When a recapitulation at the 1921 football season is taken, and games and players studied from every gridiron angle, the result indicates that no section of the country has a corner on the consistent performers.

The middle west experienced its most successful season against representative elevens of the Atlantic seaboard. In most cases, victories of western teams were clean cut and decisive, and left little room for argument as to the relative merits of the game as played during 1921 in the two sections.

While the middle west was censured for employing shift play—formations said to be illegal by some authorities in the east—this style of attack is within the present rules and will remain legal until changed by the governing body of rule-makers. In former seasons, when eastern teams defeated those of the west, no criticism was heard of the shift play, although it has been employed by invading teams for years.

Army Adopts Shift

When the Army met the Navy, the cadets used a shift adapted from that which Notre Dame has employed for years, and with which the latter has beaten the Army with regularity. The western eleven was censured for this style of attack, but when Maj. Daly sent his cadets against the midshipmen the Notre Dame shift was used, and if the Army had had more time to perfect it, the result of the annual battle at the Polo grounds might have been different.

When the victory of Chicago over Princeton is taken into consideration, along with the triumphs of Notre Dame over the Army and Rutgers and that of Nebraska over Pittsburgh, it is evident there must be some sterling football men in the middle west. As for other clashes of midwest and east: Indiana, which was not a representative team of the section, was defeated by Harvard, and Wabash succumbed to the Army.

Further summarizing the outstanding games played, it will be recalled that Ohio State took the measure of Chicago, while Iowa was victor over Notre Dame before the latter invaded the east. Coach Rockne's eleven, however, recovered from the Hawkeye defeat and defeated Nebraska a week before the latter won its triumph at Pittsburgh.

Nebraska Supreme in Section
In addition to winning over Pittsburgh, the Cornhuskers won the undisputed championship of the Missouri Valley conference. The eleven was coached by Fred Dowson, a former Princeton player and was an aggregation of power and unlimited possibilities.

Going still further west, the University of California, coached by Andy Smith, former Pennsylvania player and mentor at Purdue, won the title on the Pacific coast. The Bears won over University of Washington, 72 to 3, while Penn State, acclaimed by many critics as the strongest eleven in the east, won from Washington by the moderate score of 21 to 7.

However, no effort is made to determine strength of teams on a comparative score basis. Actual results are taken into consideration in an attempt to select three all-American elevens, to be composed of players worthy of the honor. In adjudging these star players, it is axiomatic that teams which have won victories in important struggles must have some players of exceptional ability.

Five Outstanding Teams

With Penn State, most prominent in the east; Iowa, the undisputed title holder in the middle west; Nebraska, the best in the Missouri Valley conference; California, supreme on the coast, and Centre one of the best elevens in the south, players on these elevens, and those which were runners-up, are deserving of the consideration when mythical selections are made.

The fact is granted that there were, just as there has been in the past, many warriors who would be eligible for these selections had they been members of stronger teams and received the support necessary to attract attention of those who follow football closely.

In the selection of the first eleven representatives of ten universities have been placed on the first eleven. The institutions are situated in different parts of the country, from the Atlantic to the Pacific seaboard. Iowa, western champion, is honored with two sterling players, although eastern critics unfamiliar with their deeds may argue against the right of either to the honor.

Aldrich of Yale for Captain

Malcolm ("Mac") Aldrich, Yale's great half back, should be the unanimous choice of all critics for a backfield position. He is selected without hesitancy for the first eleven and is given the added honor of the choice for captain. There was nothing about the offensive and defensive play of his position which the Eli warrior could not do, and do a little better than most.

He was a glutton for punishment, and the more he was bruised the better he played. He was the main reason why the Blue defeated Princeton in one of the biggest games of the year for Yale, and he fought like a demon to turn the tide of defeat in the Harvard game. He exercised the triple threat of run, kick, or pass to perfection, while his punting and hard running with the ball were most important assets of his team.

Kaw for a Team Mate

Edgar Kaw, who played on the undefeated Cornell eleven, is placed at the other half back. Offensive play of this warrior in the Pennsylvania game was a revelation to football men in the east. The struggle was decided on a muddy gridiron, but the Ithaca back ran with speed and elusiveness of a performer on a fast field. He was the individual point scorer in the east and one of the most consistent players on his record scoring team throughout the season.

VACATION FARES TO BE REDUCED

Reduced rates of one and one half fare for a round trip ticket have been granted by the Rock Island railroad for the vacation traffic according to an announcement made yesterday by Harry D. Breene, local passenger and freight agent for the road.

Rates in Effect December 21

These rates will go into effect on Wednesday, December 21, and will continue through December 24. A return limit of January 5 will be placed on the tickets purchased. It is also stated that this rate of one and one half fare for round trip tickets will apply to tickets on which the price of a one way trip is $2 or over, and the round trip price $25 or under.

Run Special Train

A special west bound train will be run on December 21 and will leave Iowa City just previous to the regular 3:41 p. m. train. The special will probably carry eight coaches, but further details will be announced later.

Y. W. C. A. TO HOLD CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE

The Christmas seal sale on the campus will begin Monday and last throughout the entire week. Members of the Y. W. C. A. will be in charge of the sale. Seals will be placed on sale at the candy table of the Y. W. C. A. room and individual members will also sell them.

125 COUPLES ATTEND FIRST PAN-HEL DANCE

Approximately a hundred and twenty-five freshmen of the nine social fraternities composing the Pan-Hellenic association and their women friends attended the first freshman Pan-Hellenic dance of the year at the women's gymnasium last evening. The feature dances given by two fourteen year old girl pupils of Mrs. Corinne Reichy of Cedar Rapids proved to be the chief entertainment of the evening and the singer from Des Moines who sang to the accompaniment of Johnnie Wright's orchestra, which furnished the music for the evening, entertained the dancers by his excellent selections.

Programs Distinctive

The programs were very distinctive, the prevailing color being green, and the refreshments added the touch sufficient to complete a well planned party.

Party is First of These

The party last night is the first of three which will be put on this winter and the committee which worked on the party is composed of Glenn H. Hochlander, Kappa Sigma of Cedar Rapids, chairman; Harold C. Jensen, Phi Kappa Psi of Cedar Rapids; Carl Gnam, Beta Theta Pi of Carroll; Gla E. Littell, Delta Tau Delta of Spirit Lake; J. Kendrick Bell, Alpha Tau Omega of Storm Lake; C. Donald Savery, Sigma Nu of Atlantic; Huber Kalbach, Sigma Alpha Epsilon of Oskaloosa; John C. Marsh, Sigma Chi of Keokuk; and John D. Littig, Phi Delta Theta of Flandreau, Dakota.

BAND TO PLAY THIS AFTERNOON

Will Appear in First Concert of the Year

The University band will present its first concert of the season at the University auditorium this afternoon at four o'clock. After the concert has started admittance will be permitted only during intermissions.

Saxophone Duet Special

Included in the special numbers is a saxophone duet which will be played by C. A. Sullivan S3 of Belle Plain and H. E. Pratt of Waukon.

Seven Numbers in Program

The complete program is made up of six standard concert numbers.

1. March "Bullets and Bayonets"—Souza.
2. Introduction and Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin—Wagner.

(This introduction is supposed to be the ball room music played at Lohengrin and Elsa's wedding.)

3. Waltz, "Southern Roses"—Straus.
4. Ballet Suite from Gioconda, "Dance of the Hours"—Ponchielli.

(The dancers are supposed to enter in groups, depicting the hours of the day.)

5. Moonlight Sonata—Beethoven.
6. "Rosamunde, Princess of Cyprus"—Schubert.
7. Finale, "The Star Spangled Banner."

LARGE CROWD HEARS POEMS OF LINDSAY

Poet Impresses People of University by His Readings

ENJOYS UNIVERSITIES

Will Not Speak Before Business Men or Women's Clubs

N. V. Lindsay, the American minstrel poet read his poems last evening at eight o'clock in the natural science auditorium. He is the guest of the University and especially of the English department. His interpretation of his best known poems, "the Congo" a vivid story dealing with Africa, was pleasing and entertaining. The enjoyment that he seems to get out of his interpretation is instilled into his audience by his vital and interesting manner of speaking.

Although he does not claim to be an entertainer of the vaudeville or lyceum type he does hold the interest of his audience of University students who are interested in literature and who have some aspira-

IOWA TAKES FIRST GAME

Hawkeyes Swamp Augustana 41 to 16 in Easy Contest

Featured only by the free throwing of Shimek, captain of the Iowa basketball team, and the work of Andreen at center for Augustana, Iowa defeated its first basketball rival last night 41 to 16.

Augustana Helpless

With the exception of Andreen, the Augustana five was unable to do anything against the Hawkeye attack. The whole team played poor basketball, attempting long shots and failing miserably.

On the other hand, the Hawkeyes played no better basketball than in the practices, and they were against a team that could not score on the Iowa third string. The teamwork was conspicuous because of its absence, the passing was poor, and the consistent work of Shimek on free throws was all that made the game interesting.

The Hawkeye captain also made several pretty long shots for baskets, and occasionally one of his teammates would display some real playing. For the most part, however, the game was listless.

THE TIPPING SCALES

Opinion of a few students and members of the faculty upon the question of the relative importance of intensive study directed toward the achievement of excellence in scholastic standing as compared to extensive participation in extra-curricular activities which would mean a lowering of scholastic standing has been the source of much discussion the last two days.

The conclusion which one would draw from the varied answers is that the question is one to be settled by the individual according to his conception of his role.

We realize that this is a day of experts—of specialists in their own line—but it is also a day when leaders are needed, and the development of leadership calls for something more than erudition. Higher education is looked to as an instrument for the development of leaders—of broad-minded versatile men and women—as well as a machine for the production of experts.

However, there is always danger when the pendulum swings too far in either direction; and the happy medium is perhaps the safest place; although the happy medium in this respect is the exception in the case of college students. It is significant that there are but a few individuals who are able to make Phi Beta Kappa and participate in college activities to any marked extent.

There will always be those who will center their interests upon scholastic attainment, those who center their interests mainly upon their extra-curricular activities, and a few fortunate individuals who strike the coveted medium and combine the extremes to a moderate degree. Since this is inevitably the case, it seems only fair that we should judge the individual upon the basis of what he deems to be the most worthwhile path to follow.

However, one very general criterion of success is service. It is probable that the student who devotes himself almost exclusively to his studies is preparing himself for proficiency in his chosen field, but it is always true that the person who broadens himself by a wide participation in college activities is not only preparing himself for leadership, but is also doing something for his college or university and something for all those with whom he associates.

Again, if we take into consideration the cultural element of higher education, it is generally conceded that participation in outside activities with its humanitarian and social aspects, is more conducive to the development of culture than is concentrated study.

Then if we consider the accomplishments of the individual in his university career as a fair index to what he will do when he completes his course, it is significant to note that facts show almost without exception that the big men in after-college days are the ones who interests are diversified and the ones who are versatile, although they may be experts in their chosen field.

IMPRESARIO GIVES VIEW OF ATMOSPHERE OF 18TH CENTURY LIFE

BY M. B.

A return to the stately atmosphere of eighteenth century life was the pleasant entertainment afforded those who witnessed the production of Mozart's opera, The Impresario, Thursday evening, in the University Theater.

The melodious score with its simplificity of harmony dominated the music of the comedy, and succeeded to a marked degree in furnishing appropriate setting which was ineffectively suggested by the costumes and the stage scenery.

Throughout the play, the realistic situations which made up the plot afforded amusing humor which was intensified by the grotesqueness of the caricature of the Impresario himself. Percy Hemus in the title role succeeded well in interpreting the ogreish character of the Dickens' type especially by means of his facial contortions.

Attention was centered around him throughout the performance. His solo work particularly in "I am the Impresario", and his remarkably vivid interpretation of "Then let the Bad World Have its Way" was most enthusiastically received by the audience. The lively rhythm of the latter solo made it perhaps the most popular air of the comedy. In the role of Mlle. Dorothea Ulic, Hazel Huntington was pleasing. Her solo work was characterized throughout by effective interpretation and a beautiful clear tone quality which lost none of its beauty in the production of exceptionally high tones.

Regina Vicarino, who played the part of the rival prima-donna succeeded very well in feigning the time-honored temperamental diva. Francis Tyler, as the nephew of the Impresario, possessed a pleasing voice in song, but both his stage presence and the acting of Thomas McGranahan in the role of Mozart bordered on extreme stiffness.

The comedy will be remembered for the numerous sustained lyrical utterances which were the life of the performance.

the second and third elevens, other backs worthy of mention are Barron, Georgia Tech; Barchet, Navy; Cappon, Michigan; Dean, Southern California; Gazella, Lafayette; Peden, Illinois; Toomey, California; Gilroy, Princeton; Robertson, Dartmouth; Noble, Nebraska; Davis, St. Xavier, and Lightner and Wilson of Penn State.

Owen a Versatile Full Back

George Owen of Harvard is given the full back position, although there is little to choose between his general play and that of other men who performed brilliantly and consistently all season. The Crimson back was a versatile player. He could run the ends, hit the line, punt and forward pass.

It was Owen's crashing line plunging which gave Harvard a cherished victory over Yale. His main forte, however, was his work in the interference. He took off tacklers in commanding fashion, while his defensive play was strong and sure at all times. It is his all around excellence which wins him the choice.

Locke of Iowa and Elliott of Lafayette were Owen's chief rivals. The Hawkeye plunger was without doubt the best in the middle west, but did not possess the all around ability of the Crimson star. Other full backs who did sterling work all season are Jordan of Yale; Lincoln, Missouri; Garity, Princeton; French, Army; Thomas, Chicago; Castner and Wynne, Notre Dame; Lauer, Detroit, and Sundt of Wisconsin.

Quarter Position a Toss-up

It has been years since the gridiron has been braced with so many brilliant quarter backs, players who combined all the qualifications of the position. No critic would go wrong if he placed Buell of Harvard, Lourie of Princeton, Killinger of Penn State, McMillin of Centre, Erb of California, Lewis of Misuri, Romney of Chicago, Williams of Wisconsin, or A. Devine of Iowa on his first eleven.

Although all these men can do practically everything expected of a quarter back, the position is given to Aubrey Devine, doughty leader of the championship Iowa eleven, with Glenn Killinger of Penn State a close second choice. In fact, there is so little to choose between these two great players and between "Bo" McMillin of Centre college that there is sure to be a difference of opinion regarding the selection for the all-American position.

No Team Stops Devine

As mentioned in previous articles, Devine was one of the principal assets to his team. He could run with the ball, kick, forward pass, or receive forward tosses. Although a marked man in every game, he got away for long runs in every game played, and usually made ground when distance was needed for first down.

Killinger was one of the best players of the year to inspire a team. In the Harvard game his team came from behind to tie the count. In his team's marches for scores, Killinger helped pick up the players after each down and encouraged them to greater efforts. He carried the ball through the line off the tackles, or around the ends with equal facility.

McMillin is another great player whose work in the Harvard game resulted in defeat for the Crimson. McMillin was a factor in all Centre's victories. Charles Erb of California is a great field general, as is Charley Buell of Harvard.

Fritz Crisler at End

The end positions fall to two middle west players, "Fritz" Crisler of Chicago and Eddie Anderson of Notre Dame. The Maroon was by far the best flank player in the west. His play in the Princeton game was almost faultless, while oldtime warriors who saw the Chicago-Wisconsin struggle frankly admitted an end has not been seen in the west in years who performed so brilliantly.

Crisler broke interference fiercely and was ever mindful to turn the play inside. On number of occasions he nailed the runner while smashing the play. He boxed tackles well, as Capt. Keck of Princeton can testify and was a demon in going down the field under punts. He caught forward passes from seemingly impossible angles, and was a tower of strength to his team in every game.

Anderson at Other Wing

Eddie Anderson, who captained the Notre Dame eleven, is placed at the other extremity. Unlike Crisler, who smashed his way, Anderson had a knack of weaving through an interference to get his man. He was seldom knocked off his feet by the interference, and was among the best in the section going down the field under punts and receiving forward passes.

Brick Muller of California was a great end, but a broken leg sustained early in the year prevented him playing in important games. He was used in final contests to shoot forward passes and then was withdrawn. Had he played in all games and displayed the form of last year he would have been first choice for one of the end positions.

Kiley, the Notre Dame captain's running mate, also was a great end as were Parr of the Navy, Belding of Iowa, Snively of Princeton, Macomber of Harvard, Gould of Wisconsin, M. Collum, Penn State; Myers, Ohio State; Munns, Cornell; Higgins of Ames and Capt. R. Stein of W. and J.

Californian at Tackle

Dan McMillin of California is placed at right tackle. The way this warrior performed in the Ohio State game last year was enough to convince any follower he knows a lot of football and can master any situation. He has been a terrific charger; who varied his drives in an efficient manner. He sized up formations quickly, and seldom was kept out of plays. Not only did he show to advantage in the Buckeye struggle, which was seen by the writer, but played still better football during the last season.

Slater, the colored Iowa player, is placed at left tackle. The Hawkeye did not meet his match during the season, despite some opponents rearranged their attacks so that two and three players were delegated to keep him out of plays. It was mainly through his hole opening efforts that Iowa won form Notre Dame, 10 to 7, after a great struggle.

Injuries Handicap Keck

Capt. Stanton Keck of Princeton is another tackle who was handicapped by injuries in the big games with Yale and Harvard. There is no denying the fact he is a great lineman and would have been first choice if he had been able to play up to form in the important battles.

Other leading tackles of the year were Shaw, Notre Dame; Into, Yale; King, Navy; Dodge, Cornell; Lyman, Nebraska; Brader, Wisconsin; Williams, Lafayette; iMstead, Wabash; Capt. Kane, Harvard, and Boyle, Southern California.

Ray Baer of Penn State was one of the outstanding guards of the year, and is placed on the left side of center. The State forward played a hard, driving game, offensively and defensively. He repeatedly broke through on defense and killed plays before the started on the journey to successful execution.

Pucelik for Other Guard

John Pucelik of Nebraska and Fiske Brown of Harvard are about equal when it comes to awarding the other guard position. The Cornhusker, however, is given the position because of his great work in the Pittsburgh game. It was mainly through his efforts that Pitt was unable to get away with any of its fancy delayed formations which are timed to send the runner through the middle of the line. In other games, Pucelik performed better than any other guard in the section, and a member of a championship eleven is deserving of the honor.

Aside from choices on the second and third elevens, other guards worthy of mention are Bedenk, Penn State; Dunne, Michigan; Pireley, Ohio State; Cruickshank, Yale; Mohr, Illinois; H. Anderson, Notre Dame; Redmon, Chicago; McNamara, Detroit, and Hahn, Kansas Aggies.

CHICAGO FIVE BEING REBUILT

Squad in Good Shape for Season; Romney to Play Forward

By J. F. McGuire

Under the guiding hands of Coaches Nels Norgren and Dr. Mollerander the University of Chicago basketball team is fast rounding into shape for the strenuous campaign of the Conference season. Four practice games have already been played which have given the coaches an excellent line on the aspirants for the varsity team.

Forty Respond to Call

Forty men have responded to the call for varsity basketball squad and after two weeks of hard practice it has been reduced to twenty-five. The coaches are reluctant to predict a good season, as an entirely new team has to be built. The nucleus of last year's team has been graduated, for Birkhoff, Crisler and Vollmer received their degrees last Spring. To offset this great loss the strength of the squad has been augmented by the addition of "Mit" Romney, star on the University of Utah five of 1918; Bryan, who was a tower of strength on the U. of Chicago 1918 team; and Bruce Sheppard a flashy forward from Kalamazoo college.

Practice Games Scheduled

The team will probably open the Conference season with Captain Bob Halladay at center, Bob Stahr "C" man from last year and Romney at the forward jobs; Bill McGuire of the 1920 quintet, and Bryan or Cox at the guard jobs.

Numerous practice games have been scheduled for the Christmas vacation period. Colgate plays here on December 31, and Butler appears here on December 16.

MARTHA GUENTHER WINS SCHOLARSHIP

Miss Martha M. Guenther A3 of Burlington, has just been announced as winner of the Henry Strong scholarship of $200. Her scholastic records show nineteen A's received last year for thirty hours of work. The scholarship has been given every year since 1912 to the student recommended by the faculty as making the highest grades in addition to earning part of his education. Moral character and general attitude toward life and University work are also taken into consideration in awarding the scholarship.

Works in Library

In addition to making record grades, Miss Guenther has done twenty hours of work a week in the general University library since the middle of her freshman year. She came to the University as an honor student from a class of 100 in the Burlington high school.

Professor Charles B. Wilson, head of the German department, who shared in the recommendation of Miss Guenther for the scholarship, says, "I think Martha Guenther has one of the finest minds in the University. I have known her since she first came to the University. Besides having a superior mind she is an appreciator of language, of literature and has a big personality that deserves recognition. I wanted to see the scholarship go where there was real worth, and I am satisfied that it did."

Education Must be Practical

The clause in the will of Henry Strong providing for the scholarship states that "no part of this fund shall be used in obtaining what is called a classical education, said fund being intended the beneficiaries in obtaining a practical, literary, scientific, mechanical or business education in western or southern state universities or colleges where the charge for tuition is less than in eastern colleges."

Miss Guenther's course for last year included four hours of French, three hours of German, three hours of English literature, three hours of psychology and two hours of geology.

swimming which is an all around exercise and an exceptionally good form of lung development, there are 40 freshmen and 65 varsity men registered. No lack of earnestness is being shown in the boxing art, as there are 68 men reporting at present in the various classes. For indian club classes, which have proved such a fascination for amusement between halves of the basketball games during former seasons, there are 22 men, who are reporting regularly.

The men's gymnasium is crowded to capacity, Ernest G. Schroeder, director of physical education said, "There is more interest being shown in all phases of gymnastic work, than has ever been shown before. All we need at present are instructors and space to handle the work."

The men's gymnasium, according to Mr. Schroeder, is crowded with work from 8 o'clock in the morning until 9 at night including the noon and supper hour.

Gym Always Full

Mr. Schroeder also said that between the hours of 4 and 6 o'clock the gymnasium is being used for basketball, wrestling, boxing, fencing, indian club classes, gymnastic team, handball and rifle practice, and men are working out generally wherever they can find free space. In fact the gymnasium is so crowded between these hours of the day and at times during other parts of the day that it is necessary to resort to the hallways on the second floor.

Beta Theta Pi Formal

Beta Theta Pi fraternity was host to thirty couples at a formal dinner-dance at the Pagoda Friday evening, December 9.

The Tea Shop was turned into a cabaret. The large dancing space in the center was surrounded by small tables, roped off at the sides with green and red ropes, suspended from red pillars. On each table and in the corners of the room were baskets and vases of red roses. Festoons of huge, colored balloons were hung across the room and in the doorways, showering down on the center of the dance-floor. The favors were silver bon-bon dishes with bon-bons.

Regina Des Jardin A4 of Denver, Colo., presented a novelty character dance, with three encores. Later in the evening tin horns, snap-jacks and paper streamers were passed, and the balloons cut loose, making a beautiful carnival. The Midnight Rounders' orchestra of Burlington pladed and sang. Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Coast and Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Perkins were chaperons, and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Torgeson of Cedar Rapids were out-of-town guests. At the close of the dancing the members of the chapter sang the Beta Loving Cup.

MARY EVELYN BURNS

HAS HEAVY PART IN
'BEYOND THE HORIZON'

For the first time in the history of dramatic work on the campus a baby has been given one of the leading roles in a University production. Mary Evelyn Burns has not yet graduated from the kindergarden, but her marvelous histrionic ability has won for her a prominent part in "Beyond the Horizon" which is to be presented at the University theater, Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

This is Miss Burns' debut in a major production although she is an experienced reader for one so young. She is to assume the part of the three year old daughter of Ruth and Robert Mayo which roles are to be carried by Maude Adams A4 of Des Moines and Albert Ward A3 of Clinton. The young lady has an exceedingly heavy speaking part and must portray a wide range of emotions; she must laugh, cry, plead, fall asleep and awaken. Her utter lack of self consciousness and her natural appearance on the stage are very unusual for one of her age. She has been in regular attendance at the rehearsals and never appears to be tired or bored.

Mary Evelyn Burns is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. B. I. Burns of this city. Dr. Burns is an assistant of Dr. Prentiss of the University hospital.

met Mr. Dewing, who was puzzling over a suitable disposal for his collection. Prof. Dill suggested jokingly that Iowa would welcome it, but was very much surprised when the collector asked for his card before leaving. Six months later the whole collection arrived, with all transportation prepaid. Since that time, 1912, Iowa has lacked funds to furnish proper accommodations for the eggs. The exhibit will be completed during the second semester. It will be arranged in glass-covered drawers with automatic stops, the whole exhibit concealed and waiting for each museum roamer to draw out his own display.

Some inquirers want to know, says John M. Fiske, superintendent of grounds and buildings, if the tall steel tower on the site of the new chemistry building is to be the elevator. It has been erected, Mr. Fisk states, to hoist the bucket holding concrete. When this hopper has been raised by electricity to a certain point, it will automatically discharge its load into a long steel spot for distributing the concrete.

The steam shovel excavating for the new chemistry building has required from ten to fifteen teams working continually during the past week to haul away the dirt as it is discharged. Superintendent of grounds and buildings, John M. Fisk declares its activity is "almost human".

The University of Iowa museum is the only museum in the world that teaches museum courses. These courses have been organized by Professor Homer R. Dill, who is largely responsible for the fact that the Iowa museum stands first among University museums and leads many municipal museums.

A meeting of the initiates of the Classical club will be held at room 109 liberal arts building Monday evening at 7:30.

POINT SYSTEM SHOULD NOT BE ABANDONED,
SAYS DEAN BURGE

"I do not think the point system should be abandoned, although it is faulty and needs revision," said Adelaide L. Burge, acting dean of women when asked what she thought about the situation. "It has been tried out in other schools and has worked. I don't like to see a girl doing too much. She may not realize it while she is doing it but she will after she is out of school; her health is apt to suffer."

Dean Burge admitted the desirability of training in many lines, but she also considered the advantage of training a greater number of leaders as opposed to intensive training of a few. She says that since the point system has been in effect a great many capable people have been discovered that probably would not have been otherwise. More people are capable than willing and if this type can be got to work they do very well, according to Mrs. Burge.

This is one of the first attempts at student government and Mrs. Burge thinks that for this reason the argument that it cannot be enforced is bad. Student government can only be obtained by having the faculty back of it and pushing it, in her opinion.

THREE TRIPLE DATES ARE MADE BY COACHES

Triple athletic dating on the part of Iowa's athletes is going to be popular this spring. The first of these triple affairs comes on February 11 when the Iowa swimming team meets Northwestern in the Evanston tank, while the track team competes against Wisconsin at Madison, and the basketball quintet plays at Chicago. It will be noticed that this group of "three in one" dates will be on foreign fields but on the following week, the dates will be at home.

On February 17, the Iowa wrestling team will meet Purdue at Iowa City. The next day Illinois will be here for an indoor track meet with Coach George T. Bresnahan's men, while in the evening the Ohio basketball team will clash with the Hawkeyes.

Two weeks later another triple date will be made by Iowa athletic teams, two thirds of the date being on the home grounds. On March 4 Iowa will meet Michigan at Ann Arbor for a basketball contest, while at home Chicago will be contesting Coach David Armbruster's men in the tank while Northwestern will be grappling with Iowa's wrestlers.

EVINE AND SLATER.
MAKE ALL-AMERICAN
Herb Stein at Center
 Herb Stein of Pittsburgh is placed at center. This player has been one of the mainstays of Glenn Warner's eleven for three years. He is an accurate passer, a player who sizes up plays quickly and can tackle on the wings with the same effect as a halfback or end.

"Polly" Wallace of Ames, second choice, as the best center of the middle west, was handicapped by injuries. Although he got into all games, an injured knee kept him from playing the game of last year, when he was selected for the writers first eleven.

Other reliable centers of the year were Bunge of Wisconsin; Larson, Navy; Shurtleff, Brown; Latham, California, and Wittmer of Princeton.

It is admitted a strong combination could be formed, especially in the back field, if players were shifted from positions they had played all season. In order to make a place on the honorary team for them such shifts would be an injustice to other men who had played in one position all season, and who would be deprived of the honor if such tactics were employed.

Back Field Can Do Everything
 The first team as selected would be strong offensively and defensively. Capt. Aldrich, Owen or Devine could do the punting, passing or running, as each could execute the triple threat to a nicety. Owen could be used for the driving attack as well as Aldrich, while Kaw could be called into commission to skirt the ends.

Crisler and Eddie Anderson would be ideal targets for forward passes and each could be relied upon to catch the oval if it were thrown anywhere near him. The ends also would cover punts in such fashion that ground would be made in every exchange.

At any rate the teams are representative of the country, and are not chosen from a small group of institutions along the Atlantic seaboard, which have had the call on such selections in the past.

HAWKEYES TAKE FIRST GAME

Visitors Did Not Score
 Augustana did not make a basket during the entire first half, their five points being made on free throws. Iowa scored twenty-four points during the first period, four of them by the free throw route.

In the second half Augustana found the basket five times, and threw one free throw. During the last three minutes of the first half Coach Ashmore used a new five, and in the last half he used fifteen men against the visitors. There was not much to choose between the first two teams sent to the floor, with the exception of teamwork, which was inclined to be a trifle better with the second team.

Lombard college will meet the Hawkeyes here December 17.

 tions for writing verses or prose sketches.

"I enjoy college and University audiences that are made up of those who have read my poems and prose works or have read some one else's copy of them," declared N. Vachael Lindsay. I like to talk to people who are interested in poetry and literature, but I am not a public entertainer or amuser. Two groups of people whom I will not talk to are women's clubs at three o'clock and business men's luncheon at twelve.

"I am touring the United States this year in a systematic manner, giving lectures and meeting university students. The English departments of the universities are more interested in me than any other department. Before this year I have answered letters accepting invitations from English departments of universities to deliver lectures, but these were not arranged in any special sequence so I decided that since my work seemed to call me in this direction I would arrange a schedule.

"People seem to think that I spend all of my time on the vaudeville stage. I do not. I am a private citizen and not a public amuser. I enjoy college classes in poetry and scribble clubs. I love the young college students who attempt to write verses and who admit it."

Edits a Magazine
 "I attempted printing a magazine some what similar to the Midland which J. T. Frederick edits and I know what it means to continue an enterprise like that. In 1910 I published the first last and only monthly edition of the "Village Magazine." I gave away 800 copies because I had heard that a man always went bankrupt on his first publication since he could not sell. I put in it every cut, drawing, poem, sketch that I had, but it did not find much favor any place except in my own home town, Springfield, Ill. In 1920, ten years later, I published the same thing over, with like results, and I suppose if I live until 1930, I will produce the third edition. For this reason I have every admiration for the man who can make a success of a magazine such as that of the Midland. It represents what the middle west has to offer in a literary world."

Could Draw, Speak and Write
 "When I entered college I knew that I could draw, speak and write but no one believed me. So after three years in college I quit. Not even yet do people comment on my drawings, either in favor or otherwise, and yet I attended an art school for 10 years. I started writing poetry when I was 17, but it was not until I was 34 that people would listen to me. I polished by work by reading aloud to my very few and intimate friends."

Mr. Lindsay left for Hastings, Neb., this morning.

SOPHOMORES WIN CHAMPIONSHIP IN FIELD BALL GAMES

The sophomores won the championship in field ball on the Iowa field yesterday afternoon with a score of 9 to 1 over the freshmen and a score of 7 to 4 over the juniors.

In the freshman-sophomore game both teams were handicapped by the absence of players who were held in because of the quarantine on the Currier hall annex on Dubuque. Ruth Dice A1 of Wilton Junction and Inez Straight A2 of Bedford were kept out of the game.

Both games were very easy for the sophomores, they had the throw off and had made a score in the first five minutes. Especially good team work was shown by them.

The sophomore-freshman soccer game ended with a score of 0 to 0. The freshmen outplayed the sophomores during the entire game but were unable to make a score against the good guarding of the sophomores. During the entire game the freshmen were on the offensive and the sophomores on the defensive. The referees were Louise Boillin and Miriam W. Taylor, instructors in the department of physical education. "The tams fought well but were handicapped by the large field," Miss Taylor said concerning the game. The field was rather soft because of the ground thawing.

SIGMA CHIS WIN FRAT MEET

Kappa Sigmas Finish in Second Place With 28 Points

Fighting neck and neck with the Kappa Sigmas, the Sigma Chis took first place in the last event of the interfraternity swimming meet yesterday afternoon and won the contest by a score of 30 against the Kappa Sigma's score of 28. Third place was won by the Sigma Phi Epsilon with a score of 15. Other scores were: fourth, Sigma Alpha Epsilon 9; fifth, Delta Kappa Gamma 5; sixth, Phi Kappa Psi and Phi Delta Theta tied with 3; eighth, Delta Tau Delta, 2; ninth, Phi Gamma Delta 1.

100 Swimmers Enter

With a total entry list of over 100 swimmers representing fourteen fraternities, the meet offered stiff competition to even the best aquatic performers and on several occasions gave the spectators some thrilling races. As to the winner of the affair, dope carried true, but the contest between the Kappa Sigmas and Sigma Chis was much closer than some had predicted and kept the spectators ever in doubt as to the outcome. In fact the meet was not won until the final event, when Stover took first place in the 100 yard swim and so pushed his fraternity into the lead.

Times Only Average

Times made yesterday were in most cases only average and were in some instances slightly below the marks made last week in the novice meet. Although Stover won the 40 yard dash easily his time yesterday was 3-5 of a second slower than the time he made in the novice contest. On the other hand his time was slightly better in 100 yard swim yesterday than that registered last week.

By his work yesterday Stover conclusively proved himself to be one of the best non-"I" men in the University. He not only won his 40 and 100 yard races but materially aided his team in the relay race.

220 Yard Race Thrilling

Perhaps the most thrilling race of yesterday's program was the 220 yard easy style, won by John Goltman of the Kappa Sigma fraternity. When the contestants in this race took the water it was said that it would be a gruelling affair with Goodell of the Sig Eps and Goltman fighting it out for first place. These two men staged a hard fought affair the previous week, Goodell winning by a fraction, and consequently a fast race was forthcoming yesterday. Goodell kept ahead of Goltman by an arm's length until the final length. Starting off just a few inches behind his opponent, Goltman slowly but surely pulled up on Goodell and finished the race in first place, Hunter taking third.

Fancy Diving Humorous

The fancy diving event was both fancy and humorous. On several occasions the less experienced competitors, unmercifully splashed the timers and starters standing on the sides of the pool and furnished much amusement for the spectators. The work of McCullough, who took first place in the event applauded at every turn as was also the work of his fraternity brother Barrett.

Bane Wins Plunge

The plunge for distance was easily won by Bane of the Delta Kappa Gamma fraternity. Marsh of the Sigma Chis finished second, while Short of the Phi Deltas and Sage of the Sigma Phi Eps finished third and fourth respectively.

The 160 yard relay also furnished considerable excitement, the Sigma Chis and Kappa Sigs fighting it out to the last inch.

Was Second of Series

Yesterday's meet was the second of a series of three intermural swimming meets. The final meet of the series will be run next Saturday and will be the all-University affair, open to any man in the University regardless of whether he has won an "I" or not.

A summary of yesterday's meet follows: 160 yard relay: first, Sigma Chi; second, Kappa Sigma; third, Sigma Alpha Epsilon; fourth, Sigma Phi Epsilon. Time 1:34 3-5. Fancy diving: first, McCullough, Kappa Sigma; second, Barrett, Kappa Sigma; third, Nelson, Sigma Chi; fourth, Nash, Phi Kappa Psi.

40 yard dash: first, Stover, Sigma Chi; second, Seiling, Sigma Phi Epsilon; third, Barrett, Kappa Sigma; fourth, Goodell, Sigma Phi Epsilon. Time 21 4-5.

100 yard breast stroke: first, Eielers, Sigma Chi; second, Haden, Sigma Alpha Epsilon; third, Holdoegel, Phi Kappa Psi, fourth, Ing-ham, Phi Gamma Delta. Time 1:40.

100 yard breast stroke: first, Swenson, Kappa Sigma; second, Nelson, Sigma Chi; third, Thomas, Sigma Phi Epsilon; fourth, McCullough, Kappa Sigma. Time 1:33.

100 yard easy style: first, Stover, Sigma Chi; second, Goodell, Sigma Phi Epsilon; third, Goltman, Kappa Sigma, fourth, Shakely, Sigma Alpha Epsilon. Time 1:03 4-5.

220 yard easy style: first, Goltman, Kappa Sigma; second, Goodell, Sigma Phi Epsilon; third, Marquardt, Delta Tau Delta; fourth, Shollenberger, Phi Delta Theta. Time 3:05 2-5.

Plunge for distance: first, Bane, Delta Kappa Gamma; second, Marsh, Sigma Chi; third, Short, Phi Delta Theta; fourth, Sage, Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Mr. Ex-Service Man:—

What have you done with your Government Insurance? Are you still taking advantage of its protection, or are you allowing your loved ones, those who may suffer in case of your death, to carry the full load of risk? Why not share the risk with two million other young Americans so your loved ones will be taken care of if you have to leave them?

Have you dropped your insurance because you thought it was War Insurance only? Or because after your discharge you were not able to meet the monthly premiums? If you have, now is your chance to reinstate it, and to change it into the BEST FORM OF INSURANCE ON EARTH.

Now listen—you can reinstate your War Risk Insurance by paying two monthly premiums, no matter when your insurance lapsed. Isn't it easy? Then you have five years in which to change it into some form of regular "old line" insurance, and you'll have the best insurance in the world, at the cheapest rate.

If you were disabled in the service you can reinstate your policy by paying all back premiums instead of only two. Unfair to the disabled man? No, because you see, it is probable that, having lapsed your policy, you would be entirely unable to secure insurance from any private insurance company. The Government is offering you something no company on earth would offer you.

You cannot reinstate your Insurance after December 31, 1921.

A Representative of the Vocational Board from Cedar Rapids will be at the Red Cross Office, City Hall, Tuesday, December 13. Come in and let him talk Government Insurance to you. Bring your Insurance Certificate number.
