INGHAM ATTACKS WAR PLANS: SAYS SCHOOL IS FIRST

Speaker at Convocation Lays Emphasis on Disarmament

78 DEGREES ARE CONFERRED

Prof. C. C. Nutting Was Master of Ceremonies — Cadet Commissions Were Presented — 48 Degrees and 33 Certificates Were Awarded to Graduates

"The United States can better lay down its arms for five years to show the world it is for peace, and invite other nations to follow its example, than to continue building a great army and a great navy," said Hon. Harvey Ingham, editor of the Des Moines Register, during his address on "Placing the Emphasis" at the convocation yesterday. He also said, "We can better patrol the world and insure peace to all nations than to make such an increase."

Mr. Ingham made a strong plea for an increase in expenditure for educational institutions and facilities for the educating of the youth of this country, rather than an increase in expenditure for the building of ships and increasing the standing army. "The means of providing for proper education is lost because of the tremendous expense of government and administration," stated Mr. Ingham. "In the United States we add 25,000 men to our standing army without a thought, although the cost is $36,000,000 a year, more than enough to pay the salaries of all the professors in 249 colleges in the United States. We build battleships at a cost of $40,000,000 each and barely question the expense even when some navy men claim the battleship is obsolete as a war weapon. We talk of a program of compulsory military training costing a billion dollars annually when this same sum would support the colleges of the United States for many years."

"We shall not even be at the beginning of a civilized world," the speaker said, "until we accept without question the worth of education in upbuilding civilization and oppose the development of armies, navies, war equipment, and other destructive agencies."

In his address, Mr. Ingham especially denounced universal military training, not alone for the expense it would involve but because it would keep young men from attending college, would bring together boys of 18 years without serious purpose and under officers with no serious purpose, unlike conditions in training camps three years ago when men were actually confronted by war and because the camps would mix all types of boys together when they are at a highly impressionable age.

Prof. Charles C. Nutting M. A. was the master of ceremonies. The order of exercises was; the procession, the marshal, president Walter A. Jessup, and President Emeritus Thomas H. Macbride, speaker of the day and chaplain, official guests of the University; members of the University senate, faculties of the University, and candidates for degrees; piano solo by Miss Verness Fraser of the school of music; hymn, America, by the audience; the invocation by Rev. Ray Earle York A. B., B. D.; a solo by Prof. William E. Hays, instructor in the school of music; address, "Placing the Emphasis" by Hon. Harvey Ingham; the presentation of commissions in cadet regiment by Lieut. Col. Morton C. Mumma and the awarding of certificates and the conferring of degrees.

Forty-five degrees and thirty-three certificates were awarded at this convocation.

SECOND SALES CAMPAIGN FOR HAWKEYE SOON

The second sales campaign of the 1922 Hawkeye will open Tuesday, February 15, according to an announcement made last night by Dwight G. Rider L1 of Waterloo, business manager of the annual. The price of the book is $5 and a deposit of $2 will be made when the subscription is taken as in the first sales campaign.

"We have set 1000 subscriptions as our mark in this campaign," said Rider, "and we are confident that this number will easily be reached within a week after the opening of the drive." Subscription tables will be run in both liberal arts and natural science, and all professional colleges will be covered by the plan of the business manager. All organizations will also be canvassed.

EXAM WEEK TO BE CONSIDERED

Liberal Arts Faculty to Consider Plan For Examinations

A proposed program of examinations on the basis of a six-day period at the end of the semester, with two-hour examinations in every course will be considered at a meeting of the faculty of the college of liberal arts this afternoon according to a letter sent out by Dean Kay to the members of the faculty yesterday. According to the proposed plan the examination period would begin on Friday of the next to the last week of the semester and would close on the Thursday of the last week.

The schedule of examinations would be distributed so that no student would have three examinations on one day and only about 60 per cent would have two examinations on the same day. According to the plan, the new program would not need in any way interfere with the present practice of having examinations and reviews during the semester.

Although the examination period would undoubtedly stress examinations it would not necessarily mean that the professor would have to give two full hours of examinations. He could use the two hours in any manner that he chose, according to the plan being considered, provided that he held the class for the full period. Regular work could be continued at these periods, oral or written examinations could be given, or any phase of the work could be covered that seemed advisable to the professor.

This system is used in a large number of colleges and universities at the present time. The examination week system was used at this University for a number of years but was discarded in 1899 as the system then in use was not satisfactory.

GIVEN EDITORIAL POST

Merry Associate Editor On Speech Education Magazine

Glenn N. Merry, research assistant in psychology and formerly associate professor in the department of public speaking, was recently appointed associate editor the Quarterly Journal of Speech Education. The Quarterly Journal is the official magazine of the National Association of Teachers of Speech. The appointment was received from the executive committee of the association.

The Journal is published at the University of Michigan. Prof. C. H. Woolbert, head of the department of public speaking at the University of Illinois, is editor.

The subjects which Mr. Merry will write about deal with the new books, periodicals, and reports of research work of interest to members of the association.

MAT MEN MEET PURDUE FRIDAY

Wrestlers in 115-Pound Class To Show Stuff for First Time

Iowa's wrestling squad will tackle its third conference match Friday evening when the men meet the Purdue grapplers on their home floor at Lafayette, Ind.

Purdue has a good team and in former years showed real skill in the art of the mat game. "Although little is known of the present strength of their squad we are expecting and preparing for a fast and scrappy battle," said Ernest G. Schroeder, yesterday.

The Hawkeye squad after a short rest following the Minnesota match is working regularly and with the exception of a few minor bruises seem to be in good shape.

The men of the 115-pound division will get a chance Friday for their representation this year in conference wrestling. Tryouts will be held Wednesday. Sorenson, Thompson, and Barnes are the chief performers in the lightweight class.

Albers, Vana and Prince are struggling for the upper hand in the 125-pound class. The winner will probably be decided Wednesday. Sweeney, the 135-pound man, is in fine shape and Iowa fans expect to see a repetition of his action at the Minnesota meet. Here, he had no trouble in securing two falls in very short order. "Bob" Smith still represents the 145-pound class and will make his Purdue opponent fight every minute while on the mat. Howrey, Iowa's 158-pounder, will continue his "fight" Friday. Although a new man to the game, his two conference matches have proved him to be of the best stuff that is to be found in the wrestling game.

Captain White, although slightly under weight, is in great shape for the gruel and will clash with the 175-pound Purdue grappler. Hunter, the Iowa heavyweight, is in fine condition for he had no trouble with his Minnesota opponent. Hunter's practice must put him in shape for men of any size as proved by the last two conference matches. His Northwestern opponent tipped the scales at 225 pounds while the Minnesota grappler weighed in at 150 pounds.

STUDENTS WILL BE FINED FOR LATE REGISTRATION

Every student in the college of liberal arts and the graduate college (except such students as received an official request to postpone registration to the first three days of this week) should have registered by Saturday evening, February 5. In all cases students who register in these colleges after February 5 (with the exceptions noted) will be required to pay the late registration fee of 25 cents a day for each days delay; except that students whose last names begin with the letters D to G, inclusive, will be exempted from the payment of this fee for Tuesday February 8, alone.

Students whose names begin with the letters D to G, inclusive, registering after Tuesday will be required to pay late registration fee for Monday and for each further days delay beyond Tuesday, February 8, according to a statement given out by H. C. Dorcas, University Registrar, yesterday afternoon.

There are still approximately 1000 students in the liberal arts and graduate colleges who haven't registered yet. Up until Monday night, 2014 had registered in these two colleges. The number who registered yesterday has not been checked. The fine of 25 cents a day will be enforced upon all late registrants.

AMES' TANK TEAM TO MEET IOWA SWIMMERS HERE SATURDAY NIGHT

The Ames swimming team will meet Iowa in the pool in the men's gymnasium Saturday night at 8 o'clock. The strength of the Ames team is unknown since this is their first dual meet. They seem confident in repeating the defeat which they handed Iowa four years ago, the only time the two teams have ever met.

Tryouts will be held again this week to determine the personnel of the team which meets the Ames tankers Saturday. According to Coach Armbruster, it is likely that the same team which went to Minnesota will compose the Iowa team. Some difficulties may arise, however, in regard to eligibility.

Tickets will be placed on sale at Whetstone's Thursday. Only 300 tickets will be placed on sale due to the limited seating capacity of the natatorium.

HAWKEYE WILL BE OUT MAY 2

Feature Section Predicted To Be of a Very Personal Nature

Work on the 1922 Hawkeye is nearing completion, according to A. Carlton Ernestene A3 of Nebraska City, Neb. The book will go to press on March 15 and will be delivered to subscribers from Old Capitol steps on Monday, May 2, without fail. "Over 300 pages of type have been set," said Ernestene yesterday, "and it is only a matter of cleaning up now." A few of the organizations have not turned in the data to accompany their photographs, and it is imperative that they do so at once if they are to have a page in the annual.

Every effort is being made to make this year's annual a distinctive Iowa year book. The importance of art work has been heavily stressed and there will be a number of original art features in the book. What will probably be the most artistic Representative Women's section in any Hawkeye has been planned by the management.

The 1922 Hawkeye will be the same size as last year's annual and will not contain display advertising. It will be bound in a kowhide binding, the same as the deluxe edition of the 1921 Hawkeye, but of different color.

The closing section of the book will be a large feature section. It is the prediction of the editor-in-chief that but a very few people on the campus will escape the pen of the feature editor who refuses to disclose his identity.

LOANS TO WOMEN STUDENTS OFFERED BY ORGANIZATIONS

Several loans are now being made to women students wishing to borrow money for this semester, according to Mrs. Nellie S. Aurner, dean of women.

The national P. E. O. sisterhood offers a student loan not to exceed $150 per year, nor more than $300 to any one person. The loans offered by the national Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority draw only four per cent interest and are open to all women students whether or not they are members of that sorority. The Iowa State Federation of Women's Clubs loans money without interest to students.

Several churches have loans for their members. The Methodist and Presbyterian churches each have a special war fund for students connected with the regular service during the war, besides the loans open to all their student members.

Robert E. Rienow, dean of men, and Mrs. Aurner will advise students wishing to avail themselves of these loans.

FINKBINE AND KUEHNLE GIVE ANNUAL DINNER

Purpose of Banquet to Bring University Leaders Together

PROGRAMS PRINTED IN LATIN

110 Guests Present — All Heads of Men's Organizations — Yearly Event Is Becoming Campus Tradition — Hosts Were Members of Classes of '80 and '82

"The purpose of the Finkbine-Kuehnle dinners is to bring the University leaders together in order to inspire them to make something of themselves and become useful members of society," said Carl F. Kuehnle L'82 of Dennison, in his address to 110 guests at the fourth annual dinner given by Wm. O. Finkbine '78 L'80 of Des Moines and Carl F. Kuehnle, at the Jefferson hotel last evening.

"We haven't any sermons, lectures or advice to give, only good fellowship; in fact we are here for one selfish motive, to enjoy ourselves. It is the best investment we have made and it pays big returns, this enjoyment of getting acquainted and keeping young," Mr. Kuehnle continued.

Mr. Finkbine said, "I will give these dinners as long as I am living and will appoint someone to carry it on after I am with my ancestors. It is not so much what we have done already, as what we will do in the future."

The program and menu of the banquet were printed in latin out of respect to the hosts who think that the classical element is dying, according to Prof. Forest C. Ensign, who had charge of the dinner. He felt that the guests would appreciate the fact that the whole program could be printed in the dead language.

A flashlight picture of the guests was taken directly after they were seated. Pres. Walter A. Jessup, Judge Martin C. Wade, H. J. Moore and B. B. Boyd, architects for the Memorial Union, Lieut. Col. Morton C. Mumma, Coach Howard H. Jones, Harvey Ingham, Ralph A. Grassfield, and the presidents or heads of all men's organizations on the campus were guests.

Following the dinner the informal toast program was opened by Professor Ensign, who was toastmaster. Mr. Finkbine gave a speech of welcome to the students. He recalled his old days at the University and paid tribute to the modern University methods, and its leaders. Wier M. Murphy L '21 gave a response from the students. President Jessup's talk was on "Propitious Auspices" and Ralph A. Grassfield talked on "Union for Citizenship". Harvey Ingham, editor of the Des Moines Register, told of Iowa forty years ago. He said that the education was not superior to that of high school and it was not the bare facts that were learned but the contemplation of great events to come that formed the impression on his mind. Carl F. Kuehnle spoke on "Success". His quotation "Get on—Get Honor—Get Honest" summarizes his speech.

NEW COURSE IN PSYCHOLOGY IS OPEN TO GRADUATES

A new course for graduate students in psychology of the superior child, by Bird T. Baldwin, research professor of educational psychology and director of the Iowa Child Welfare Research Station, will be given this semester for the first time, on Thursdays from 3 to 5 o'clock, in the little theater on the third floor of the elementary school building.

ANOTHER HOUR

After the preliminary scare the suggestion of a semi-annual examination week, lasting from five to seven days and having an exclusive schedule of two-hour examinations in all courses in the college of liberal arts sounds more decidedly hopeful from the standpoint of the undergraduate.

Naturally there is the scare: two hours' writing, the detail of an examination schedule, and all of the manifold arguments against examinations at all. To the average student, however, such a system would probably make no change other than an extra hour for his examination and a little more time to prepare for it.

Now and then someone rushes to defend the occasional student who is called good, but "doesn't retain", and one recalls the fluffy bit of feminine inanity in "Hitchy-Koo" and the roars from the parquet at Raymond Hitchcock's repeated apology, "She doesn't retain." So far as that goes he should be able to retain enough of what he has learned in a semester to write for two hours upon it, if he is to be called educated at all.

Compared with the present system, such a change would have decided advantages for the student. He has now an indefinite period of examinations ranging over a week or more, during which classes are maintained as usual, and he is forced to make a hurried review at the expense of midnight oil. He is often the victim of congestion in examination periods, and the nervousness of attempting to get over a subject in the limits of sixty minutes. With the two-hour and examination week plan, classes would be abandoned, the student would find more time for systematic review, only in rare cases would he need to write more than two examinations in a day, and he would finish the subject with a feeling that he had some comprehensive and orderly grasp of its principles.

Perhaps such a plan would not prove practicable from all angles, but if it should, the undergraduate who gives it a second thought would welcome it with open arms.

THE NEW CONFIDENCE

The display of confidence in our basket-ball team shown Monday evening by the spectators during the tightest moments of the game surely looks good to some of us who have at times been disappointed with the gloom spirit paraded by some so-called boosters during other contests.

If this sort of backing continues in the same loyal and enthusiastic way, a noticeable increase in playing power of every member of the team will evidence itself. Players are subject to the same interplay of emotions that we all share, and confidence on the side lines will carry over into the field and work wonders.

Some of our players know that when they trot out onto the floor everyone expects them to change the aspect of the game. It isn't a far cry until they begin to expect as much of themselves. There is nothing which can substitute for a steady belief in one's ability to do whatever one sets out to accomplish.

ATHLETICS AND EXAMINATIONS (From the New York Sun)

The accusation has not infrequently been made that the American colleges are wont to show undue partiality to budding athletes. It is assumed that the young man who can bring fame to his Alma Mater by deeds of prowess upon the football field or the diamond will not be held too strictly to account if he cuts lectures or otherwise acquits himself poorly upon examinations.

This extremely current belief in large measure is unfounded. In most of the colleges the athlete obtains few favors of his instructors, and if he fails in his work he is dropped. Moreover in this matter the faculties usually have the wholehearted support of the student bodies themselves.

It is a pleasure to quote the following from the Daily Princetonian of January 29:

More than ever before undergraduate opinion now supports the traditional Princeton attitude that no man will be kept in college merely because he is a valuable member of the football team or of any other team. No matter how good an athlete a man may be, he has no business in college unless he is willing to do his academic work. There is absolutely no excuse for the promiscuous cutting on the part of some of these men and their daily lack of preparation in preceptorials.

In other words the undergraduate and the alumnus in their desire to have the athlete kept in college bring pressure to this end, not upon the instructors, but upon the delinquent young man himself. If he shirks his works he is apt to find that his popularity with his college mates has waned perceptibly. It is a hopeful sign that the student to-day realizes that after all he attends college primarily to secure an education and not to win football games. If the spirit displayed by the Daily Princetonian is typical of that on every campus it will be an easy matter to uphold the high standards of American education.

LISTENING POST

THROUGH CHIVALRY NOT DUTY

Collectively, we are keen for them, but none-the-less we maintain there is no place in a newspaper workshop for women. For instance, at the Daily Iowan office, we are always giving up our typewriter to some good-looking co-ed.

You can generally tell a man's temperament by the part of the Sunday newspaper he reads first. Strange, though, the popularity of the comic section in a university town.

Subtle Stuff

A young man, wearing a look of disgust during his troubles in the registrar's office on Monday, remarked, "Hell, let's join the army."

Even though you do not look with favor upon Saturday afternoon dances, we are sure you are not so spiteful as the rural lad in Nebraska. He halted a toddling exhibition with the aid of several polecats.

If you care for analogous phrases you might be interested in this: Men who wear their B. V. D.'s throughout the year are like women who roll them down during the winter.

Years ago the public school houses of America were the breeding places of democracy. Now the moving picture houses are.

"There is nothing in politics now," writes Colonel Watterston to the New York World, "except two empty bottles—both a little dirty—one labeled 'Democrat' and t'other 'Republican.'" There is nothing in the nation now—except many bottles—all quite empty, some labelled "Anheuser-Busch," "Pabst Blue Ribbon," and others, "Schlitz" and "Schmidt's."

FORMER COACHES ATTEND IOWA-MINNESOTA GAME

Among the coaches and athletic directors who were present at the Iowa-Minnesota game were two former Iowa athletes and coaches, Maurey Kent who coached baseball and basketball teams here and Edwin G. Bannick '18 a former basketball coach and Hawkeye forward.

Kent is now coaching the Ames basketball team and so far has turned out a team that looks formidable. He will bring his Aggie quintet here next Tuesday night to battle the Iowa five.

Dr. Bannick is now filling a position in Mercy hospital at Davenport. He was graduated from the college of medicine in 1918. When in school Bannick made the all-conference team two years ago. Despite the defeat by the Gophers, Bannick thought that the Iowa offense as coached by Ashmore is the best offense he has seen and that Iowa will cause trouble for the rest of the teams on the schedule.

WOMEN'S INTER-CLASS BASKETBALL GAMES TO BE HELD TOMORROW

The junior girls' basketball team will play the sophomores, and the freshmen will play the seniors tomorrow evening at 7:15 at the women's gymnasium, according to Lorena Bowen A3 of Iowa City, captain of the junior team. An admission of twenty-five cents will be charged to all but members of W. A. A., who may enter by showing their membership cards. This game will be the first of the round-robin series to be played between class teams.

Speeches on basketball were given Monday afternoon by basketball captains and W.A.A. members at the following schools; Pauline Spencer A2 of Des Moines, captain of the sophomore team and Gladys Taggart A2 of Spencer, at St. Mary's high school; Lorena Bowen and Mary Larkey of Independence, captain of the freshman team, at St. Patrick's high school; Margaret Holmes of Whiting, captain of the senior team and Dorothy O'Donohue A3 of Storm Lake, member of W. A. A., at the University high school. These speeches were to encourage interest in basketball, and the high school girls' team from each school visited were invited as guests of W. A. A. to attend all the round robin games.
