LANTERNS GLOW AS 500 MARCH IN PROCESSION

Annual Chawa Kwai Proves Impressive Ceremony; Mildred Freburg Lectures

One of the most spectacular events of the year took place last night when 500 women carrying brilliant Chinese lanterns marched over the campus in celebration of Chawa Kwai, annual Chinese procession. The women gathered in the liberal arts drawing room at seven o'clock, where they were given lighted lanterns. The procession was led by Roberta Anderson, president of Y. W. C. A., Mildred Freburg, Katherine Miles A4 of Clarion, and Charlotte Fisk A3 of Iowa City, followed by the four Chinese students enrolled in the University, Emily Kwong, Louise Kwong, Joy Kwong, and Anna Djou.

The procession, singing, moved the full length of the campus along Clinton street, around the natural science building and circled the oval back of the liberal arts building. Here they formed a circle and the singing of University songs and favorite popular airs was led by Lydia M. Walker A2 of Des Moines, Beatrice Gates A4 of Pierre, South Dakota, Martha H. Althaus A4 of Muscatine and Judith Tornell.

Mildred Freburg Talks

A short and impressive talk was given by Mildred C. Freburg, formerly chairman of the Y. W. world fellowship and now a member of the speech department, in which she explained the significance and the purpose of Chawa Kwai. Five years ago, Chawa Kwai, meaning Chinese social, was established in an effort to start a tradition among the women of the University said Miss Freburg. The first Chawa Kwai was held September 23, 1917. At that time all women of the University, including faculty women, faculty men's wives and other women connected with University life were entertained at a reception in the liberal arts drawing room. After this the women marched with lighted Chinese lanterns to the steps of Old Capitol where they sang Old Gold, the Star Spangled Banner, and Ramble. They then went to the woman's gymnasium where they had a programme of short talks and where refreshments were served. Seven hundred fifty women took part in this first celebration. One hundred fifty faculty women were in the receiving line and it was considered one of the big social events of the year.

Purpose Remains Same

Although the original idea has been changed, Miss Freburg explained that the purpose has remained the same. The tradition has been established in order to get the University women together and thus to show their loyalty for the University. For five years Chawa Kwai has been fostered by the Y. W. C. A. with varying success.

Katherine Miles A4 of Clarion was in charge of all arrangements. Flashlight pictures were taken for the Hawk-eye.

ONE ACT SKIT FEATURES PHILOMATHEAN PROGRAM

A one-act play, "Suppressed Desires", will feature the program at the Philomathean Literary Society meeting at 8 o'clock tonight in Close hall. This dramatic sketch was originally produced by the Provincetown players in New York city. It is the work of George Cram Cook and Susan Gaspell, both Iowans. Mr. Cook attended the University of Iowa and later held a professorship here from 1895 to 1899. In the cast are Henrietta Brewster, played by Lucille Norford A1 of Iowa City; Stephen Brewster by George O. Hurley L1 of Bolfe; and Mabel by Freda M. Snyder A2 of Fort Dodge.

Other numbers on the program are music by Lowell P. Peterson A2 of Laurens, a talk by Paul C. Bucy A2 of Hubbard, a reading by Leo H. Jacobs A2 of Des Moines, and music by Finch I. Wagner A3 of Faulkner.

FAMOUS LUCILLE IS NOW BANKRUPT

London, Oct. 12.—Lady Duff-Gordon, founder of "Lucille Limited," famous internationally as a modiste and fashion designer, has filed a petition in bankruptcy and claimed she is penniless. Beginning as a seamstress in a bare, small workroom, she built up a business with exclusive shops in London, Paris, New York, Chicago and other large cities which brought nearly a million dollars a year, but she says she has been discharged from the business she created and is now thrown on the world without a cent.

FORMER DAYS IN IOWA DISCUSSED

President Emeritus Macbride Lectures on Development of the University

"Young people's interest in old men is very slight. Many of the young people think they should be on exhibit in museums. But those who are acquainted with the past know of the intellectual minds and crises which existed in years gone by," stated President Emeritus Thomas Macbride in addressing Dean Kay's classes in Geology of Iowa yesterday at eleven o'clock.

Doctor Macbride has been connected with this university for forty-four years, and is intimately acquainted with its many phases in the past as well as keeping up with present conditions. He has watched the development of the state of Iowa, recollecting vividly the time when the nation was very doubtful about admitting Iowa as a state into the union.

Many strides were made in literature and science between 1840 and 1860 according to Dr. Macbride. In 1840 John Chambers published his encyclopedia; later his brother, Robert Chambers, wrote "Vestiges of Natural History in Creation," a book which presents the continuous history of the earth. How to tell the age of the earth by the fossil plants and animals found in rock foundation was first partly solved by Hugh Miller of New York. Dr. Macbride remembers the discussions waged during this period as to whether the earth was 6,000 years old or not. Today scientists know the earth to be millions of years old.

Cottillion hall was once the scene of a lecture given by Louis Agassiz, the famous geologist of the last century who proved the northern parts of North America to have once been glaciated.

For several years a faculty of the university gathered here without any students. The president of the university at that time was Amos Dean, a professor of history and once head of the Albany Law school. The other members of the faculty were Josiah D. Whitney, professor of chemistry; Henry Welton, interested in natural history; George Perkins, professor of mathematics; E. M. Griffin; and D. Franklin Wells. All the work of the administration was done within the Old Capitol building.

Dr. Macbride was an intimate friend of Samuel Calvin, a geologist of this university who attained much fame. In 1864, Calvin and Dr. Macbride agreed to hunt fossils. Between Black Hawk and Cedar Falls they discovered many unknown fossils under a mill dam. Both men were industriously digging and hammering away. A man nearby, much interested in the procedure, watched them for some time, finally drawing out, "I couldn't tell what you folks were doing" on this bank, but I find that a man can learn somthin' from almost everybody."

COMMERCE STUDENTS NOW ORGANIZED; WILL VOTE ON CONSTITUTION

The junior commerce students elected officers last night and completed the organization of the student body of the commerce college begun Wednesday night by the seniors.

The following officers were elected: D. W. Bray of Carthage, Ill., president; F. W. Digits of Bellevue, vice-president; C. L. Humphrey of North English, secretary; and Merwyn Bridenstine of Iowa City, treasurer.

Officers of both classes will draw up a constitution to submit to the commerce students for ratification on the all-University election day.

FRAT STEWARDS TO TAKE ACTION

Twenty-one Fraternities to Fight Against High Price of Merchandise

Twenty-one stewards of various fraternity houses met at the Kappa Sigma fraternity house Wednesday night and formed an organization to be called the Fraternity Co-operative Buying Association. Sixteen of these stewards have already paid their membership fee of two dollars which will be used to defray expenses of correspondence.

Various quotations on potatoes were read and it was found that the lowest bid in lots of 1500 bushels was fifty-eight and one-half cents, or sixteen and half cents lower than the lowest wholesale price which could be obtained from the local market.

A number of committees were appointed. The price of bread will be investigated by Fred Stiner, Kappa Sigma. DeWayne Silliman, Phi Kappa Psi, will determine whether or not milk can be purchased at prices which are more reasonable than those now current. Eddie Rich, Psi Omega, will investigate the price of groceries, and quotations on fresh meat will be secured by J. Simmons, Acacia.

Joe Tye, Alpha Tau Omega, reported that prices on canned goods and non-perishable staples had been received which were considerably lower than any prices that might be obtained from local merchants. Canned goods in No. 10 size cans may be purchased from the Sexton company at a savings of from 75 cents to $1.00 per dozen cans.

"Local merchants are bound to disapprove of this movement," asserted Frank Shuttleworth, Phi Delta Theta, president of the newly formed organization. "When it is considered that the thirty fraternities on the campus spend approximately $650,000 each year no merchant will sit idly by and see this money slip through his hands because of a few cents difference in price."

When asked whether he thought every fraternity would join this association, Shuttleworth declared:

"There is no doubt that every fraternity will be anxious to join. The cost is small, being only $2.00 membership fee per fraternity, and it will be to their own advantage to join."

"It strikes me that this is one of the greatest movements which has been instigated in this school for some time. The two meetings of stewards which I have already attended have taught me more about economical marketing than I ever dreamed of before."

The next meeting will be held Wednesday evening, October 18, at the Phi Delta Theta house, at 7:15 p. m. By that time more prices will have been received and some definite action will be taken in the placing of orders.

STARBUCK LECTURES ON TRAINING OF CHILDREN

Classes in psychology yesterday were given the privilege of hearing Dr. Edwin D. Starbuck, professor of philosophy in this University, speak on the subject, "The Child's Place in Evolution." The lecture was a very illuminating one on the problem of child psychology, on which subject Doctor Starbuck is an international authority. Speaking from a biological standpoint, Doctor Starbuck outlined briefly the main principles of evolution and the theory of recapitulation and traced the relation of these to the development of the child.

With this as a background he stated the principle that social progress rests primarily on the training of the child. In order to achieve any far-reaching reforms, said Doctor Starbuck, society must rely on the education of the rising generation. In the course of his lecture he commended the work that is being done by the Child Welfare Research Station and expressed the hope that other universities would follow the lead of this University in recognizing the need of such organizations.

BALDWIN TALKS TO TEACHERS

Prof. Bird T. Baldwin, director of the chill welfare research station of the University, leaves tonight for Warrensburg, Missouri, where he will address the Missouri state teachers' convention, October 13, on "The Psychology of the C."

UNDERCURRENT OF POLITICAL ACTIVITY

All The Persons Mentioned as Candidates Allege Their Apathy to Machines

With the day set for receiving petitions of candidates only four days away an undercurrent of political activity is slowly beginning to spread over the campus.

Indications again point to the fact that machine politics will be active again this year. It is reported that sixteen fraternities have agreed to pool their votes to form one big political machine. The names of these fraternities are not as yet known but it is understood that the majority of them were members of the winning combination last year.

It was rumored about the campus that Robert B. Cass A2 of Waterloo was backing one of the machines but in an interview Wednesday night he stated that he had no connection with any political machine and that since he was leaving for Yale that night he would take no active part in the campus politics this year.

The freshman and senior classes are the ones in which the greatest activity has been manifested up to the present time. In the freshman class Don T. Hines A1 of Cedar Rapids has announced his intention to become a candidate for freshman class president. Hines is a pledge of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity and in an interview last night said that he was opposed to a political combination of any kind.

"I am against machine politics on the campus," said Hines, "and I have no affiliation with any political pool or combination."

In the senior class Eric C. Wilson A4 of Iowa City is the one whose name is being whispered about as a possible candidate. Wilson declined to state yesterday whether he would be a candidate for the senior class president. When asked his opinion on machine politics, "I am against a political machine."

The interfraternity conference has done nothing concerning the pooling of votes among fraternities. At the last meeting the time was taken up with the program for the coming year and as there will not be another meeting until after the election nothing will be done concerning machine politics among the fraternities according to a statement made by William J. Price A4 of Des Moines.

The Alpha Chi Omega sorority will back one of its members for one of the class officers. M. Agnella Gunn A4 of Sioux City, president, states that they will not be connected in any way with a political machine, although the sorority intends to support its own candidate.

STATE COMMANDER HERE FOR VETERANS' MEETING

William R. Phelps L1 of Britt, who is the state commander of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, was in charge of the meeting of the local chapter of that organization which was held last night in the Commercial Club rooms. The Iowa City chapter is composed chiefly of disabled veterans who are attending the University of Iowa. These men pledged their support to the national organization and resolved to help put across the country wide For-get-me-not day which is being sponsored by world war veterans. November 4 has been set aside for the occasion and the governors of states and mayors of towns and cities have been asked to proclaim half holidays. Special arrangements for the observance of the day in Iowa City are under way.

LIL' OL' NEW YORK TO GET DOSE OF IOWA PEP

The fighting spirit of Iowa University will be demonstrated to New Yorkers tonight when the New York-Iowa club meets for a big mass meeting preparatory to attending the Iowa-Yale game tomorrow. Barney Dondore, head university cheer leader will be present at the meeting and will lead the yelling. The New York club is chartering a special train and many of the conference alumni in New York will make the trip to New Haven tomorrow morning with the members of the Iowa club.

CHICAGO SERIES NOW TIED 2 ALL

(By United News)
Chicago, Oct. 12.—Chicago's big league city series is now tied at two all, following the White Sox 4 to 3 victory Thursday over the Cubs. Alexander pitched perfect ball for five innings but the Sox whaled him for two runs in the next inning and two more in the seventh and ninth.

NOTED PASTOR TO SPEAK AT VESPERS

Rev. Coffin Once Considered for Yale Presidency; Here October 29

When a new president was sought for Yale University two years ago, Rev. Henry Sloane Coffin of New York City, who has been engaged as the next of the Vesper lecturers, was considered for the position. This is only one of the hints which Iowa educators have received as to the competency and eloquence of the next vesper speaker who is scheduled for an appointment here October 29.

Rev. Coffin's congregation in New York City has received world wide attention since in it he has successfully combined the elements of capitol and labor. The church, situated on the dividing line between east and west New York, includes in its list of communicant members both millionaires and slum residents.

In addition to his pastorage of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian church of New York City, Rev. Coffin also holds a professorship in the Union Theological Seminary in that city and is director in his state of the Christian extension committee of Presbytery. He gives yearly lectures at Harvard and at Yale, his alma mater. Besides being a graduate of Yale, he has taken work at the University of Marburg, Germany, and has studied in Edinburgh, Scotland.

His presence in Iowa City has been secured through the combined efforts of the vespers committee in conference with the inter-denominational board representing the various Iowa City churches. On October 27, 28, and 29 he will be the principal speaker in this city at a religious conference under the direction of the inter-denominational board.

To the titles of theologian, lecturer, and professor, Rev. Coffin will also add to his name that of author. His books deal generally with religious subjects, "In the Day of Social Rebuilding" being the book latest off the press. Another of his well known manuscripts is "Social Aspects of the Cross" which was released for publication in 1911.

ANCIENT METHODS OF GREEKS USED AS CLASS ROOMS GROW SCARCE

Yesterday morning a class was held in the corridor of the liberal arts hall after the fashion of the ancient Greeks. The students listened to lectures on bended knee and notes were taken with the knees for lapboards, or something of that sort. Way back in the time of Socrates the students held meetings in great empty halls with no more equipment than this, writing as they knelt while the professor lectured. And such was the lot of the sophomore education class which Professor Ensign meets at nine o'clock. After being driven from pillar to post since the beginning of school the corridor was chosen as a last resort. First, it was Close hall, then the Presbyterian church, then, rooms in the liberal arts building, only to find them occupied by others who refused to give possession. It will indeed be a "grand and glorious feeling" when the repair work on Old Capitol is finished or when the overflow building is ready for use.

IOWA'S GOT IT!

IOWA'S GOT IT!—the current football battlecry on the engineering building, is causing curiosity to many wondering ones on the campus. The junior engineers who concoct these slogans steadfastly refuse to divulge any information concerning the sequel to the mysterious sign in the event that Iowa wins over Yale Saturday. Meanwhile they invite everyone to construct his own temporary answer to last until they put up the correct one after the big game.

ALL ON BOARD "HONOLULU" ARE NOW RESCUED

Radio Made it Possible is Claim of Ship Owners; Tow In Hulk

(By United News)
San Francisco, Oct. 12.—The seventy-four passengers and 200 members of the crew of the liner City of Honolulu were all saved Thursday on board the shipping board freighter West Fallone, which rescued them from life boats in which they had been since fire forced them to leave the liner at 10 o'clock in the morning, at not quite four hundred miles from the coast of Mexico.

"All passengers and crew are safe aboard the West Fallone," said a radiogram received by steamship company agents here at 3:49, from Capt. H. R. Lester, of the "Honolulu." "Condition of the City of Honolulu critical," the captain added.

Lester Last to Go
Lester, believed to have been the last man rescued, boarded the freighter shortly after 4 o'clock. The rescued included a number of women and children who had been adrift for nearly six hours, watching the flames consume the abandoned liner and speculating as to when they might expect to be picked up. They had boarded the liner at Honolulu and had expected to dock at San Pedro.

Most of the passengers were wealthy tourists returning to their homes in California and points inland from trips to the Hawaiian islands. Wednesday night there had been a dinner and dance on the palatial vessel, and many had retired at a late hour.

Alarm Sounds at 5:30

From 5:30 Thursday morning when the fire alarm was sounded and all hands ordered on deck, their suspense had been shared by frantic friends and relatives as well as the company agents, on land. This suspense was not ended until the radio arrived here from Captain Lester.

Was a German Ship

The palatial City of Honolulu was once the Frederick Grosse, one of the six thousand ton North German Lloyd liners seized during the war, and is believed to be a total loss, although an attempt will be made to tow in her hulk.

ENGLISH INSTRUCTOR PUBLISHES NEW BOOK

Harold Y. Moffett, instructor of English in the University, has written an unusual text book for Junior high schools. This book, which Mr. Moffett wrote in collaboration with C. H. Ward of Taft School, Watertown, Conn., is known as "A Junior Highway in English." The text published by Scott Foresman and Company, treats the subject of seventh and eighth grade grammar in a new and unique way. Its aim is to make the usually hated subject vivid and interesting and at the same time to thoroughly instill in the student the essential points of grammar. The book as a whole, is largely the result of actual experiments carried on by its co-authors in their different English classes.

UNIVERSITY DIRECTORY OUT IN THREE WEEKS

The University student directory with a complete authentic list of all students registered in the University, their addresses, telephone numbers, and present classification will be out in three weeks, Hrber C. Dorcas, registrar, stated yesterday. Among the first 930 names there are fifty seven names without local addresses and telephone numbers, making about 6 per cent of the total so far completed. Every student if he has not already done so is requested by the registrar to send in addresses and telephone numbers. Work has been completed down to the k's. "The student directory becomes increasingly useful to the students as the number of correct and complete addresses, including telephone numbers are the same as the number of students listed," Mr. Dorcas said.

Allow us to present Kameshwar Nath Kathju, native gentleman of India, who has but recently come from his home in Kashmir deep in the Himalayas.

Kathju left India early in 1921 to further his work in botany at American universities. He passed several weeks in each of five continental countries—Egypt, Italy, Switzerland, France and Belgium, and then completed his trip with a two month's stay in England.

When asked what his purpose was in coming to Iowa he explained: "Few Americans, if any, realize that Iowa is the most wonderful place for the study of botany." He delighted in telling that his every interest is in the botanical field.

After competing his Iowa course, this Indian is preparing to go to an eastern university, which he has not yet chosen, in order to acquire a Ph. D. and D. Sc. in botany.

Kathju is one of four Indians who have been elected to membership in the Royal Colonial Institute, the badge of which he now wears.

He has written for scores of eastern newspapers and many magazines, besides having addressed a number of Kiwanis and Rotary clubs on Indian situations and policies.

His hobbies are largely athletic and comprise several English games among them. He plays soccer, hockey, cricket, and tennis which he has but recently learned in America.

The crest which marks his stationery bears the inscription "Deo adjuvante non timendum," meaning, "God helping, there are none to fear."

DOPING THE DOPE

BY "PEST"

Captain Jordan of Yale will return to the team in time to lead it against Iowa next Saturday, according to reports from New York papers. Wm Neidlinger at quarterback, Mallory at full, and Wight at the other half, the return of Jordan fills out the Yale backfield.

Yale is pointing only for the Princeton and Harvard games, and considers the Iowa and Army games as early season games. She can call these games what she chooses, but they will probably be as hard as any games that she has. We all know what we expect the Hawkeyes to do, and then the Army is not to be despised. It has a line that averages over 200 pounds from end to end.

Beckett, Bench and O'Hearn will probably not be in the game next Saturday. Beckett broke a bone in his hand in the North Carolina game. Bench wrenched his knee in the same game, and O'Hara pulled a tendon in the Carnegie Tech game. Miller, left tackle, was also slightly injured in the North Carolina game, but has been practicing with the varsity and may be in shape for Saturday's game.

The New York Herald carried a special dispatch in Monday's paper from New Haven stating that while Yale wanted to win this first important inter-sectional game, the Blue would rather lose than sacrifice any of the best men on the Eli squad.

It also states that an agreement was made that neither team would make any special preparation for the game, but "would take it in their stride."

It is funny that we never heard anything about that agreement until now. Yale sent three scouts clear out here in the woolly west to watch Iowa play a small team. We wonder how many they send to watch a team that they consider important. They probably need punts will be blocked in the game Saturday press box all to themselves.

Guesses are in order as to how many urday. We say that at least four, two for each team, would be a conservative estimate.

Yale has had five or six punts blocked in the three games that they have played, while Iowa had two interfered with in the Knox game. With O'Hearn out, Wight will punt for Yale. A dispatch in the New York Tribune says that Wight gets good distance on his boots, but that he is slow in getting them off.

The New York Times has a rather different story about the Yale-Iowa game. This paper calls it a mid-season game, while all of the others say that it is an early-season contest.

We are going to take the Times after this.

Iowa alumni will have one of the center sections in the Yale Bowl. Not only will alumni of Iowa be there, but everyone who has ever gone to a western university will help cheer for the Hawkeyes.

"So keen has been the competition for positions on Howard Jones' eleven that Johnny Heldt and Phil McIntyre, rivals for center, came to blows on the field the other afternoon. Beware of a team like that."—New Haven Register.

We saw that prize fight, but thought it was from a different cause.

More soft soap from the New Haven Register: "In other words, Iowa, judging from past performances and Yale's none to glowing record this season, should enter the game a favorite at about six to five to win."

That fellow must have some money that he wants to place at long odds.

The Wake is greatly elated on account of its success in picking nineteen winners out of the twenty-four games that it covered in Saturday's paper. Just wait until the season is going good, Mr. Wake, and if you do as well, we will hand you the palm. We have a sneaking notion that you have already gone out of business as far as picking winners is concerned.

Coach "Jumbo" Steihm, head football coach at the University of Indiana, has been out this season because of sickness. Information reaches us to the effect that Coach Steihm will probably never again be able to handle a football team. Sometimes we did not like you, Coach Steihm, but we hope that rumors are false.

On the bulletin board in the varsity locker room is a letter from an Iowa woman, a real Iowa fan. She wants to be informed about the trip that the team is taking, how soon the results will be received, and when the team is coming back.

She urges on the men that make up the team, and closes in about these words "from an Iowa mother, whose nine year old son some day hopes to be able to wear an Iowa uniform." Three cheers for that mother.

HUNDREDS SEE IOWA PRACTICE AT CLEVELAND

Twenty Minute Scrimmage Includes Workout; Cripples Show Improvement

BULLETIN

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 12—Special to Daily Iowan—The Iowa team arrived here today and went directly to the Western Reserve field, where four hundred fans watched them take a light workout. Practice was held from ten to eleven, including twenty minutes light scrimmage. Locke's back and Heldt's lumbago are slightly improved, but Parkin's leg is still giving him some trouble.

Minick's punting, both with and against the wind, was only fair.

Seldom has a football game generated the widespread interest that has been brought to the front by the Yale-Iowa contest next Saturday. Not only is it the first important inter-sectional contest, but it is a battle between two brothers, coaches of the rival elevens.

The importance of the game in its effect on the final standing of either eleven has been overlooked in the more interesting factor of a brother against brother battle. Coach Howard H. Jones is bringing his Hawkeye team East to battle with the Yale eleven coached by Brother Tad Jones. Both of the Jones brothers are old Yale players, Howard at end and Tad at quarterback.

Nowhere has this game caused greater excitement than in Excello, Ohio, the home town of these great coaches. One side of the little village is arrayed against the other. Friends of long standing are vehement in their arguments. Even families are divided against each other.

The father of the two men is all for Iowa. "If either boy wins", he says, "let it be Howard." Mrs. T. A. Jones, mother of the two boys, is the only neutral person in Excello. Like all mothers, she wishes to keep peace in the family. "Let the score be 0 to 0," says the mother of the rival coaches.

Both men went from Excello to Exeter Academy, and from there to Yale, both have coached at Yale and Syracuse, and both have teams that are among the best in their sections of the country.

BASKETBALL MEN ARE DRILLED BY BARRY ON SHORT PASSING GAME

Twenty-four cage men in basketball togs uncovered some real talent as they darted around the floor last night in the second preliminary practice of the season.

Captain Hicks, Voltmer, Burgett, Barton and McGoveny, last year's varsity men, were out and appeared to have their last year's ability and willingness. These men with new men like Funk, Snyder, Gibbs, Duhm and Von Hoene, should develop into a very fast and fighting varsity five.

Coach Barry will not meet with the passing and shooting, getting them used to handling the ball. He gave them special instructions on how to pass and shoot. The short, snappy pass, and the free arm push shot at the ring are fundamentals of the game which he is going to drill into the men before any scrimmage will be held.

Coach Barry will not meet with the men regularly, as he is busy assisting Coach Howard H. Jones. Barry and Jenkins leave for Urbana today, to scout the Illinois-Butler football game there Saturday.

The early practice, therefore, will be turned over to Captain Hicks, who will carry out Barry's instructions. The next practice will be held Wednesday evening at the new armory at 4:30. Captain Hicks and his men will continue to work on the short pass and the free arm shot, things that will take weeks to perfect, according to Coach Barry. No scrimmage will be held, however, for at least two or three weeks.

The following men reported last night at the men's gym: Captain Hicks, Voltmer, Funk, Burgett, Barton,

McGoveny, Gibbs, Laude, Evans, Baker, Snyder, Duhm, James, Stober, Von Hoene, Trenneman, Boyson, Hibbs, Em-

mert, Wellslogger, Mead, Pusitari, and Bauer. Parkin and Hancock will probably report after football practice

Swenson, guard on last year's freshman team, will not be out until after the tennis season is over.

SOCCER AND FIELD BALL TRYOUTS SOON

W. A. A. Board Says Practice Will Begin Monday With Tryouts in November

Women, who are hoping to make the fieldball and soccer teams must attend nine practices, keep training rules, and attend the tryouts, the dates of which will be announced later. These were the stipulations made at the W. A. A. board meeting on Wednesday night. Practice will begin next Monday, with the following schedule. Freshmen will report on Monday and Wednesday at 4:15 p. m. for fieldball and 4:45 p. m. for soccer; sophomores on Tuesday and Thursday at the same hours. Juniors and seniors will present themselves on Tuesday and Thursday at 2:00 o'clock. Practice periods are of 30 minutes duration.

Some time in November first and second teams for each of the sports will be chosen. The various class teams will compete for championship, just before Thanksgiving.

Although senior women who are majoring in physical education are acting as assistants, the practice work and later tournaments are in charge of the department.

Three vacancies on the board were filled by Leone Wiggers, chairman of the membership committee, Emily Hartman on the program committee, and Thelma Whimpey as head of basketball.

It is estimated that more women than ever before are working for their 50 initial W. A. A. points. Between 200 and 250 are hiking and swimming and of these a large proportion will be taken in at a later meeting. The hikes are proving more popular than the recreational swimming. Between 150 and 200 are hiking while only 50 are swimming. These two branches cannot be combined to obtain points. Either one or the other must be selected and adhered to.

The next meeting of the board will be held at Currier Hall on October 18. This is a called meeting and is primarily to revise the point system. On October 26 a masquerade will be given at the women's gym for old W. A. A. members and all who are working for points. Emily Hartman A4 is in charge of the arrangements.

SWENSON CAPTAIN OF TENNIS TEAM

Coe May Play Return Match on Iowa Courts One Day Next Week

Ted Swenson A2 of Cedar Rapids was elected captain of the Iowa tennis team last night at a meeting of the men who are out for tennis.

Arrangements are being made to have Coe play a return match here next Tuesday or Wednesday on the courts at the men's gymnasium. "Although these are practice matches," said E. G. Schroeder director of physical education, all who wish to try for the team should report immediately because they will be under the eyes of the coach the longest and will get the most practice. At present there are only a few men trying out for the team. This does not mean they have their positions inched because any man in the university may challenge them by placing the challenge in the hands of Professor Van der Zee or myself three days before a match, and playing off the match immediately. This means that each man must work hard to remain on the team."

Tennis matches will undoubtedly be scheduled with other Big Ten universities next spring. All men taking part in these matches will be awarded letters the same as in other sports.

Their "foot hygiene" lecture and demonstration won for them first honors at the state fair at Des Moines and second honors at the inter-state fair held recently in Sioux City, and entitles them and their club sisters to a free sight-seeing trip to Chicago. The

THE DAILY IOWAN PLATFORM FOR A GREATER UNIVERSITY OF IOWA

1. Curtailment by the social committee of all inactive organizations.
2. Maintenance of Iowa traditions and customs.
3. A strong student council.
4. Recognition of the cultural as well as practical background of education.
5. Broader democracy and greater unity of the student body.
6. The University of Iowa above all fraternities, sororities and other groups.
7. A change in student attitude which will make an honor system possible.
8. Every student and alumnus a member of the Memorial Union.

AMBITIOUS FRATERNITIES

The part a social fraternity should play in student life has never been clearly defined. Even the members of the Greek letter societies as a rule have but a vague conception of the object which their organizations, as such, attempt to achieve. The result is seen in a confusion of purpose, failure to select the right men, petty politics, misunderstanding with non-fraternity men and all the other things associated with groups guided only by the whims of members or by the precedent set by another group.

A fraternity is not unlike any other well organized group in that it should have a definite aim, a settled course. As the name indicates, it is a brotherhood. By custom and common consent, fraternities have taken their place in the social field of college life and as social organizations should endeavor to promote good fellowship among their members with the added view of inculcating a certain amount of gentility. Considered in this light a fraternity plays a big part in University life; its work is commendable and should be furthered. But here, as everywhere, there is danger in the extreme—when brotherly spirit becomes so intense that it overshadows the bigger things in a higher education.

The moment a fraternity steps aside from its traditional social sphere and attempts to take advantage of its organization to further its own ends or that of its members in other student activities, it has ceased to be of consequence in student life and has degraded the purpose for which it was originally intended. The evil it does obscures the good. In time, the depravity of the group as a whole must affect its individual members.

At this time of the year, fraternities, almost without exception, are busily engaged in "pushing" their men into activities, and by the same system, "pulling" them into the positions of honor and responsibility in the student body. It means that those who are not qualified are "railroaded" into offices, leaving no incentive or hope for the non-fraternity man.

Men who have an ounce of red blood in their veins and who have even a semblance of ability need not be pushed or pulled. Anyone with a sense of fair play would feel keenly the disgrace of being elected to an office for which he knew the necessary wires had to be pulled.

A false standard of judging a fraternity has been responsible for the little concern with which the fraternity man looks upon all forms of political corruption. To the average student the best fraternity is the one with the most athletes, cars, class officers, politicians, scholars, etc. Such a critic fails to consider the fraternity spirit of the group—the avowed aim of the group. They may possess this rather intangible something or not. Under the above conventional standard of judging, the best fraternity on the campus, so-called, might include in its membership the weakest men, mentally and morally—a thing which it too often true.

Fraternities, at the present time, are too ambitious to gain those ends clearly outside their own restricted field. What literally amounts to selling their souls for a few cheap honors has become prevalent and will continue to be until reason and fair play have their turn. Students usually take their fraternities too seriously—they are just a minor thing when the whole scope of University life is considered.

CONTEMPORARY OPINION

AN AMERICAN PLEDGE (Milwaukee Sentinel)

A good many men and women in recent years have felt that the colleges and universities of the country have become nesting places for various shades of radicalism, internationalism and other "isms" whose tendency is toward a breaking down of American tradition and of the sense of national loyalty and patriotism which a lot of old fashioned folk still deem highly desirable to be inculcated in the rising generation.

Out at the University of Iowa, recently, the annual procession was held, as it has been for many years. President Jessup delivered an address of welcome as the procession came to an end and at the close of his speech he asked the students to raise their right hand and take the following pledge of loyalty:

"I pledge, here and now, lifelong loyalty to the ideals and character of the founders of this institution, to the end that I may loyally serve this University, this commonwealth and this nation."

The doctrinaire preacher of internationalism; the long haired enthusiast who sneers at patriotism as an outgrown and never valuable attribute; the so-called "intellectual" who holds that love of country is a weak and degrading sentiment, entirely unworthy of the lofty thought of educated men; they and their ilk, as well as the preachers of radical doctrine whose sphere of influence is far removed from educational institutions, will, of course, ridicule this pledge and advance reasons why it proves that the University of Iowa and its president are hopeless back numbers.

But the great majority of liberty loving, patriotic men and women, who, strange as it may seem to the pinks, and reds and cerises who preach doctrines of destructive American ideals, are bound to feel a thrill at the story of this demonstration, of the pledge given by the youngsters assembled, and at the promise the incident conveys of straight American teaching and straight American thinking in an institution maintained by American people for the education of American youth.

THE TEA HOUND'S LAMENT

This morning as I went to class
A young co-ed I chanced to pass;
The chilly, blustering autumn breeze
Had blown her skirts above her—ahem!

(That wasn't a very good start, was it? Better luck next time.)

But what I started out to say
Was this: If Fashion had her way,
The newest styles in women's skirts
Will sure work havoc with the flirts.

The latest in cigarette holders, displayed in a local window, measures at least twelve inches from tip to tip. It must take a man with an extraordinary sense of humor to flourish one of those.

An advice from London states that many passengers who were booked to sail on American ships are changing to British ships on account of Attorney Daugherty's latest ruling on the liquor question. Mr. Daugherty, it seems, should have left dry enough alone.

SCENES FROM CLERICAL LIFE

The slanting rays of the afternoon sun were throwing their warm light through the west windows of a metropolitan business house. In a large room where the raucous shouts of the newsboys on the street scarcely penetrated, a number of beautiful damsels were laboring industriously. Their jaws moved rhythmically and in unison, but their employments were varied.

Several punched typewriters with various degrees of enthusiasm, others toyed with columns of figures on adding machines, while still others powdered their faces with the utmost skill and nonchalance. All kept at least one eye on the huge clock (regulated hourly by Western Union), the hands of which were slowly approaching the magic hour of 5.

As the minute hand reached 12 a wonderful transformation took place. The typewriters and adding machines stopped abruptly, as though stilled by an invisible hand, and the young ladies who were powdering their noses suddenly ceased. As with one impulse they dashed madly for the exit. The great door swung under the momentum of the crowd, and woe to the passer-by who was unfortunate enough to be standing in front of that door!

We read that Sousa's band numbers among its musicians "a base soloist." But do not let that discouraging fact keep you from attending the concert.

Work has already begun on the new addition to the women's athletic field on the lot laying east of the old field. In order that all University women taking physical education might be permitted to take outdoor work during the spring and fall months, the new field was purchased. The old field was not large enough to accommodate all and it was necessary to hold some classes indoors when the weather conditions made it desirable to be outdoors. COMMERCIAL CLUB CAMPAIGN GAINS

Enroll Nearly 200 New Members
Over $3,500 Pledged to Carry on Work

One hundred and seventy-eight new members and $3,500 in the sustaining fund were the total results at the end of the third day's campaign of the Iowa City Commercial club to finance the club and to get new members. At present there are about 360 members, including the ones who have just joined the club. Enthusiasm in the campaign is growing.

The $20,000 or more expected to be raised in this campaign will pay for the following activities and many others of lesser importance, or those which cannot be anticipated: conventions and entertainment, retail and wholesale trade extensions, cooperation with agricultural interests, support of aviation field, support of municipal band, homecoming celebration, bathing beach, Palisades park preservation, good roads promotion, civic progress, industrial expansion, special advertising, printed literature of Iowa City, cooperation with the State University, aid to the baseball team and traffic and transportation improvement. In addition to these activities, the fund must pay for the regular over-head expenses of the club, including salaries of secretary and stenographer, rent and other expenses of maintaining offices, headquarters and dining room. The organization expenses including the three year service of the American city bureau, and membership in national organizations are other expenses.

Plans have been made for more active work in the campaign and therefore results are expected to be even more satisfactory in the next few days. About one half the territory has been canvassed and an estimate according to Mr. J. Ervin Evans, is that there is a potential contribution in that section alone of about $10,000. The total number in the club by the end of the campaign is expected to be at least 600 members.

THUMBS DOWN ON MUSTACHES DECLARE GOEDS AT MICHIGAN

Ann Arbor, Mich.—Thumbs down on mustaches! Bring out the razor and rid the hirsute sunshade of your lip! The all-beautiful have spoken. Their verdict was unanimous. The mustache must go.

A Michigan Daily reporter last week stopped the twelve prettiest girls who passed and asked them, "Do you approve of the masculine mustache?" The Dainty Dozen were unanimous in their replies, which were:

—Ugh, I hate them.
"Mustaches! Ugh, I hate them, My brother has one and it simply makes me crazy. They are unsanitary and a relic of by-gone days. Wouldn't a woman be considered foolish if she insisted on wearing a bustle? Well it's just as silly for a man to cling to the mustache idea."
"I dislike a mustache. They may be all right for older men but—well, I don't like them, that's all."
"A man with a mustache always makes me think of an Airedale. Of course Airedales are all right, but I wouldn't care for one as an intimate friend."
"I just detest the dirty things. They're perfectly silly."
"I never thought much about it. You see none of my friends wears one. My Dad used to, a long time ago, but Mama made him shave it off. I guess I don't like mustaches."
"There seems to be a craze for mustaches now but they (the men) will get over it. No girl really likes them—at least I don't."
"Don't use my name because I occasionally go to dances with a fellow who wears a mustache. But I think he'd look nicer without it. I don't like them, to be honest."
"Mustaches were all right in the days of dueling and all that sort of thing, but I think they're out of place now."
—"They're Silly!"
"If a man has a depressed upper jaw, a mustache may help his appearance, but otherwise he shouldn't wear one. Just a man with receding jaw looks good with a mustache!"
"I like Douglas Fairbanks and Charlie Chaplin but just look at Rudolph Valentino! And think how he'd look with one of those darn things on his lip!"
—Should Spank 'Em
"When I was a child Mother used to threaten a spanking when she caught me drawing mustaches on the pictures of Washington and Lincoln in my big brother's history book. I always think of that when I see a man with a mustache—the spanking you know."
"No, I don't like mustaches, they make a man too foreign looking. They are germ catchers, too."

RIETZ LECTURES FOR SCIENTIFIC GROUP ON BETTER STATISTICS

Prof. Henry L. Rietz of the department of mathematics delivered the lecture before the Sigma Xi, honorary scientific fraternity, last evening. The subject of the lecture was "Answers to the Call for Better Statistical Methods."

The first census of the United States consisted of fifty-two pages. Last year the same problem covered thousands of pages and most of it was treated in statistical form. Psychology, education, economics, physics, and dentistry will eventually be treated by the statistical method. Life Insurance figures are being put on a statistical basis.

"The big fault lies in the fact that people take mathematical formulae too literally and for this reason they occasionally fail to work out," said Professor Rietz. "Statistics should be treated in a general way and not too closely."

HALT ENFORCING OF BOOZE RULE BY COURT ACT

Judge L. N. Hand Issues Restraining Order; Affects Three Vessels

New York, Oct. 11.—Prohibition and customs officials have been halted here in efforts to enforce the recent liquor ruling insofar as it affects three of the international mercantile marine vessels.

Judge Learned Hand of the federal district court, handed down a temporary restraining order late Thursday, enjoining the collector of customs here and federal prohibition officers from interfering with transportation of liquor on the ships "St. Paul," "Finland" and "Kroonland," until further notice.

The order is returnable next Tuesday when the application for a permanent injunction made by the International mercantile marine company will be heard.

This line operates ships under an American license. Two British lines, Cunard and Anchor, applied for similar protection to Judge L. N. Hand, but he refused to issue a restraining order, although he ordered the government to show cause Tuesday as to why such orders should not be issued.

Opinions Differ (By United News)

Washington, Oct. 12.—A reported difference of opinion regarding the enforcement of the Daugherty ruling on foreign ships, between high officials of the treasury and the prohibition unit, caused Secretary Mellon to delay promulgation of the enforcement regulations.

Consequently, the bureau of internal revenue, in order to "put all shipping upon equality up to and including the fourteenth of October," has ruled that those American ships lying in American harbors which have voluntarily surrendered their stock of spirits to the customs officials, "will be allowed to recover their stocks of spirits and take them into foreign ports, as in like conditions will foreign ships leaving their home ports and Americans leaving foreign ports up to and including that date."

Foreign vessels leaving their home ports on or before October 14, 1922, and American vessels leaving foreign ports on or before October 14, 1922, having stocks of liquor aboard will be permitted to continue with such stocks without interference into foreign ports even though they touch the ports of the United States. However, no sales of liquor on American vessels anywhere, or on foreign vessels within the territory of waters of the United States will be permitted.

PLAYERS JOINING BASEBALL UNION

Claim They are at the Mercy of Magnates and Want Places on Council

New York, Oct. 11.—Before the ball players, particularly major leaguers, sign their contracts for 1923, a new players union, now being organized, is likely to make an open fight for representation on the advisory council of the game, of which Judge Landis is the executive head.

The new union movement which is directed by Ray Cannon, a Milwaukee lawyer who defended some of the accused White Sox players, is gathering recruits to its ranks and is reported to be drawing many new members from the National league teams. It is understood that the organization will be known as the Association of Professional Players of the United States.

Dutch Reuther, pitcher for the Brooklyn National league team, who had a very successful season but said he was asked to stand for reduction in salary nevertheless, is claimed to be active in signing of the team for the Union. Jack Wheat, Tommy Griffith, Otto Miller, and Ray Schmandt are among those who are said to have followed Reuther's lead.

The Giants are said to be enrolled to a man, and other clubs whose members have joined are the Pirates, Reds, Cardinals and Braves.

Some of the Cubs and Phillies are understood to have "come in".

The unionization has been proceeding since early last summer. Foremost among the objects of the organization is representation of players on the advisory council. At present, baseball observers agree, the players are completely at the mercy of the club owners and there is widespread dissatisfaction among the players, with the attitude of Judge Landis toward their side of the disputes with the magnates.

DEMAND IS HEAVY FOR BULLETINS ISSUED LATELY

There have been many calls for study of child welfare, "Differential Fecundity in Iowa," written by Prof. Hornell N. Hart, associate in the Iowa child welfare research station, which was put out just before the opening of school this year, and the preceding study, "Mental Growth Curve of Normal and Superior Children" prepared by Dr. Bird T. Baldwin, director of the research station, in cooperation with his assistant, Prof. Lorle I. Stecher, continues in demand.
