NEW SCHEDULE CALLS FOR ONE MEET AT HOME

Track Season Will Open With Indoor Meet at Urbana February 26

SCHEDULE 8 TRACK MEETS

Illinois Indoor Conference Meet, Drake Relays, Minnesota, State Meet, Northwestern, Chicago, and Conference Meet Make Up List—Coach Satisfied With Turnout

The track schedule for this year, as revised this week, was announced by Track Coach George T. Bresnahan yesterday. The season opens with the meet with the University of Illinois at Urbana, February 26.

The indoor conference meet will be held at Evanston March 17 and 18. Iowa will enter the Drake relays April 23. Northwestern comes here May 7, and Iowa goes to Chicago May 14. The state college meet will be held at Des Moines, May 21. On May 28 Iowa meets Minnesota there. The season will come to an end with the outdoor conference meet at Chicago June 4.

A committee in the Western conference is working on a new meet for this year. It is to be a national meeting of the point winners from each of the nine conferences in the United States, and will be held at Chicago June 11 or 18. Whether or not Iowa is represented in this meet depends on what showing is made in conference meets.

About fifty men are reporting regularly for track work in anticipation of the first meet of the season at Illinois, February 26, according to Coach Bresnahan.

Coach Bresnahan is well pleased with the size of the squad and says that many more will report soon. He announced yesterday that a special class in pole vaulting will be held in the gymnasium Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 3 o'clock. This class will include both beginners and advanced men, upper-classmen and freshmen. Coach Bresnahan said that he especially desired men who have had advanced gymnasium work, since that work is a direct aid in the work of the pole vaulter.

Practically all work is now being done in the basement of the armory but it is expected that the runners will be working out doors by the middle of March.

Coach Bresnahan is making plans for cross country and hopes to increase the importance of that sport here.

PEACE AND QUIET REIGN

Examinations and Part of Registration Become Memory

The feeling of hustle and worry that has invaded the campus for the past week ended yesterday noon. Spirits rose. Everyone about town had a smile. Relaxation lasted all afternoon and into the night which seemed one of the gayest since the University opened. Here and there on Washington and Dubuque streets, as on far away Broadway, was heard the cry of that strange night owl who shouts "Taxi! Taxi!" from late to early hours.

DINNER PLANS ARE COMPLETE

Kuehnle-Finkbine Dinner To Be Given Tuesday—Six Talks Planned

A short snappy program with a few set speeches and probably informal talks by some of the guests who will be present, has been planned for the annual Kuehnle-Finkbine dinner which will be given Tuesday night at the Hotel Jefferson, said Prof. Forest C. Ensign, secretary of the University of Iowa Association, who has charge of the preparations.

The program as tentatively arranged is as follows: Toastmaster—Forest C. Ensign, secretary of the University of Iowa Association. "Greeting to the Guests" by the senior host, William O. Finkbine '78 of Des Moines; "Response" by Weir M. Murphy, president of the senior law class and of the All-University senior class; "Iowa's Opportunity" by President Walter A. Jessup; "The Iowa Memorial Union" by Ralph G. Grassfield, campaign manager; "My Alma Mater" by the Honorable Harvey Ingham '80, editor of the Des Moines Register; "Closing address" by the junior host, Carl F. Kuehnle '81 of Denison.

The deans of the various colleges, Lieut.-Col. Morton C. Mumma, Coach Howard H. Jones, and nearly 100 students, presidents or heads of the various organizations on the campus will be guests at the informal dinner. Since the affair is very informal, it will be possible for any one to get away after dinner, if it is necessary to do so.

An attempt is being made to have the hosts, Carl F. Kuehnle and William O. Finkbine, arrive in the morning in time to attend convocation.

NOTED DIVINE AT TODAY'S VESPERS

Rev. John H. Holmes, Pastor of New York Church to Speak Today

Rev. John Haynes Holmes of New York City, will give an address, "Open the Doors: A Plea for Freedom", at the Vesper services to be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the natural science auditorium.

Reverend Holmes is a graduate of Harvard University and Harvard Divinity School. He is now at the head of the Community Church in New York City, the largest church in the city, with a membership between 1200 and 1500. Reverend Holmes believes that the churches of today must get away from sectarian division and become the servant of the whole community. All seats attend his church.

He has associated with his other ministers, his principal associate being Reverend Randall, a minister who has been instrumental in starting community churches in Boston and Philadelphia. Rev. Harvey Dee Brown is his other associate.

Reverend Holmes has in connection with his church a public forum every Sunday. Prominent men, such as Herbert Hoover, Count Tolstoy, and Maurice Maeterlinck, come and present questions of the day for open discussion at these meetings.

Rev. F. C. Doan, pastor of the Unitarian church, when speaking of this said, "I believe this is the most significant movement within the Christian church since the days of the protestant reformation. It is a movement that is appealing to the unchurched men and women. I also believe that the time will come when every modern church will have a consulting psychologist on its staff."

Reverend Holmes will be entertained at the home of Rev. Doan while in Iowa City. He will give an address, "Can Humanity be Saved?" to the Commercial Club in their club rooms Monday noon.

The Vesper program follows: Hymn—"Spirit of God, descend," No. 11; Barnby.

Vocal Duet—"The Lord is my Shepherd", Mrs. Mildred B. Paddock and William E. Hays; Smart.

Invocation and Scripture Reading—Reverend Walter C. Schafer.

Anthem—"Sing to the Lord", Vesper Choir.

Address—"Open the Doors: A Plea for Freedom", Reverend John Haynes Holmes, the Community Church, New York City. Benediction.

YEAR BOOKS IN FIRST

Cash Admission Not to Be Accepted Until 6:55 p. m.

Admission to the basketball game with Minnesota to be played at the armory at 7:15 tomorrow evening will be restricted to holders of athletic year tickets until 6:55 p. m. After that time the doors will be open to cash admissions.

Leon H. Brigham, assistant director of athletics, announced last night that in the future, the doors will not be open for any admissions until 6 o'clock.

COLLEGE HEAD SPEAKS TODAY

President King of Oberlin To Speak at Congregational Church at 10:45

President Henry Churchill King of Oberlin College, who will give an address at the Congregational church this morning at 10:45 has been secured by the Iowa City commercial club to make an address in their club rooms Monday noon.

During the war, Doctor King was head of the American religious forces in France, and at a recent meeting of the federated council of churches of Christ in America, he was decorated by General Neville, representative of the French government, with the title Chevalier of the Legion of Honor in recognition of his services.

Doctor King is also the author of several books some of which are the published lectures which he has given before the divinity schools of Harvard and Yale Universities. His latest book, "The New Age and the New Mind" was given at the Cole lectures at Vanderbilt University. Among his more important books are; "Reconstruction in Theology" and "Theology and the Social Consciousness."

Doctor King arrived in Iowa City yesterday afternoon and is being entertained by Dean and Mrs. Carl E. Seashore. He will leave here for Grinnell on Monday afternoon where he will give the Gates Memorial lectures, a series of lectures which will last over five days. This engagement at Grinnell has made it possible for Doctor King to speak here today.

IOWA COLLEGE PRESS TO HOLD CONVENTION AT COLFAX APRIL 8-9

A meeting of the board of trustees of the Iowa College Press Association was held yesterday afternoon in the office of the Daily Iowan. Plans were arranged for the annual College Press Association convention to be held Friday and Saturday, April 8 and 9 at Hotel Colfax, at Colfax.

The members present were John A. Kennedy of Coe, president; William S. Maulsby, associate professor of English, faculty advisor; Miss Kate Shinner of Cornell; Clarence E. Brittain of Ellsworth college, and Fred A. Steiner LI representing the University of Iowa.

Rudolph Weitz of Grinnell, editor of the Scarlet and Black, was appointed as secretary and treasurer for this year to succeed Emmet L. Morris of Upper Iowa who has cancelled his registration.

A feature of the convention will be a three minute talk from each editor and business manager of the papers represented, instead of the round table for editors and business managers as formerly.

The judges for the annual front page contest have not been selected according to Mr. Kennedy.

The newspapermen invited as speak-

OUTCOME WITH GOPHERS RESTS ON CONDITIONS

Records Show Few Victories for Iowa in Basketball In Recent Years

LIES WITH OSS AND ARNSTON

Minnesota Averse to Playing on Iowa Floor — Gophers Will Be Somewhat Fatigued from Trip and Game with Chicago — Devine not Likely to Play—Ty Smith in His Place

Iowa's basketball victories over the University of Minnesota have been few and far between in recent years. Never in history have the Hawkeyes won both games in a season, and the best that they have done recently has been breaks in 1919 and 1920.

In 1918 Coach Kent's men, lead by "Peanuts" Von Lackum, upset the dope and grabbed a 25 to 21 overtime game from the Gophers. That game was one of the best ever played at Iowa and was an example of Iowa's second half comeback ability.

Minnesota, with a conference championship team, won both games in 1918, but last year Iowa after losing the first game at Minneapolis, completely wrecked Doc Cooke's men at Iowa City, 30 to 5. Minnesota was helpless in the second half and its failure to score a single point in that period was an exceptional record for conference basketball.

This year, Arnold Oss, forward, was mainly responsible for Iowa's 24 to 19 defeat at Minneapolis. His six baskets in the second half did the damage. But he and Arnston, the other forward, will be up against an improved Iowa defense tomorrow night and also will be tired from their battle with Chicago Saturday night. If Oss and Arnston are stopped, Minnesota will be beaten.

Kearney is a first rate running guard and figures strongly in the teamwork combination, and in the late games he has begun to show some shooting ability. Minnesota has the disadvantage of being on a two game trip as they played at Chicago last night. The hard game with the Maroons, followed by the trip to Iowa City will bring the Gophers here in a fatigued condition at best.

Another incident in the game with Minnesota is that that team has the same aversion to playing on an Iowa floor that Chicago has. Their frequent defeats in recent years have developed a skepticism that is close to a hard luck feeling when they come to Iowa.

Coach Ashmore terminated practice for the Monday night game with a short period of basketball shooting yesterday afternoon. Devine was out in suit but he is still weak and there is little likelihood of his playing the game. Ty Smith will occupy the running guard position.

Practice during the week has been divided between scrimmage, basket shooting and floorwork. Scrimmage against the frosh has been rather ragged in floorwork, but basket shooting has shown some improvement. An outstanding weakness of the team is poor passing and catching of the ball in teamwork.

Either a number by the Iowa quartet or some selections by the Quadrangle orchestra and an exhibition by the gym team between the halves, is being planned by the Howling 300 and the band will be present at the game.

WEATHER FORECAST

Snow and rain tonight and Monday. Not much chance in temperature.

HUN WAS LIKE DEFEATED LOVER, DR. ERNST GIVES AS REASON FOR PEACEFUL GERMANS BECOMING WARLIKE

"The peaceful German became a terrible Hun because..." Mrs. Lucy Hoesch Ernst, Ph. D. of Godesberg, Germany, hesitated for a moment, while she selected a suitable simile, "well, because he was like a disappointed lover. Germany had lost its mission in the world. It had been a peaceful country, a country destined to do something for the world in art and music. Singing was a favorite with the people, and the art galleries were always full, but in a moment this mission, this end, was lost. The German became warlike. I think there is a psychological explanation, but the simplest way to say it is that he was like one who is in love, and then, getting a cold shoulder, his love turns to hate."

"What was the reason for peaceful Germany's becoming a nation of destroying Huns? Was it political pressure, the literature of the time, industrialism, or what?"

"Well, there is a complication of reasons. The principal one is a psychological reason. The people wanted to be friends with all of the world, at first, and thought that war was a political matter. Then one by one the nations came in against them, and it was all like—" Dr. Ernst paused again looking for a simile, shook her head and repeated, "well, just like an unhappy love affair."

"Of course this case of wounded feelings was unconscious; they didn't realize it, but there was a psychological change. The people of the world must have wondered about it. They must have found it hard to understand how the people who had written the German literature and painted the German paintings could have changed like that."

"Germany did have an army, and a good one, built up by the military class for fifty years, but sending men out to fight does not make men hate, and fight like Huns. That is explained by psycho-analysis."

"I was in Germany at the time that war was declared; I was there all during the war, and until September of 1920. I think that Germany was the aggressor. The attacks on Belgium, the Belgian atrocities, were deplorable, and so was the U-boat warfare, and all that kind of thing."

Doctor Ernst became an American citizen in 1902, by marriage. In 1914 she returned to Germany, and not knowing the law requiring registration yearly at an American consulate, lost her citizenship by failing to register. She has lived and studied in England and in Switzerland where she received her degree.

"I think that it was a good thing that America entered the war. It would, in fact, have been disastrous to the world if she had not. A German victory under the circumstances was the last thing to be hoped for, and America's entrance hastened defeat though it would have come eventually anyway."

Dr. Ernst will speak at the Burkley Hotel Thursday, February 10, at 8 o'clock on "The Physical and Mental Conditions in Germany, Before, During, and After the War."

A GOOD SOLUTION

Following action of the board in control of athletics, Iowa now ranks among universities that are devoting some time and attention to European relief. Plans inaugurated at a meeting of the board Saturday look to the arrangement of an athletic carnival the proceeds of which will go to the European relief administration and the Near East relief fund. It is significant that this carnival is contemplated not primarily as an athletic event but as an athletic event with relief funds as its purpose.

It seems gratifying, too, that it is to be athletic and not an event of a dazzling social nature. Social benefit functions are beyond intelligent criticism but occasionally they present enormous incongruities. Here is a report of the annual charity ball, held at the Waldorf, from the New York Evening World:

Mrs. Gerald wore a blue gold brocaded satin gown, trimmed with silver lace over the shoulders. She wore a diamond pendant at her neck. Mrs. Witherbee had on a simple gown of black lace and jet. Her jewels were diamonds in necklace formation. Mrs. Monroe von Mayhoff was charming in a white satin drapery with brocaded lace. Last year's President, Mrs. Charles Alexander, wore a black velvet gown ornamented with diamonds. Mrs. Charles F. Roe wore black satin, brocaded with lace. Her jewels were opals.

This in the name of charity seems a trifle discrepant. An athletic carnival on the other hand appears to be a highly appropriate means of raising these funds for relief of suffering humanity on another continent. It will be healthy, democratic, wholesome, economical and to all appearance the most fortunate way to approach the problem of Iowa's participation in European relief.

GENERALIZING SPORTS

"Opportunity for healthful recreation is denied to the majority," stated Prof. G. M. Stratton, of the philosophy department of the University of California, in discussing the failure of students to appreciate the real value and significance of college athletics. "A man is welcome to come out for sports only in so far as he is promising material for a winning team." This situation he considers a perversion of the real aim of sports, which should be primarily an outlet for human energies, a recreation to be indulged in for the pure cheer and joy of playing."

This news story from the columns of the Daily Californian sets the mind on a problem, for which it may be there is no immediate nor ultimate solution, but for which there might easily be various degrees of corrective change. The point is that the average student with all his manifold physical deficiencies and structural abnormalities feels that there is no place for him on the athletic field.

Under our present system of athletics where too much is made of a winning team, with the rest of the students participating only in vocal athletics, it is undoubtedly necessary for a huge stadium to be built for the use of perhaps seventy-five men. And so long as competitive athletics between universities remains so outstanding a feature of comparative excellence in centers of learning, no doubt the need of spending thousands of dollars on a picked body of gladiators remains imperative.

But there is meat in Professor Stratton's observation, and were we contemplating the ideal end, he has perhaps pointed the way.

THE LISTENING POST

Graciousness or Egotism

It had not been the intention of the writer to parade this paragraphic pile before you again but the requests of his followers were so numerous, not to say sincere, that he could do nothing but consent to attempt, in his inert manner, to amuse them on occasions.

Congress is to cut Mr. Dawes' "damns" and "hells" which he hurled in excoriation of that body, from the records. Now he can sympathize with the column conductors. Editors are forever eliminating their best stuff.

The Ford organization, like the car it manufactures, has started to rattle.

It is much better for the athletic department to be beset by the problem of trying to find seats for its basketball patrons, rather than the difficulty of attempting to locate the patrons for its seats.

"We have some good looking girls here this year," three men told us shortly after our arrival recently. Which neither surprised us nor interested us. But it did arouse our compassion; we felt sorry for the women of yesteryear.

If you had seen Henry B. Walthall, a movie star of some magnitude, stroll through the lobby of Iowa City's leading hotel, picking his teeth the while, wouldn't the film industry drop several points in your estimation?

You should be glad to have read even an installment of Margot Asquith's autobiography. Any time when you meet an egotistical co-ed you can remark, "My dear, you have nothing on Margot."
