war period.
