IOWA WOMEN REFUSE THE EASTERN "FADS"

"The stream of eastern nonsense, and shall be taken up by the most enthusiastic of kittens and pug sticks claims that they are a mill to those of the popular waves. After nearly a day of display in the window, not one of the sticks has been sold, although any followers of the smart set know that the women there are all housing along on these peculiar novelties.

As far as "kittens" are concerned, it is a year or so since they were shown in fashion plates and since that time, they have made less than half a show appearance on the campus.

Some excuse could be given for the fact that nobody has been taught jumping down Washington street. It takes more skill to operate the sticks successfully than it does to follow a correspondence course on "How to Become Graceful." It is too leisurely. After the first week or so of practice, the novice has much in common with the small boy who has his first pair of stilts.

It might be surmised, if there were any sale for pug sticks, that there were a few less people practicing after dark along side streets. But I believe the indications seem love, women are about as anxious to follow their head-boards and New York sisters in this respect as they were in the matter of the kittens, and the initials made out of plaited grass are the forerunners.

IOWAN TRUSTEES TO BE ELECTED MAY 4

Two undergraduate students will be chosen for the Daily Iowa board of trustees at an election to be held in May or April. Any sophomore who has completed at least forty-five hours of college work and is in good standing is eligible.

Each candidate is nominated on a petition signed by twenty-five men, and his one term as a paid-up subscriber to the Daily Iowa. Each petition must be presented to the registrar of the University showing the names of the University students who have been enrolled, and must be presented by the President of the University, C. B. Martin, chairman of the board not later than two weeks before the date of voting.

The board of trustees consists of seven members, three of whom are faculty members appointed by the president for each year. Each of the four student members serves a term of two years, with the possibility of four years. W. O. Moore, L. S. L. and E. J. E. Hemp have been in the University, and must be presented to the President of the University, C. B. Martin, chairman of the board not later than two weeks before the date of voting.
