TENNIS COURTS SCARCE BECAUSE GROUNDS AND MONEY ARE LACKING, SAYS FISK; QUAD MAY BE USED

Professor Stone Thinks Tennis

Iowa, June 18—Professor J. A. Stone, athletic director of the University, announced today that there will be a shortage of tennis courts during the coming year because of lack of funds and lack of suitable grounds and buildings. The University tennis courts are now overcrowded, and it is desirable to have some additional courts. Professor Stone said:

"It is necessary that we have more tennis courts, because the present ones are not sufficient for the demand. The present courts are not large enough, and there is a great demand for them. We need at least three more courts, and they should be located in a suitable place."

Additional features in the tennis situation include the need for better lighting. "The courts are too dark and it is difficult to play at night," said Professor Stone. "We need better lighting so that we can play tennis at night as well as during the day."

A new tablespoon of sand will be added to the courts, and it is hoped that this will improve the playing surface."

Professor Stone also announced that he would like to have a new athletic building constructed. "We need a new building to house the athletic equipment and provide better facilities for the athletes," he said. "The present building is too small and does not provide adequate facilities."
AN EXAMPLE

The three women who recently represented Iowa against Indiana in debate represented her in a way that she can hardly approve. Here is what they did: they debated a proposition, the statement of which was misunderstood by the two teams and caused to their opposite the prejudices of arguing against its own understanding of its wording, thus admitting into the discussion a significant phrase of the question which was not prepared for by the Iowa debaters; because of a misunderstanding as to the length of the constructive speeches they were considered to have made one vote more of time than they actually did.
