A GREEK AMPHITHEATER

The possibility of constructing a great amphitheater for the presentation of classical plays has been seriously discussed from time to time. The University is equipped with natural amphitheaters which could be used for out-of-door plays if a system whereby each drama and comedy presented would be devoted towards the purpose of constructing an amphitheater for the university. The cost of construction will be the greatest stumbling block at the present time. The University needs all of the old buildings, the old buildings which are badly needed. No doubt, it would be entirely possible for the spectator to pay a small admission and thereby construct the amphitheater. The possible cost of the project would not be more than two or three

THE TEACHER TURNS

The editorial entitled "Quartermaster School" took all of the blame for this misfortune in summer school at the door of the school and the teacher, making one of these assume the defensive. However, it seems that the student teacher has been accused of all of the faults and that the teacher in other institutions want. If she is guilty, she is in too much to blame, to be in too much, and is as innocent. She brings the idea of the relative value of religious, society, whichever she happens to take particular interest in. Yet, as a result of a decided charge during the last decade, in the type of teaching, it is still upheld as the prima, instructive pedagogue. The thin, this is itself, said to be the predominant idea of the teacher. Thus, the professional, or so-called, is considered the typical teacher beca-

As Pioneers in American Art

Europe's Welcome to Harvard Glee Club Based on Hope That Imitation Is Giving Way to Originality
In Our National Music

It is the opinion of Professor Fig. 1 of the French department, that one of the best things in the whole of our education is the willingness to be satisfied with copying and imitating foreign science, art and even the habits of various races and the attention of brilliant minds of originality.

That this interesting idea exists in America is well demonstrated by the case of the Harvard glee club which is at the present time touring France, giving concerts in various of the larger and smaller cities of France.

The French music student was greatly under German influence.

During the concert, the voice of one of its large and enthusiastic audience, a French student, made an excellent impression upon the music student who was present. This student is at present engaged in scientific work, and is in the process of making a study of American music, which he plans to publish in a future issue of the Harvard Glee Club's magazine.

His work is being watched with great interest in France, and the students are looking forward to his return to America with much expectation.

The picnic will be held on the campus during the week of August 28, and is expected to be well attended by the university community.

This is the fourth visit of the Messing family to Iowa, and the guests expressed themselves as feeling that they were among old friends.

The picnic is being planned by the University of Iowa Alumni Association, and will include a series of plays before the University of Iowa Quartet, and a number of other events.
