MINNESOTA MAT TEAM TO MEET IOWA SATURDAY

Minnesota Has Best Team In Years According To Dope Writers

MATCHES PROMPTLY AT 3:30

Iowa Team in Fine Shape From Northwestern Meet—Vana Out Because of Injuries — Thompson Will Substitute — Sweeney, White, Smith, and Hunter Star

The Iowa wrestlers will meet the Minnesota mat team here Saturday afternoon at 3:30. The meet will be held on the main floor of the armory with special seating arrangement to accommodate all wrestling fans.

The team returned from the Northwestern meet in fine shape and have engaged in only light practice to keep them in shape for the tussle with the Gophers. Vana of the 125 pound weight class will be unable to compete in the matches Saturday on account of minor injuries received at Northwestern. He will be back in shape in time for the next meet with Purdue, February 11. Thompson will take Vana's place in the 125 pound class and is expected to show a real fight with the Gopher lightweight. Sweeney still holds the 135 pound division and will probably represent Iowa in Saturday's contest. Sweeney secured two falls from his opponent in the last meet and showed real skill during his match.

Bob Smith still holds the upper hand in the 145 pound division. Smith secured one fall in the Northwestern meet and fans believe that "Bob" has not yet started and will probably exhibit some fast work in the coming match. Although Howrey lost his match by decision, he is only a new man at the game and he will probably stage a real comeback when he meets the 158 pound Northman. Captain White of the 175 pound weight had no trouble in throwing his opponent of last week twice in short order; while Hunter who met a man 50 pounds heavier than himself, secured a decision by using skill and science of the game against the over-weight of his opponent.

Hard Struggle Ahead

The Minnesotans are coming here with a squad that will make Iowa fight for every decision. Interest in the wrestling game at Minnesota has been at its highest this year. The results of this is found in the number of men that are out for the team as evidenced by the columns of the Minnesota daily.

Our victory over Northwestern should not cause over-confidence, for the staging of inter-collegiate wrestling in that University was entirely a new venture. The opposition, which was rather slight, cannot be compared with the aggregation that the Gophers will bring to Iowa," said Ernest G. Schroeder, who is in charge of the team during Parcaut's absence.

Parcaut to Touch Up

Ralph Parcaut is to meet Benny Reuben at Chicago Friday night in a finish affair, best two out of three falls. He will be back in time to put the final touches to the squad before the match.

Ticket No. 6, in the year book or fifty cents will be the admission price Saturday afternoon. There is to be no advance sale for there will be no reserved seats for the match.

PROF. DILL DELIVERS LECTURE AT WATERLOO

Prof. Homer R. Dill, of the department of zoology, gave a lecture on "The Alligator Hunt in Louisiana" to a club of business men in the banquet room of the Russel-Lamson hotel at Waterloo last evening.

DOBBIN AND SLEIGH RIDE STILL POPULAR WHEN SNOW PERMITS

Who says this is the horseless age and that motor cars have superceded the faithful nag even in the cold winters of Iowa?

According to local livery barn managers and those who still possess a few of the animals to rent out for evening rides, the horse is still popular and when sleighing is good there is a keen demand for horses and cutters for the evening.

It used to be that when father and mother dated they rode and rode, until the cows came home, so to speak, since the cows stay home all night in the winter, but university people trot their horse about town for a short hour or two after which there is just time for a lunch at a cafe and a quick walk home to meet the university rules.

Then it was probably father's most acute dissipation, and the only way in which he fussed mother during the winter months, except perhaps for an occasional oyster super at the district school of a country hoe-down, which means, among other things, a dance that lasted 'way after midnight at some farm house, and the "Reel" and "Muney Musk" were the popular numbers. Now its only an evening's lark, done once or twice during each winter just for a little diversion, and the sleighbells are thrown in to make it a little more rustic.

Prices in Iowa City vary somewhat but all are reasonable in comparison with prices charged by livery barns at various towns about the country. If only one horse is desired it would cost about two dollars for a ride as late as rules permit the winter lady to be out, or if a party desires to go the cost would be from four to seven dollars for a party of five couples.

However, sleighing at the present time is not very good, according to local barn managers and they were reluctant to let their horses go out last night as there were many bare spots on the streets. Perhaps it will snow again in a day or two.

MICHIGAN UNION IS HUGE SUCCESS

Grassfield Visits Ann Arbor—Reports Union Has Made Good

Ralph G. Grassfield, director of the Iowa Memorial Union campaign, returned Monday from a visit at Ann Arbor, Mich., where he spent three days studying the Union which is in operation there at the state university.

Mr. Grassfield also stopped in Chicago for a few days to confer with Rush C. Butler L'93 of Chicago, who is president of the Iowa Alumni Association and chairman of the board of trustees of the Iowa Memorial Union, concerning the future plans of the Memorial Union for the University.

This is the second year that the union building at Michigan University has been in operation and, according to Mr. Grassfield, is a working success, being patronized by over 6,000 university men daily. He reports that one of the interesting features of the building there is that it is for men only and allows the women to have only a rest room and small dining room. The Iowa Memorial is to include both men and women and so plans will have to made whereby different rooms such as tea and smoking rooms may be properly arranged for their accommodation.

According to Mr. Grassfield, his visit at Michigan points to a favorable situation in the campaign here as compared with those elsewhere, since it required Michigan fourteen years to obtain their building and it is hoped that the Iowa Memorial may be in operation within four or five years.

HAWKEYE TRACK SQUAD PREPARES FOR INDOOR MEET

Thirty or forty candidates for the track team are taking daily workouts on the armory indoor track. Medical Supervisor Walter R. Fiesler has charge of the men at present and will continue in this capacity until Coach George T. Bresnahan arrives.

With the arrival of the new coach it is expected that interest in track will receive a considerable stimulus. Ten "I" men and some exceptionally good performers from the 1920 freshman team make Iowa's cinder prospects look far from dim.

Iowa has never done much in indoor meets, but they serve as conditioners for the big spring duals. Illinois will entertain the Iowans at a dual indoor meet February 26, and several Hawkeye stars will probably be sent to the conference meet March 18 and 19.

Coach Bresnahan will have had charge of the men nearly four weeks before the Illinois meet.

NEW CONSTITUTION OF O. I. C. TO BE RATIFIED TONIGHT

The newly formed constitution of the women's pep organization, O. I. C., is to be read for ratification at the O. I. C. mass meeting to be held in the liberal arts assembly room at 7 o'clock tonight.

The functioning of O. I. C. is regard to attendance at basket ball games and support of all athletics at the University will be discussed.

Athletic interests at Iowa will be the subject for the talks to be given. The program as announced by Jean Spiers A3 of Rienbeck, president of the organization, will consist of talks on athletics, "Before," by Violet Blakeley G of Iowa City, on athletics "Now" by Huberteen Kueneman A3 of North English, and on athletics as they will be at the University "After" by John J. Dondore A3 of Iowa City, president of the Howling 300.

The meeting will be over in time so that all who wish may attend the University lecture, according to Jean Spiers A3 of Rienbeck, president.

YERKES ENDS TRIP

Public Health Nurse Back From Tour of Twelve Counties

Miss Lola G. Yerkes, public health nurse from the extension division, returned yesterday from southwestern Iowa where she has been working in twelve different counties. Miss Yerkes carries on the follow-up work of the Perkins and Haskell laws, seeing all persons who have received medical attention at either the Perkins or University hospitals, under these laws, which provide that any person who needs medical help and is unable to pay, shall receive it at either of these hospitals.

In the twelve counties there were over 300 cases, about half of which are orthopedic cases under the care of Dr. Arthur Steindler, which must return to the hospital for treatment. Miss Yerkes visits these persons to see if they are receiving the proper attention in their home and recommends that they be sent back to the hospital if they need further care.

BARTON ELECTED CAPTAIN

Former All State Star to Captain Freshman Squad

Paul Barton D1 of Fort Dodge, was elected captain of the freshman basketball squad, at their practice last night. Barton played forward for four years on the Fort Dodge high school team and succeeded in landing a place on the all-state high school team last year. He has been one of the most aggressive members of the freshman squad throughout the present season, according to Freshman coach Albert Jenkins, will be a good man for next year's varsity.

RIFLE TEAM NEEDS MEN

Mumma Issues Call For Competitors For Rifle Team

"If the University is to be represented by a rifle team able to uphold the reputation established by former rifle teams in the inter-collegiate indoor matches more material must come out at once," said Lieut.-Col. M. C. Mumma. Only three or four men thus far have shown the necessary quality. The first match of the series for the indoor inter-collegiate championship will be shot during the week ending February 5.

Colonel Mumma requests every man in the University who can shoot a rifle to come and see him without delay as the time is very short.

It will be recalled that the I is awarded to members of the rifle team upon recommendation by the commandant. This letter is the regulation I with the letters R. T.

Membership on the rifle team is not limited to members of the R. O. T. C. but is open to any student in any college in the University. The only restriction is that the student must be an undergraduate.

GIRL FIRST ON FRIVOL STAFF

Margrette Hostetler Named As Newest Member of Frivol's Coterie

A new name will appear on the editorial staff of the magazine, with the Rococo issue, that of Margrette Hostetler A2 of Davenport. Miss Hostetler is a former student of Columbia university, New York City, and qualifies highly as a producer of wit and cleverness according to Warren Bassett, editor.

Page proof of the Rococo issue of Frivol would indicate a spicy variety of humor and art work, such as has never been included in any of its previous issues of the University humorous magazine.

According to the editorial staff the February 3 issue of Frivol will be a sure cure for the "examination blues" Even the prospect of an invited trip home can be made brighter by the fact that a copy of Frivol can be read on the train, they say.

Some of the promised features include "Our Only Intramural Oddity; A Short History of Our Only Student of the Rococo;" "Mid-Year Epitaphs", and art work of a nature slightly different than that appearing before.

The Rococo Frivol will appear on the campus a week from today. The sales direction will be handled by W. A. A. women.

CONCERNING THE INDIVIDUAL

In an interview printed in the New York Evening Post for January 22, Michael Friedsam, president of B. Altman and Company, one of the foremost retail houses in the East, says in discussing opportunities for advancement to young men in mercantile occupations:

"College education is useful, of course, but by no means essential. A college degree means only what its owner makes it mean."

Mr. Friedsam is not criticizing colleges. In fact in other portions of the interview he says that "Retail stores are always looking for educated and able men of a quality that will make it worth the firm's while to push them along upwards as fast as possible," and he encourages men to take advantage of courses in merchandising offered in universities.

He seems rather to be laying particular emphasis on the individual. It is similar to the emphasis laid by Frederic J. Haskin, a newspaper contributor, in an article published some time ago in direct attack on the existing systems of higher education. Mr. Haskin said of extra-curricular activities, "The real business of college life," he called them:

"It is colorful, spontaneous, exciting, barbarous, but... it does not develop his individual mentality—his tendency, if he has any, to stand apart and criticize, to think about himself. It teaches him to conform to standards, customs, and ideals, not to create or to criticize them."

It is an emphasis which was laid by Donald J. Cowling, president of Carleton college, who said in a recent vespers address that the whole system of things ought to be to the end of the development of man and not to the end of man's conformation to the system.

No figure is more of a type recurrence on the autumn campus of the average university or college than its conceited freshman. Perhaps it is pure conceit. Possibly it is a dowdy cloak for some peculiar individual ability. At any rate, he comes, he sees, he is conquered. He is apt to find the flame of his conceit drenched by unfeeling jibes from his associates until, if he be not of a cast-iron temperament, he is probably jolted into sullen depression and sublimation of his individuality.

This conceited fellow is a bit obnoxious at times, but what of it? If he is flaunting an inflated ego his bubble will be burst some dreary morning by his own awakening to that fact, more safely and surely than his associates can do it for him. If he has, in fact, some particular ability, it is worth forbearing his conceit to see it developed.

ATTITUDE TOWARD EDUCATION

(From the Harvard Crimson)

"What are you going to do after college," is a question of many answers. "Why are you going to do it?" has usually but one: to make money.

The old ideal of education is vanishing under our eyes. "How to live" gives away for "how to make a living."

Business efficiency and intellectual mediocrity are the guiding spirits of the modern educational institutions of America and the end of that training is "dying in the harness" or a comfortable but an idle and empty old age. This change in ideals is the natural result of an epoch which places Production above Humanity; which strikes a strident note of movies, cheap magazines, jazz—anything to take the place of constructive thinking. Chicago's grand opera company is dying for lack of support; the centers of real culture in the East are very small oases in a very large desert. These facts disclose a truly lamentable condition; they mean that Ruskin's "There is no wealth but life" is being discarded for the "Goddess of Getting On."

The college student's ambition is not aloe confined to making money; he must make it in a "respectable" profession. Politics is a "dirty" game; therefore he will not enter it. Quite true: it is a "dirty" game, as Messrs. Hylan, Tufts and Pelletier are most conclusively proving. But carefully sidestepping politics will not improve it, nor will it give Socialists and I. W. W.'s any less ground for accusation and discontent. The profession of education is carefully avoided for its unremunerative nature; the deplorable result of this is obvious.

American universities are certainly not what G. K. Chesterton calls English universities: "The playground of the rich;" practically every man in the colleges of this country intends to work for his living. That is as it should be; but there is little sanity in working for what cannot be enjoyed; and comfort is not the half of enjoyment. A comfortable living is much to be desired; but there is no reason why it should entirely crowd out social, intellectual, educational service, the "levelling up" of the nation. College men are most fitted to be the motive forces for better conditions by heritage, endowment and acquisition; an equipment that must, however, teach them to get the most out of living to be stimuli for advancement in the communities of the nation.

ENGINEERS HEAD LIST

COMMERCE STUDENTS SLUMP AT ILLINOIS

Urbana, Ill.: Engineers received the largest percentage of A's and commerce students the largest percentage of E's in class sections of more than 50 members last semester, according to a statistical report of grades for large courses compiled by C. M. McConn, registrar of the University of Illinois, recently, to be presented to the senate of the university. Engineers received 15.7 per cent A and 8.9 per cent E, while commerce students received 6.7 per cent A and 10.1 per cent E.

The College of Agriculture and the Library school tied for second place in the high grade percentages, with the School of Athletic Coaching, Colleges of Music, Law, Education, L. A. & S., and Commerce following in order. The Library School gave the smallest percentage of low grades and the College of Law the next smallest.

Math Calls for Many E's

About 18.9 per cent of the students in mathematics failed the courses last semester, and 13.4 per cent of the students enrolled in accountancy. In journalistic courses, 22.5 per cent rated A during the semester.

The grades given in history, rhetoric, political science and sociology fall more nearly along the line of the uniform grade scale, about 40 per cent of the students being given C, and about 20 per cent B and D respectively, and about five or ten per cent A and E, respectively.

The report also shows that Engineering and Agriculture students enrolled in rhetoric do not do as well as L. A. and S. students. Engineering students enrolled in Rhetoric 2 last semester received 4.7 per cent A and 6.6 per cent E; agriculture students received 2.6 per cent A and 6.4 per cent E; while L. A. and S. students received 9.4 per cent high marks and 3.9 per cent failures. On the other hand, L. A. and S. students enrolled in Mechanical Engineering received no grades of A and 8.3 per cent rated E. Engineers received 14.7 per cent A and 21.1 per cent E.

POINT SYSTEM RESTRICTS

Advisory Assembly Voted Assent — Will Fix Details

Lawrence, Kans.: A point system whereby office holding university men and women would be held under a certain maximum, set definitely for each class, is now under the advisement of the Men's Advisory Assembly for verification and report back to that body. The plan recommended by last year's council, and drawn up by the Men's Council early this fall, will receive action by the Assembly early next semester, before being reported back to the Council.

Almost unanimous support of the point system has been evidenced by the assembly, which voted down several insurgent moves against the system during the fall.

The Seals club will meet Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the drawing room of the women's gymnasium. Helen Hayes, president.

NOT THE EARLY HOUR BUT THE LATE HABIT CAUSES STUDENT'S LAPSE

Students who have no eight o'clocks! Don't read this. Your life is not troubled with the sterner responsibilities that gives causes for worry and thought to the most of us.

The proverbial idea on the campus is that there are more absent and tardy students to the first morning class than to others, but this dope is all wrong. Being late to classes is a habit, say professors and instructors.

Some of them are late every morning, usually the same ones each consecutive morning and some of them manage to make this class about half the time. It isn't always the women either. In fact, according to instructors its more often the men than the women, who fail to appear or else jazz in with a yawn about the second ten minutes.

There are several types of perpetually tardy students. The most flagrant class are those that come for the last half of the recitation and invariably spring an excuse. Some instructors claim that they know all of the 347 excuses and methods of horse playing that there are, but there are others who swallow these old alibis and let the student jockey him out of an extra half hour in the feathers each morning.

Another common type is the one that is a good college boy but not an exceptionally good student. He arrives just at the moment his name is being called and causes the class to titer as he answers "here" while closing the door.

These late and tardy students are a small majority in each class of every hour of the day and it is the common knowledge of instructors, that the same ones are late in each class in which they are enrolled.

Who's to blame? Nobody, apparently. It isn't the watch, or the alarm clock, nor the chime on the bank, nor the clock on St. Mary's. Its just the habit.
