Wireless Telephone Now Being Installed; Increase Equipment

CAN HEAR 500 MILES NOW

University Has Conducted a Wireless Station Since 1913

A three-hour course in wireless instruction will be offered by Prof. Arthur H. Ford, head of the electrical engineering department, next semester. Formerly senior engineers alone have received this instruction, but this course will also be open to liberal arts students who have had enough physics. If there is demand the course will be continued during the second semester.

The University installed and first began to operate a wireless telegraph in 1913. Every year changes have been made and new equipment added until now there are virtually three receiving sets. With these any wave length up to 10,000 meters can be received. Part of the original sending outfit is still in use.

Last April the wireless telephone was installed. An operator was placed in charge of the station, which was in daily use up until commencement time. On special occasions the sending machinery was transferred to the school of music building or the natural science auditorium to broadcast a program as was done with the program of the Great Lakes string quartet.

The telephone is able to broadcast about 200 miles under ordinary conditions. When the atmosphere is just right a distance of 500 miles can be reached. It can pick up messages from as far as Denver, Pittsburgh, and Detroit, and several times Los Angeles has been heard. The telegraph can receive from much greater distances,—European stations, ships at sea, distant islands,—from practically any part of the world.

The telephone is only temporarily installed and has about a quarter of the power it will have when installation is complete. By the first of September more equipment will be added so that it will have twice the present sending power. Later the work will be completed.

At present the station is hindered by the high resistance of the ground wire. It has been grounded to the water pipes and the steam pipes, but for some reason the resistance is still high. The receiving apparatus is very delicate and receiving is hindered by an electric storm, the operation of the x-ray machine in a nearby room, or the electric generator in the next building.

ORCHESTRA TO APPEAR IN CONCERT FRIDAY

The University summer session orchestra will give an entertainment next Friday evening to take the place of the plays which had to be postponed because of Prof. E. C. Mabie's recent illness.

Professor Philip G. Clapp, director of the school of music, stated that the program was not yet completed. The University chorus will probably appear, though it can not be stated for certain. Because of its being a voluntary organization, Professor Clapp wants a vote to be taken by its members as to whether it shall appear or not. Selections will also be given by members of the faculty and some of the students of the summer session.

ANY ONE CAN SWIM AFTER HALF AN HOUR OF INTELLIGENT PRACTICE, SAYS SCHROEDER

"Any man can learn to swim in less than thirty minutes, if he has the proper coordination, and confidence in himself and in the instructor" according to E. G. Schroeder, director of physical education for men. "By telling him just what to do and getting him to believe in himself, he can be able to swim across the pool in fifteen minutes. The beginner is first instructed to hang on to the side of the pool and to work his legs correctly. This can be accomplished in a minute or two, and he is next told to stand away from the wall then lean face downward in the water and to work his arms. As soon as he understands the arm movements he again hangs to the side of the pool and is told to work his legs then to let loose of the tank and to work both arms as he did in the second step. By having confidence and by being able to work his arms and legs in coordination, a man can swim from the center of the pool to the side and have the foundation to build on. The whole secret of swimming is coordination and confidence."

The pool is open daily from 2 until 6 p. m. for University students, and is open from 11 until 12 in the morning for grade school and high school pupils. There are about 15 from the grade schools who are taking swimming, and ten in the high school group. In the classes for University men, the beginner's class has approximately ten members, and the intermediate class has twenty. All classes are in charge of Iliff Shepherd, captain of last year's swimming team. More than fifty men take recreational swimming, some of them just to get cooled off, others who practice distance swimming, or fancy diving. There is also a group of ten or twelve who spend most of their time in the pool playing water tag. Classes in beginning and intermediate swimming will be open to those who desire to register in them for the second session of summer school.

The water for the pool comes from wells 1700 feet deep, and is always freshly filtered by being circulated continuously. It is tested daily for bacteria and treated so that it is more free from germs than the drinking water of Iowa City. The temperature of the water varies from 76 to 78 degrees and is kept constant by the new boilers which were installed this spring.

The pool is open to any man registered in the University, the only requirements being that the gym fee be paid at the secretary's office, and that bathing cap be worn.

HILLS TO DIRECT OAKDALE TRIP

Student Group to Start At 2:45 P. M. to Tuberculosis Hospital

An excursion will be taken tomorrow at 2:45 p. m. to the state tuberculosis sanatorium at Oakdale, under the direction of Prof. Elmer W. Hills, of the economics department. All persons desiring to make the trip should leave on the interurban at the time stated. The round-trip fare is $.48. Professor Hills will meet the party at Oakdale, as he is going by automobile.

The history of the sanatorium dates back to 1904, when the general assembly empowered the board of control to investigate the extent of tuberculosis in Iowa and best methods of prevention and treatment of the disease. Following the report of the board of control the thirty-first general assembly, in 1906, provided for its establishment. A tract containing 274.07 acres of land was purchased at a place five miles northwest of Iowa City at a cost of $26,207. A sum of $50,000 was also appropriated at that time for the construction of buildings.

The buildings now at Oakdale include the administration building, 64x74 feet in size, a brick building for a laundry 30 feet wide and 60 feet long, two pavilions for patients, each 24x240 feet, a three-story brick hospital, a cow barn 36 feet in width and 84 feet in length, and two concrete silos, 16 feet in diameter and 38 feet high, besides numerous buildings for employees and equipment.

The sanitorium is in control of the board of control for state institutions. The superintendent and employees in charge are appointed by this board. A total sum of $371,000 is now appropriated, every two years, for buildings, contingents, supplies and repair work. An additional amount of $65 a month is allowed for each patient. This does not mean that the state pays for individual treatment, for that is taken care of by each county. The $65 represents an additional appropriation for every patient.

'SHOW SHOP' TO APPEAR JULY 19

Out-of-Door Players to Give Play Presented Last Winter

The Out-of-Door Players will present the "Show Shop," a farcical comedy by James Forbes, on July 19. The "Show Shop" is a satire on back stage life centering around the troubles of a Jewish manager and a stage mother whose sole desire is to get her daughter on Broadway.

The first act takes place in the office of Max Rosenbaum, a theatrical manager. The scene of the second is laid in the parlor of the Palace hotel at Punxsutaung. The fun reaches its climax in the third act, which features a dress rehearsal of the play, "Dora's Delemma." This dress rehearsal brings together all the comedy and ridiculous situations which those acquainted with the back stage can especially appreciate. The entire act is a battle of wit between the leading man, Jerome Belden, and Mrs. Dean, the stage mother, with an occasional burst of fire from Rosenbaum and Mr. Tompkins, the stage manager.

This play was given in the University theater last year by the Octave Thanet and Philomathian literary societies under the direction of Miss Gladys Fie.

Forbes characterizes his play as "something about the stage." The play depicts modern life in every respect. The "Show Shop" brings in an extra element in comedy in that it is a show from both sides of the foot-lights.

Rehearsals under the direction of Frederick W. Brown of the department of speech, are now being held. Owing to the illness of Prof. E. C. Mabie the play, "As You Like it," has been given up and part of the cast is being worked into the "Show Shop." Announcement of the twenty-one characters will be made later.

Miss Bessie E. Stover, head cataloguer of the University library, left Saturday morning for a month's vavation. She will visit in Des Moines and other points in Iowa.

INTRAMURAL TRACK MEET WILL BE HELD FRIDAY AT 3 O'CLOCK

The intramural track meet will be run off next Friday, July 14, at 3:00 p. m., instead of July 21, as announced in Sunday's Iowan. A number of names have already been signed on the entry blank in the main hallway of the men's gymnasium, and many more are expected.

There are thirty or more in the track coaching class, and most of these are expected to take part in the meet, as well as several others connected with the coaching courses.

Mr. George T. Bresnahan, cross country and track coach, said yesterday: "While not many names have as yet been signed to the entry blank, there are a number of men in my track class who will probably be in the meet, for instance Fulton of Buena Vista college, who is a good shot putter, Nichols of the Grinnell high school, and Markley of Oskaloosa. However, the meet is by no means confined to men of my class, anybody in the summer school is eligible and is urged to enter."

Men entering the meet will be divided into three teams, the captains of which will be F. R. Savage, J. R. Murphy, and G. D. Vosburg.

NATURALIST TO SPEAK TONIGHT

Rev. George Bennett Will Tell of Herbert K. Job's Life and Works

Rev. George Bennett will give a public lecture on the "Making of a Naturalist" at the liberal arts assembly this evening at 8 o'clock. Rev. Mr. Bennett will discuss the life and works of Herbert K. Job, the noted author and naturalist.

The lecture will be illustrated by slides from Mr. Job's large collection of bird photographs. Job was an associate of Theodore Roosevelt's. He has made frequent scientific expeditions to wilder parts of northwestern states, Canada, and the south, and has secured a large series of photographs and motion pictures of wild birds from life. He has written several books such as "The Sport of Bird Study" and "How to Study Birds." Rev. Mr. Bennett is personally acquainted with Mr. Job and is thus in a position to analyze his success.

Rev. Mr. Bennett is connected with the "National Association of Audubon Societies," is field representative of the Iowa Conservation association, editor of the association's official publication, and director of the American School of Wild Life. The school has convened for the past two years at McGregor, in August. The attendance for the two weeks' session was 300 persons.

The faculty for last year's session was composed almost entirely of professors from the state educational institutions. The University was represented by Dean George F. Kay, dean of the liberal arts college, who was head of the school's faculty, and Prof. Bohumil Shimek of the department of botany. "The purpose of the school," says Rev. Mr. Bennett, "is to educate the students along such phases of natural history as geology and botany. It is the only one in the United States, and probably in the world."

ALL IS READY FOR WOMEN'S DINNER TONIGHT

Guests to Wear Yellow Tags to Aid Get-Together Spirit

HONOR GUESTS INVITED

Toasts to Portray Woman of Past, Present and Future

Several hundred women will assemble tonight at the Burkley hotel for the first all-University women's dinner, to be held at the University. "Plans are complete for the Riutsu Egimto," said E. Roberta Anderson, one of the chairmen in charge of the dinner, "and we expect this to be the biggest event of the summer session."

The program, which is planned to portray woman's place in the world in the past, present and future, will be presented in the following sequences:

"The Schoolma'am's Mission," Miss Nell Maupin.

Songs, Southern Girls' club.

"Gone are the Days," University P. E. O.'s.

"As Others See Us," Miss Antonio Fischbacha.

Song, "Villanelle," by Dill Acqua, Jean Wolfe.

"Belles and Flappers," Pi Lambda Theta.

"In the Sweet Bye and Bye," Mrs. Carl E. Seashore.

Singing will be directed by Mrs. Mildred B. Paddock of the school of music. The program and menu are to be printed on Old Gold triangles and lettered in black. The menu will consist of cantaloupe, breaded pork tenderloin, mashed potatoes, Parker house rolls, combination fruit salad, wafers, lemon ice cream, cake and coffee.

The Burkley hall room, where the dinner is to be served, has been decorated to resemble a Japanese garden under the direction of the decorating committee. Elsie Knapp is chairman of this committee. Japanese lanterns will serve for lighting, with flowers and plants as a background for the stage and tables.

Every woman has been asked to bring the small yellow tag, which was given her when she bought her ticket, wearing the tag with the name on the outside. This will serve as a means to an informal get-acquainted spirit which is to be one of the essential features of the evening, and facilitate the success of the general mixer which will be held after the dinner is over.

Four honorary guests have been invited and have accepted the invitation to be present at the Riutsu Egimto: Mrs. Thomas H. McBride, Mrs. Carl E. Seashore, Mrs. A. N. Currier, and Mrs. Nellie S. Aurner. Mrs. Adelaide L. Burge, dean of women, has been extended an invitation, but she is at present on her vacation and it is uncertain if it will be possible for her to attend.

The reception committee will be there to receive the women as they arrive and to promote a general atmosphere of ease and friendliness.

Tickets will be on sale until this noon. Every woman who is on the ticket committee must report no later than 12 o'clock today. Miss Roberta Anderson will be in the Y. W. C. A. rooms this morning from 10 to 12, where every woman with tickets is to report. She will also have tickets for sale there if any one who wishes a ticket has not yet been supplied.

TOMORROW IS TOO LATE

Borrowed library books and umbrellas taken by mistake are all in the same category with promised tickets that are never purchased. Today is the last opportunity to make good your promise to take a ticket for the all-University women's dinner which will take place tonight. The committee has been working intensively to make this dinner a red letter affair in University activities, and the women who have pushed it deserve a great deal of credit for attempting an affair of such magnitude.

Then too, Riutsu Egimto must not only be a successful dinner, at which we become better acquainted and enjoy ourselves, but it might have such permanent value that it will take its place on the campus with the men's dinner in the years to come as an annual feature of the summer session.

Don't come tonight unless you are inspired by a joyful mood of jolly good fun, for tonight we are all to be initiated into that fraternity of good fellowship in which every woman is a member.

THE COMING LANGUAGE

English will be the vernacular of a quarter instead of one-tenth of the people of the world in the next century. This is the statement made by one of the leading sociologists of the country in a recent book on contemporary languages.

Today we have evidence that three-fourths of the world's mail matter is printed in English, and one-half of the world's newspapers are printed in English. Since the majority of papers read are those printed in this language, the sociologist claims that, in the future, one-half instead of one-fourth of all printed matter will be in English also.

This tendency, which is based upon authorative statistics, should be of special interest to all English-speaking peoples, and particularly to students of English. It would seem as if more emphasis should be placed upon learning to speak our language correctly, and it would not seem a waste of time for many of us to make an attempt to master the writing of it.

THE NEW IDEAL

Physical education has increased the height of the average college girl one and one-half inches in the last ten years. It has also added two inches to the girth measurements and and extra size to the hands and feet. These are the statistics given out by the president of Vassar college.

When we consider the validity of these statements it seems as though we may, in the future, look forward to a race of Amazons provided that the interest in physical development which is generally manifested in this country continues to progress.

But a race of large, well developed women is not a thing to be discouraged if mental and moral development continues at the same rate of speed. It is certain that American women have established a precedent of idealizing a new type of woman which is fast replacing the anaemic, under-developed and devitalized creature which has been too long the real, as well as the fictitious, heroine.

The thing that divides a hitched team is the tongue. Brides will please paste this above the kitchen sink.—Exchange. Why not under the shaving mirror, also?

NEW ARMORY CAN SEAT 5,000

Houses Military Department; Rifle Gallery Located There

The new armory, located west of the Quadrangle, is completed with the exception of an addition on both the front and rear. These additions will have a finish similar to that of the Quadrangle. They will be two stories in height and in the center there will be a three story tower.

The main part of the armory was completed last year in time for the basketball games. The old armory was unable to accommodate the crowds of the former seasons. If a person was sure of getting a seat he was compelled to go to the game an hour or more before the game started.

The new armory will seat 5,000 persons for the Varsity games. After Christmas last year, all the classes in military training, both elementary and advanced courses, were carried on in the new armory. The men can drill during the winter months in the new armory, where formerly it was necessary to give the students lectures during most of the winter. The armory is large enough for a complete battalion to drill at the same time.

It is equipped with a shooting gallery on the second floor for purposes of instruction in military science. There are laboratories for the different branches of service represented by the military units, including the infantry, engineer, and motor transport units.

CLASSICAL CLUB TO GIVE PLAYS FOR HIGH SCHOOL LATIN TEACHERS JULY 20

Work has begun on the three one-act plays which the members of the Classical club will present in the little theater in the University high school building Thursday evening July 20. The aim of the club is to illustrate material which teachers of Latin will find practical to use for their own classes.

The first of the plays, "The Good Goddess" is a story of the old Roman festive day on which all the women go forth to seek the good goddess. One old lady who stays at home is the one on find the Goddess. Ruth Hamilton will coach this play.

"Mother Duco", which will be coached by Blanche Sherman, is a short humorous play. It shows how many modern English words come from the Latin stem "duco".

"Consilium Malum", the play which will be given in Latin, is very brief and can be understood by one who has only a few months Latin. It was published in the Classical Weekly and has been used before by students of Latin. It will be coached by Lillian Lawler.

All the members of the club will take part in the plays.

Schroeder, director of physical education for men, has been called off for tonight. Owing to the women's dinner, which will take most of the women at 7 o'clock, Miss Lyon thinks that it would not be advisable to hold the playhour.

CRAWFORD TALKS ON YOUTH IN ROMANCE

Prof. Bartholow V. Crawford, of the department of English, delivered a lecture, "The Spirit of Youth in the Romantic Movement," to an audience of 60 people yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the liberal arts assembly hall. "What do we mean by the word romantic?" asked Professor Crawford. "The word honestly defined means youth, springtime or moonlit waters. That is romantic which is not real, though for the moment it seems real; it expresses life as we would have it, not as it is."

Professor Crawford defined romantic poetry as "the poetry of youth for four reasons: because it is written by young men; because its spirit is opposed to the baldly realistic; because it is revolutionary. The leading poets of the movement, Coleridge, Shelley, Byron, Keats and even Wordsworth, were young when they won fame. Keats was dead at twenty-six, Shelley at thirty, Byron at thirty-six."

In a great deal of romantic verse the charm which holds us is unrealty, the something that "never was." Coleridge's "Mariner," Keats' "Eve of Saint Agnes," and Byron's stories thrill men and women who know little and care less for truthfulness of facts.

The romantic enthusiasm for novelty is shown in the lyrical ballads of Wordsworth and Coleridge. The romantic poetry is revolutionary in three senses,—politically, technically, and aesthetically. It was written in the age of the French revolution, whose spirit of political liberty finds expression in the poems of all the great romanticists. The value of freedom for its art is shown in the rebellion against the rules of literary convention. The poets no longer accepted dictation from the past as Pope had done in his "Rape of the Lock."

FOREIGN SCHOLARS SAY UNIVERSITY STUDENTS KNOWN FOR DEMOCRACY

Even the superficial observer has noticed the number of foreign students attending the University this summer, especially those from China and the Philippines. How does it happen that they came to this particular institution? What courses are they taking? What incentives are there to induce foreign students to travel a distance of several thousand miles with the intention of securing an education in this country?

There are about ten students from the Philippines attending the University this summer, although that number is doubled during the regular year. Many of them are specializing in political science and medicine. There are probably 5,000 students from that country at the present time. When asked why there are so many students from the Philippines in this country, one of them replied that it was because of their desire to see new lands and gratify their spirit of adventure, just as the American travels to Europe. The group of Filipino students at the University are organized into a club, which permits these students with common interests to meet in a social manner.

Talks with several Chinese students revealed the fact that they are here for work,—to secure an education adequate to meet the needs of a nation that requires highly trained men. Most of the Chinese students at the University and in the United States are specializing in such branches of learning as chemistry, medicine, and commerce. "China needs science," says Mr. Leonard S. Hsu, of the eighteen Chinese students who are attending the University this summer.

There are approximately 4,000 Chinese students in the United States.

They are organized into an association called the "Chinese Student Alliance" Chiefly for convenience and specification, this alliance is divided into state units, such as the Illinois unit, Iowa unit, and this is subdivided into chapters or local units. Each college or university usually has such an organization, especially in the east and north. Mr. Hsu is not only president of the local chapter, but he also holds an office in the Iowa unit and is assistant business manager of the alliance. He is a member of the national organization, which meets annually to discuss matters of universal interest to the hundreds of students from China. This organization publishes several papers, "The Chinese Students' Monthly," "The Chinese Students' Quarterly," and books and magazines. "The purpose of this alliance," says Mr. Hsu, "is to present to their American friends through organized effort the Chinese culture and art, and to promote the closer understanding and deeper friendship between the Chinese and the American people."

The Chinese students in America undoubtedly believe that "With Unity There is Strength," for they are associated in still another matter. This is the "Chinese Students' Christian Association." This also prints a publication, "Christian China." Mr. Hsu is chairman of the local University unit. The purpose of this association, according to one of the students at the University, is to study Christian life in America and to cultivate Christian teachings among Chinese students.

Inquiries were made why the Chinese students were attending this institution this summer. It was pointed out that there were many other colleges and universities closer to their native land which could afford them a suitable education. Another of these students explained the fact that the Chinese student when he studies on the west coast is not subject extensively to the Americanizing influence, for he is still able to read Chinese newspapers and associate entirely with students from his native land. When a foreigner travels to China they do not visit merely the large sea coast cities but wish to see the interior.

In like manner, the Chinese student desires to know America. One student explained further that the standard of living was lower at Iowa City than at many of the other university cities, while another mentioned the rich courses given in the different departments.

When the question was asked, "What accounts for the migration of Chinese students to this country?" the reply was made, "Because we consider America the dearest land and the greatest country in the world." The truth of this statement is evinced by the fact that there are more Chinese students in the United States than in any other country, including Japan. The Chinese students admire the democratic spirit that pervades our colleges and universities. Even in the democratic European nations different social levels are apparent.

Another factor that aids in influencing these students to migrate to this country is the fund that is placed to their disposal because the United States government refused to accept the indemnity which was awarded them following the Boxer rebellion. This country provided that this sum should be used in the education of Chinese students here. Two of the students from China at the University are supported from this fund.

Many of these students are engaged in graduate work. The large majority are studying at the large eastern universities, while comparatively few remain on the Pacific coast.

IOWA RIFLE MEN MAY NOT ENTER RIFLE TOURNEY

The cut in army appropriations effected by the present congress is keenly felt in Iowa by rifle enthusiasts. It is likely, as a result, that the University of Iowa will not be represented in the annual rifle and pistol shooting meet of the national guard and state rifle association beginning July 21 at Des Moines.

Walter Dehner and Jesse W. Scott had planned to enter and had arranged to draw rifles from the armory when word was received that the federal appropriation to finance civilian teams was cut off.

According to Captain O'Keefe of the military department, Dehner and Scott are two of the best shots in the state and would undoubtedly make the team to represent Iowa in the national rifle meet to be held at Camp Perry, Ohio, next September.

MANUAL ARTS ROUND TABLE WILL MEET NEXT THURSDAY

The next meeting of the annual arts round table will be held Thursday at 4 p. m. in room 3, engineering building. Reports will be given by Prof. F. G. Higbee, head of the department of manual arts, on "Methods of Presenting Problems in Mechanical Drawing"; by Prof. Victor E. Thompson on "Management of School Shops"; by Mr. W. L. Hunter, instructor in the department of manual arts, on "Shop work in high schools.

The purpose of the manual arts round tables is to give the people who are working in manual arts this summer and also those on the campus interested in manual arts an opportunity to bring problems to a common center for discussion. The meetings are a clearing house for problems which are associated with the work.

THOSE GOING ON TRIP TO CEDAR RAPIDS TO REPORT NAMES TODAY

Prof. Elmer W. Hills of the department of economics will conduct an excursion party through the Quaker Oats plant and other factories in Cedar Rapids next Saturday morning. Bulletins will be posted in room 205 liberal arts today so that all persons who intend to go may sign their names.

Professor Hills expects from 50 to 100 persons to go, as 60 people had signed up for the same trip, which was postponed two weeks ago. All persons intending to drive to Cedar Rapids instead of going on the 7:30 interurban should be at the interurban station in Cedar Rapids at 8:45.

Everyone will visit the Quaker Oats mills first, and then the party will divide, some going to the Sinclair meat packing company, and others to the Pennick and Ford starch plant. There will not be time to visit both of the latter factories, as they close at noon.

MERRY TO LEAD DISCUSSION ON SPEECH JULY 11

Prof. Glenn N. Merry, head of the department of speech, will hold a round table discussion Tuesday at 4 o'clock in the liberal arts assembly. The subject to be discussed is "The Standard Language and the School System." This subject will be taken up as applied to the countries of France, Germany, England and America.

Prof. Charles E. Young, of the department of romance languages, will discuss the French standard, Prof. Charles B. Wilson, head of the German department, will speak of the German standard, and Prof. Thomas A. Knott of the English department, will talk of the subject as related to England and America. Professor Merry will speak on the subject, "Better Speech Week."

The round table will be topen to all who may be interested but will be especially intended for teachers and superintendents who are teaching English or speech.

RAIN DELAYS START OF TENNIS DOUBLES; WILL BEGIN TODAY

The first matches of the tennis doubles tournament will be played today, with the courts in good shape after the hard rain. Thirty-two men have signed up and the eight games of the first round are expected to be played by Wednesday evening.

The tournament will require about a week to complete and the pairs who will survive the preliminary round, judging from their playing in the singles tournament, will probably be E. Fannon and H. W. Scott, W. H. Dargan and W. A. McCullough, F. D. Knight and E. G. Blackstone, and L. J. Gillis and J. M. Dorsey.

The pairs are not bunched so that the better ones are in one section as they were in the drawings of the singles. The winners of last years doubles tournaemnt were John M. Dorsey, runner-up in this year's singles, and Prof. F. D. Knight of the psychology department.

MERRY TO ANNOUNCE PLANS FOR BETTER SPEECH WEEK
