HEP-ZET PLAY GOES OVER TO PLEASED CROWD

"Admirable Crichton" Is Featured By Work of Marjorie Mullane

PLAY APPEARS TWICE

McNally, Martinson, and Altman Interpret Barrie's Play Excellently

From the moment that the curtain rose on the scene in the home of Lord Loam when he had assembled his household for a "warming" for the servants, until the last curtain when Crichton, the butler, told Lady Mary that he had not lost and that he would play the game, the audience was held by the excellence in quality of work and talent displayed in the presentation of James M. Barrie's comedy, "The Admirable Crichton," given in the University theater last night and Wednesday by the Hesperian and Zetaganian literary societies.

The leads in the production were played with unusual ability. Marjorie Mullane A3 of Des Moines as Lady Mary portrayed her role with an art and finish that made her character stand out in the play. Her consistent dignity and haughty disdain in the first two acts were well in harmony with her character portrayal.

Miss Langworthy Pleases
The contrast between these characteristics and that of her more human and lovable traits in the third and fourth acts, displayed her versatile power of characterization. "The Admirable Crichton," played by Ben F. Martinson L2 of Lyons, was depicted with skill that made his personality dominate and directly influence the other characters as a man whom all respected and depended upon.

"Tweeny," played by Helen Langworth A4 of Massena, the little kitchen drudge, was the only real character role in the play. Her desire to do well and become educated for Crichton's sake was very appealing. The instant that she came on the stage with her unusual facial contortions and vacant stare the audience responded heartily. Marjorie Altman A3 of Livermore as Lady Brocklehurst, depicted the part of a gossipy old lady. Lord Loam and his daughters, Lady Catherine and Lady Agatha played as their station in life suggested. All of the cast played together in a consistent and harmonious manner, which was due to their co-operation with the director, Professor E. H. Lauer, who has coached the Hep-Zet plays for the last four years.

Lighting Effects Realistic
Settings for this production were particularly attractive and fitting. The cycloramic drop for the island was most realistic with its ocean lapping up on the sandy beach with the tall, graceful palms bordering. The interior of the cabin was also picturesque and natural. The lighting effects gave the desired atmosphere as night fell on the lonely island infested with wild animals. As night fell the palm trees seemed to stand away on the painted canvas and take definite form as the lighting was controlled.

The production was under the management of H. H. Mott of Iowa City; publicity, H. H. Ofelt of Burlington; stage manager, M. M. Piper A2 of Iowa City; manager of the ticket sale, W. E. Smith S3 of New Hampton.

Kendrie Leads Orchestra
Music before the play was furnished by the University theater orchestra under the direction of Professor F. E. Kendrie.

UNIVERSITY TO MEET THE TEAM

Campus Organizations Avow Intentions of Being at Station Sunday

A large crowd will meet the team when they return from Northwestern Sunday morning, according to investigations made for the purpose of finding out how many of the campus organizations are back of the plan of meeting the team at the station when they return from the game.

The fraternities are in favor of the plan and will have a large part of their members at the station when the train pulls in. "The gang will be at the train Sunday and will do all they can to give the team a big welcome," said Shirley A. Clark A4 of Washington, president of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity. The other fraternities are equally enthusiastic and promise to have a large turnout.

Currier to be There
A considerable number of the sorority members are expected to be on hand to help make this reception the greatest event of its kind this year. Currier hall is also to be represented by a large delegation.

No Roughhouse Planned
According to Frank Thomson, president of the Quadrangle association, the men from the Quadrangle will attend the massmeeting Sunday. "All the fellows need is to know that there is to be a welcome for the team, and they will turn out without any urging."

The methods of celebrating victories that were employed in former days such as rushing theaters, breaking windows, and like manifestations of joy seem to have been discarded for somewhat saner types of celebration, as no movement of the old order has been discovered after investigation.

SPECIAL LEAVES TONIGHT

Bresnahan Reports Small Crowd Signed for Jaunt to Evanston

A special train to Northwestern is certain, according to a report from Coach George H. Bresnahan's office. For some time it was not definite whether a special train would be run or not. That the rates are a little higher than they were to Minnesota seems to be the main reason that students are slow in signing up, and although the necessary 125 have not signed as late as Thursday afternoon, Coach Bresnahan feels sure that he will have the required number and more when the time for departure comes.

Train Sure To Go
Yesterday the report was circulated that no special would be run, but that statement is untrue, according to the athletic board.

SATURDAY MARKS FINISH OF 1925'ERS GREEN CAP REGIME

Freshmen Await Returns of Northwestern Game to End Their Ridiculous Upholding of Tradition

Freshmen will be officially permitted to doff their green caps and appear once more in less spectacular headgear tomorrow. As the whistle blows to announce the ending of the Northwestern game at Evanston the "frosh" at Iowa may once more dust off their hats and caps and pack up the skull protectors for souvenirs. The emerald dome pieces were merely to be worn until the last of the football season which terminates in the Northwestern game.

No plans have been made to hold a public celebration or to have the freshmen build a bonfire of their green caps. This idea was tried last year but met with scant success because of the attachment the "frosh" had formed for their wall paper. Few members of the class appeared at the holocaust because of the high esteem they seemed to have for the green chapeaux as souvenirs of college days.

Caps Caused No Hardships

The freshmen are unanimous in their desire to once more don a less noticeable variety of head covering. The weather has on the whole treated the class of 1925 rather kindly in the matter. At least the student health department has not reported any cases of frozen ears or frost bitten scalps as a result of the abbreviated dome coverings. An unusual number of colds have been treated, however, especially among the freshmen, which probably owe their origin to this cause.

On the whole the "frosh" have supported the tradition very well. At times a laxity was displayed by the class, but it was mostly attributable to the lack of interest shown by the upperclassmen in enforcing the edict. After the matter was called to the attention of the fraternities and to the upperclassmen in general conditions improved immediately. No drastic measures had to be taken in any instance to force the freshmen to abide by the custom. Of course fraternity freshmen were paddled now and then for their laxity.

After Barney Dondore of Iowa City, president of the Howling 306, along with various class officers brought the matter to the attention of the class of 1925 very little laxity was displayed. In answer to the question "Are you going to wear your green caps the freshmen responded with a lusty "Yea ho," during a freshman lecture period.

Other Universities Strict

The upperclassmen at the University of Iowa have not been unreasonable in their demands on the freshmen. At many institutions where the distinctive headgear is in vogue the "frosh" are compelled to drop their books and place a finger upon the top of the cap when an upperclassman commands "button, freshman."

The tradition at Iowa owes its origin to a desire to foster better spirit among the freshmen and to substitute a definite custom to be complied with instead of resorting to hazing.

VESPER SPEAKER FOR NEXT SUNDAY

AMBROSE WHITE VERNON

VERNON USES BIBLICAL TOPIC

University Professors Know Vesper Speaker; Faith His Subject Sunday

Prof. Ambrose White Vernon of Carleton college, Northfield, Minn., who is to deliver the address at Vespers, Sunday, is one of the most widely-read men in the country on the subject of Biblical literature and history, according to several professors on the campus who have been associated with him at other institutions.

Prof. Arthur C. Bryngelson of the department of public speaking, who knew Professor Vernon at Carleton college, says of him that he is a clear thinker along all religious subjects and is a speaker of some note. Vernon is Professor-Praeceptor Prof. J. H. Dunlap says "Professor Vernon is not only well-dressed on topics of Biblical nature, but he has the added faculty of being a forceful speaker, as well."

Although at present Professor Vernon is conducting classes at Carleton college in biography, he has formerly taught at Dartmouth, Yale, Harvard, and Andover Theological seminary. While at Dartmouth he was professor of Biblical literature.

VARSITY ENDS LONG SEASON

Final Practice Sees Team Walk Over Seconds and Freshmen

When the squad was sent in last night after a fairly long scrimmage between the varsity and the second string, the football season ended as far as Iowa field is concerned, since the practice tomorrow will probably be a short one.

Every precaution was taken last night to have the team in good shape for the Northwestern game Saturday. The freshman second team, which has been working on Northwestern passes for the last two weeks, was brought over and pitted against the varsity, in order to prepare the first string against the open game that will probably be used against them by their opponents tomorrow. Many of the passes were successful until the varsity backs had doped out a defense against them.

Notre Dame Passes Used

The formations used by the freshmen last night are of the same type that Notre Dame used, as little protection is given the passer and many men are sent down the field in the expectation that at least one of them will get loose. It will be up to the Iowa linemen to rush the passer so that he cannot take time to pick out the man who may have dodged the secondary defense. With only one or two men to guard him the passer is the weakest point in this type of formation, and fast charging linemen can often prevent him from making accurate passes.

Chick Kirk Warns Team

"Northwestern is primed for Iowa," said "Chick" Kirk, captain of the 1908 Iowa football team, who is now living in Chicago, yesterday. "Not only do they intend to hold Iowa, but they have an idea that they can beat her. They believe that Iowa has not had enough hard games to keep the team in good condition, and that the Iowa varsity is coming to Northwestern in an over-confident frame of mind that will injure her morale if the going is hard during the first part of the game. They are in the best shape they have been this year and expect to play the best game they have played this season against Iowa Saturday."

Purple Prepares for Iowa

Northwestern has had two weeks to prepare for Iowa and has spent most of this time in shifting their team around so that the line will be strong enough to turn back the Iowa running attack. They have shifted some of their heaviest men to the center of the line. They are expected to be able to stop Locke's punting. Punter men have been placed in the tackle positions with the hope that they may be able

IOWA FIELD IS SCENE OF MASS MEETING TODAY

Howling 300 Urges All Women to be There, Too

TEAM GOES TONIGHT

Aubrey, Glen, Belding, and Duke to Appear for Last Time

The first massmeeting ever held on Iowa field will take place this afternoon at 4:30. The band will assemble at Whetstone's corner shortly before four-thirty. The west bleachers are to be filled first, according to Barney Dondore A3 of Iowa City, president of the Howling 300. The band will play a half-dozen selections, there will be lots of yells, and two or three good speakers.

"It will be the last massmeeting for the football season of 1921," declared Dondore, "and the last time for University students to show in a small measure their appreciation for what the team of 1921 has done for Iowa. All women are asked to turn out for this mass meeting."

Women Can See Team

There has been a noticeable absence of women this year at football practices, particularly so of late. This last mass meeting of the year will give all Iowa women a fine opportunity to see the team in action.

"This pep meeting will give Iowa's football squad a real chance to see Iowa support her team," said Dondore.

Last Practice For Stars

Colonel Morton C. Mumma in his speech at the massmeeting previous to the Iowa-Indiana conflict exhorted Iowa men and women to turn out every night to support them during practice. Today is the day to get out and see the greatest team Iowa has had for years in action.

Today's practice will be the last one for the squad this season. Aubrey Devine, Glenn Devine, Lester Belding and "Duke" Slater will don football togs for the last time on Iowa field. Tomorrow's game ends the fourth year of varsity football for Belding and "Duke", and the third year for Aubrey and Glenn. The opportunity of seeing this famous quartet in action should be a sufficient cause to bring every man and woman at Iowa down to Iowa field tomorrow evening.

Jones Approves Mass Meeting

The athletic authorities have given their whole-hearted approval of the plan for this first massmeeting on Iowa field. "It is a fine idea," said Coach Howard H. Jones, "to have the last massmeeting of the year on Iowa field. I am heartily in favor of it."

The coaches and athletic board endorse the massmeeting as it will give every one a chance to see the team in action, because the team will know that Iowa is backing them to a man when the whistle blows at Northwestern tomorrow, and finally, because of the fact that the squad does not leave until Friday night at 11 a day later than usual. The squad will need the best night's rest it can possibly receive, and if they were to be disturbed late Friday evening by a massmeeting before leaving there would be little or no chance to get the required amount of sleep.

There will be an abundant opportunity tonight to see practically the whole team which is to meet Yale next year. "Let's everyone turn out and send the team off after the last scalp to tuck away under the conference belt," urges the Howling 300.

FLORENCE INGHAM TO LEAD PRAYERS TODAY

Florence Ingham will lead the prayer meeting which will be held in room 116 liberal arts today at 4 p. m. The subject will be, "A Better Knowledge of the Religion, Custom and Habits of the People in Russia."

THE FINAL PUSH

The last mass meeting of the football season has been called for this afternoon on Iowa field. Iowa fans and enthusiasts will have an opportunity to give the final push to the spirit that has meant a successful season; they will cheer once more while the Old Gold team is in action on Iowa field, the band will play, and speeches will be made for the final generation of pep. Iowa has stood so far this year by a winning team and her mass meetings have indicated loyalty and enthusiasm throughout. This, the last of them all, should be the biggest and grandest and most spirited that the campus has known.

There is room on Iowa field for all of the students of the University and there seems to be no very good reason why a near approach to one hundred per cent of them should not be out to the final pep meeting. Come out for a final look at the team at work on Iowa field, give the men a final cheer, and give yourself a thrill sufficiently lasting to insure your buying an "I" tickets the first thing when you step onto the campus next fall.

THE GREEN CAP

It is not enough that the freshmen wear green caps.

It is not enough that a writer or a speaker know how to start and that he have something to write or say; he must also know how and when to conclude. In the matter of the green caps, we have struggled through the introduction and the body of the program for this season, leaving before us only proper and effective conclusion.

What disposition is to be made of the green caps? Students are asking this question; others of them are too indifferent to ask. Even the freshmen are uncertain on this aspect of the green cap idea. Such should not be the case.

If the green cap proposition is going to be what we have hoped it may prove to be, a tradition, we can not afford any uncertainty in a prosecution of the movement. The wind-up, the final push, the last big word, these are the things that are going to leave the good or the bad taste in our mouths when we consider a perpetuation of the plan next fall. Follow the advice offered in any profession: wind it up with a bang, make the last ball over a good one, have the last point the biggest of all, and don't mix paints in the final coating.

THE SHEEP AND THE GOATS

Dartmouth has a new plan to meet the perplexing problem of limited enrollment. The idea of separating the sheep from the goats is admirable, but just how to go about it is no easy task. As in the schemes advanced at Princeton last spring, the value of the scholar is recognized at once, for at Dartmouth "the man of exceptional scholastic ability will always be admitted without question". But from here on the problem loses its simplicity. Admit the scholars—a group, alas, none too numerous; what next.

The Princeton plans called for a complicated system of examination by alumni boards to determine a candidate's personality,—whatever that means. Dartmouth is at present pursuing the same will-o'-the-wisp, now known as "well rounded development on all sides". Instead of examining boards there are to be two elaborate certificates of "personal rating", one to be signed by the principle of the preparatory school, the other by "somebody actively connected with Dartmouth, either an undergraduate or recent alumnus". Every man will be thus hand picked, and enter the college sponsored by someone well acquainted with its traditions.

Possibly Dartmouth's new admission system will work perfectly. If so, many other colleges will certainly copy it, for few so far have been able to discover with much success how a candidate for a college degree may be ranked except by written examination. The chief difficulty lies in defining "personality" or "well-rounded development". What is it the prospective student must or must not have? To one man, the "prep" school graduate may appear a model youth of great promise, while another is likely to find his singularly stupid. To fancy that a certificate of rating will accurately pigeonhole a man, indicates a high degree of optimism if nothing else.

Another difficulty to be overcome is this: is it not the task of the college to develop "personality", to make him "well-rounded"? One often finds a man who leaves school distinctly second rate graduating from college in the first rank—to the credit of the college. What about these men? Limited enrollment is very much of a problem still. Dartmouth and the other colleges which are now seeking its solution are making exceedingly worth while experiments.—Harvard Crimson.

CONTRIBUTORS' COLUMN

Editor Daily Iowan:

There has been a great deal of comment lately by students upon the fact that the new University song book does not contain "On Iowa." This is to be regretted for there is certainly no other song which can compare with "On Iowa" when it comes to instilling the old Iowa fighting spirit into the hearts of Iowa men and women.

Members of Staff and Circle, the organization which is sponsoring the new song book, declare that the reason "On Iowa" does not appear is because the publisher, having a copyright on its publication, refused to allow it to be printed in the book unless he was paid a large royalty for its use, and the editors of the book felt that so large an expense could not be afforded. Consequently, because of the commercial interests of that firm, the best song in the University with the exception of "Old Gold", has been omitted from a book which is supposed to contain the representative songs of the University.

The blame can hardly fall upon Staff and Circle for failing to publish the song, and perhaps the publishers are entitled to realize a certain return on the publishing of a composition which has attained such a large popularity, but if the expense is going to be necessary every time it is desired to print even the words of "On Iowa", then certainly the time has come for the University to purchase or in some way secure the copyright for this popular and inspiring song. It is essentially a part of the University, and should be made the common property of every individual connected in any way with the Old Gold University. If there is no other way, would not public opinion be such that a campaign for popular subscriptions could secure for the students the ownership and the right of publishing "On Iowa" whenever desired? H. D. R.

Why doesn't the University maintain a skating rink?

Hundreds of students send home for their skates every year but by the time the skates arrive the snow has invariably covered the ice. A few of the more enthusiastic followers of the sport clear off a small area but this will not accommodate more than a couple of hundred people. Not only is this area too small but its surface is soon in such a poor condition that skating is next to impossible.

GRASS GROWS AND PROFS RAMBLE ON, WITH SEATS IN WINDOWS UNOCCUPIED

"No sitting in this window," the sign read, and after two months the campus couples are still spending the time between classes over a soda or on the front steps of "L. A." No longer does a titter ripple over the rooms on the lower floor of the liberal arts and natural science buildings. Professors ramble on in peace and only a lone fly buzzing in one corner of the pane can catch the wayward eye of a daydreaming student inside the classroom.

According to J. M. Fisk, superintendent of grounds and buildings, the rumor that the signs were put up to save the grass is false. Complaint after complaint had been launched by instructors about the thoughtlessness of the students who interrupted classes by loud laughter and talking outside the windows.

More signs than are necessary, he states, have been put up, since some of the windows are not outside classrooms, but the habit has been effectively broken. Only one window, strangely vacant, bears a sign which reads, "Only two allowed in this window." This is one of the south windows of the Iowan office, and it is shunned by young women and young men apparently because they fear publicity. But why did they ever sit in any windows, then?

IOWA AND INDIANA LED IN EQUAL STUDENT SUFFRAGE

Woman's suffrage was an early question in University history. A young lady of Indianapolis wrote an article in 1869 in which she noted with great pride that the Iowa and Indiana State universities extended equal privileges to the sons and daughters of their states. She treated with considerable scorn the idea that women should be excluded from the universities and colleges of the country, and cited the fact that "it is not good for man to be alone."

ENGINEERS THINK THE PURPLE EASY PICKINGS

The engineers have reverted to mathematics in their latest football sign with I-N W-Infinity. After having exhausted all other methods of finding sources for their signs they have come to the conclusion that after all mathematics gives the best results.

For the benefit of those who have a limited knowledge of simple mathematical formulas we might state that a constant integer divided by zero equals infinity, or in plain, everyday language something divided by nothing gives infinity or an unlimited number of points in the game Saturday with Northwestern. This sign will appear this morning for the last conference game of the season.

The engineers promise a sign that is a world beater if Iowa wins the conference championship this year.

LOMAX, LINDSEY AND ALTROCCHI TO APPEAR AT UNIVERSITY SOON

John A. Lomax and Vachel Lindsey, prominent American poets, and Rudolph Altrocchi, Italian professor at the University of Chicago will be here for University lectures before Christmas, and it is probable that Will Irwin, called the "ace of newspaper correspondence," will lecture here soon after the holidays, according to Prof. Benjamin F. Shambaugh, chairman of the University lecture committee.

John A. Lomax, who will be here Thursday, December 1, and who is author of "Cowboy Songs and Other Frontier Ballads", is known personally by Prof. Hardin Craig, head of the English department, Prof. Stephen H. Bush, head of the department of Romance languages, and Prof. Edwin F. Piper of the English department. Mr. Lomax was praised very highly by each of these men. Professor Craig said, "No one who has ever known him or heard him talk can ever forget him."

Lomax Good, Says Bush
"He has a delightful personality which appeals to everyone", said Professor Bush.

Professor Piper, who is a distinguished poet himself, said, "Mr. Lomax not only collected the words to the cowboy songs and folk ballads, but he collected the tunes also. I am hoping that he will sing some of his ballads when he is here."

Lindsey Likes Syncopation
Vachel Lindsey, who is noted for the "jazz music" of his ballads and his characterization of the black man in America, will be here Saturday, December 10.

Louis Untermeyer, author by "Modern American Poetry", in which he has some poems written by Professor Piper and Mr. Lindsey, writes, "Mr. Lindsey's ballads are an infectious blend of rhymes, ragtime, and religion. They give people (particularly when intoned aloud) the primitive joy in syncopated sound that is the very base of song".

Clapp to Lead Music
Professor Piper said, "Mr. Lindsey reads very interestingly and he makes his listeners take a part."

Tuesday, December 6 Rudolph Altrocchi will give a lecture, "The Message of Dante", in connection with the Dante program on that date. This is the six-hundredth anniversary of Dante's death and most of the universities and colleges are having programs in memory of Dante. At this program, Prof. Philip G. Clapp, head of the department of music, will have charge of the music which will all be in Italian.

ONLY 204 STUDENTS OF OUR 5,000 DRAW CENTRAL DESK BOOKS

Two hundred and four students is the average number of University students who withdraw books daily from the central desk in the general library of the University. This estimate is based on the daily record of the central desk which for the first time is keeping track of the number of students who make use of library books which could be loaned for circulation.

From October 1 to 31 inclusive, the total number of books withdrawn from the central desk was 6328. This figure of course excludes the number of books drawn from the reserve desk in the main reading room and in the museum. 2917 books of the total number were loaned for a period of two weeks; the rest, 3401 books were drawn from the central desk for use only in the main reading room.

Medics Stay at Home

According to the central desk record, the greatest bulk of the books loaned or drawn were literary works, a fact which could be accounted by the great number of freshmen students who have many outside readings to do. In general the students who borrow or withdraw books from the central desk are from the college of liberal arts. This could be accounted again by the distribution of books of the professional kind among the different colleges and departments of the University.

I. C. The women's pep organization is fostering these sings in the hope to create a better song spirit. The meetings will be held in the natural science or liberal arts auditoriums. Everyone is asked to bring the Iowa song books since the Iowa songs will be the first ones to be learned. According to Miss Spiers there will be a song contest later in the year, probably in March for the purpose of obtaining a good Iowa song to compare with "Loyalty to Illinois". While the words of Old Gold are original the music is not. It is desired in this new song that both the words and music be original.

Frances E. Johnstone A2 of Danville will help in the leading and Madeline E. Donnelly A2 of Mason City will play the piano.

"We want to create a better music spirit on the campus and get people acquainted with Iowa songs. We want to make people sing Iowa songs not only here but outside," Miss Spiers said.

The State University of Iowa announced in 1870 that courses of one year of three terms each were offered in the law and in the medical departments.

FRATS WILL SWIM FOR PRIZES; ACACIA CUP AWARD DELAYED

Plans for an inter-fraternity swimming meet which will be held in the men's gymnasium December 10 were passed upon by the delegates of the Inter-fraternity Conference who met at the Phi Kappa Sigma house last evening. The meet will be open to all fraternities that are members of the Conference, and will consist of six different events.

Silver cups will be awarded to the fraternities winning first, second and third places in the meet. Points will count 5-3-2-1 for first, second, third and fourth places respectively in each event. Points in the 160-yard relay race will count 7-5-3-2. The purpose of the meet will be to enable the swimming coach of the University to discover new material, and therefore men who have won the "I" or "I-S" in swimming will be barred from competition in the meet. Fraternities may make arrangements with Coach Armbruster for the use of the swimming pool if their men wish to practice.

Each Frat To Enter Pair
The order of the events in the swimming meet will be as follows: 160-yard relay, fancy diving contest, 40-yard dash, 100-yard breast stroke, plunge for distance, 100-yard swim, easy style.

Each fraternity will be allowed to enter two men in each event. The names of more than two entries will be allowed to be placed upon the entry blanks in each event, but only two men will be allowed to compete.

Acacia Cup Presentation Postponed
Because of the absence of President W. A. Jessup from the city, formal presentation of the scholarship cup to the Acacia fraternity was postponed until the next meeting of the fraternity.

Net Tournaments Starts Soon
Mr. E. G. Schroeder, head of the department of physical education, submitted plans to the Conference delegates for an inter-fraternity basketball tournament which will probably commence the first week in December. The tournament will be open to all members of the Conference. A silver trophy cup will be awarded to the winner of the meet. Games will be held in the men's and women's gymnasium and probably in the new armory. A committee was appointed to decide upon further details.

Fred A. Steiner L2 of Corydon, was elected secretary of the Conference to succeed James Van Epps A3 of Clinton, who resigned.

HOME BREW FLOWS INTO CHEMISTRY LAB FOR EXPERT ADVICE

The chemistry department of the University of Iowa has become an important cog in the machinery of the so-called maker of home brew. Not that the department of chemistry has been devoting its time to the development of formulas in regards to the most proper procedure in home brew manufacture, nor has it found a new style of manufacture whereby the manufactured articles will pass the requirements of the Volstead act and still possess the necessary kick.

No, the department has only been a factor in determining the nature, character and extent of alcohol, poison and other constituents of the beverages which have been sent in to be analyzed.

Samples Pour In
According to Dean Teeters of the college of pharmacy, since the Volstead act went into effect numerous samples have been sent in daily for analysis. Samples of home brew, "bottled in the bond," hair tonic, and numerous patents have been sent in for examination. These samples are then tested in order that the maker or prospective consumer may be certain that what he has made or purchased is really that which he has for so long sought. Samples of nearly every type of home brew have been analyzed and their contents carefully noted. Amateur distillers from all portions of the state have called upon this department within the past months. Most of the samples sent in have been made from corn, wheat, barley, rye, molasses and numerous other substances which figure prominently in their manufacture.

Poison a Favorite Ingredient
That many of the manufactures have become quite proficient in the art is shown by the fact that the alcohol content of these samples ranged from 3 percent to 60 percent. Also, many of these beverages contained very little alcohol. Many of these samples also contained large quantities of fusel oil, which is a very poisonous substance.

Samples Are Stingy
Most of the samples have been some form of home made whiskey, although many forms of beer, wines, patent medicines, lemon extracts, and various cures for different ailments have also been sent to the chemistry department for analysis. "It would take a large sized building to hold all of the samples sent in for analysis," said Dean Teeters. "I have already received as much as a whole keg of liquid at one time to be analyzed, but most of the senders are quite conservative and send only a small sample."

ANNUAL PRAYER WEEK OF Y. W. C. A. WILL END TODAY

Today will mark the culmination of the annual prayer week of the Y. W. C. A. Flossie Memler A4 of Iowa City chairman of the committee in charge of the prayer services said, "The meetings have been growing in interest and attendance. The spirit of co-operation between the groups has been splendid. The interest taken in these meetings which have extended from November 13-18 has been much greater than that evidenced last year."

All the Y. W. C. A. organizations throughout the world are meeting this week in prayer for the women of all lands.

Sunday "The Words Y. W. C. A." were discussed by Rose Durst A4 of Iowa City, Monday "The Church and the Community in Africa" was talked upon by Ruth Reeder A3 of Iowa City, "The Light of the World on Japan" was the topic of discussion led by Nellie Riepe A3 of Burlington. "The New Woman of India" was the subject of the Wednesday prayer service in charge of Florence Liebke A4 of Muscatine. The topic for the Thursday service was "Argentina." That meeting was in charge of Lillian Detthoff A4 of Muscatine. The last service will be in charge of Florence Ingham A4 Afton who will speak on "Better Knowledge of Religion and Customs and Habits of the People of Russia."

The co-operation of the sororities and other campus organizations has made possible the success of this week of prayer.

MORRISON IS FIRST PRESIDENT OF NEW R. O. T. C. OFFICERS

Francis V. Morrison S4 of Sioux City is the first president of the newly organized Officers' Club, as a result of the ballots cast in the special meeting held last evening for the purpose of election of officers. Roy K. Forney A4 of Tabor was elected vice-president, Kenneth E. Griffin A3 of Iowa City, secretary, and Capt. Michael O'Keefe, U. S. A. Ret., executive officer and adjutant of the University of Iowa R. O. T. C. unit, was elected treasurer.

At this same meeting twenty-six more members of the cadet regiment and the military staff affixed their signatures to the constitution, thus signifying their intention to be recognized as charter members of the organization and bringing the total membership to seventy.

The second and third floors of the building leased by the F. B. Shiley company on Clinton street, two doors north of Whetstone's, have been selected as the club rooms of the new organization and the work of redecorating and furnishing will start immediately.

HOMECOMING INEXPENSIVE

Ensign Reports A Slight Deficit; Businessmen, Frats, Faculty and Others Spend Much

Prof. F. C. Ensign, chairman of the committee in charge of the Homecoming, has gathered a list of the resources which were at the disposal of the Homecoming committee together with the expenses incurred during Homecoming. The resources at the disposal of the Homecoming which were appropriated by the University and by the staff of instruction and administration amounted to a total of $449.90.

In addition to this the Commercial club appropriated $150, but actually spent more than $160. This money was spent by the Commercial club for the purpose of decorations about the city. Several hundred dollars were spent by business houses, who thus supplemented the general decorations of the Commercial club.

The entire cost of Homecoming can not be accurately ascertained, as the various organizations about the campus and the business men of Iowa City expended considerable sums individually, for which no accounting can be made. The pageant, for example, while actually costing the Homecoming committee only $75.97, must have represented an expenditure of not less than a thousand dollars, probably considerably more, this being distributed among the sixty or seventy organizations that prepared floats for this exhibition.

In the report submitted by the Homecoming committee the expenditures are summarized as follows: department and grounds, $216.33; corn monument, $41.20; pageant, $75.97; Triangle club open house, $49.03; headquarters, $61.25; auto committee, $5.50; alumni office, $14.41; miscellaneous expenses, $2.66; making a total of $466.35.

As the resources were only $449.90 a deficit of $16.45 remained. This was made good by the University of Iowa Association and the "Iowa Alumnus."

BACKBOARDS ORDERED

Glass backboards for the basketball court in the new armory have been ordered installed and will be used on the floor where the Iowa basketball team will play its home games this winter. The glass boards in the men's gymnasium will remain in place on the practice court which will be used most of the time by the players.

Coach James N. Ashmore of the basketball team and Director Howard H. Jones have been named as a committee to arrange a schedule for the Hawkeye tossers who will go on a practice trip during the Christmas holidays.

PURPLE READY FOR JONESMEN

Teeth and Claws Sharpened to Trample Iowa's Champion Hopes

Evanston, Ill., November 16.—The Purple football warriors are being sent through the hardest series of practices of the year in preparation for the Iowa game here Saturday. Coach McDevitt has been conducting scrimmages between the freshmen who have been using Iowa plays and the varsity, with the result that the freshmen have been unable to gain at all consistently.

Northwestern students are backing the Purple to put up one of the best fights ever seen here against the Hawkeyes. Although the Northwestern eleven has not won a conference victory this season, they have been preparing for the Iowa game for two weeks, and are resolved to make the Hawkeyes work for every point they make.

Purple Fears Quartet

Iowa is coming to Northwestern with respect from every man on the team. The Purple knows the ability of the Devine brothers, Slater, Belding and Locke, and it is against these men that the Purple will have to play the best defense. It is not decided yet who will face the Hawkeyes Saturday, but the regular lineup will probably start the game.

Coach McDevitt who scouted the Iowa-Indiana game for the Purple last Saturday has been preparing a defense against the end runs of A. Devine, the long pass and short pass from A. Devine to G. Devine, and the line smashing of Locke, Iowa fullback. According to Coach McDevitt, the Iowa team is one of the best in the west this year, and it will take a good team to hold them, let alone beat them.

Will They Gain Ground?

The Purple mentor has been trying to perfect a defense that will hold the highly-touted line, and an offense that will be impossible for the Hawkeyes to stop. Several new passes have been added to the list, and with the rest of the plays, Northwestern should gain ground against the Iowa team.

No one is making any predictions in regard to the outcome of the game Saturday, but every member of the team will fight until the last whistle to stop the eleven that is now claiming the western championship. The Hawkeyes may be due for a surprise Saturday.

Preparations are being made to handle a very large crowd in spite of the Chicago-Wisconsin game at Stagg field Saturday afternoon, and it is thought that one of the largest crowds ever on the Northwestern field will see the game. The Hawkeyes will arrive here Saturday morning, probably on a special train which will be run from Iowa City.

ASHMORE CHANGES SYSTEM

Basket Men Dribble; Shimek at Guard; Frohwein Goes Well

Coach James N. Ashmore is using a complete change of basketball tactics in drilling the varsity this season. The old running style of attack used last year has been supplanted by an attack in which dribbling predominates.

On the offense, a player dribbles down the floor until he is covered by an opposing guard. He then executes a complete turn and passes the ball back to another player following. Coach Ashmore has a series of formations built around this style of play. When executed properly by the players against the seconds, the varsity firsts can always work around their opponents defense with ease.

Ashmore Changes Style Radically

When Coach Ashmore took charge of the varsity basketball squad in 1919 he adapted himself to the existing style of play which was in use at the time. Now he has devised an entirely new system of plays which look well in execution in the practice this season.

The shifting of Captain Shimek to the running guard position is another change that Coach Ashmore has made. The running guard performs in almost the same manner as the forwards. He works the ball down the floor with the forwards and gets many opportunities to shoot when the forwards are closely guarded.

By shifting Shimek to running guard Coach Ashmore can utilize his basket shooting ability as well as his excellent defense work.

Frohwein Scores

In the first part of the practice Coach Ashmore spent much of his time instructing Shimek, Frohwein and Lohman in some more new plays. Frohwein is in good working form and in the practice he dropped in a number of baskets. Kepler, Gordon and McGovney were also drilled in the same plays. Burgitt was later called to practice with the former men and Kelloway worked out with the latter group. Hurlburt, Hicks, Von Hoene, Fimmen and Emmert came in for their share of the practice during the afternoon. The teams were not scrimmaged.

IOWA'S STARS WILL NOT PLAY PROFESSIONAL BALL

There have been many rumors floating around the campus to the end that some of the star football players of this year's team have received offers from some of the professional football teams, and that at least one of them would play with a professional team next Sunday.

Such action on the part of any of the players would be a violation of a strict conference rule which states that "Members of teams participating in professional contests before graduation forfeit their letter and are recommended to their faculties for further discipline," and would lead to the loss of the "I" by the guilty man.

Iowa Stars Won't Play

The rumor that one of the Iowa players would play next Sunday was news to the man himself, for he had no intentions of playing, and moreover has already made plans that will find him spending Sunday in his home town. He was surprised to hear that he was supposed to play, and stated that even, if he had any intentions of playing professional football, he would not play two games without some rest between them. He knew nothing, however, about the conference ruling against the professional game, and was astonished by the heavy penalties imposed.

The conference has taken a strong stand against professional football on the grounds that any sport that is played for the money that can be made is harmful to athletics since it contributes nothing to aid the spirit of free competition. So strongly set are the law makers of the conference that they have made other rules against participating in professional football, so that if any member of an athletic department should play or officiate in such a game, he would probably lose his place.

LAST CHANCE TONIGHT

TO SEE

The FOUR HORSEMEN Of the APOCALYPSE

Adapted by June Mathis Photographed by John F. Selza

Norvelle of the department of speech. It takes the spectator on a little expedition down "throat lane" and shows an actual photographing of the voice instrument and the vocal cords in action, the different resonance chambers of the head, the movement of the larynx and the seemingly reckless actions of the human tongue. It behaves unusually while the speech instrument is in use.

Tongue Wagglers

One onlooker insisted that its actions were similar to a flame licking up a few drops of kerosene. A freshman who had evidently worked in a meat market saw a similarity in it to the actions manifested by a lately beheaded chicken.

Oh, That Jonah Feeling!

The camera apparently makes the trip down a man's throat, giving the audience a very realistic Jonah feeling. After the tongue is passed the resonance chambers of the head are noted. These chambers modulate and refine the sound which is produced by the vibration of the vocal cords when air is exhaled through them in the proper manner. The action of the vocal cords is shown to be different when high notes or sounds are emitted.

The pitch is raised correspondingly as the cords are contracted. The cords of the man's voice instrument are about three-fourths of an inch long, while those of a woman or a boy are only one-half inch long. This accounts for the difference in the quality of the tone.

Anyone interested is encouraged to see the picture today. There is a charge of ten cents to cover the rental cost of the theater and the cost of bringing the picture to Iowa City.

GENETIC RESEARCH TO BE TOLD OF BY DR. WHITING TONIGHT

The November lecture of the Baconian club will be given Friday, November 18th in the lecture room, No. 301 physics building.

Dr. P. W. Whiting of the Child Welfare Research station will address the meeting on the subject of "Hereditry". The principles of hereditary transmission as they have been worked out in plants and animals through the science of genetics will be considered. Dr. Whiting's genetic researches with cats, moths, wasps and flies will be discussed and a number of lantern slides illustrating hereditary differences will be shown. The application of genetic principles to human heredity and the limitation of genetic research with human beings will be reviewed. The genetic approach to problems of race betterment will be considered together with other methods of analysis and a possible program of eugenics as it may be worked out in a democratic society.

Concerning Dr. Whiting's lecture, Prof. Bird T. Baldwin director of the Child Welfare Research station said, "Professor Whiting is a thoroughly trained scientist possessed with much new and significant scientific information on problems of heredity and eugenics. The Child Welfare Research station is attacking the problem of eugenics in a very new and different manner, considering the biological growth and development of the positive and wholesome traits rather than dwelling only upon the handicaps and weaknesses of the individual. The station has been searching for some time for a man fitted to approach this problem in this new and larger and more fundamental field, and has found in Dr. Whiting a scientist eminently fitted for the task."

The lecture is open to the public and will be illustrated by thirty lantern slides.

However, four conference games have been played by every team but Indiana and Michigan. Some of the elevens have been in five conference games.

Wisconsin leads in the total number of points scored this season with 219 to their opponents' seven. Iowa is second with 171 to their opponents' 36, while Michigan is third with 148. Ohio State, which is supposed to be tied for first place in the conference with Iowa at the present time, has scored 110 points to their opponents 7, these seven being the result of their loss to little Oberlin. In their six games, Ohio State has played Minnesota, Chicago, Michigan and Purdue in the conference, and Oberlin and Ohio Wesleyan out of the conference.

Out of the conference Iowa has played Knox and Notre Dame. In the conference Iowa has met Illinois, Purdue, Minnesota and Indiana, winning each game without a great deal of trouble.

CO-EDS ARE GETTING REAL EXPERIENCE IN QUIETING KIDDIES

Every day the noisy and hilarious shouting of the elementary school children, as they come rushing out for a fifteen minute recess, is quieted by some of the University undergraduate women, not the ones studying in the library across the way.

Under the direction of Jean Speirs, head of the department of physical education in the elementary school, twelve women are getting practical experience in playground work. These girls work three hours every week with the little tots of the fourth grade and under and receive one hour of credit in the department of physical education.

Many of the University men and women are teaching one hour daily in the University high school and are given two hours credit in the department of education. This is one of the requirements of the course in order to give the students some experience in teaching before they enter the profession.

FEW JUNIORS HAVE HAD THEIR PICTURES TAKEN

Only 150 juniors, out of the 800 enrolled in the University, have had their pictures taken for the 1923 Hawkeye, and very few more have made appointments for sittings. The dead line for appointments for sittings is November 20. Pictures will not be taken after that time.

The three approved photographers are Luscombe 9 S. Dubuque, Newberg 128 S. Clinton, and Townsend 22 S. Clinton. The cost for the picture is four dollars. Two dollars will go to the photographer and two to the Hawkeye.

FEW MEMORIAL PLEDGERS FAIL

Economic Depression Now Causes Lull in Union Work

Very few pledges are delinquent in making their payments to the Iowa Memorial Union. On account of the present economic condition there has been a little more difficulty for some to make payments than there would be under normal economic conditions. On the whole payments have been good, according to Ralph G. Grassfield, director of the Union.

There have been but two persons who have asked to have their pledges cancelled in the past year, but owing to the fact that it is impossible to cancel any pledge to the Union, the favor could not be granted. It is the policy of the Memorial organization that only death can be the means of cancellation of a pledge, and if there be an estate of the deceased, payments will be collected from it. It is absolutely impossible for the Union to consider a cancellation for if they did the Union would have no basis to operate on. No excuses can be accepted.

Collections Not Being Made

There is little effort being made at present to raise money for the Union on account of the depression in economic conditions, and the officers think it best to wait. But on the other hand a great amount of construction work is under progress which will require a great deal of time to complete. The constructive work is being carried on both throughout the state and on the campus. Mr. Grassfield declared, "Every move that is being made in connection with the Memorial Union organization is permanent and makes for constructive progress."

Several of the Universities in the Big Ten have memorial union projects of one kind or another, and reports of their progress in this work show much success.

Iowa Organization Is Unique

It has been suggested to Mr. Grassfield that the students of each county form a club here at the University for the purpose of carrying on work in connection with the Iowa Memorial Union. Consideration was given to this suggestion, and directors thought it would be a physical impossibility to create county organizations among the student body. Director of the Union Grassfield said, "We are building an organization that is best adaptable to the situation here at the University of Iowa. Although it differs from methods carried on at other Universities, it is thought to be best fitted to the social and economic condition here. No two memorial Unions are doing this alike—they all have their own methods."

Campus Societies To Co-operate

The Iowa Memorial Union as a student organization will become a reality in the very near future, according to Mr. Grassfield. The student body will be organized to a permanent Union as a student organization entirely, for the students and by the students. In order to organize it has been planned to get representatives from the literary societies, the inter-fraternity council, representatives from various other campus organizations and all colleges. Mr. Grassfield plans to see all these representatives personally to obtain their views upon what the Memorial Union should do to meet the desires and needs of the students. This work will require a large amount of time and possibly will not be fully able to organize this year, but will get a foundation this year that will enable the Union to be fully organized and working on the campus when the new building is completed.

"UNIVERSITY'S COLLEGES LACK ORGANIZATION"

Red Cross Leader Declares Only 7 Percent of Students Responded

The need for some organization to represent the various colleges within the University, was made obvious during the Red Cross drive. According to Esther L. Swenson, chairman of the Red Cross campaign in the University, there seems a lack of cooperation and unity between the colleges, and as a result, there was no organized, cooperative machinery with which to put the thing across. In comment on the statement in Wednesday's Iowan "that the professional colleges failed to respond to the call for committee meetings," it may be said that it was impossible to locate the persons or groups of persons who had the authority to call committee meetings within their respective colleges.

It is the belief of those in charge of the drive that if the World war were still going on, the need for Red Cross funds would be more apparent, and in response to the need, and organization composed of representatives from the separate colleges would eventually be formed to obtain subscription from the students. Only Seven Percent Join

Nevertheless, the drive is considered a successful one by those in charge, and they are encouraged to think that subscriptions from University students now amount to $375, an amount exceeding the results of last year's campaign by $175. "It is obvious, however, that the call has been answered by only about seven per cent of the total number of students," declared Miss Swenson. "Of course this is a hard year, but how long does the average student's dollar last over at Whet's, or when the student wishes to attend any entertainment? One explanation of the small percentage who have responded is the fact that a great many of the students have lived in small towns, and have not been in close contact with many campaigns for funds to be used for charitable purposes."

WOMEN'S FIELD DAY IS AGAIN POSTPONED

Field day for women, which was to have been held some time in November on the women's athletic field has been postponed indefinitely because of the bad weather, according to Marion R. Lyon, acting head of the department of physical education for women. Although soccer and field ball have been practiced in the freshmen and sophomore gymnasium classes the teams have not been chosen.

These games will not be taken up in class again, but all those interested in making a team in either of these sports may come out for practice at a time which will be announced later. The junior and senior women in the department are also working up field ball teams to play on Field day.

LAW JUBILEE PLANS STARTED

March Is Date Selected; a Playlet and Vaudeville to Feature Program

Committee chairmen met with Fred A. Steiner, manager of the 1922 law jubilee, Wednesday afternoon to formulate definite plans for carrying forward the various activities in connection with the annual show.

The work of each committee was outlined after a careful survey of the available talent in the college of law, with the purpose of producing a well balanced show. No definite date has been set, but the present plans point to a date sometime in March, to be given in the Englert theater.

As yet no selections have been made for the cast, but some of those who have helped to put on the law jubilee in past years are expected to assist again this year. The work of Art Kroppach and E. J. Goodrich L3 of Anoka, Minn., is to be especially remembered. Most of last year's play was written by Goodrich.

Joseph Pollock L3 of Iowa City, president of the Iowa Law Students association, is chairman of the production committee, ex-officio, while the heads of the other committees are all seniors of the college of law. All the talent is selected from the students of the college, including the music and play which are written by the manager and his assistants.

The program this year will include three acts, the first being a playlet with a great deal of local color. The second part will be a vaudeville act and the third is the jubilee proper which has been so popular in the recent productions. Song hits from New York will be secure at the latest possible date before the presentation of the show.

This will be the fifth annual jubilee, presented by the Iowa Law Students association, which was founded in 1915. The purpose of the organization is to unite the students of the college and to create a favorable impression among the members of the Iowa Bar association towards the Iowa college of law, according to Goodrich.

COMMERCE STUDENTS TO HEAR PERSON ON BUSINESS MANAGEMENT

H. S. Person, executive head of the Taylor society of New York, will be here the last week before Christmas in a series of lectures to reinforce and supplement the work in business management offered by the college of commerce.

Mr. Person has had an interesting career as an authority on business management, according to Dean Chester A. Phillips of the college of commerce. He has been director of the Amos Tuck school and during the war he entered the army as a major in connection with the scientific handling of stores. After the war he became the executive head of the Taylor society in New York.

Not only will Mr. Person lecture, but he will also be available for conferences with those who are interested in his subject. Mr. Person will spend a second week here next spring in connection with the work of the college of commerce.

WHERE IS JESSUP'S O. K. ON SOME POSTED NOTICES?

"Eben—See me at once. I'll take your pin back.—Lucy." Wouldn't that look nice with the signature of President Jessup on the University bulletin board? The boards in the natural science and liberal arts buildings are covered with trespassing notices. They are used for any purpose whatsoever from advertising the lost pin to calling for roomers.

Rooms for rent and lost notices are the commonest ones seen. Here's a D2 that wants to typewrite your notes. Another just to the left wants to help you on your thesis. Rooms for rent, double rooms, single rooms, mixed rooms, rooms with a parlor accessible, rooms with a newly tuned piano, rooms from one block to one mile out. Here is a lady that advertises the loss of a Phi Beta Kappa key. Her use of the bulletin board is justified.

Iowa boosters were on the job long ago. In 1870 they insisted that the south building needed a new roof, the society halls should be heated by means of gas, most students should not carry more than three studies, and a gravel day should be observed in order to trim up the walks and arrange things upon the campus.

Sixty-two had signed to go at closing time last night. These with the team will make about 100 and Coach Bresnahan is assured that many more will be sold.

Bad Roads Spoil Autoing
This being the last game of the season many will drive to Northwestern if the weather permits. Today the weather is unfavorable for many to drive, so it may be that those who intended to drive will sign up to go on the special.

Train Leaves at 11:30 p. m.
The fare for the round trip will be $12.39 including war tax. Standard berths will be sold at the regular rate of $3.24 for a lower and $2.93 for an upper; tourists' berths are $2.05 for a lower and $1.53 for an upper.

The train will leave at 11:30 o'clock Friday evening. Those having sleeper reservations can secure their berths any time after 9:30 p. m.

The tickets and berths are being handled directly by the athletic department. The price of the tickets for the game are $2.50.

to turn Aubrey Devine back into the center of the line.

Nearly all of their cripples are on the well list again and have been practicing in order to play against Iowa. Their offense is a combination of off-tackle plays and forward passes, the latter being used the most. Most of their passes are from a formation that permits the backs to run or to pass, and their passes are of the running variety, being modeled after the Notre Dame open attack. The Iowa line will have to be on the alert to prevent both runs and passes.

Seiling Runs for Aubrey
With Aubrey Devine and Gordon Locke watching the scrimmage and Seiling and Anderson in their places the varsity made whatever gains it desired in the practice with the second string. Anderson plunged the line for long gains, but did not do as well in running interference and got a lot of attention and criticism from the coaches for his mediocre work in that line. Seiling is looking better after each practice and got away for several long runs last night because of his improvement in cutting back. On one of his cut backs he got away from the second string backfield and could have made a touchdown. The second string put up a very poor fight against the varsity, tackling high or missing the runner altogether, and failed to show any of the scrap that they exhibited against Indiana last Saturday.

Chicago Man Iowa Fan
On the wrapper around a package that reached the athletic office yesterday afternoon was a sketch drawn by one of the clerks in the Chicago post office showing an Iowa football player with a big grin on his face and the conference flag in his hands. Iowa has one fan in Chicago who realizes that it has a good claim to the conference championship.

The following twenty-seven football players will make the Northwestern trip: A. Devine, G. Devine, Belding, Slater, Locke, Shuttleworth, Anderson, White, Boydson, Seiling, Kadesky, Barrett, Cotton, Thompson, Harding, Hunter, Mead, Minick, Kriz, Heldt, Lindsay, Miller, Macrae, Moldenhauer, Colby, and Huber.

fraternity parties are under discussion. In the past special taxes as high as $30 per person have been assessed. This condition may be remedied by action of the interfraternity council.

The social committee contains six faculty members: Dean Wilbur J. Teeters, Prof. Henry L. Rietz, Dean Robert E. Rienow, Mrs. Adelaide M. Burge, dean of women, Prof. Rollin M. Perkins, and Prof. Clara M. Daley. Student members are: Lucille Everett A4 of Iowa Falls, Robert T. Kenworthy A4 of Earlham, Maurine Yaggy A3 of Davenport, Margaret Moore A3 of Harlan, Edward Nixon P4 of Burlington, and Donald Gaston A3 of Boone.

ture and history, holding practically the same position at the University as Prof. Charles Foster Kent, who spoke at Vespers several weeks ago, holds at Yale.

Speaks Sunday at 4 O'clock
Professor Vernon is not only a professor, but is a preacher and author as well. He was formerly in several eastern cities, including E. Orange, N. J., and Brookline, Mass. Among the books which he has written are "The Religious Value of the Old Testament" and the "Cambridge History of American Literature."

He will speak at Vespers 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the natural science auditorium on the topic, "What is an Efficient Faith?" The complete University orchestra and the vesper choir will furnish musical numbers, in addition to which several special numbers are promised by Prof. Philip G. Clapp, head of the school of music.
