WORK OF ALLIED FLEETS TRACED

Professor Rose Praises The Stand of British Fleet In World War

The courses of the Allied fleets in the world war were traced by John Holland Rose, professor of naval history at Cambridge University, England, in his lecture "Sea Power in the World War" given last night in the natural science auditorium. The speaker was introduced by Prof. Arthur M. Schlesinger, head of the department of history.

Professor Rose pointed out that the whole course of the war would have been altered if the British fleet had not taken the stand and massed itself in the North sea in the early part of the war, thereby preventing Germany from seizing the border towns of France. Germany, he said, remained on the defensive too long because she thought that she could overcome the Allied fleet by the operation of torpedoes and mines and the submarine policy undertaken in 1917.

One of the most serious misapplications of the Allied sea power occurred, Professor Rose indicated, in the Gallipoli disaster when the British fleet relied on the cooperation of an army of 50,000 Greeks to carry ammunition to the Russians. Through German intrigue the Greeks failed to respond and in consequence the British army lost 117,000 men, because they had no landing place.

Professor Rose traced the courses of the various fleets by means of maps and charts of the European territory.

"There are greater possibilities for another war in Europe today than before the world war, not a great war but many small wars," said Professor Rose in his lecture on "The Present Situation in Europe" before the history seminar yesterday afternoon. "The old world is in the position where she must sink or swim and we want you to help her swim. The psychological condition in Europe is dangerous, most of the countries are on the point of war. France is revengeful toward Germany; Poland has combined her forces against the allies who befriended them; Russia is divided into a dozen different sections all fighting against each other, and Turkey can not be subdued."

Professor Rose explained that the reasons for this disturbance as an ill temper and moral deterioration resulting from the war. The Balkans, Serbia, and Belgium have the greatest hope of recovery.

SERGEANT RAHMING TO HAVE THREE MONTHS FURLOUGH

Sergeant William De Forest Rahming of the military department has been granted a three months' furlough. This is his first furlough since becoming connected with the military department of the University in 1911.

Sergeant Rahming served thirty years in the army before his ten years of service here. He was retired from the regular branch of the regular army after seven enlistments and rose to the rank of regimental sergeant major. Since then, he has kept the records of the University rookies, seen that absences and deficiencies are properly recorded, kept the accounts of the property of the military department and attended to the many other details that arise in the administration of the University regiment.

Sergeant Rahming leaves for California soon after commencement.

WEATHER FORECAST

WALL IS COMPLETED

Stucco Finish Put on Wall North of Baseball Grounds

The concrete wall along the north side of the baseball field is being completed this week. Work was stopped last fall by freezing weather before the finishing touches could be added to the cement work. The stucco finish and the concrete balls which will adorn the top of each pillar, are now being added. The wall is built of concrete blocks, with hollow tile used between the pillars.

STAGE SET FOR FOREIGN PLAYS

Students in Romance Languages Appear in French and Spanish Roles

Theater habitués will be able to satisfy their appetites tomorrow night at the Englert on different fare from the usual Mack Sennett Donnybrooks. Two foreign plays will constitute the diversion—a French comedy and a light Spanish drama acted by students in the department of Romance languages. These plays, Moliere's "Le Malade Imaginaire" and Valdez's "Jose," will be given in connection with bits of vaudeville, eccentric instrumental offerings, and special dancing and singing.

"Undoubtedly some people will stay away from the plays because they fear the entertainment will not be understandable," said Sara Hamilton A4 of Fort Madison, dramatizer of "Jose" from the novel of the same name. "We are having lots of stunts that will amuse everyone, whether the foreign languages are understood or not."

Marianne L. Ashford A3 of Cedar Rapids will dance in Spanish costume, and Ward C. Abrams M1 of Iowa City will sing "La Paloma", a Spanish troubador melody. Spanish candy and French boutonnières will be available in the lobby and synopses of both comedies will appear on the program.

A feature of the evening, according to the business manager, Gervase W. Tomkins A3 of Garrison, is the moonlight garden scene.

These two plays are entirely the work of the students in the Romance language department. The classes under Miss Eva Kelly and Miss Olive K. Martin dramatized the two novels.

SOPHOMORES WIN BY BIG SCORE IN FIRST GAME OF THE SEASON

The sophomore women's baseball team won over the freshman team 19 to 8 in the first game played by the women's teams yesterday afternoon in the women's gymnasium. The sophomores will play the nurses team at 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening.

The lineup of the game yesterday was: sophomores: pitcher, Janet Walker of Chicago, Ill.; catcher, Josephine Henderson of Hawkeye; short stops, Ruth Zorn of Montezuma, Leona Wiggins of Prairie City; fielders, Julia Darrow of Columbus Junction, Callie Buser of Conesville, and Portia Parker of Diagonal; 1st base, Pauline Spencer of Des Moines; 2nd base, Pearl Davies of Plymouth; 3rd base, Clara Marsh of Humboldt, substitutes, Myrtle Sellman of Sibley for Parker; Gladys Taggart of Spencer for Wiggins.

Freshmen: pitcher, Irene Souder of Des Moines; catcher, Leora Ashbacher of Waukon; 1st base, Esther Flynn of Riverside; 2nd base, Louise Benner of Keokuk; 3rd base, Mary Larkley of Independence; short stops, Helen Starbuck of Iowa City and Helen Spencer of Des Moines; fielders, Pauline Tiffy, Lorraine William and Marie Farren.

TRACK VICTORY PROVES MERIT

Iowa Team Shows Ability in Events of Dual Meet With Maroons

Members of the Iowa track team proved their ability last Saturday when they downed Coach Stagg's Maroon athletes with the decisive score of 94 1-2 to 39 1-2. They proved by their performance that their victory over Northwestern was not simply a winning streak over a weak team. Some of the members of the team did not do as well as it was expected they would, while others showed a marked improvement over their former performances.

Although the time in the quarter mile was not exceptionally fast, Greck, Marty, and Parker, exhibited good track judgment. Parker was largely responsible for the good running of Greck and Marty in placing first and second. In spite of the fact that he received a very painful spiking in the heel at the start of the race he drew out the Chicago runners and sacrificed his personal chances for the good of the team. McIntire, who seemed to have been somewhat hampered by the cold weather, ran a heady race in the mile and took second place.

In the half mile, Noll ran stride for stride with Bartley of Chicago who has an indoor record of 1:58 2-5 in that event, until the last 150 yards. Dooley of Chicago attempted to carry a quarter mile sprint on the last lap of the two mile run and thus win the race from Peterman, his nearest competitor. Peterman dodged Dooley's heels and, with a clever burst of speed at the mark of the last 220 yards, passed him and won with a seven yard lead. Peterman broke his University record made in 1920 by :04 1-5. The old time being 10:07 3-5.

Crawford ran the high hurdles in 15 4-5, tying the record made by Shrader in 1914. In so doing he sustained a slight injury to his knee which will probably slow him up for the state meet next Saturday. Captain Belding ran two good races, taking a close second to Crawford in the high hurdles. In this race he did not touch a single hurdle.

Wilson came up to his previous form only in the century event which he ran in :10. This ties the record made by Crum in 1895. Wilson also won the 220 and the broad jump. Rich performed well in three events. He beat Hall of Chicago in the high hurdles, and came within 1-2 yard of beating him in the lows. He placed third in the discus throw and third in the high jump.

Slater did not equal his past performances in the shot put or hammer throw, but he excelled even his record breaking practice mark of this year in the discus, approximately two feet further than the winning mark of the Penn relays. Slater's mark was 140 ft. 1 1-2 in. Devine was off form in the pole vault and was beaten by Bailey who vaulted 11 ft. Both of these men will have to improve if they wish to place in the state meet.

Conn and Rich are improving in the high jump, judging from their marks made in the meet. Hoffman will not be able to take first in the state meet with a jump of 5 ft. 10 in., but he was no doubt hampered by the cold weather at Chicago.

Smith and Harding are both suffering with sore arms, partly due to the cold weather. But Doctor Fiesler will no doubt have them in shape for next Saturday. Smith won the javelin throw from Chicago and Harding placed second.

Coach Bresnahan is now conditioning his men for the state meet which will be held in Des Moines next Saturday.

SYMPHONY WILL GIVE CONCERTS

Tri-City Symphony Director Will Present Features at Last Program

The last musical program of the school year will be given by the Tri-City Symphony Orchestra at the men's gymnasium the afternoon and evening of May 31. During the war this orchestra was obliged to disband for a time, but in the last couple of years it has re-organized and now is doing the best work in its history, according to Prof. Philip G. Clapp, head of the music department. Ludwig Becker, director, was concertmaster of the Chicago Symphony orchestra for fifteen years.

The University Music association feels that it is very fortunate in booking this orchestra for these concerts. "This will be an opportunity for us to hear an orchestra which is a part of the musical life of our own state and also one which has played a valuable part in the building up of the musical reputation of the Tri-Cities," said Professor Clapp.

One of the features of the afternoon concert will be the explanation and demonstration of the different musical instruments in the orchestra. So many people who enjoy music do not know even the names of the instruments that Mr. Becker has decided to include this novel feature in one of his programs. Mr. Becker, himself, will give a brief explanation of each instrument and then the orchestra member who plays the instrument will play a few measures to show the principle upon which it works.

Tickets for the concerts will go on sale at the book and music stores and Whetstone's drug store, Wednesday, May 18. Season tickets will cost $2.00 if bought before May 26 and $2.50 if bought after that date.

STAFF AND CIRCLE WILL BE ELECTED BY JUNIORS TODAY

The members of Staff and Circle, senior women's honorary society, will be elected today by the women of the junior class, and the results of the election will be announced Thursday evening at the President's point. Junior and senior women will meet Thursday evening at 7 o'clock at Old Capitol and march to the point. The members of the present Staff and Circle and Staff and Circle alumna will lead the procession.

After the procession Mrs. Nellie S. Aurner, dean of women, will give a short talk; the women elected will be called forward and a former Staff and Circle woman will pin a red rose on each new member. This method of announcing Staff and Circle members was started last year and has become a tradition of the society.

Staff and Circle was organized in 1912 by Miss Ann Klingenhagen, who was at that time dean of women at the University. The society is not only honorary for senior women but acts as an advisory board to the dean of women. To become a member of Staff and Circle is considered the highest honor a University woman can attain.

ILLINOIS KEEPS BIG TEN LEAD

Jackson Pitches Star Game for Illinois — Two Home-Runs Win Game

A thirteen-hit offense, backed by a two-error defensive game, gave the University of Illinois, now Western Conference leaders, a 5 to 2 victory over the University of Iowa's baseball team on Iowa field yesterday afternoon in the first conference game of the season here.

Illinois won the game in the third inning. The first two periods went begging for points and in the third the large and well-groomed visiting club came up to home base, dusted it with its black cap, and swung on the ball for a double and two home runs, scoring three points in the inning. Jackson got the double. Mee took an easy out, then Dougherty laid a homer over the Iowa's center-fielder's head scoring Jackson and himself. McCurdy followed with a grounder down the first base line and Vogel came to the plate for a long drive over the left field which was credit enough to carry him around the diamond. The Illini scored runs in the fourth and ninth innings.

The fourth inning marked Iowa's session with lady luck. Becker singled and took second on a balk by Jackson, scoring on Michaelson's two base hit. Locke put a single between short and third, scoring Michaelson, and completing Iowa's two-run total for the game.

Jackson, Illinois pitcher, truck out nine men, allowed only four hits, and took three hits himself. Whenever the Illinois pitcher got in a hole Stewart on third and Mee at short were a healthy pair of life savers.

None of Iowa's men stood out with a particular glitter above his teammates in this game. Draper, in left field is high man on put outs with a record of five, and got one of Jackson's stingily dispensed hits. Shimek and Crary played steady games at second and first.

MME. CURIE, HARD WORKER

A great deal is being said about the plain little woman who with her husband was co-discoverer of radium and holds a Nobel prize of 1904, and who is now being entertained on the Atlantic seaboard on her first trip to America. The little woman is internationally famous, and her present position is largely the result of faithful and determined effort.

Mme. Curie is of Polish birth. She was married in 1895 to Pierre Curie, and started with her husband at experiments in radio-activity, in a student laboratory in Paris, spending long afternoons stirring with a heavy rod a molten mass of radio-active products in a great caldron. In 1906 M. Curie was killed in a vehicle accident, and at the close of the year Mme. Curie was appointed to a professorship in the University of Paris, and continued her researches in a small laboratory designed for her use in coordination with the Pasteur Institute. Concerning her war work, Paul Appell, president of the Academy of Paris, says:

To her was due the organization of a systematic radiographic service. At first she went about from hospital to hospital at the front in an automobile containing a small but complete radiographic laboratory, stopping at each point only the necessary time for treating the most urgent cases. To obtain the current for running the dynamo she used the motor of her automobile. In this way many lives were saved.

This is only a part of a life that has been all devoted to an attempt to relieve human ills. Radium has done wonders in the treatment of cancer and other conditions, and like all things worth while is more the product of long consistent labor than of a rosy overnight inspiration.

THE SLACKER LISTS

Publication of the first of the long delayed slacker lists by the government has brought out two things; first, that most of the men who failed to respond to the call of their draft boards were foreigners, judging by the spelling of their names; and second, that many men who are named on the unglorious list served their country faithfully during the struggle.

It is manifestly unfair to say that foreigners, as a group, were unloyal to their adopted country. The records of many men whose native heaths lie across the Atlantic and Pacific show that they fought with all the innate courage of blooded Americans. It is fair to assume that some of foreigners, listed as slackers, failed to respond because of ignorance and not through cowardice. This is not an attempt to defend such men; it is merely stating a probable reason for the action of some of them.

Not all of these men slip out of their ignominious places on such grounds, however. All of them were not ignorant as to their responsibility in the war. A lot of them didn't appear because they made a very determined effort not to. They had no desire to fight and they didn't; whether the public display of their names will be proper punishment remains to be seen.

As to the men whose names appear on the list and who really served as good soldiers, that is a misfortune that comes because of the natural tendency of human beings to make errors. Several newspapers have pointed out that the government list is wrong and have given more publicity to these offended heroes than to the slacker list itself.

Quoting from a news story in the New York World, which sums up this phase perfectly well, one finds the statement, "This The World's investigation of all the lists shows that out of the 182 names from New York City so far published as deserters, thirty-five of them have been falsely accused. One of the men posted as a deserter in yesterday's list for New York City has papers to show he was in the service, and four others claim they were not deserters. In addition to these five, The World found three men who seemed to have well substantiated claims that they were unjustly included in the previous lists."

FIFTEEN KAPPA SIGS ATTEND THE FUNERAL OF FRED H. BECKER

Fifteen members of the Iowa chapter of the Kappa Sigma fraternity attended the funeral of Lieut. Fred H. Becker, former University football star, which took place at the Grace Methodist Episcopal church at Waterloo, Sunday afternoon. The Rev. J. E. Lang of the First Lutheran church, assisted by Chaplain Zimmerman, was in charge of the services. Burial was made in the Fairview cemetery.

It is estimated that 5000 persons attended the funeral rites held at the cemetery.

The body was escorted to the cemetery on an artillery caisson draped with an American flag and drawn by eight black horses. When the column halted a hollow square was formed around the soldier's plot and a squad of former service men fired the final volleys over their comrade. Taps was then sounded.

Lieutenant Becker's body arrived in Waterloo from Hoboken, New Jersey, late Friday night and was taken immediately to the memorial hall where a double sentry guarded all day Saturday.

Lieutenant Becker belonged to the 5th marines and was killed in action on July 18, 1918. He was awarded the distinguished service cross and the French croix de guerre.

HISTORY CLASSES IN AMERICA DIFFER FROM THOSE IN ENGLAND

"The only difference between the history departments of the universities in the United States and England," said Prof. H. H. Rose of Cambridge University in an interview yesterday afternoon, "is the size of the classes. The classes in English universities are much smaller, thus making more individual instruction possible."

However, Professor Rose favors the seminar arrangement at this University.

The English professor has been in the United States seven weeks and has lectured at most of the leading eastern universities. He gave a lecture on "Napoleon" in the Lutheran church at Washington, D. C., because of the fact that the German ambassador attended the church, and German hymn books were lying about, the lecture became rather war like, Professor Rose said.

During the war Professor Rose and his daughter were in the Y. M. C. A. work. He served in the New Zealand division while his daughter worked under the American Y. M. C. A. man to whom she is now married. Mrs. Rose, who accompanied her husband to the United States, is now visiting her daughter in Nebraska.

APPLICATIONS FOR IOWAN BUSINESS STAFF DUE FRIDAY

Applications for positions on the business staff of the Daily Iowan must be filed on or before Friday of this week, with Loren D. Upton, business manager of next year's Iowan. Applicants can interview Upton by calling at the business office at 115 South Clinton Street from 11 to 12 o'clock or from 1 to 2 o'clock any day between now and Saturday.

Five salaried positions, in addition to eight other positions which do not offer a salary, but require only two or three hours each week, are open to applicants. The salaried positions include those of advertising manager, assistant advertising manager, circulation manager, and two others to be named later. The other positions do not carry a salary but it is possible that the practical work will be combined with some course in journalism, for which scholastic credit will be given.

These positions on the staff should be especially attractive to students registered in the school of commerce or in the course in journalism who will be entered as sophomores next fall. In addition to the valuable experience, students especially interested can put themselves in line for elective positions on University publications, open to students each spring.

The staff for next year will be announced as soon as possible after the applications have been handed in, and a few tryouts held.

Five assistants in zoology and botany from the University with a number of graduate students from Missouri and Kansas will carry on their work at the Laboratory this summer.

any from the University with a number of graduate students from Missouri and Kansas will carry on their work at the Laboratory this summer.

A number of members of the Iowa academy of science have planned to be at the Laboratory this summer and it is expected that a meeting of the biological sections of the academy will be held in August.

New cottages are to be built this spring and a double boathouse. As the University does not own the Laboratory the funds for this purpose have been secured through private gifts.

Kansas—Dr. Hamilton P. Cady of the University of Kansas says that the women of today are far less civilized than men. He says that his statement is proved by the many rouged feminine faces. In the barbarous days men painted their faces and bodies, but as civilization advanced they saw the futility of such deception and abandoned the practice many centuries ago.

Promptness Builds Credit

When you want to borrow money, you must first establish your credit and credit is nothing more or less than the confidence which a bank has in your ability to repay the money borrowed on the day it is due.

If you owe money on notes, look up the dates on which payment is due. Get ready to pay them. Promptness will make it easier for you to get money the next time you need it.
