ANCIENT CIVILIZATION IS PORTRAYED

Professor F. H. Potter Gives Illustrated Lecture On Famous Pompeii

An illustrated lecture on "Pompeii," in connection with the annual lecture series of the Des Moines night schools, was given by Franklin H. Potter of the Latrobe Union, at 8:30 last night before a large audience.

The lecture included many photographs of ruins and objects found in the ancient city, as well as an account of the eruption of Mount Vesuvius during the year 79 AD, which buried the city beneath a mountain of ash and pumice.

Professor Potter gave a short history of the past and present fame of the famous city of Pompeii. The city, which was destroyed by the eruption of Mount Vesuvius in 79 AD, is now being explored and studied by historians and archaeologists.

The lecture was accompanied by slides from the National Geographic Society, which are used in the lecture series.

French Educational System on a Competitive Basis—Encourages the Bright But Not the Backward

"I do not believe that I have seen any better evidence of the spirit of cooperation and fellow-love and the feeling of good will than I have found at the State University of Iowa since my arrival here."

This is stated by a member of the faculty, Prof. Bernard Fay, instructor of French in the University Summer Session, in an interview yesterday.

Professor Fay is well qualified to make such statements, as he has spent considerable time in a number of universities in the United States, and is not prejudiced by nationality in this section of the country, having traveled in this country from France but two years ago.

The University is fortunate in securing Professor Fay for the first weeks of the summer session as he expects to return in early August to remain there in infinitely, with possibly only occasional visits in this country in which he is about to publish and which he is about to publish and which he

He is returning to France to advance to the position of a professor.
