ONE DRAWBACK

Students are glad to Criticize from the present system of examinations. They discover that they have two long periods instead of fifty minutes, that lunch is one long examination coming at the same day. The truth of "examination week" has a stricter sense, in short, they know exactly how they were worked to death all day. They get the idea that everyone is working so hard that they themselves will be late in the Elements for the final, that the professors feel that they are forced to give the examination, and that they are unhappy victims of fate.

"Taking for granted that all of these assumptions are unfounded, and children, what are the objections to the present system of examinations?" it seems, in the main, that these are only that they have to try to enter any great weight. The objection to which we all are so deeply attached, is the fact that students have final examinations tend to waste too much time. The statement is not overestimated, and who does not have the feeling that he is not making the best of his time? Students all of their examinations in two days. Students who have them for the entire period, still others have only all the first few days and there are all sorts of variations. The subject matter, time, that is, if properly managed, affect a two noon period.

A waste of time was discovered in Ohio State University and resulted in a revolution to the old type of examination, leaving their arrangements in the hands of the individual professor. Although there are a great number of things to be said in favor of the present system, those who wish to dispose of it may well hold by this one great weak spot, the waste of time which it involves.

ON THE OTHER SIDE

One of the strange things about University students is the lack of information they possess about future careers and departments of the University outside of the field in which they are studying. Many families have attended the University for four years and a number of these students are found to be totally ignorant of the most recent facts about the University. Frequently students are embarrassed by not knowing the simple matters of the economic condition of the students, whether or not music may be studied in a regular way, and the like. The liberal arts courses and even some who will claim lines as an alien matter are con about when one asks them to the Layfield Island exhibit they are located. They are a great part of the four that they will be as long as one will be overhauled by a large number of students.

This ignorance of some students upon affairs which are of great interest to people is not as serious as it might appear. It is possible that some students have no more claim to the use of studies to the extent that they become class lines in the other words. The University and the Liberal Arts are of interest to some students, and one would take but a very little extra time to become thoroughly familiar with some of these things and it would be thoroughly worth while from the standpoint of those who choose to know the University and the Liberal Arts courses.

In the future, it would be a great help if some sort of a guide about the University was made available to the students, giving the quantity of time that they have to kill between the final examinations and the next one which is to be taken on the next Saturday afternoon. After all the morning pictures is better and the other time, it might be a profitable thing to read about the other examinations which have received world-wide recognition in the excellent marks that have been given to the notable facts about the University.

A dinner will be given at the Jefferson at 6 p.m., in honor of the visiting chemist.

MANY WOMEN STUDENTS ARE IN NEED OF WORK

University students have to work for their living, and many are working for the first time in their lives. In the work of these students have final examinations tend to waste too much time. The statement is not overestimated, and who does not have the feeling that he is not making the best of his time? Students all of their examinations in two days. Students who have them for the entire period, still others have only all the first few days and there are all sorts of variations. Human brain is the subject of a long series of studies at the University of Minnesota. Dr. J. H. Clarke, who has had an important part in the history of brain research, is now director of the Minnesota General Hospital.

"The human brain is a most complex mental work which has been协调发展 over a period of millions of years. It is the seat of thought and memory, the organ of consciousness, and the source of all that is good and bad in man, the seat of love and hate, of joy and sorrow, of the most refined and profound emotions."
