MAJORITY OF MERCHANTS STILL SILENT WHEN MANY STUDENTS OPEN FOR BUSINESS OF OY-COTT

MAJORITY Wont Comment

"We have no choice," the president of the local merchants' association said, "if any store wants to stay open it must do so within the time anticipated. For the past few years, the situation has been unsteady, and the work commonly performed by the laborer of the local merchants has been subjected to frequent changes."

The chief executive committee has recommended that the prices charged for gasoline and other commodities in Iowa City be increased, and that the merchants take advantage of the opportunity to make their own prices.

On a recent visit to the town, the chief executive committee of the local merchants' association found a large number of stores closed, and most of them not in business at all. The committee has recommended that the merchants take advantage of the situation to increase their prices, and that the local merchants' association adopt a policy of increasing prices for gasoline and other commodities in Iowa City.

FIVE-YEARS MORE TO HAWKEYE ARE SOLD

Over a dozen people showed up at the University of Iowa's annual trip to the University of Wisconsin, many of whom were looking forward to the event. The trip is a popular annual event, and this year it drew a large crowd.

"It is a great trip," one of the people who came to the annual trip said. "We look forward to it every year."
APPRECIATE THEM!

Appreciation for all the opportunities we have, is achieved by students. University men and women are a chosen few, a minority of the whole population of Iowa, and a small percentage of the people of our age. We are getting what the country owes, and we are not even any duties to our country, we are not even in the right to expect. We are living in a world of opportunity, how much more is that true of the one in which we live. We are driven by the same forces that drive the generation that is supposed to be our predecessors.

Dr. Gustave Heinrichs of the University of Iowa college of education demonstrated a systematic method of planting good and which raised little saints, the first plantings in taking place last year.

Institutions like those in our country, are under financial stress. Whereas this is the right state of the century in the world, the institutions have to the point, and no service is expected that that in which we are involved, every one.

Promises for our country, and the institutions are expressed in the right state of the century in the world. The proposition is to give all students interested.

LIMITED SENSIBILITY

Preparations are being made to have the Section Bop on Friday, March 3, according to Joseph C. Corley Ld of Marshalltown, chairman of the committee. The committee which was appointed Thursday by Thomas E. Henry, Jr. of Little Sioux, was set earlier. The plans are now in hand, and the committee was appointed to make the necessary arrangements for the event.

The tickets will probably be sold on sale at Whetstone's about the middle of next week, according to Corley. "Attendants at the formal will be limited to 200 couples and as many tickets will be sold," he said.

CONFERENCE OF TEACHERS WILL CLOSE TODAY

Combing from more than thirty cities and towns of the state, fifty history teachers in secondary schools are attending the second annual history conference, which is held here under the auspices of the history department of the University. The first session of the conference last evening was well attended.

Starts 9 o'clock

The last session of the conference is to meet at 9 o'clock this morning, at the liberal arts assembly hall. Prof. J. C. Partlow of the history department will preside over the meeting.

The general subject is "The what and how of social science in the school curriculum." Prof. Daniel C. Knowlton of the history high school of the Teachers college of New York City will present a paper on "The problem of correlating the social studies," and Prof. Knowlton believes that America can be efficiently taught by the proper instruction of the social studies in the schools and colleges and that the secondary schools are the most effective places where it can be taught in the youth.

Prof. Paul M. Day of the University of Nebraska will talk on "Philosophy of a world of science," and Professor Fling who had spent twenty years teaching in the University of Nebraska, and during that time was written as one of the method of teaching history, entitled "A book of Iowa history." At the afternoon session of the conference today he talked on "The guiding principles in the use of course materials." He impressed the idea that the most important factor in the method of teaching history is to grasp the true spirit of writing at the facts of history.

McHenry Speaks Last

Prof. L. McCarty of the history department will be the last speaker, and will present a paper on "A project method of teaching history.

The first session of the conference, yesterday was opened by an address of welcome of President Walter A. Jessup. The meeting was presided over by Prof. A. M. Schlichting, head of the history department. The speakers on the general subject, "Geography and history," were: Ellen Connor of the Clark University, of Worcester, Mass., Prof. Louis Poins and Prof. Clara M. Dibb of the history department.

At the afternoon session, which was presided over by Prof. G. G. Bagdon, Professor Fling, Prof. W. H. Swartt, and Prof. Sara M. McMillan of the Iowa State Teachers college of Cedar Falls, spoke in the subject, "Guiding principles in the use of course materials -- Open Question Bacon Following the afternoon session, there was a complimentary tea for the women of the University club at the dinner session the questions boxes were opened, and questions regarding the subject of history were answered.

The Seventh Day

A wonderful love story enacted on the rugged coast of Maine—splendid sea scenery—dramatically free—with a dash of real life homos.

We are crowding seven days' enjoyment into four days but do not wait until the fourth day to see "The Seventh Day!"
