TWO THOUSAND ATTEND ANNUAL COMMENCEMENT

Certificates and Degrees are Presented to 765 Graduates

GIDDINGS GIVES ADDRESS

Honorary Degrees Awarded to Stefansson and Giddings

More than 2,000 persons attended the Sixty-Second Annual University Commencement exercises held at 9 a. m. on the Old Capitol campus Tuesday. Certificates and degrees were granted to 765, besides two honorary degrees granted to Franklin H. Giddings and Vilhjalmur Stefansson.

Mr. Giddings gave the commencement address, and Mr. Stefansson attended the exercises and spoke at the University of Iowa luncheon Tuesday noon. Giddings is in 'sociological work and Stefansson, who was graduated from the University in 1903, has done important work in natural science and exploration. Both were granted LL.D. degrees.

When duplications in certificates granted to persons having other degrees are counted out, 615 persons received the degrees. Reserve officers' commissions were granted to twenty-six University men who have completed the four-year course in the department of military science and tactics. B. A. degrees were given to 251. The next largest class was the bachelor of science group of 110. Certificates in education were given to 134.

The first degree of bachelor of science in pharmacy ever granted by the University was given to Edwin Allen Nixon Tuesday. Fifty masters' degrees and eleven doctor of philosophy degrees were granted.

The largest professional class was the law, with forty-four graduates, and the dentistry college was a close second with thirty-nine. Thirty-eight were graduated from medicine.

The commencement programs containing the complete list of degrees and awards were in such demand that the supply was exhausted before the completion of the exercises, although 2,000 had been printed.

The commencement address by Franklin H. Giddings proved popular with the large crowd and he was frequently interrupted by applause. He

MAXIMS, PROVERBS, AND OBSERVATIONS FROM THE COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS

Americans are developing into a race of nervous, high-strung persons who are easily hurt if they do not succeed in the mad rush for material wealth.

One of the fundamental lessons which the church of America must teach is that it is a sin to bring into the world children who can bring to it nothing but sin and sorrow.

You can train a horse, but you cannot change the horsepower after the animal is born.

People can be trained just as horses are trained; some persons can learn more than a horse.

Each generation is passing down to the next a heavier burden.

The increased strain on men can be met in two ways. You can either simplify the machine or improve the race of men.

When men come to make only those laws which they expect to obey, most of the politicians of the country will be out of a job.

Americans, by attempting to settle everything by making laws, are overworking the government, and the strain is shown in inefficiency and corruption.

The world tends today to move by revolution, apparently not realizing that delicacy, permanence, and beauty can only be achieved by evolution.

We need a new kind of vigilance committee, one that will get back of the laws and see that only good ones are made.

When the economists speak of the standard of living today they do not refer to moral or social standards, but to costlier food, better clothing, and, save the mark, more movies.

In order to secure the luxuries of the material world, the present generation is rearing small families and gradually passing the leadership of the country to the natives of South European countries. I have nothing to say against these South Europeans, but I love the people here more.

PRESIDENT AND SUMMER SESSION DIRECTOR WELCOME STUDENTS TO THE UNIVERSITY

Walter A. Jessup
President of University

The Summer School as it exists today is unquestionably one of the most notable developments in American education. Its facilities and number of students equal those of the whole year of not long ago. Its standards are high. Moreover, it somehow possesses a freshness which is all its own. Probably the majority of university teachers find the summer work more stimulating than the rest of the year. So, too, may their students. The Summer Session of the University of Iowa welcomes you, both old-timers and new-comers. Take from its storehouses all that it holds for you. Fill yourselves with the summer's charm. You are welcome to Iowa.

W. A. JESSUP.

Charles H. Weller
Director of Summer Session

"If you don't see what you want, ask for it." The hackneyed legend which one sometimes sees above a merchant's counter expresses fairly well our feelings and desires relative to the Summer Session. To the limit of our powers and knowledge we have tried to meet the needs and wishes of our summer students. If there is anything more that we could or should have done, "ask for it." We want you to feel at the end of the Summer Session that this has been the pleasantest and most profitable summer of your experience. At the same time it is our aim to remind you that the fulfillment of this double aim rests largely in your own hands. Hard work gives both pleasure and profit. So does a confident, cheerful attitude. Do not forget that by registering as a student of Iowa you have become a part of the institution. Realize, therefore, that Iowa is now your alma mater, not merely a place where for a time you will pursue your own studies for your own benefit. Unless you do in a measure enter in that spirit, you will lose a part of the blessing of the institution. We extend to you a most hearty welcome.

C. H. WELLER.

400 ATTEND U LUNCHEON

Program 'Boxes the Compass'; Stefansson Talks of North

Over 400 alumni, faculty members and visitors attended the University luncheon in the women's gymnasium Tuesday noon after the Commencement exercises.

The toast program was entitled "Boxing The Compass", and included a series of appropriately designated speeches announced by Harry E. Kelly '92, M.A. '97, the newly elected president of the University of Iowa association, as captain. The points of the compass were as follows:

"The Frozen North"—Vilhjalmur Stefansson, '03, LL.D., '22.

"The Burning South"—Albert C. Wilcox '19.

"The Effete East"—Franklin H. Giddings, LL.D. '22.

"The Woolly West"—Harry W. Hanson '97, LL.B. '98.

"Taking on the Pilot"—Walter A. Jessup.

North Not Frozen

"The Frozen North" is not frozen; nor is "the burning South" as hot as some people imagine, the "effete East" is moving west, and the "wooly West" is not astoundingly woolly was the consensus of the opinions of those

REGISTRATION FOR SUMMER BEGINS TODAY

Line Forms in Natural Science and Liberal Arts Buildings

RULES ARE ANNOUNCED

Tuition Fee is Fifteen Dollars for First Six Weeks' Session

Registration for the summer session will open this morning, allowing three days to complete the work before the opening of classes Monday morning. The registrar's office distributed registration material to several students yesterday afternoon, so it is expected that the actual machinery of registration will be in full operation soon after the offices are opened.

Since administrative offices have all been moved on account of the repairs to the Old Capitol building, the registration will center in the liberal arts and natural science buildings. Faculty advisers will sit at a long table which has already been installed in the ground floor hall of liberal arts building.

Registrar Gives Procedure

Complete rules of procedure for students, as announced by the registrar yesterday afternoon, follow:

All new students entering this University for the first time should secure admission cards at the University examiner's office, located in room 104, north end of main floor of the law building.

Students who have before been registered in this University secure their fee cards at the south end of main floor of liberal arts building.

Fees Come First

All students should then proceed to the secretary's office, room 116 natural science building, to pay their fees. Upon presenting remainder of the fee card, which the secretary returns to you at the distribution tables, located in the south end of the liberal arts building, registration materials will be given to you.

If you desire any information relative to courses confer with the advisers located in the basement of the liberal arts building.

If you are near graduation or expect to receive your degree this summer, confer with your major adviser and secure his signature, also with the assistant registrar, who will aid you in determining what further work it is necessary for you to do, in order to meet the requirements outlined for the degree which you expect to take.

Deposit Cards With Checker

After you have filled out your study-list completely, neatly and accurately, deposit it with your fee card and class cards at the checker's table, second floor of the law building.

Tuition in the summer session will be $15 for the first six weeks' period and $12.50 for the five weeks' term. A few Carr scholarships will be available, and discharged soldiers and sailors will be granted rebates of $5.45 and $4.55 on the two terms. These tuition rates apply to the colleges of liberal arts, education, commerce and applied science. Tuition in the graduate college will be free.

To Hold Assemblies Weekly

Entrance requirements for the summer are the same as for any other University session. A convocation will be held at the close of each period for the granting of degrees. General assemblies will be held once each week.

The majority of the courses listed in the summer session schedule are to hold classes daily.

SHAKE

It seems hardly possible that any summer session can have come to town so stealthily or have been so hard of hearing or dull of eyesight that he has not already been welcomed half a dozen or more times. This is the open season for welcoming at the University. Everybody's doing it. Please consider yourself given the right hand of fellowship and taught all the secrets of the order.

All you have to do now is pass the welcome along. Other students will be registering day by day. Say, "Hello," when you pass them on the campus and smile while you are saying it. Make even the new members of the faculty feel that someone besides the real estate agents is glad to see them.

The Iowan, unfortunately, has something to sell—see the snappy advertisements of the circulation manager, they're everywhere—but The Iowan's welcome is just as warm to non-subscribers as it is to subscribers. You will all read the paper anyway, and that is what interests our advertisers—patronize them all, if you like.

What you are here for primarily is knowledge, but we want you to have a good time while you are getting it. The Iowan is not giving any advice to the lovelorn and is not writing English themes for dumbbells, but you can call on us for almost anything else that will help to make your stay here pleasant. We know where the good picnic grounds are, and how to get a tennis opponent, and even how to conduct yourself through some of the lesser intricacies of registering. Come in and use one of our typewriters; we'll even furnish the paper if we like your looks. You know, now you're here, make yourself at home. We're glad you came.

The only thing worse than listening to an old woman of either sex complain about the heat in the summer is to hear the same person anathematize the cold in the winter.

The leading statistician west of the Mississippi has just announced that of the 1342 students who have 7 o'clocks 1339 will get their breakfast between 7:50 and 8.

SOCIETY

O. E. Van Doren, director of the University band, has been engaged for three months to direct the senior band at St. Ansgar.

Dances will be held at the city park pavilion on Friday and Saturday nights throughout the summer, starting tomorrow night. Varsity orchestra will play. W. J. McDonald will chaperon this Friday and I. G. De France Saturday.

Pauline Hetzel has secured a position to teach in the schools of Avoca, Iowa, her home.

advocated a simplification of the social, political and economic life of the nation as a remedy for the nervousness and unrest of the people, which he attributed to the great strain of increasing complexity of life.

He told of the great devastating effect of the recent war, both in material destruction and upon the minds of men. He said: "Thoughtful men are asking whether civilization has passed the zenith of its glory and now must fail."

As an alternative to this simplification, Giddings suggested the improvement of the human race by selection, to meet the increased load. He criticized severely the American attitude of making laws which the people would not, and did not intend to obey. He holds that if the people make only those laws which are absolutely necessary, the simplification would be achieved and there would be more respect for the laws.

The invocation Tuesday was given by the Reverend Ray Earl York, chaplain of the day. Prof. Charles Bundy Wilson, of the department of German, was master of ceremonies. The program was opened by the singing of Old Gold and closed with America.

The winners of twenty-nine general University prizes and honors in activities and scholarship, and nineteen military department honors, were announced in the program. The only prizes in these lists not published before were the Intercollegiate Conference Athletic association medal for excellence in scholarship and athletics, which was awarded to Aubrey A. Devine, and the Athletic Board cup for general excellence in scholarship and athletics to Lester C. Belding.

who spoke on the subjects dealing with these various sections of the world, to which alumni have travelled.

Mr. Stefansson, in his talk about the Northland, said the arctic regions were far different than the average person thinks them to be. "The place that is the coldest spot in the world during the winter is five degrees warmer today than here in Iowa City", he said, "and often the temperature there rises to above ninety degrees in the summer time." He compared the prevailing opinion of the North with the false impressions of Illinois which early settlers from the South received when they attempted to raise cotton there and with those which pioneers in Dakota received when they tried to raise corn instead of something for which the soil was suited. His final message was "The world is growing and we are making the far North really habitable."

"Neither is the burning South as hot as some people imagine", said Mr. Wilcox in his talk, "although a great deal depends upon the part of the South one is in." In respect to changes in social conditions in this country during the last century, he said "We have been developing a new tradition. America, until recently, was the most self-centered nation in the world. Recent events have caused us to review the situation, and as a result we are outgrowing our youth and are realizing our place in the world. A real knowledge of the world is necessary", he concluded "to complete understanding of the real meaning of internationalism."

East Moving West
Mr. Giddings' speech dealt not so much with the effete East as with how the East is moving west. He traced the westward movement from the times of Noah, Solomon, and Paul down to the present time in clever style, and he said "The world is still going west". However he added that the West would do well to take the best of the effete East and be benefited by what has been done there.

 Harry W. Hanson was greeted by a rousing yell from the class of '97, twenty-nine strong, which brought a round of applause from the other classes. His talk went back to the oft-heard advice "Go West, young man, go West", which he said was heard by the East and answered, with the result that the civilization of the East had been a guiding destiny of the western population. Mr. Hanson told of the part Iowa people have played in California and said that at a recent Iowa picnic in Los Angeles, over 100,000 Iowans were in attendance. The life of California is being materially moulded by Iowa people, he said. In closing, he said "On behalf of the alumni of the West, I extend to you our steadfast loyalty and affectionate fidelity, which we all feel in this, our common alma mater."

Jessup Speaks
 President Jessup's speech dealt with the need for more educational standards. He traced the progress of education in Iowa, showing how the educational system had developed so that in a comparatively short period of years, there are now 70,000 students in Iowa high schools, and although only a few years ago, the number of students in the University was quite small, there are now over 6,000 students here, a large faculty, and thousands of alumni all over the world.

He said "The alumni have an opportunity to register for definite advances in education." He cited numerous examples of students who had been refused admission to the professional colleges because of lack of room to handle them, and suggested the power of alumni in helping overcome present difficulties.
 President Emeritus McBride was called on for a short talk and responded by comparing the various types of weather represented by the points of the compass and expressed his pleasure that the Commencement exercises here had been favored with such splendid weather during the past few days. He greeted all alumni of the University, and complimented them upon their successful reunion this year. His word to all was to "Listen to the man with a message".
