GOPHERS LOOK FOR A CENTER; OLD MEN GONE

Dr. Cooke Is Looking For a Man to Replace Hammer or McDonald

FIVE VETERANS ARE BACK

Oss and Arnston Seem Good Combination to Minnesota Fans—Campus Varied Prospects — Have Steady Guard Material — Season Hopes Hang on Problem of Center

By Henry C. Niles

Sport Editor of Minnesota Daily

Minneapolis, Minn., January 10: Wanted—a center! Though Minnesota has five veteran first-stringers back in the harness, Doctor Cooke is losing sleep nights over whom he can rely upon to jump for the tip-off in the Big Ten basketball race this winter.

Neither Hammer nor McDonald centers of last year's squad, have returned to school and though there is a host of ambitious youngsters out fighting for the job, the Gopher coach is far from satisfied that anyone of them can hold the pace of Conference competition.

Sentiment on the campus as to Minnesota's prospects is varied. Some enthusiastic adherents predict anywhere from fifth place to the championship while others, realizing the importance of a reliable, experienced center, and also the high caliber basketball that is expected from Chicago, Michigan, and Ohio State, hesitate to venture a prediction as to Minnesota's chances in the big race.

Have Dearth of Guards

No team in the Big Ten this year can boast of a speedier or more effective pair of basket-shooters than Captain Oss and Arnston, veteran forwards of the Gophers. Both men have been selected for all-Conference honors, Arnston in 1917 and Oss in 1918. Last year when Oss was out with influenza during most of the season, the pair did not show up particularly well, but if they continue the way they have been doing during the past weeks of practice, more than one Big Ten coach will envy Doctor Cooke before the season ends.

Minnesota is well fortified with several steady, though not remarkable guards. Forssell, Kearney, and Enke had plenty of service last winter on the varsity, while Hultbranz and Sullivan, two newcomers, are putting up strong fights to dislodge them from their posts. Hultkranz, brother of the famed Joe, is a fast floor-worker and handles the ball with the best of them.

New Man Appears

Everything hinges on Minnesota's center this year. Grimes, Becker and Kioumenia have been scrapping for the job, but not one of them will be ready to start. An operation will keep Grimes out for several weeks; examinations toppled over Becker; and the "Big Finn" has not been developing fast enough to satisfy the coach.

As a remedy, Doctor Cooke has shifted Hultkranz to center for several practice games. He has shown well but lacks about three inches in height. Recently a late arrival named Schjoll reported for work and if he keeps on improving he may prove to be the solution to Doctor Cooke's troubles.

HEP-ZETS TO PRESENT PLAY

The play "Seven Chances" by Roi Cooper McGrue will be given next semester by the Hesperia and Zetathian literary societies. Assistant Prof. Edward H. Lauer will coach he play. Harry W. Kamer A3 of Clinton will act as business manager. The exact date for the production of the play has not yet been decided.

ATHLETIC GIRLS WHO CUT A MEAN FIGURE EIGHT SUCCEED WEAKER SISTERS

Enter the latest vamp of the season! She wears a wooly tam and a sweater and practices her stock of feminine wiles on the Iowa river. Yes, behold the skating girl! She need be no Charlotte in embryo to have her evening filled with skating dates. If she can skate backwards, and cut figure eights and toddle on the ice, the poor thing will be rushed off her feet. But even she who feels that she has too many feet and gives a fair imitation of a dutch windmill in action will spend the after dinner hours on the ice.

Unhappy is the maid who has never gone sliding on the ice for her admirers will desert her for her more versatile sisters.

Just now she is praying for north pole weather while she who hasn't skated for years feels herself neglected.

This sport offers possibilities for the hero stuff. Sunday a maiden fair and her escort one of our social lions skated on thin ice and the gentleman fell in saving himself only by grabbing and taking a firm grasp on her coat.

VISITING PROFESSOR SAYS BEST CURE FOR UNREST IS TRAINING

"The way to combat radicalism and unrest is to give such information and training as will insure clear and accurate thinking", was the statement of Edgar P. Dawson, professor of political science at Hunter college, New York City, in an interview yesterday afternoon.

Professor Dawson is visiting the University in the interest of promoting the better teaching of government history and economics in secondary schools. Professor Dawson is a member of the national association committee upon the reorganization of a program of secondary school education and during the past year has been professor of American government at the University of California.

"The amount of history taught all over the country", said Professor Dawson, "is out of proportion to the amount of government and economics taught. The most important weakness in this respect is that the secondary school teachers are not trained in government or economics."

The Universities of California, Oregon, Kansas, Nebraska, and others have already undertaken systematic programs for the effective training of teachers in this field, according to Professor Dawson. He further added that he believed that this movement is the most practical and useful step that can be undertaken in what is known as Americanism.

Professor Dawson has been on the faculty of Hunter college since 1909. Previous to that time he was professor of English and history at Delaware college, Newark, N. J., and professor of political science and history at Princeton from 1906 to 1909. He is also a contributor to the Historical Outlook and other historical magazines.

In speaking of Hunter college, which is the second largest woman's college in the United States, and a municipal college supported by the city of New York, Professor Dawson said: "I am in doubt as to whether the coeducation institution produces as satisfactory results as education of men and women separately. As a general rule, social interest in a coeducational institution take too much time."

MORE GIRLS NEEDED

Credit Given for Teaching Done in Perkins Hospital

More girls are wanted to teach at the childrens' hospital. This work can be done in one of two ways; either for credit or not for it. Miss Mame R. Prosser, the principal of the Perkins Hospital is particularly anxious to have more girls do this for credit. The work is only open to junior and senior girls for this purpose. It requires one hour a day of teaching and carries two hour's credit as an education elective.

In order to plan a schedule for next semester which will include this work the girls are asked to see Miss Prosser or Leone Barngrover, Delta Zeta, A4 Either of them will be glad to furnish particulars concerning the kind of teaching to be done.

COFFER-MILLER PLAYERS OFFER BRILLIANT PLAY

"The Rivals," Considered Sheridan's Masterpiece Presented Tomorrow

TICKETS SOLD AT BOOK STORE

Admission Price Set at One Dollar—Coffer-Miller Players Now Touring Middle West—Play Offered is Rare Comedy Built On Theory That Women Rule World

"The Rivals," a comedy in 3 acts, by Richard Brinsley Sheridan, will be given by the Coffer-Miller Players in the natural science auditorium tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock.

The Coffer-Miller production will be under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A. and committees in charge of the appearance here are composed of members of that organization. The price of admission is one dollar and tickets may be reserved today or tomorrow at the University Book Store.

Formerly known as the Cambridge Players, the Coffer-Miller Players have appeared on the chautauqua platform and in university and college centers for several years. They are now engaged in a tour of the Middle West. Besides Jesse Coffer and Miss Martha Miller, who play the leads, Miss Rose Shaw, Orville Neuwerth and Neil H. Smith have the prominent parts of the play.

Mr. Sheridan, who was a distinguished English dramatist and member of parliament of the eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries has in "The Rivals" what many claim to be his best play. He also is the writer of "The School for Scandal," which has been presented here by the Devereux Players. Among others of his more important works are "The Critic," "The Duenna," and "Pizarro."

"The Rivals" a Clever Comedy

"The Rivals" is essentially a comedy play. Critics have named it and "The Barber of Seville" as two of a very few comedies that have lasted from the eighteenth to the twentieth century. In its first production at Covent Garden in 1775 it was poorly received, but, with slight alteration in the play and its presentation which followed, it has gradually grown to enjoy a high place in public favor. The moral of the play which is presented in the epilogue is that, in the great order of things on the world stage, woman rules. The scene is in Bath and pictures the common life there of the period in which it was written. It is particularly remarkable for its adaptation of character to the development of humor without straining overmuch the distinctness of the personages. One critic has termed it a "terse, epigrammatic and well-turned compliment to the gentler sex."

BUSH HAS INFECTED HAND

Prof. Stephen H. Bush, head of the department of Romance Languages, is suffering from an infected hand. While in Chicago during the Christmas holidays, he had the misfortune to have his hand cut and it has not healed properly. Consequently infection set in.

JACK WATSON WILL GO TO DARTMOUTH INSTEAD OF AMES

Jack Watson, recently resigned trainer and track coach of the University, whose destination has been a question since his resignation a week ago today, has finally decided upon Dartmouth and left last night at 12 o'clock from the Rock Island station for that institution.

Jack admits that he had negotiations with Ames! in fact he had asked Dartmouth for his release which was granted, although ungracefully, and the veteran trainer and coach finally decided not to break faith with the eastern university.

Recent rumors were to the effect that he had entirely severed connections with Dartmouth and was negotiating with Ames, which were in part correct in-as-much as he had temporarily obtained release from Dartmouth. He expects to remain at Hanover, Vt. until the school year closes and will then return to Iowa City for his family, who will move with him to the East.

"A TRIAL OF HEARTS" AMATEUR PLAY TO BE FRIDAY ATTRACTION

"A Trial of Hearts," a comedy in four acts, will be presented at the Englert theater Friday evening, January 14, for the benefit of the Woman's Relief Corps under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Harvy Choate. Mr. Choate is a former Iowa City man and has in recent years been engaged in theatrical business.

Tickets for the play will be placed on sale tomorrow morning at the Englert box office and the price of admission is fifty and seventy-five cents. Box seats will sell for one dollar. The cast is made up of local talent and a number of University students will have parts in the presentation. A number of special features will be added to the production among which will be numbers by the University quartet and the high school orchestra. Among the more important theatrical announcements for next week is D. W. Griffith's screen elaboration of "Way Down East" at the Englert theater for three days next week commencing Monday, January 17. This play is claimed by many to be Griffith's best and has received much favorable press comment where it has been produced in the east.

STUDENT JOBS SCARCE

Women Have No Trouble in Finding Work

Jobs for men students who are working their way through the University are scarce, according to information received at the office of the dean of men. Most men who are putting themselves through school do so by waiting on tables or washing dishes for their board. Odd jobs such as washing windows and tending furnaces are less remunerative. Yesterday six applications for board jobs were left at Dean Robert E. Rienow's office and there has been no call for waiters for some time.

Few women work their way through school and those who do have no trouble in finding employment, according to Mrs. Nellie S. Aurner, dean of women. Women, who are making their entire way, do household work and there is no scarcity of such work. Those who are equipped to do office work are employed in their leisure hours. At present there are unfilled positions of this sort. Some women work in the libraries or do special work, but these positions too are filled.

TO DISCUSS DISCUSSIONS

The Y. M. C. A. meeting to be held today in the liberal arts assembly at 4 o'clock will consist of an open forum discussion of the findings of the discussion groups committee. Dorothy J. Banks A4 of Burlington will preside at the meeting.

ANY OTHER BUSINESS?

While the incensed members of two or three classes are flaying each other with rhetorical broadsides over some arrangements made by the sophomore Cotillion committee, a suggestion bobs up in connection with that social affair which ought to be of no offense to any of them, and might make for a more or less permanent custom in the University.

To date encouragement has been given to aspiring writers of plays, verse, stories, and essays in prizes of varying amounts offered for acceptable contributions in these fields by campus organizations, and the book and authors club. Desirability of these prizes seems to admit of no argument. If it is a good thing to provoke a creative interest in literature, it seems an equally good thing to give some public encouragement to another angle of creative art.

It is suggested that some undergraduate organization offer prizes for original music, and it seems reasonable to expect that a dance committee would be in a substantial position to make such an offer. A piece of music to be played for the first time at a Cotillion, a Prom, or a Hop, ought to pay for itself easily, and be a very creditable by-product of the affair.

That is one suggestion. It may be hoped that prizes for original music be not limited to numbers suitable for dances. Individuals and organizations in other colleges and universities have promoted plans for a college song book. Someone might establish an annual prize for a University song. Just now the cotillion committee more or less willingly has the limelight. Perhaps this would be something to think about.

HELAS!

Hope is a pretty false coquette,
Whose eyes say she could not deceive us.

But when our hearts fall in her net,
She'll laugh quite boisterously and leave us.

One can not say so of Despair,
That Lady has no vampish notions,
She trails a loved one everywhere,
And kills him with her mad devotions.

—MAX

If a certain member of the sophomore Cotillion committee, who has been in to see us several times, thinks he is going to get a lot of advertising in this column for without coming across with a free ticket to the big dance he is mistaken. No ticket, no advertising.

In a like circumstance the Column would be out of luck. He would have to adopt a middle name.

In Friday's Iowan we noticed the advertisements said Varsity dance would begin promptly at 8:30. In the society column we read that the Varsity dance was to begin promptly at nine o'clock, and our little innocent observes that people who read the advertisements always come half an hour earlier.

Another Pun and the Last!

A Chicago man recently made his will verbally on a phonograph record. Two attorneys dictated their names as the spoken "signatures" of witnesses. May the Column, just this once, get away with the remark that such a will might successfully be contested on the grounds that it is "phony!"

Abe Martin's Kid brother Vic, sez; The bird who doesn't know is always positive; the bird who is well informed is never quite certain.

Poetry Versus Prose!

Dear Ed: Since our verses are somewhat flivverish, rough-riding, sonzagnans, do you think one each day is too many? Remember Henry's output is enormous.

PAN.

The Column's idea of egotism is the picture of Mr. Caruso lying convalescent in a hospital listening to his own his own voice as it is record Enrico says: "How wonderful! How truly wonderful!" When the famous songster loses his voice the Column suggests that he take up column writing.

A news story announces a substantial increase in the price of coffins, and we have decided to keep on writing the Column.

Of course the publishing company that offered President Wilson $150,000 if he would write a certain article of a certain length, was paying him by the word. Seventy-five thousand dollars for the word Woodrow, and seventy-five thousand dollars for the word Wilson.

PRELIMINARIES FOR PERSONNEL OF MAT SQUAD TOMORROW

The matches will be judged by Coach Ralph Parcaut, but in the event of his absence, they will be judged as heretofore by E. G. Schroeder. Two men will be chosen for each event although but one will take the trips.

The first meet will be held at Northwestern, January 21. This gives Coach Parcaut only one week to polish up his squad of mat men. At present it is impossible to predict the strength of the Hawkeye squad but prospects look as if they should take first honors from the Northwestern team.

COASTS'

WALKER WHITESIDE FINDS PERSONAL SATISFACTION IN PLAYING CLASSIC ROLES

By Hubertean Kueneman
 "O, Yes! I think that every successful actor should see the plays and study the work of his contemporaries," said Walker Whiteside, in answer to a question fairly flung at him as he stepped from his dressing room in the Englert theatre, attired for the street.

"Yet my work will not permit me to see as many plays as I should like," he continued, half to himself. "But I shall see more when I again have the time and opportunity. You know, I enjoy seeing other actors in their work."

Mr. Whiteside who has appeared in only classical and standard roles, is not impressed by the popular plays. "Short lived successes," he calls them. While he has no desire to act in them his views are very tolerant.

"There are actors who enjoy playing in them and people who enjoy seeing them."

Neither do the movies appeal to Mr. Whiteside. He has no desire to act before the camera. Yet he had no criticism to offer on Otis Skinner's filming of "Kismet."

Mr. Whiteside is married. His wife and daughter, Rosamond, are living in New York City. While in Des Moines he learned by long distance telephone that his daughter had scored a studendous success (he called it) as "Jovetta" in the opera "Erminie."

"How old is your daughter?"
 "Let me see," Mr. Whiteside fixed his eyes intently upon the floor. "Rosamond is just seventeen. You see I always have to stop and count," he apologized.

"Yes, Mrs. Whiteside tells me in a letter this evening that on the opening night, Rosamond was repeatedly encored, and when she finally appeared, the entire audience stood and cheered her."

Mr. Whiteside's pure grey hair is the only evidence of his age, which he admits is fifty-one years. The actor finds travelling, especially for one-night stands, irksome. It is his practice to have a complete rest from the time his train leaves him at his destination until time for him to go to the theatre for the performance.

Mr. Whiteside's manner is one of a thorough gentleman. There are no broad mid-western "r's" in his conversation.
