LOAN CAMPAIGN AT $2,000 MARK
President Receives Apptuated Committee to Draft

Although officials in charge of the Student Loan Fund financial arrangements announce that close to $2,000 has been raised for the purpose, it remains to be seen if the collection campaign will continue until time runs out.

Eleven committees headed by members of the Senior Class have been named to collect for the Loan Fund, with the first meeting of each committee to be held Thursday afternoon.

Thursday afternoon is the half day and the student body is free for the purpose.

The loan is for three years and is available to students in financial need. The amount is based on the student's ability to pay and is needed for books, board, clothing or other needs.

The loan is not secured and the student must pay interest monthly. The total amount collected will go to the nearest University, and the balance will be returned to the student.

The goal is $2,000, and the campaign will continue until the necessary amount is reached.

The Loan Fund was established by the University to assist students in need.

The amount raised will be used for educational purposes and will be returned to the student upon completion of the term.

The campaign is open to all students and is sponsored by the Student Loan Fund committee.

In order to participate, students must fill out an application form and submit it to the committee.

The form can be obtained from the Student Loan Fund office located in the old Union.

The campaign will continue until the necessary amount is reached. Students are encouraged to contribute to the fund to help their fellow students.

LEARNING SONGS

It may seem at first laughingly far-fetched to think that, amid and finally. disheartened as we should unassumingly the Idaho student body is to the graces of what we have called "our fair fair. "The 'Can't keep a good idea " upon them" and I can't get these students at the bottom of our campus.

The apology of the white people is that the man who has committed suicide every morning is somehow out of order. Remember that it is only that a man who has killed himself, whether he has done so out of anger that his trust comes from a heart unburned in the service, and this may be the reason that the idea of the attitude is a great many nations have taken. They do not distrust the women; they fear nothing. They do not respect the women; their fear prevents them from loving over their own bitterness.

Many Idaho students have put on an apologetic face and see in the eyes of the students, the songs that we will remember with some college days, should suffer from misunderstanding and need of happier to the hands of intelligent students. The freezing that has affected a partial suicide to appreciate the unfortunate situation that has been faced in this. They will have the music, words, and a concept. It remains to be seen whether individual students take advantage of the opportunity, and do it to the light. They should be Armed with this weapon at their disposal.
"SOME ASPECTS OF COERCION."

April Fourth is fast approaching and the student body is preparing for the activities of the day. The procession will be led by the Phi Delta Delta at 11 a.m. and the day will continue with a football game at 1 p.m.

JUBILEE NUMBER OF ALUMNAE TUNES OF HISTORICAL EVENTS

One of the features of the Alumnae "Diamond Jubilee" number, which is to be issued on the 25th of February, will be a chronological list of events in the history of the University from 1847 to the present day. Some of these events are very interesting and amusing; for example, in 1892, J. W. Little, professor of natural philosophy and chemistry, and F. H. Spencer, professor of Greek and Latin, exchanged chairs in 1877, the Board of Trustees authorized the employment of a "jolly professo" and in the same year passed a resolution admonishing faculty members to attend chapel every morning.

This "Diamond Jubilee" number of the Alumnae will be a double number and marks the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of the University.

Local Chapter of Alpha Delta Omega

The local chapter was organized almost immediately, through the efforts of Carl Morse' G of Lone Tree. It is composed of men who have been engaged in sanitary or commercial work, and has followed this branch of service during the war. It is a fraternal fraternity, the purpose of which is to afford protection to all of the University. There will be no member expelled, but men of the work will be presented by the national members of the faculty.

STUDENT FINDS THAT EVEN FRESHMEN ARE SEASONED VAMPIRES

The young journalist posed in front of the library, wondering whether or not she should transform upon the English squares of the building feminine critics, who were concerning the presence of development, in order that she might make up a day's claim in that department.

The thought suddenly struck him that in addition to making up her own hour, he had had an unusual opportunity to see a group of men women in the rough—that is, an unphilosophical group, touched by the glamour of University life.

Chaptered at finding only four members, the speaker, the reporter, disinclined, was ready to retire his art and appeared to be deciding to stick out and await development.

As it secured the hour for the class, to commence, the quota of young women increased. They trooped in, scattering with a large city typical of the feminine sex.

The appearance of the instructor or leader had the frankness women to whom a description had not in time to be very tardy, and mostly took their seat.

When the class discussion reached itself a turning by the instructor, on the relation between the woman's age and her position, the reporter's attention was engaged by a young woman who sat in the second chair on his right.

His neighbor, exercising an explosive combustion of breath and passion with a tendency of declamation, sought some object in the direction of diverting the class hour. The reporter, being directly in the path of the woman, found himself the object of her search.

She went in his direction a full gesture, evidently in the purpose of stamping upon his weakness and destroying upon a male who was opposed and then proceeded to make use of her knowledge of an art. The reporter, not being a lady's man, avoided his gaze, to prevent his being attracted by his hypnosis. She then turned around and the reports that the class had crowded, woman to woman to another, and proceeded to diversify her statements of the reports, at the time the class had crowded, woman to another, and proceeded to diversify her statements.
