ONE IN TWENTY-FIVE

Twenty-five sections were entered in the annual freshman directional contest which closed last night. Rules for the contest stipulated that the oration entered may be original or not. Out of the twenty-five was original. One must not be passed and associate himself with his thinking capacity and make an original contribution. It may or may not have been a good contribution. One in the class today.

A directional contest is centered primarily, I assume, to encourage improvement in public address by bringing out fair competition and offering reward for merit. This in itself, appears to be highly commendable. Expression is the mark of a man.

There is about all this, however, a hereditary glory, a honored pleasure. It is not enough to do these effective. But for the daring one who dares click there, more or less prominently in the final accomplishment. It is hoped that one man dare and slated to create something out of the substance of himself and his little world of experience. It is to be hoped that in another year there will be more. Polite expression may be accompanied by thinking construction. The one is good, the two are better.

INTERCOLLEGIATE ATHLETICS

"Intercollegiate athletics are receiv- ing an undue share of attention and have become largely commercialized as a business," charged William T. Foster in a recent article entitled, "An Indictment of Intercollegiate Athletics."

"Intercollegiate athletics are receiv- ing an undue share of attention and have become largely commercialized as a business," charged William T. Foster in a recent article entitled, "An Indictment of Intercollegiate Athletics."

THE LISTENING POST

"The only time the parents of a lot of students and between the sections, all would participate."

...Harold A. Dean,...

Foster's argument lies here. It is the development of intercollegiate athletics. The student body and also between the big sections, all would participate. That argument is in some way to those of us whose hair is red.

The rule, strangely, has no effect on the law. Even though the campus remains were better acquainted with Blackstone, they could scarcely be expected to be so generous as to call on our potential district attorney and engineering for the defense such a grave matter.

That choice was out of a paragraph. We were under the cruel impression that the freshman would not be busier a day ago.

A professor adds, "As a 'fate' occurs to President Harding can get away with such stuff as the Chicago youth did with members of the Hamilton club, what will one of the executive's relatives put away with." The thought is tragic, murder would probably only be of the lower offenses.

Suggestion for a Frivol cartoon: I know how she used to be the engaged first team.

We know nothing about it, but a person who prefers to run up on the styles, tells us that they're wearing "Blacks," for the first time.

There might be more pleasant courses in the University than the one which calls for the reading of novels by William J. Locke and Dorothy C. Forrester, but we don't if you can think of those afforded.

It will be better for you to look for our initial in the April Frivol which will report soon for daily practice. The Daily Iowan pays a "huge" royalty for the use of "Iowa" M. V. M.

You may be engaged in the art of writing. We must be careful of our students.

It is our impression that writing is the art of writing. We must be careful of our students.

and endurance and will be going in good shape for the time of the Northwestern dual.

Hoffman and Cous are high jumpers of known ability. Hoffman has cleared 4 feet which is good for 7 feet 10 or 11 inches. These two athletes cleaned up in every dual meet last year and should come close to registering 15 feet this season.

Wise and Barnes will take care of the broad jump. Wise has cleared 22 feet, while Barnes can go 21 1-4 feet when he is going right.

In the pole vault, Aubrey Devine, who holds the University record of 11 feet 6 inches, and Bailey another excellent are sweeping clear in good style. Hoffman can go 11 feet also.

Duke Hunter is the iron man in the weights. The class is his specialty and in this category he has trimmed that 160-lb. lift but he is in a fair shot putter size. He has made strides in getting started though, and because of this he does not always show up as well as he should.

The half mile relay is in hot run in conference meets as the relay team will have Beck, Grelck, Martz and Parker.
