SQUAD TO FACE HOME SCHEDULE OF FIVE GAMES

Basket Shooting in Chicago and Michigan Shows Need of Practice

NO SCRIMMAGE LAST NIGHT

Better Game Is Played at Chicago — Iowa Surpasses in Teamwork but Basket Eye Is Missing and Defense Work Slow — Five Game Schedule to Start Monday

Basketball practice, pointing toward a five-game home schedule which will begin with Chicago next Monday night, was re-opened at the men's gymnasium last night. The team returned from the trip to Ann Arbor and Chicago, Sunday.

No scrimmage was held last night with the view of giving the men a short rest, although all returned in good condition. The night was devoted to the development of the defense, and to the offensive system. Basket shooting, too, will come in for a royal share of the week's workout as that was one of the paramount weaknesses of the squad on the trip.

Better Game at Chicago
Several opportunities for open shots especially in the Michigan game, resulted in complete misses by forwards under the basket and unguarded. Five shots so missed in the first half of the game at Ann Arbor probably caused Iowa's defeat, when the 7 to 7 tie score at the end of the first half is considered.

A better brand of basketball was played against Chicago than against Michigan, contrary to the logic of the situation. The Iowa team left Iowa City at 7 p. m. and arrived at Ann Arbor at 9:30 the next morning after a change of trains at midnight.

Iowa Teamwork Surpasses
Against Chicago, Iowa surpassed at teamwork, carrying the ball down the floor more times for shots than the Maroons, but the basket eye was missing. The defense was a little bit slow and not working as it had in previous games, the team seeming to lack the final punch and pep to put it across.

Probably the strenuous trip and the proverbial jinx which has camped with the Iowa basketball team at the opening of each season, until it has become a tradition, are the best reasons for the defeat. It is the belief of fans that the squad will hit its stride against Chicago next Monday night, and although there is some diversity of opinion as to the victory, it can be remembered that the trick was turned last year.

Substitutes Play Well
Iowa has as good if not a better squad than last year, and it should win a large majority, if not all of the games at home, if it can once get under way with the speed that it is capable of delivering. If it does not bring in a string of victories on the home-stay, there is no chance of finishing with as creditable a showing as that of last season.

The substitute players showed up well on the trip, especially Lohman. Ehresman scored the first basket against Chicago Saturday night. Kamer looks better as he gets into condition, and bids fair to continue to be a contender for the center position.

Stiff Scrimmage Will Follow
Stiff scrimmages will occupy the rest of the week, combined with an effort to polish off some of the weaknesses of the team. A freshman squad of fair promise furnishes good competition for the varsity, and a full week between games gives plenty of time to lose the jinx.

NO LATE LEAVES GRANTED

Late leave will not be granted to attend any plays this week according to the student council committee.

LECTURER WILL BE DINNER GUEST

University Men May Attend Dinner in Club Rooms At Unitarian Church

Mr. Fredrick W. Kent, University photographer, has been appointed to make reservations for the guests desiring to attend the 6 o'clock dinner given at the men's club rooms in the Unitarian church on Wednesday evening, January 26, in honor of Rev. Samuel McChord Crothers, the next University lecturer. All University and Iowa City men are privileged to come. Mr. Kent can be found in the physics building, room 118, and those desiring to come should notify him at once as the number of covers is limited.

Rev. Mr. Crothers will be entertained while in Iowa City by Rev. S. C. Doan, Unitarian minister. Since 1894, Rev. Mr. Crothers has been pastor of the Harvard Square Unitarian church at Cambridge, Mass. He has an honorary D. D. degree from Harvard and a Litt. D. from both the St. Lawrence University and Princeton.

Rev. Mr. Crothers writes for the Atlantic Monthly magazine. "The Dame School of Expression Experience" is the latest article published. The material for this book was taken from a collection of his original articles published at various times in the Atlantic.

This is the fifth University lecture of the collegiate year.

The subject of the lecture to be given by Rev. Mr. Crothers in the natural science auditorium, Wednesday evening, January 26, at 8 o'clock will not be announced since the committee in charge does not know definitely which subject the speaker has chosen.

LIEUT.-COLONEL MUMMA'S SON GETS APPOINTMENT

Morton Mumma Jr., son of Lieut.-Col. Morton C. Mumma, head of the department of military science and tactics, has received an appointment to the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Ind. He is now a senior in Iowa City high school and will accept the appointment when his high school work is finished this spring.

HOWLING 300 WILL OCCUPY A SECTION AT CHICAGO GAME

Plans are being made for the Howling 300 to occupy a section of the gymnasium next Monday night at the Chicago-Iowa basketball game, according to John J. Dondore A3 of Iowa City, president of the organization.

The 300 has arranged for the band to be at the game and is also planning to have some big stunts to entertain the crowd between halves. The nature of the stunts is to be kept a secret for the present but, according to Dondore, it will be a regular treat to those who are lucky enough to be in the crowd that night.

Organizations similar to the Howling 300 are being started at Grinnell and also at Drake University. The Grinnell aggregation have named their club the "Howling 100" and apparently conceived the idea from the Howling 300 here. Kansas Agricultural college has a similar club which they call the "Ku-Ku Kan."

UNIVERSAL LAWS HARMONIZE LIFE

President Cowling Links Up Laws of Universe With Christian Viewpoint

Necessity of conducting human life and human institutions in harmony with inherent universal laws was emphasized by Prof. Donald J. Cowling, president of Carleton college, Northfield, Minn., in an address on "A Personal Philosophy of Life", at University Vespers, in the natural science auditorium Sunday afternoon, January 23, at 4 o'clock.

"These great laws are inherent in the universe," he said, "and men will go on building their little social structures and having them toppled over by wars, for untold generations to come until they realize that these must be built in accordance with those laws."

President Cowling centered his address around questions of the ultimate nature of the universe, man's relation to the universe, and the relation of one man to another. He argued against mechanistic and agnostic views of reality, taking a personalistic stand, maintained that man is supreme in the scheme of things, and concluded that a relation to another is one of forbearance and sympathy. All of these he linked up with the Christian viewpoint.

This Christian supremacy of man was realized to some extent among individuals, he said, and especially since the war, among nations, but has not found any adequate realization in the economic world.

He said, "I have yet to hear an employer boast that his industry has made life better for the people whom he employs, has given them better homes, or sent their children to schools and colleges."

"If we had taken the $300,000,000 asked in a naval appropriation before the war," he said in discussing human relationship, "to have established a system of public schools in Mexico we should have approached a Christian solution to the Mexican problem."

President Cowling criticized the religious attitude that enlarges on doctrinal disputation and fails to emphasize the big points in the Christian religion, the supremacy of man in the universe, and the necessity for unselfish human relations.

Preceding the address was a musical program: "Melody of Peace", Martin, by the University orchestra; violin solo from the "Second Concerto" by Wieniaski, by Miss Winifred Forbes, instructor in violin in the department of music; and "How Lovely are Thy Messengers", Mendelssohn, by the vesper choir. Scripture reading and invocation were by Rev. Herbert L. Searles student pastor of the Presbyterian church.

"THE REVOLT" IS PLAY TO BE GIVEN BY W. A. A. FOR VAUDEVILLE SHOW

"The Revolt" by Ellis Parker Butler is the play selected by the W. A. A. organization to be presented as one of the eight acts of the W. A. A. vaudeville at the Englert theater on Thursday, February 24.

Copies of "The Revolt" have been placed on reserve at the University library. According to the committee in charge, freshmen and all those who are delinquent in their studies are not eligible for tryouts.

Tryouts for the play will be held Wednesday, January 24 at 7:15 o'clock in the drawing room of the women's gymnasium, according to Dolly G. Henderson, production manager.

FROSH BRUISERS SHOW INTEREST

More Than Fifty Are Expected To Try-out — Numerals To Be Awarded

Freshmen wrestling tryouts will begin Wednesday at 4:15 p. m. when the 115, the 125, and the 135 pound classes meet in the semi-finals. The semi-finals of the 145 pound class, the 158, the 175, and the heavy-weights will be held at the same hour Thursday. The finals which have been planned for Saturday, will be postponed until Monday because of the wrestling match with Minnesota on November 29.

"Over fifty freshmen are out and the keenest competition is expected in the tryouts," said Ernest G. Schroeder, physical education director. This is the first year that numerals will be given to the freshmen wrestling team. It is probable that this has been the cause of the added interest in the yearling wrestling game, according to Mr. Schroeder.

SCIENCE CLUB TO MEET

Social Science Club will meet Tuesday evening at 7:15 o'clock at 226 liberal arts building. The subject for discussion will be "The United States and Neutrality," by James J. Van Ek.

BIG TEN TITLE NOT ASSURED IN WINNING CAMPS

Indiana's Present Lead Is Not Indicative of Her Actual Conference Strength

IOWA'S PLACE REDEEMABLE

Purdue Seems to Have Best Chance— Illinois Seems to Have Upset The Dope by Beating Chicago — Night Off Theory Given For Defeat Of Maroons and Badgers

By M. F. Carpenter

Standing of the teams at the close of the week ending January 22:

	Won	Lost	Percent
Indiana	4	0	1.000
Purdue	2	0	1.000
Chicago	2	1	.667
Wisconsin	2	2	.500
Illinois	1	1	.500
Minnesota	1	1	.500
Michigan	2	3	.400
Ohio	1	2	.333
Northwestern	1	3	.250
Iowa	0	3	.000

Scores of games played in the week ending January 22:

January 17, Indiana 31, Northwestern 10.

January 18, Illinois 33, Chicago 29 (overtime).

January 21, Indiana 27, Minnesota 23; Michigan 19, Iowa 15.

January 22, Chicago 40, Iowa 17; Michigan 30, Northwestern 15; Purdue 40, Ohio 32; Wisconsin 23, Illinois 18.

Games scheduled for the week ending January 29: January 24, Illinois at Minnesota, Michigan at Wisconsin; January 25, Chicago at Ohio; January 28, Indiana at Purdue; January 29, Michigan at Chicago, Wisconsin at Minnesota.

Guarding Tells Strength

Two things stand out prominently in the past week of Conference basketball, the defeat of Chicago by Illinois and the position of Indiana at the head of the list. Along with these two, as far as Iowa students are concerned, must be placed the position of Iowa at the bottom. A writer in one of the Chicago papers who is on the whole careful with his statements and anxious to be fair and accurate has given the Hoosiers the preference over all the other teams in the race for the championship, has called the Illinois-Chicago game the upset of the season. All of this is worth thinking over.

To begin with, how good are Indiana's chances for championship? At present, as far as the record of the team goes, only fair. Indiana has a good team, but it has, as yet shown no sign of being a great team. At least the scores of the games played do not yet indicate championship ability. The team has played four games. In those games it has scored 115 points to its opponents' 75. This is to say it has averaged 29 points to a game against its opponents' 19.

The strength of such a team clearly lies in its guarding. Its scoring power is far below that of such teams as Chicago and Purdue, which average 37 points in their Conference games. Indiana has not shown the power to pile up scores that these teams have, though Indiana's opponents have been, with the exception of Minnesota, tail-end teams. Northwestern, against which Indiana made its largest score, 31 to 10, has permitted its opponents an average of 27 points to a game and has held but one team to a low score. That was the first game of the season, which Northwestern won from Wisconsin by a score of 13 to 12, largely because Wisconsin could not shoot baskets when the men had a chance.

Hoosiers Place Undecisive

Indiana's guarding stands, however, above that of any other Conference team. Its nearest rivals are Michigan and Minnesota, which have allowed

A POSSIBLE HELP

Publication of average fraternity grades and average grades for all men students suggests a speculation on interest in academic work in colleges generally. The average for all men students was 76.77, less than a "C" grade. It was noticed that, in general, professional colleges led the list which ran, medicine, law, applied science, dentistry, liberal arts and pharmacy.

A juggling of comparisons on this basis would probably be unfair because of the different systems of marking used in some of the professional colleges. Discounting, however, the amount of work done in the colleges of medicine and law, there are still dentistry and applied science, using five-point grading systems, and averaging higher than the college of liberal arts. The difference is relatively small, but some of it may be accounted for by a possible difference in the actual interest and pleasure which the students in these colleges find in the work itself.

Failure to find this interest and pleasure seems to lie in the difficulty of adjusting individual tastes to the demands of study and the class room. A number of undergraduates find pleasure in academic work, but for others it is a dull grind and the grinding is stimulated now and then by rigid rules, now and then by communications from the home town, now and then by pride, and now and then not at all.

Henry Noble MacCracken, president of Lafayette college, Easton, Pa., in an article entitled "Religio Magistri" in the January Atlantic, has something to say about the attitude of the teacher that might be nourishing food for the student. He says:

"...the first merit of the best teacher is acquaintance with and love for his subject... a pure love of the subject for its own sake, for the delight of its discoveries, the neatness of its inventions, the harmony and perfection of its laws, the intricacy and smooth workings of its processes. The love is that of a good chauffeur for his motor, of a captain for his ship."

This may sound like fanciful bunk, but it is not fairly practicable? One finds pleasure in attempting to master the caprices of a golf ball, a dance step, a baseball bat, or a billiard cue, why not a degree of pleasure in attempting to master a theorem, the facts of history, or a problem in logic? All it needs is a change of sights, a new tint on the spectacles.

MICHIGAN AND OHIO STATE TO MEET IN RIFLE MATCH

Columbus, O., January 24.—A rifle contest between the University of Michigan R. O. T. C. and the Ohio State University R. O. T. C. will be held March 22 from 3 to 5 p. m. Each team will be formed of six picked men, shooting on their home range. Results of the shooting of each team will be wired to the other as the contest progresses.

The Ohio State R. O. T. C. has issued challenges to 11 universities for a championship contest, but the one with Michigan is the first to be arranged.

BIG TEN TITLE IS NOT ASSURED TO TEAMS

their opponents an average of 22 points a game. If Indiana goes through the season at the head of the list it will be because of its ability to prevent the other team from scoring. Up until now, it has possessed that ability. Whether it can continue to possess it depends upon whether its success to date has been due to its own skill and speed or to the lack of those qualities in its opponents.

It seems quite probable that the success of Indiana has been due to the second factor rather than to the first. Indiana held Michigan to 21 points with Karpus, the best Michigan forward playing but five minutes and with Dunne out of the game entirely. Ohio held Michigan to 10 points with Karpus in the game, and Iowa held Michigan to 19 points with both Karpus and Dunne playing. Yet Purdue scored 40 points against Ohio, and Iowa has yet to win a game. Indiana held Northwestern to 10 points, but Northwestern has averaged but 14 points against Conference opponents.

In other words, while Indiana's guarding is good, it need not yet be regarded as so good as to be decisive.

Off-Night Theory Given

Indiana has a rather attractive schedule. It has but seven games left to play. Of these, four are played at home. The schedule does not include Chicago, Illinois, and Wisconsin. On the whole it is the easiest schedule that any Conference team has now to play.

It is, however, hard to believe that Indiana has the stuff to go through that schedule without at least three more defeats. Minnesota is really about as good as Indiana. Purdue has a better scoring machine. Iowa looked as well against Michigan. Indiana has to meet Minnesota once more and Iowa and Purdue twice each. There is in addition the ever-present chance of an off-night.

Every Conference team has at least one off-night in the course of the season, a night in which it loses a game which it had no business to lose. Chicago may have had such a night when it played Illinois. Wisconsin certainly had such a night when it lost to Northwestern. If Indiana gets through without an off-night, it will be fortunate.

Iowa Floor Hard for Chicago

The results of the Chicago-Illinois and the Illinois-Wisconsin games were to leave all three teams still in the race handicapped. Chicago still looks better than either of the other two on paper, but it will have to play all the basketball that it knows how to play in order to win the championship. Both Illinois and Wisconsin stand a chance but little inferior to that of Chicago.

It is just as well to remember that Purdue has the best scoring team in the Conference and has yet to lose a game.

As far as Iowa is concerned, the loss of both games on the trip was a disappointment. It is not, however, a fatal blow to Iowa's chances of finishing in the first division. Chicago has always found the Iowa floor a hard one on which to win. Minnesota has no decisive superiority at Minneapolis. There is, as yet, nothing to indicate that either Indiana or Purdue are unbeatable. Northwestern has a weak team. Nothing has been lost yet that cannot be redeemed.

WOMEN FOR IOWA GIRL SECTION TO BE CHOSEN SOON

Eight representative women for the "Iowa Girl" section of the 1922 Hawkeye will be chosen by the end of this month, according to Paul W. Penningroth A3 of Tipton, who has charge of that section of the annual. The names of the women will not be given out until the Hawkeye comes off the press.

The system that will be followed this year is similar to the one used last year. Several of the prominent faculty members who are in close touch with a large number of students have been asked to make out a list of those who they think best represent the Iowa Girl. The girls receiving the largest number of votes in this manner will then be informed of their selection. A page will be given to three views of each of the eight girls chosen. Special India paper with double tone ink will be used.

HELD PRISONERS FOR TWO DAYS; A BIRD OF A STORY

Two pigeons, one a slate grey, the other lighter and with white spots, wrote home Sunday night and told the old folks what a man misses by going to college.

These two pigeons that went to college and who left no identity beyond some misplaced plaster and scattered feathers, spent forty-eight hours, from Friday noon until Sunday noon, in intellectual incarceration in the liberal arts auditorium, flying from one Ionic pillar to a window pane, then to another Ionic pillar to bob their heads and reflect on the misdeeds of their Bohemian past. A little before noon Sunday they found an open window.

"Sorry," the grey one said, "I'm forced to drop the course; too much indoors; nerves you know."

"Hate to appear plebeian," said the spotted one, "but I think I could eat a double order of worms. Wonderful day isn't it?"

LIEUT.-COL. MUMMA IS GIVEN NEW HONORARY APPOINTMENT

Lieut.-Col. Morton C. Mumma, who has been in Washington, D. C., for the last two weeks attending the meeting of the National Rifle association, was appointed an honorary director of the association for life. This appointment has been made to only eight persons in the last fifty years, which proves the directorship to be a position seldom granted.

Colonel Smith Brookhart, of Washington, Iowa, was elected as president of the association. Karl K. Loos was elected as treasurer of the organization. Mr. Loos graduated from the laws school in '14 and is now practicing law in Washington.

The National Board for promotion of rifle practice selected Camp Perry for the national rifle matches which will be held from July 27 to August 26.

Colonel Mumma was appointed as executive officer in the coming national matches at Camp Perry.

The final contest will be held here in May, and the winner of this will be awarded the state championship.

NEW FORTY PAGE BULLETIN IS ISSUED BY UNIVERSITY

A new forty-page bulletin called "The Spirit of Old Gold" has just been issued by the University. This bulletin is printed in brown, on heavy book paper, and features forty illustrations of the University buildings, athletic contests, and class-room scenes. Many of these pictures are new, having been taken for the Homecoming Iowan.

Historical sketches, descriptions of the buildings illustrated, and several general articles on University life appear in this bulletin. ### STUDENTS AT OHIO STATE MAY EAT AT FRENCH HOUSE

Columbus, O., January 24.—Combining eating with learning French is to be the unique experiment of members of the French classes at the Ohio State University. A limited number of students will be allowed to board at a place hired for the purpose and at this table nothing but French will be spoken.

A number of rooms have been rented, which will be the center of French activities at the University. A French library, a study, and a solon will be provided.

If this scheme is successful, it is planned to have a French boarding club near the campus. It may be supported by the University and will be included in next year's budget. Under the direction of the department of Romance languages it will be patterned after the French boarding clubs of other universities.
