Unprecedented difference between the up-and-comers and the professionals in any field has been shown in the boxing classes for freshmen and sophomores this winter and the prospects of some of these classes is bound to give the holders of the titles in the different weights some real competition when the season starts. Nearly all of these men will probably enter the tournament and practically all will fight in the lighter classes, and the boxing who are really good are perhaps more numerous this year than ever before. Some very interesting matches are taking place daily in the two round bouts of one minute each that are being held every day in the different classes, several under the superintendence of L. M. Wycors, full paid champion of last year. Special emphasis is being placed on the proper use of the hands for guarding and also for lead with the left. The value of fundamentals is also being taught with the weight lighter title weight, and they are making rapid strides toward perfection in readying the ring game, he will not compete.
