GAMES TODAY TO DIRECTLY AFFECT TITLE

Chicago-Ohio State Game to be Most Important in Conference

CATHOLICS MEET ARMY

Iowa Doped to Win From Minnesota By Small Margin

Seven of the teams in the Big Ten conference will go into action today in games that will have a direct bearing on the conference championship, and undoubtedly the greatest game will be the Ohio State-Chicago battle at Chicago.

Chicago is one of the strongest teams in the conference this year. Coach Stagg has developed a tricky, speedy offense, which is handled by men who have football brains and know how to use them. He also has an abundance of good material for both the line and backfield positions, material which will scarcely weaken his team even if some of the first string men are injured. With this large squad, which in order to get places on the eleven has been fighting hard all season, Coach Stagg will meet Ohio State, another strong contender for conference honors.

Ohio Defeated Once

Ohio, although the team is one of the strongest in the conference this year, can never be forgiven for the defeat they suffered at the first of the season when Oberlin college took the Buckeyes into camp. This defeat undoubtedly did Coach Wilce's men a great deal of good. It really did not mean anything in the conference race, and it taught the men not to become overconfident. However this defeat has given the Maroons the information that Ohio State is not as good as they were last year, and that they can be beaten by a good team. Chicago is undoubtedly very good, and they should win from Ohio, although the game is sure to be close. In case Ohio does not defeat the Maroons, it means the elimination of one of the best teams Chicago has had for several years.

Notre Dame Has To Fight

A game that has no direct bearing on the conference title, but which will attract considerable attention in the East is the Notre Dame-Army game at West Point. With the exception of the Iowa game at the first of the season, Notre Dame has been victorious in all its engagements, and has generally defeated its opponents by large scores. On the other hand, the Army has shown up very well this year, holding Yale to a 14-7 score. With the defeat of last year to be avenged, it is certain that the Army will put up a battle that will be perhaps the best of the year, and Notre Dame, without the services of George Gipp, may have a hard time to win a second time. Gipp was the whole Notre Dame backfield last year and although Mohardt is said to be a second Gipp, it is doubtful if he will ever be the football player that Gipp was.

Iowa Expects Hard Game

If Iowa can stop the forward passes of Minnesota, it is a question of how large the score will be. The way the Hawkeyes have been going lately looks very bad for the Gophers, even though little pep was displayed in the Purdue game last Saturday. The line has taken on a new ambition, it seems, and the backs are giving good interference to Aubrey Devine, something that has not been done before. Iowa has always been weak on forward pass defense however, and there will be the thing the Hawkeyes will have to overcome. It is generally known that Coach Williams has been drilling his men in the forward pass during the past week, and with the famous Minnesota shift to fall back on he should have a dangerous offensive. Iowa's defense on straight football is fairly good, but throughout the season the forward pass has been the game most likely to beat the Hawkeyes. It is not known just what style of play Coach Jones will follow in the game Saturday. If Locke is in good condition, it is certain that part of the game will be

PLAY BY PLAY REPORTS OF GAME TO START EARLY

A direct wire will bring the reports of the Iowa-Minnesota game to the army this afternoon. The result of the cross country run is expected to be here at 1:45 o'clock, and the reports of the game are expected to follow shortly after that time.

H. G. Miller, superintendent of the Western Union office here will receive the reports. Harold Chamberlain, University news editor, will dictate the play by play account of the game.

MARTIN TO HELP BRESNAHAN THIS YEAR IN TRACK

Lieut. Thomas Martin, A. B. '16, who has just been appointed assistant track coach has already begun work on the weight men. He will be down on the field every evening at 3 o'clock and 5 and he also can work at 11 o'clock in the morning if any men wish to practice at that hour.

Lieutenant Martin says that there has never been a better opportunity for men to win points in the weight events than there is at present. Last year the winning throw in the hammer at the conference meet was only 127 feet. Any one with a good physique may develop into a good hammer thrower, and it is not necessary that a man be exceptionally large, although some size is desirable. Points in the weight events count just as much as do the points in the dashes, and the Iowa track team will be handicapped in these events, unless men are developed this year. The proper time to begin training new men is this fall in order that they may be in shape to enter meets next Spring.

Lieutenant Martin won two letters track while at Iowa, one in 1914 and the other in 1916. Both of these were won in the weight events, the first being won at the state meet, where he took third place in the discus, while the second was gained when he took first place against Minnesota in the hammer throw.

Lieutenant Martin was a charter member of the local chapter of the A. T. O. fraternity and was also a charter member of A. F. I. He was also captain of the rifle team in 1915 and 1916.

NOVEMBER MIDLAND MARKS RETURN OF MAGAZINE TO IOWA

The November issue of the Midland published recently, celebrates the return of the publication to Iowa where Mr. John T. Frederick, who has been editor-in-chief since the establishment of the Midland in 1915, has returned to the department of English at the University. For the past two years Mr. Frederick has published the Midland in Michigan where he has been farming and writing.

"The purpose of the Midland," says Editor Frederick, "is to help develop the literature of the middle west. Middle western literature has been judged long enough by New York critics and standards, and it is time that it should be judged by critics who understand the middle west."

The Midland was founded by students and instructors of the English department in 1915 and has been published continuously under the editorship of Mr. Frederick since that time. Mr. Frederick was a student in the University at the time of organization. Its purpose is to print only such fiction and poetry as possess genuine literary merit, and it has given special consideration to the work of the middle western writers, although its pages have not been closed to other parts of the country.

Some of the famous contributors to the Midland are Witter Bynner, president of the Poetry society of America, and John G. Neihardt, who was recently appointed poet laureate of Nebraska, is another contributor. Edward J. O'Brien of the Boston Transcript wrote to Mr. Frederick concerning certain war stories published in the Midland as follows: "These are the only writings in English worthy to be com-

600 ROOTERS TAKE SPECIAL

Crowded Cars Decorated With Large White Slogans

Approximately 600 rooters left last night on the special Rock Island train to see the Iowa-Minnesota game at Northrup field this afternoon. The band formed in line at 7:45 in front of Whetstone's, and marched down Washington street where they played, and then returned to the corner of Washington and Clinton.

John J. Dondore A3 of Iowa City, president of the Howling 300, led the "Iowa Fights" yell and the band started the march to the depot. They played almost continually down Clinton street and were followed by 2000 whistling, shouting rooters.

Upon reaching the station, a number of "What's the matter with's" were led by Dondore and each member of the team was cheered. Then the special train consisting of 16 cars backed into the depot. People flocked onto the coaches and in five minutes the cars were loaded. The band was distributed throughout the train. Upon the outside of the coaches some enterprising students were painting in white, "Iowa! Beat Minnesota!" Good wishes and hopes that the travelers would have a good time were handed out by the students who could not make the trip.

Pulman car tickets were at a premium early yesterday as there were none procurable. Indications that there will be fully 2000 students and alumni see the game this afternoon are fulfilled. Yesterday afternoon everyone seemed to have the fever and many took regular trains as a last resort to see the game. It is hardly possible to estimate the number that went in cars but it is thought that fully 300 made the trip.

FRESHMEN ADMIT THEIR DISLIKE OF GREEN HEADGEAR

Evidences of the lack of spirit in the building up of the University traditions are shown by the failure of the freshmen to wear their green caps. In interviewing five freshmen, one of whom was wearing a green cap, the following statements were obtained.

"Nothing was said to me out to the house about wearing a cap lately so I just put it away. I know I am supposed to wear one but I am not going to unless I have to," said one freshman. The next one, also without a cap said, that he didn't intend to wear a cap until he was made to. He didn't like them anyway and if he could get out of it he would. Another freshman said that he generally wore his cap, but that he just forgot it or lost it, he couldn't remember. The fourth freshman interviewed said that he didn't intend to wear a cap unless every body else did. The last freshman, the only one of the five with a cap, admitted that he didn't like to wear the cap but that he had to, because his fraternity made him.

For a time the men at the Quadrangle were compelled to wear their caps but that seems to have lost its pep lately.

It has not been the policy of the student body or of the Howling 300 to force anyone to wear his cap, but instead they have appealed to the loyalty of the freshmen. They have used no means of force because of the feeling of the classes at other universities. All that has been done is to request the freshmen to wear their caps in order to build up the traditions of the University.

FRESHMEN SHOWS SIGNS OF DAWNING CURIOSITY

A display in Bremer's window lists the names of the football players who will make the trip to Minnesota, and somewhere in each name is a red letter so that the red letters read from top to bottom "Beat Minnesota."

Yesterday a green capped freshman stood looking at the display for fully five minutes and then, turning to another, asked in a puzzled manner, "What do the red letters stand for?"

30 SWIMMERS OUT FOR TEAM

Many Old Men Try Out For Places on Varsity This Year

With the first of the minor swimming meets only six weeks away, interest in swimming is on a decided increase and the Iowa splashers are showing additional pep in their daily workouts.

For the varsity, thirty men are practicing and appear to be getting their work well over the rough places. Competition between the men has already set in and some lively races for places on the team are expected this year. So far however the old team members appear to be holding their own.

Several Dash Men
In the dashes and middle distances, Boynton, Clark, Goodell, Goltman and Stover are showing the best form. The last two men were members of the 1921 yearling team and promise to give the more experienced men some stiff competition this year. Brown, who won recognition two years ago, but was declared ineligible last year will be eligible after the first semester and is expected to join the dash and middle distance men.

Mills and C. LuVerne Smith are again waging a battle for the regular position of breast stroke man. Former Captain Anneberg is also working at this event while Griffin, a former Ames man is sharing his time between this event and the dashes. Klingaman is also showing up well in this event.

Webber is again working on the back stroke while a few other men are furnishing him competition.

Competition in Plunge

In the plunge Forney is holding his own, while Hickox, a member of last year's freshman squad is giving him strong competition. The best man in the plunge however will not be eligible this year. He is Ostrom, a freshman from Rock Island, who recently plunged the length of the tank in twenty one seconds, a new mark for the University pool.

In the dives, Capt. Iddif Shepard is showing his old form while J. N. Nelson and McCullough are closely following their captain. Nelson showed good form two years ago when he was a freshman, but was forced out of competition last year due to a broken ankle. McCullough was the best diver on the freshman squad last year.

Either water basketball or water polo will be played by Iowa this year but the sport has not yet been decided. Water polo is a game that is coming into favor over water basketball, especially in the east and in foreign countries, and it is believed in swimming circles that the meeting of conference coaches in Chicago this winter will take some action on the matter of introducing it into the collegiate schools. If water polo is adopted Iowa will be fortunate in having an able coach in this particular game to assist Coach Armbruster. Coach Mike Howard, has had considerable experience in this game, having been a member of the Denmark International water polo team.

MANTELL THINKS MOVIES HELPS STAGE CLASSICS

(By Pacific Intercollegiate News Service)

Berkeley, Calif., November 4— "Do I condemn the movies? I most certainly do not. They have accomplished more for the success of legitimate stage classics than any other innovation since Shakespeare's time, states Robert Bruce Mantell, the great Shakespearian player.

Because the silent drama has educated the public to stand for pantomime and dramatic pauses, the actor can introduce these artistic devices without fear of muttering of "Give 'em the hook!" from the peanut gallery, according to Mantell.

Though the great dramatist's works are not deeply involved in the affairs meant only for "high-brows", the rising generation must not be oversuited with the study of them merely as a collection of clever and learned sayings. Seeing them as a series of living pictures in an historically and artistically accurate setting is the important thing, according to Mantell.

CROSS COUNTRY SQUAD READY FOR GOPHER HARRIERS

Iowa's cross country team that meets the Minnesota harriers at Minneapolis today, left last night on the football special. Coach George T. Bresnahan and his team of six men are in the same car with the first string football players.

After breakfast this morning, the cross country squad will go over the course prior to the race which will be held at 11 o'clock. The Minnesota course is a full five mile course, fairly hilly, and consists mostly of paved roads with turf on each side. For two and one half miles the course runs parallel with the Mississippi river, and at one point it crosses a street car track but all traffic will be held up until the race is finished.

Has New Equipment

Iowa's cross country team will be equipped with quarter sleeve old gold jerseys. Each man will have two pairs of shoes, one pair having short spikes and the other pair the new special cross country shoe.

Coach Bresnahan says that he expects the Iowa cross country team to give Minnesota a good run. The team has been going better each week and while Ristine and Peterman are the two fastest men, the rest of the squad has been closing up the distance that has separated them from the two leaders. Ristine and Peterman will force the Minnesota runners to extend themselves to win the first places in the race. Ristine beat the same men last year, and while they have undoubtedly improved and are running on their own course, he should beat them this year.

Gophers Doped to Win

Peterman has not been bothered by the cramps and sickness that caused him to lag behind in several races last year, and he has been running even with Ristine. The race will be won if our fourth and fifth men can beat the last two Minnesota runners.

Minnesota's team looks better on account of the experienced men who make up the team and because of their good showing against Wisconsin last Saturday. However the Iowa team is determined to give them a good battle for victory.

WATERMAN LEAVES FOR PUBLIC HEALTH MEETING

Prof. Earl L. Waterman of the public health service of the extension division will leave Iowa City tomorrow to attend the 50th anniversary of the American public health association and the health institute to be held in New York City. The health institute will be held from November 7 to 11 and the American public health association from November 14 to 18. The American public health service is the largest public health group in the country and it is divided into many departments or sections for the purpose of assisting every one interested in any one of the various phases of public health.

This meeting will be the largest one ever held due to the fact that it was originally started in New York City and State health departments and the National health departments are doing all they can to make this meeting a success.

MRS. E. L. WATERMAN CHOSEN TO ASSIST Y. W. C. A. GIRLS

Mrs. E. L. Waterman, of Iowa City, was chosen to assist with the executive work in Y. W. C. A. during the temporary absence of Miss Mary Bash, general secretary, at a meeting of the Y. W. C. A. executive council last night. Miss Bash is leaving Saturday night for her home in Washington, where she is called by the serious illness of her mother, and cannot tell at present when she will be able to return.

Mrs. Waterman's duties will not be those of a successor to Miss Bash, but simply those of an assistant to the Y. W. C. A. girls in carrying on the work of the organization. Miss Bash said last night, "The members of Y. W. C. A. are fully capable of 'carrying on' while I am away, and the attitude of the campus will be one of helpful co-operation. I expect to return as soon as it is possible, and in the meantime Mrs. Waterman will be in the office to cooperate with the executive council."

SQUAD DEPARTS PREPARED FOR GOPHER BATTLE

Hawkeyes Work All Week On Forward Pass Defense

LEAVE ON SPECIAL

Men Seem Confident Of Making it Four in A Row

Iowa's football squad left last night for Minnesota on the football special. The squad had special pullmans and no one was allowed to disturb the players. The special will arrive in Minneapolis this morning, and the Iowa crowd will flock to the West hotel which will be the Iowa headquarters. All of the 400 tickets that were sent to Iowa City have been sold, and the athletic office last night, was selling tickets that have to be secured at the West Hotel in Minneapolis. A larger crowd than was anticipated at first is going and the railroad has had to increase the number of cars. At least 600 people have made reservations or purchased tickets.

The names and numbers of the football players who will probably play today are: A. Devine, 1; G. Devine, 2; Locke, 3; Shuttleworth, 3; Miller, 4; Minick, 16; Mead, 15; Kriz, 13; Heldt, 14; Kadseky, 11; G. Thompson, 18; Anderson, 37; Seiling, 5; White, 6; Macrae, 7; Cotton, 8; Barrett, 9; Moldenhauer, 19; Harding, 25; Boydson, 26; Smith, 29; Lindsay, 40; F. Slater, 41; Hunter, 42; Belding, 43. Others who are being taken along as reserves are: James, Farr, Loverin, Kenney, and Jentoff.

Perfect Pass Defense

Last night saw the final practice before the Minnesota game on Iowa field. Most of the evening was spent in perfecting the varsity defense against passes. The varsity has been weak on stopping passes all season and the last week's work has seen little improvement. The freshmen, who were using Minnesota passes, got away with several last night until Coach Howard H. Jones called the varsity backs together and devised another means of stopping the passes. There seemed to be freshmen receivers who could get down the field without being covered. If Minnesota scores on Iowa, which seems improbable, it will be by means of the forward pass. The new method of breaking up passes that was tried last night may do the work it is intended to do, but the Iowa backs will have to be more on the alert than they have been in the past.

Attitude is Good

The attitude of the whole team is better than it has been at any time this season, except before the Illinois game, and each man is going to play tomorrow to make Minnesota acknowledge that Iowa has a football team. Slater is just waiting to show the Minnesota players whether he is slow or not. The writer who said that the Duke was slow has never seen him going down under a punt, or tackling a runner who is trying to gain around the other side of the line. The line is going to show the Gophers that the backs can gain because the line is going to open holes for them. Minnesota will find that Aubrey Devine cannot be stopped by any ordinary defense. There is more fight in the team today than there has ever been.

Iowa May Use Passes

While Iowa may be weak on defense against the pass, it has a few passes of its own that will probably be used today. In all the games played up to date there has been little need for using the pass, but the Iowa team has been practicing on them all season, and has payed special attention to the pass during the past week.

During the years that Iowa and Minnesota have played football, the victories have been with Minnesota in eleven of the fourteen meetings that have occurred. Until 1918 Iowa had never won a game against Minnesota, but had been beaten by some large scores, such as 75 to 0; 67 to 0; and 56 to 7.

FORGET IT

The thing for us to do on Iowa campus today is to forget that there is a game at Minnesota; if some person tries to tell you there is, tell him he is wrong.

For those who took the special train to Minneapolis last night the game is on Northrop field, but for those of us who were left behind to clean up the routine business of the week-end, the game will be played in the men's gymnasium. Our men will be there on the floor, we will cheer them individually and collectively, we will watch the ball as it teases itself over the field, and the man who insists that the game is at Minnesota will simply be mistaken.

We sent a fairly good representation to Minnesota last night to see the game there and they will win it if we win the one here. Iowa fights at both ends of the rainbow.

A FEW YEARS BACK

The following editorial, entitled "Words", was published in "the first issue of our paper the representative organ of our institution, The University Reporter". This paper was printed monthly and the first issue carries the date of October, 1868. The topic shows that writers of that early date did not steer away from serious and uplifting thoughts. The editorial reads as follows:

Words are little things, but when connected and spoken by common tongues or recorded on history's pages they may become mighty.

As our examples may cast light or shadow for many years and we behold their effect so our words may echo and re-echo forever through the corridor of ages.

We believe that "words fitly spoken" will have their influence endless, on some one, and will be returned with blessings on their author both now and in the future. But how will it be with words unfitly spoken? Certainly their influence will not cease as long as the coils of time continue to run. They will not return to their author with blessings but with curses. G.

THE CAMPUS BATTLEFIELD

We are in the throes of another bloodless revolution. The extremist rebels appear on the campus in sweaters and army pants, while the old-line conservatives stand pat on the platform of the unsullied white shirt and the knife-edge crease of the trousers. Then there is the large class of middle-of-the-roaders, who cast a contemptuous eye alike on both extremes. Their uniform is the flannel shirt and the semi-creased nether garment.

The battle rages hotly. Despite every effort of the conservatives, the revolutionary movement gains headway. Flannel shirts are dug up in every closet and forced into service. The rebels, it would seem, have an endless supply of munitions. But so have the conservatives who are prepared for a war of endurance. Their guns, however, must be returned frequently to the shop, while those of their opponents are good for long continuous service.

So it goes; neither side has much the advantage in point of equipment. The war resolves itself into a question of leadership and endurance. It promises to be long and bitter, and may the righteous cause triumph!—Cornell Daily Sun.

WRESTLING CLASSES TO BEGIN WORK MONDAY

Classes in wrestling will begin Monday, November 7, according to Ernest G. Schroeder, director of physical education for men. At that time men in both the freshman and sophomore classes will be given an opportunity to go into the wrestling classes instead of remaining in physical education classes.

Those who will try out for the wrestling team will be given instruction by Mike Howard, the new wrestling coach, from 4 to 6 o'clock five times a week. It will not be possible to give individual instruction to men in the wrestling classes every day because of the great number which have signified their intention of entering those classes. However efforts will be made to give individual instruction whenever possible.

Since the wrestling team last year placed so high in the conference, and since indications point to a very strong team this year, wrestling has interested many students this year. Last year was the first a prominent wrestler was chosen wrestling coach, and the sport immediately gained favor with the students. This year another prominent wrestler has charge of the squad and already more than forty men have signed up for the course.

WISCONSIN STUDENTS WASTE NO TIME IN PROF. YOUNG'S CLASSES

Students of English at the University of Wisconsin consider the day well spent when they are able to attend a class conducted by the chairman of the English department, Karl Young. An Iowan reporter had the privilege of being present at one of the professor's classes. The bell rang, and the students flocked to their seats. The door opened quietly, and the instructor entered. The atmosphere of the room changed quickly from a soft buzz to absolute stillness. With a dignified tread, the tall, broad-shouldered man crossed to the desk, opened his class book, and smiled indulgently at his class. All eyes were involuntarily turned to the front of the room.

Miss Anderson, Miss Ashford"—the professor was calling roll. His soft voice went rambling pleasantly down the list, but suddenly it was arrested by a rusty creak. A scared looking freshman peeked around the corner of the door. The grey head at the desk nodded admittance; the professor could be kind to "frosh." Had he not written "Freshman English" for their special benefit? He flecked an imaginary speck of dust off his sleeve and turned toward the copy of Carlyle's Essays which was lying on the desk beside him.

A fluffy little creature, who up to this time had been vigorously powdering her nose, was the first to rise and attempt to recite. "Had she gotten the central idea of the essay?" "Why, she couldn't say exactly. But then Carlyle was rather difficult, didn't he think?" Mr. Young smiled, and there is such a wealth of meaning in his smile. Faintly amused and yet in a kindly manner, he endeavored to make the young thing think. It seemed a physical impossibility, however, and he finally abandoned the attempt and heeded to the wild wavings of a gentleman who was sitting on his backbone. With a flourish of gestures, this gentleman went into a rapid dissertation on the beautiful technique of this particular essay.

"And the central idea, Mr. Johnson? politely inquired the learned instructor. The victim floundered and gave up.

A more sensible student arose; the discussion became more intelligent. As more reasonable ideas were put before the class, the instructor warmed to his subject. Gentle hints and clever side remarks turned the talk into interesting channels. Mr. Young seemed like a magician swaying the audience here and there with the entertaining stream of his talk. Those who had gone without breakfast forgot it. Those who had danced all night forgot that. Those who had been watching the fly on the window forgot that. The whole room held magnetically by the keen brown eyes of the speaker.

But suddenly a bell rang; the spell was broken. The reporter rose with the rest of the students, feeling well repaid for climbing "the hill. He little thought, however, that he would soon have the opportunity to again hear Professor Young at his own University of Iowa on November 7.

FUNERAL HELD FOR DEAN EMERITA OF TEXAS UNIVERSITY

Austin, Tex.—"To my friends, loving greetings. The work was new, hard, and the times bewildered me. The reward has come—great, inspiring, eternal." Such would be the message of Mrs. Helen Marr Kirby, dean emerita of the University, if it were not possible for her to speak to the many thousands of students, alumni, and faculty of the University who are grieving at her death, Dr. W. D. Bradfield of Dallas stated at the funeral for Mrs. Kirby on Sunday afternoon. The message is one which Mrs. Kirby sent to the thousands of ex-students who in 1919 sent her their message of affection and respect.

The funeral services were held in the girls' study hall in the Main Building where for many years Mrs. Kirby had her office. Here hundreds of University students, faculty members and Austin citizens gathered at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon to pay homage to "the most beloved figure in the life of the University of Texas," using the words of President R. E. Vinson in reference to Mrs. Kirby.—Daily Texan.

Arrangements are in progress for a second program to be given at the Oakdale sanitarium following the entertainment last Thursday evening, in charge of the social service department of the Y. W. C. A.

Entertainment at the sanitarium will be given every two weeks, on Thursday evening from six to seven according to the present plans of the Oakdale program committee of the social service department. This committee includes Marcia Norton A4 of Fremont, Helen Johnson A4 of Des Moines, Marie Dayton A4 of Iowa City, Irene Wallace A2 of Council Bluffs, and Josephine Cochran A4 of Red Oak.

The musical program of Thursday consisted of a piano selection by Esther Fulton A2 of Audubon, several numbers on the violin by Carl Lohman M2 of Burlington, and a vocal solo by Winsor Cray A3 of Grundy Center. Short plays, fancy dancing and readings will be arranged for later entertainments.

Literary Mixer

A general mixer for members of all men's and women's literary societies will be held at the Women's Gymnasium Wednesday, November 9, at 7:15 p. m. The program will include a piano solo by Margaret Starbuck A3 of Iowa City, Erodolphian, and a play, "Suppressed Desires" presented by Marion H. Smith G of Independence, Athena, Lillian Lawler G of Pittsburgh, Penn., Athena, and George Hurley A3 of Ottosen, Philomathean.

Following the program, refreshments will be served, and the rest of the meeting will be devoted to informal entertainment, the purpose of the mixer being to give the members of the different literary societies an opportunity to become acquainted in a social way.

The men's and women's forensics councils are putting on this entertainment through the following committees: committee for women's societies, Eleanor Williams A4 of Clear Lake, Erodolphian, chairman; Flossie Memler A4 of Iowa City, Hamlin Garland, and Gertrude Klauer A3 of Akron, Whitby; committee for men's societies, Ralph McLaughlin A3 of Newton, Zetaganath, chairman; J. ### UNCLE SAM MEETS WITH TROUBLE IN FINDING STUDENTS

More than half of the students at the University fail to register their new addresses at the post office upon taking up their residence here, according to information given out at the Iowa City post office.

A great many letters are necessarily returned to the senders for the correct address. Letters may be sent to the University again and again, the sender knowing that the student is in attendance here, but unless the student has registered his proper address the letters must always be returned to the sender, or, in instances where there are no return addresses on the letters, sent to the dead-letter office.

An average of about 5000 letters a day is received for the University students, making the daily distribution approximate an average of one for each student. About 200 special deliveries are received each day for the students, but Sunday love letters interfere with a far greater number than 200 Sunday morning sessions of late-sleeping.

It is found that students are loathe to trust their communications to postal cards, preferring the greater share of them to go "under cover". Postal cards are used a great deal, however, in sending out reports of athletic games and such other more important events when it will take too long to write a letter.

The weekly invasion of laundry bags begins about Thursday, and they keep flowing into the post office until Saturday. The outflow begins Monday morning. The bulk and great number of laundry bags is taken care of by additional help which is employed to relieve the congestion and which handles the laundry bags by truck.

CHICAGO TO HONOR FOCH

Will Confer Honorary LL. D. Degree at Services Tomorrow

Chicago, Ill.—Marshal Ferdinand Foch will receive an honorary doctorate of laws at a special convocation during his brief visit to the University Saturday morning, according to an announcement from the president's office yesterday.

The marshal is expected to enter the quadrangles at 10:30 at 58th St. and Woodlawn Ave., where his automobile will be met by a military guard of undergraduate ex-service men and a troop of 32 mounts from the University field artillery unit, and escorted around the circle, through Hull gate, and east on 57th St. to Mitchell tower. His arrival will be greeted by a salute of 19 guns by the Military science department.

Visiting army and navy officers of high rank, among them Capt. Wirtsbach, commandant at Great Lakes Naval Training Station, will accompany Marshal Foch during his short stay here, which will terminate at or before 11:15.

President Harry Pratt Judson will probably officiate at the convocation, to which many distinguished guests have been invited. Archbishop Mundelein, in view of his inability to be present in person, will appoint an official representative to attend this ceremony.

Admission will be by invitation of the president's office. Professors, associate professors and their wives have been invited to represent the University faculty, with the aides, marshalls, undergraduate council and editorial board of The Daily Maroon and undergraduate council body.—The Daily Maroon.

EXTENSION DIVISION HAS MOVED TO NEW LOCATION

The extension division of the University has moved to its new location in the building one door north of the Y. M. C. A. The building was purchased for the purpose of accommodating the extension division. This move was made necessary because of the repairs now being made on the Old Capitol building.

On the first floor of the extension division building Mr. O. E. Klingaman, director, will have his office. The office of correspondence study under the direction of Miss Helen Williams will also be in the front of the building on the first floor. The offices of Miss Louise Cottrell, Mrs. Max Mayer, social welfare workers for the extension division, and Lola G. Yerkes the follow up nurse for the children's hospital will have their offices in the rear of the building on the first floor.

The front room on the second floor will be occupied by the stenographers. The middle room will be occupied by Harry A. Greene and Don Rogers who are engaged in educational research. The second room on the second floor will be occupied by Prof. Earl L. Waterman of the public health educational service, also Miss Vera Darling working with social hygiene. The back room on the second floor will be occupied by Prof. W. F. Bristol who has charge of business research. The extension division will also use the basement underneath the University Book Store in the Dey Building, which will be used for a store room and general mailing room.

FRIVOL OUT WEDNESDAY

Pessimist Number Promises a New and Distinctive Form of Humor

Mark Antony, when he said "If you have tears, prepare to shed them now" had nothing on the Pessimist Number of Frivol which will appear on the campus Wednesday morning, November 9.

"Read it and Weep" or "Watch Our Tears Flow For Twenty Five Cents" when the members of O. I. C. will sell Frivol in the University buildings Wednesday. Those who have seen, and read advance copies of the publication say that it contains a very distinctive form of humor, far different from any which have so far been issued.

The cover of the Pessimist Number will be of three colors and the art work contained in the magazine is of a superior nature, according to those who have it in charge.

IT ISN'T PLAIN AS TO WHETHER IT IS PLANES OR PLAINS

Passing students, learned professors, printers and various other passers-by would prefer that window cards should announce that Professor Homer R. Dill will inform the people about his hunting antelopes on the Wyoming plains rather than on the Wyoming planes.

Professor Dill, however, insists that his lecture will be more properly dealing with planes than plains and the University editor still maintains that window cards with the President's signature may suffer no misspelling. Serious persons saw fit to correct copy in ink on the cards so that the University will suffer no disgrace from an advertisement of its illiteracy.

The matter is still unplain, but it is to be hoped that when Professor Dill lectures on his little expedition that he will make it plain as to whether he is speaking of planes or just plain plains.

BLEACHERS FOR NEW ARMORY WILL HOLD 5,000 SPECTATORS

The work of finishing the inside rooms in the new armory is being rushed to enable the military department to move across the river before the end of the month, according to Lieut. Col. Morton C. Mumma, head of the military department.

A sidewalk eight feet wide now being constructed, will connect the armory with pavement already in. Cadets going to drill and spectators at the winter basketball games need not get muddy feet on the way to the new armory.

The plans of the athletic department to hold basketball games in the new armory are progressing satisfactorily according to Coach James N. Ashmore. The bleachers have arrived which will accommodate approximately 5,000 people at the games and the basketball floor will be completed in plenty of time before the first game.

The added distance to the new armory which must be traversed in order to get to a basketball game at 7:30 o'clock is more than compensated by the fact that the spectators will be assured of a satisfactory seat even if they aren't among the first few hundred to arrive. Last year, owing to the decidedly inadequate space in the men's gymnasium the crowd began to come about six o'clock and long before the game was scheduled to begin the bleachers were filled, consequently it was a case of either miss your dinner or miss the game.

NO CHANCE FOR A TEACHER HERE

"I know the teacher." From the back of the room a lively seventh grader piped up as the experimental teacher from an education class in the University walked in to take the class in physiology at the city Junior high school.

The subject for the day was the heart, and before the class was in session five minutes, a dozen voices were shrilling in stage whispers, "Oncet I saw—", and "Teacher, is this so?" Finally one caught the general attention. "Oncet there was a lady that was buried alive for two whole days, and a dog kept diggin' and diggin' at her grave. Y' know, dogs they have awful good hearin' and smellin' an' when folks finally dug her up, her nails and hair was all tore off tryin' to get out". Then from the front row, Teacher, was she in a transit", and "Teacher, ain't that so?"

And before the young lady could explain, Ikey was telling how people turned blue when they died, and how his brother's ears turned purple. Then Mary wanted to know if when a blood vessel broke, people's eyes would turn black.

Then Jim began to tell about a lady who came across the ocean on a steamer, and how she said when people died, if you were in third class, they boosted you overboard, and if you were in second class they wrapped you up and shoved you over, but if you were in first class, they put you in a box and brought you the rest of the way.

The experimental teacher dismissed the class one minute before time was up.

CORNELL STUDENTS START MOVEMENT FOR DRESS ECONOMY

Ithica, N. Y.—A movement for the wearing of old clothes by students at Cornell has been set in motion, and is daily gaining more pronounced support from undergraduates. The drive was originated several days ago by the members of the Varsity football and track squads, and is designated to create a standard of greater informality in dress on the campus.

Those behind the drive have been influenced largely by the stand taken by the students of most of the other large universities, including Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Dartmouth, who have been in the habit of wearing woolen shirts and sweaters because of the democratic aspect and the greater economy. Several of the visitors from Hanover to the Dartmouth game were heard to question whether Cornellians had dressed up on purpose to greet them.

It is hoped that the agitation will bring permanent results, rather than to prove a short-lived fad, as was the movement two years ago to encourage seniors to wear corduroy trousers. An effort will be made to reach all the fraternities, clubs and the Independent Association, many of whom have already signified their intention of adopting the custom by donning more rustic attire.—Cornell Daily Sun.

TAG DAY AT AMES RAISES BAND MONEY

Ames, Iowa—As the results of tag day came in last night it became evident that sufficient funds had been raised to send a 75-piece band to the Drake game and the A-M-E-S quartet to St. Louis as had been planned by the Cardinal Guild. A total of $325, exactly the sum which it had been estimated would be needed was the student's body contribution.

Thirty-three national and local fraternities pledged $165 before the drive opened on the campus, practically insuring the amount needed to send the band to Des Moines, Nov. 5. The balance and $125, the sum required to send the quartet, was forthcoming from the rest of the students yesterday.

The sororities and halls were largely responsible for the success of the campaign. Members of these organizations conducted the sale on the campus and turned in a considerable portion of the total.

This support on the part of the students here will provide backing for the team at the only two remaining out-of-town games of the year.—Iowa State Student.

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT HAS BUSY WEEK

Evanston, Ill.—Is a college president a sort of a myth, or is he a really human person actually doing things? And if he really does things what are they? Students in their busy round of daily duties imagine that they are about the busiest people in the world, but just listen to what President Scott is going to do this week, and then decide for yourself whether or not it is an easy job.

He will give a short address tonight at the Hamilton club in honor of Dr. William H. Agnew, the new president of Loyola university. Thursday he will be present at the inauguration of President Moore, of Lake Forest university, and will attend a banquet in his honor. On the 4th and 5th, President Scott will go to Columbia, Mo., to attend the conference of the Association of American universities and on the evening of the 5th, he will address the St. Louis alumni of Northwestern university in St. Louis. On the return trip he will address the men of Toledo university at Toledo, Ohio.—Daily Northwestern.

NO LIGHTING SYSTEM IN LIBRARY OF CALIFORNIA UNIVERSITY IN NINETIES

Berkeley, Calif.—It would be difficult to imagine, in our present routine of campus life, a schedule in which none of our evenings would be spent in the Library. Before the year 1896, this condition actually existed in the University. Bacon hall, which was the old Library, opened at 8 o'clock in the morning and closed at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. This custom was due to the regulations of necessity; for there was no lighting system in Bacon hall at that time.

This early closing worked great hardships upon the underclassmen of that day. For what excuse could the wayward freshman or sophomore have given to leave the house after dinner? Either he was forced to stay in or else sneak out via the fire-escape or back window. From such books as "At Good Old Siwash" and "College Nights" the latter course seems much more probable. For all stories agree upon the riot and havoc caused by "college boys" after dark.

BARE FOOTED THIEF STEALS FROM TEXAS UNIVERSITY GROCERY

Austin, Tex. — Sometime during the early hours of morning, a midnight visitor quietly lifted the latch of a side window of the University Cash Grocery Store, and proceeded to help himself to the candy and cake counter. The so-called burglar seems to have entered the store solely for this purpose as everything else was untouched. The intrusion was not discovered until the store was opened early Monday morning. Had not the burglar been so careless as to enter the window under which sacks of flour were stacked, and thus acquire a white coating to his bare feet, leaving his footprints plainly stamped upon the floor, his entrance would probably not have been detected. But, as it is, the preserved footprints of the bare footed burglar are the only clew which can now be found and it is rumored that the "Cinderella method" may be used for the detection of the intruder.

Illinois Has Easy Game

Illinois will have an easy time this week, as they play De Pauw, which will not offer much for the Illinois team to beat. Zuppke has had a little hard luck this year, and with a week more in which to prepare for the rest of the season, will probably develop something good out of his material. Illinois has suffered enough for one season, and they are expected to make it interesting for the rest of the year.
