Curzon and Ishmet Pasha Open Conference

L. A. CANDIDATES APPEAR BEFORE COUNCIL TODAY

Date of Election Not Set Petitioners Must Announce Their Platform

Today is the day set for the presenting of names to the election committee. All students who wish to become candidates for class office in the college of liberal arts must appear in person before the election committee before 8 o'clock tonight.

"Any names handed in after 8 o'clock tonight will be rejected," says Stephen M. Wollman A3 of Council Bluffs, chairman of the election committee.

The committee will meet this afternoon from 4 to 5 and tonight from 7 to 8 in room 13, liberal arts building, to receive the names of all persons who intend to become candidates for election to class office.

Answer Questions

Those wishing to hand their names to the committee as prospective candidates must do so in person as the committee have a number of questions which they will ask of each one. These questions will be of such a nature as to determine what each person has done while in the University. The name of any candidate with a machine backing will not be placed upon the ballot. The answers to questions will be published in order to inform the voters concerning the candidates in their class.

The date of the election has not been set as the student council will have to meet first to pass on the names to be placed upon the ballot. The expenses of the election will be defrayed by the student council.

If there are not enough names handed to the committee today then the council will place additional names upon the ballot to make up the required number of nine for each class. These names will be picked from those the council thinks are representative men from that class.

What Is Your Policy?

One of the questions which will be asked will be concerning the policy of each candidate if elected. When the petitioners appeared before the committee handling the election early in the fall of this year, the same question was asked. Most of the candidates answered with the general information that they stood for a better Iowa and democracy upon the campus. It is understood that the committee today will demand a more definite stand from each candidate and will also ask the candidate to outline the policy he would pursue in order to fulfill his pre-election promises.

The committee handling the election is composed of Stephen M. Wollman A3 of Council Bluffs, chairman; Catherine T. Wright A4 of Des Moines; George O. Hurley L1 of Rolfe; Gregory Foley A4 of Rock Rapids, and Will J. Price L2 of Des Moines.

SOLDIER COMPENSATION BILLS SHIELD EFFORT TO BRING BACK WINE

(By United News)

Washington, Nov. 20.—Wets in congress, having faith in the reported change in popular sentiment regarding prohibition made efforts to bring back beer and light wines.

Two bills have been introduced in the house by Congressmen Hill of Maryland and Britten of Illinois, both intended as revenue raising features of the soldier adjusted compensation measure. However wets of an older generation such as Representative Holde Kingham of Massachusetts, entertain no hope of success for either measure in the present hold-over congress. Kingham believes there is a possibility of some sort of light wines and beer legislation by the newly selected congress, although he realizes the fact that even the new house will have a majority of dry.

WHY DO THE PROF'S DO SUCH THINGS?

Is there something peculiar about the anatomy of a professor?

How does it happen that the professors of the University, being inside all the time, do not get fat?

The answer is very simple. Have you never gone past the tennis courts in nice weather without seeing anywhere from two to a dozen chasing the little ball over the court?

Have you ever gone out to the golf links without seeing some of the dignified professors trying to keep their temper while knocking the tee for a goal?

Have you never gone down to the gymnasium wanting to play a game of handball without finding four perspiring, noisy professors occupying the court?

Have you never gone by the home of a professor without seeing him out chopping up the woodpile? No, you never have! Still, some of the professors do cut the grass, clean up the lawn, rake the leaves, shovel snow, take long walks and things like that.

And one more thing the students will never know. That is, the number of professors whose favorite photograph selection is "Walter Camps Daily Dozen."

WEATHER FAILS TO HALT CELEBRATION

Students, 2,000 Strong, Turn Out To Welcome Team After Ohio Victory

Despite a cold winter wind and a downfall of sleet, a crowd of nearly 2,000 students welcomed the victorious Iowa football team on its return from the Ohio State game Sunday afternoon. The team arrived at the Wright street station on the Rock Island at about 4:30.

There was a small gathering of students at the corner of Clinton and Washington streets at 3:30 when the band formed to march to the station. Headed by the band, the rooters marched down Clinton street, cheering, yelling, and singing on the way to the station.

The station platforms were crowded with students and there was an eager rush for the team's special coaches when the train pulled in. As the members of the squad left the car they were each given a yell.

Although the demonstration did not equal the ovation given the team on its return from Yale, Howling 300 officers were satisfied with the turnout. They stated that the spirit of the student body had shown a decided improvement.

Members of the "300" will secure their tickets today for the Northwestern football game. They will be distributed at the athletic office Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday afternoons. Members must present their membership cards with an "I" to secure seats in the special section.

Special features are being prepared by the "300" for Saturday's game, the closing game of the season.

SIGMA PI FRATERNITY WINS $10 PRIZE FOR THE BEST DECORATED HOUSE

Sigma Pi, social fraternity, 503 South Clinton street, was awarded first honors for Homecoming decorations by the inter-fraternity council committee, according to the announcement made last week. Delta Tau Delta, 724 North Dubuque street, and Phi Kappa, 711 East Burlington street, were given honorable mention for their decorations.

The winning house receives a $10 cash prize given by the inter-fraternity council. The council appointed a committee to judge the decorations. The judges were Miss Clara M. Daley, assistant professor of history, Miss Jane Coventry, instructor in graphic and plastic arts, and Ray Slavata of Iowa City.

GUMP FAILS TO SECURE RETURN OF LIGHT WINES

People's Choice Bears Brunt of Dry Attack; Ingersoll Carries Role of Andy

Congressman Andrew Gump assumed his seat in the house of representatives in replica at the Zetagathian literary society meeting last Friday night. After presenting his credentials, Mr. Gump was formally sworn into membership by the speaker. As the oath was administered, the typical Gumpian lines of firmness strengthened his jaw, and as congress recognized in his strong face the Joshua that was to lead them out of the political wilderness into a legislative land of promise, ringing cheers welcomed the people's choice.

The Hon. Andrew Gump then delivered his maiden address before the house. He modestly confessed that he had surmounted obstacles in running on an independent ticket, unshackled by party promises that would have conquered any other man. After paying a touching tribute to womanhood, he acknowledged that in the sweetly solemn moment when the title of congressman was conferred upon him, his thoughts had been of Minerva, his wife. Amid interruptions of applause, he asserted that through him the hand that rocked the Gumpian cradle should rule the world. He declared in a burst of magnanimity that the most typically Gumpesque portions of his speech and policies were inspired by his wife. With eloquence and wit, Congressman Gump in conclusion pled for the return of light wines and beers.

In the debate which his epoch-making oration precipitated, he bore the brunt of the dry attack. The dry forces pointed out that, according to the well established physical law of the conservation of matter, only a limited supply of alcohol existed in the world; this supply, the dries argued, should bless the world in the form of hair oil rather than beer, for by hearsay evidence from Saint Peter, no bald headed man could enter heaven; since hair oil was essential to eternal salvation—this outweighed any arguments concerning earthly drought—for the eternal salvation of the shiny-domed masculine majority, therefore, alcohol should not be wasted by the return of light wines and beers. The dry filibuster succeeded in postponing the bill indefinitely.

Following adjournment, the congressmen individually congratulated the Honorable Andrew Gump, and expressed their regards to Min. Tyrell M. Ingersoll A2 of Algona carried the role of Andy Gump.

ANNUAL WAYZGOOSE OF DAILY IOWAN STAFF TO BE HELD DECEMBER 12

The Wayzgoose banquet, annual affair of the Daily Iowan will be enjoyed Tuesday evening, December 12, by editors, copyreaders, reporters and members of the business staff and board of trustees of the paper. A speech by an out of town journalist will be the feature of the evening. The affair is sponsored by the Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity.

This is the second annual Wayzgoose banquet. Before the introduction of the Wayzgoose, parties and picnics were enjoyed by the members of the various staffs of the paper. The term "wayzgoose" is an obsolete English word ("wayz"—suitable, plus goose) and was the name given a printer's annual holiday or entertainment.

A special edition of the Daily Iowan will be circulated among the guests. The chairmen of the various committees are: Speakers—G. Holbert Seigle A4 of Muscatine; arrangements—John S. Grassfield, Jr. of Iowa City; and program—Lorenz C. Walters A3 of Waukon.

SOCIETIES IN ADAM AND EVE STAGE PLAYFUL

Embryo Literary Genii Burn Professors In Effigy; Zet Makes Reputation

The State University of Iowa boasts the first literary societies west of the Mississippi river. The Zetagathian society founded in 1861, Erodolphian in 1862, Hesperian six weeks later in 1862, and Irving Institute in 1864 were the Adams and Eves of the west in literary cosmogony. Even these, according to traditional account, were antedated by a "nameless, constitutionless, by-law-less body, which adjourned discussions to burn professors in effigy, upturn the big bell and fill it with water to freeze, carry wagons in pieces to the roof and put them astride the ridge, and in other ways make life a burden to the faculty."

The literary societies sprang from the controversial fires of the Civil War. While the students drilled in the old Athenaeum, the societies debated the questions that were stirring the nation. State rights and slavery were hotly argued, but such topics as "The Effect of the Dog Tax on Old Dog Tray" formed lighter and humorous interludes to political disputes.

The Zetagathians met in the northwest corner of the Old Capitol building in a room furnished with two tall candles and a borrowed stove.

Kerosene Lamp to Gas Jets
In those days, the literary societies were the social center for extra-curricular activity. The rivalry among the societies for attendance and excellence of programs was keen; in an attendance contest, a certain Zet established his reputation in social circles by bringing eighteen Heps.

When the societies moved from Old Capitol to South Hall, which burned March 10, 1901, they passed from the stage of kerosene lamps to gas jets, but apparently were not satisfied, for a motion petitioning the University board of regents "to raise the roof" is still on record. The red roses of super-botanical coloring and size, which patterned the carpet in the hall, are still the subject of reminiscence.

Bombard "Fort Necessity"
Old South Hall has its share of stories that time has merged into the mists of tradition. As to who filled the funnel with bird shot and secreted it in the floor of a literary society room directly above the chair of the professor in the classroom below, and who pulled the string that released the leaden shower on the unsuspecting pate of the professor are still subjects for conjecture. Then the night is not forgotten when unidentified students dragged two Civil War cannons from the basement of South Hall, loaded them with stones and bricks, and at midnight with the commencement hop at its merriest, discharged them into a building that had long been an eyecore on the campus. This historical event received the name of the bombardment of old Fort Necessity.

OLAF BUYS TROLLEY FOR HIS FIRST U. S. MARKET INVESTMENT
Hoboken, N. J., Nov. 20.—Having disposed of the Brooklyn bridge, the Singer building and a few other odds and ends about Manhattan, the Bunco men sold a Hoboken trolley car to Olaf Jansen Monday.

Olaf, new to this land of the thrif-bound free, had $117. He now has $17. The car cost him a flat $100, having been marked down from $490, quoted regular price.

Two strangers met Olaf aboard the car and engaged him in conversation. After taking his $100 they explained to him to wait for the car and to make the return run. "I'm boss, said Olaf, as he boarded the trolley. The conductor put him off. The loose details of the story were gathered by the police.

THEY CARVE SEATS AT THE S. U. I. TOO

A favorite theme of the poets, so it seems, is to muse about the time when we all were young, and used to go to the country school, play hookey, get a licking and everything.

The country school house is indeed a favorite theme. Lines about the wooden desks with the initials of the students cut deep in the wood are to be fondly most everywhere.

It doesn't take a poet to muse about the University of Iowa, even though in some of the seats there are initials cut far deeper than those in the seats of the old country school. To the student who tries to write an examination, and gets the first sentence written only to find his pencil has slipped into a wood carving of his professor, it is very annoying.

The student moves his paper, out of the professor's face only to run into the initials of the Alpha Zeta Mu fraternity, and skipping from there only finds himself into the name of some "brother."

If only some of the poets would muse about the names carved in the seats of the University classrooms, maybe it would help.

EXPECT NEW MAN TO HEAD G. O. P.

Adams Expected to Quit; Criticize actions as Manager

(By United News)

Washington, Nov. 20.—The republican party is likely to make its presidential campaign under a new management. John T. Adams, chairman of republican national committee is expected to resign before the work of reorganization for 1924 gets far along.

While administration supporters here realized that the cards were more or less stacked against the republican party in the recent campaign and that democrat gains were inevitable in view of the abnormally large republican majorities resulting from 1920, there is a pronounced feeling that the national committee was not aggressive enough. This feeling extends into high quarters. There is no disposition among party leaders to be unduly critical of the work of Adams. His solid conscientious application to his job is recognized by all republicans up to President Harding.

But Adams is unfortunate in having been the successor to Will Hays, the party has had in years. Hays was a sort of light running model that rammed agile organizer the republican bled all about the place. During the presidential campaign he spent three nights out of every four on a train. Hays also had the advantage of nagging a candidate who was virtually selected before polling. The soldiers of the party down to the lowest precinct worker had been among the unemployed for eight years and were eager to reach the pie counter.

Adams had none of these favorable conditions to help him. He had to shoulder the liability which any party in power accumulates. There is little additional patronage to entice the party workers. The let-down in party morale plagued him.

Some have criticized Adams for not having called his executive committee together during the last campaign. Neither the national nor executive committee, governing bodies of the party, has been assembled since Adams took office. On his various trips, Adams consults with various members as individuals and sounds them on important matters, but there is some feeling that the party's morale might have been stronger had executives met at intervals.

TURK SAYS HIS COUNTRY WAS DISILLUSIONED

Turko Greek and Turko Allies Peace Treaties Hoped for At Meeting

(By United News)

Lusanne, Nov. 20.—Over four years after the Germans ran up the white flag on the western front, diplomats stood before the plenary session of the Near East parley here Monday and pledged themselves to "mark" finish on the world war.

Delegates were in accord that the near eastern muddle which reached its climax when Greek armies were driven into the sea by legions of Mustapha Kemal, Turkish nationalist, was the "last phase" of the conflict which started in 1914.

R. Haab, vice president of the republic of Switzerland, welcomed the delegates to the country stating that it was his best hope that the conference would succeed. Viscount Curzon, British foreign minister then promised the world that the delegates of Great Britain and other nations would make the Turks see the end of the world drama. He pledged that every question would be approached with the sincerest desire to reach final peace.

Ishmet Applauded

"England will spare no efforts to attain that end," viscount Curzon said. The speech of Ishmet Pasha, Turkish nationalist representative, was the only one greeted with applause by the delegates. Ishmet declared the Turks signed the armistice in 1918 on basis of 14 points of President Wilson, presuming that peace would be concluded thereon. He said that his nation had been disillusioned in the last four years during which time a million Turks had experienced real suffering. Nevertheless he stated "Turkey has not regained her independence and the right to definite place among the world's nations." This position she proposed to consolidate in the present conference.

It was learned that the Turk nationalist government at Angora wired Ishmet not to yield on the Turk demand for abolition of capitulations.

Richard Washburn Childs, ambassador of the United States to Italy, and Joseph C. Grew, minister to Switzerland, American observers, occupied front row seats but took no part in the speech making of the first day. It became known, however, that America's representatives will take part in any deliberations in which interests of the United States are involved.

Mussolini Attracts Attention

Benito Mussolini, the useful premier of Italy, was the center of attention. He was decked out in frock coat, white spats and Fascist decorations in his buttonhole.

"Covenants openly arrived at," will not come out of this Lausanne parley. Hereafter, two secret sessions are to be held daily. The Allies the first day announced they would plant down the censorship on all press messages. It is hoped that two treaties will be agreed upon—one a pact between Turks and Greeks and second a treaty between Turks and Allies which will replace the repudiated treaty of Sevres drawn up in 1919.

The Allies are in accord in many points of the program to be presented to the Turks, but there are still some provision on which the members of entente are at variance.

Representatives of the following nations are taking part in the deliberations: Great Britain, France, Italy, Greece, Turkey, Roumania, Jugo-Slavias, and Japan.

What would you do if you were an undertaker and heard a horrible voice call, "Don't drive that hearse tomorrow—'he's mine!"

BONNIE SORRY SHE CAN'T BE HERE IN SCHOOL

Iowa's Most Beautiful Girl Condemns Rouge, Bobbed Hair and Trailing Skirts

"I wish I, too, might attend the University," said Miss Bonnie Murray, Iowa's beauty who is appearing in person at the Strand theater for the last time today. Miss Murray was chosen Iowa's beauty August 31 by twenty unknown judges under the direction of the Des Moines Register and the Iowa State Fair board. First, by process of elimination, she became Woodbury county winner and received a gold medal in recognition. From eleven congressional districts and the city of Des Moines, twelve beauties assembled at the fair, each selected from her community. Miss Murray was crowned by Governor Kendall and received a check for $1,000.

This fall, Miss Murray registered at the University but cancelled her registration upon learning that a detailed course in interior decorating is not offered here. Her intention is to study decorating at the Chicago Art Institute and later take her degree at Columbia university, New York.

The beauty, accompanied by her mother and two younger sisters, sixteen and twelve, has toured various parts of the state, filling engagements similar to this one in Iowa City. She was particularly well pleased with the campus at Ames but refused to state a preference.

Miss Murray, nineteen years old, is about five feet six inches in height, slender and graceful. Her features, exceptionally regular, plus a clear complexion, soft brown hair and blue eyes, seem secondary to her charming personality. In fact, her personality was an important quality in determining her position as Iowa's most beautiful girl. She is a typical American girl.

Likes Leather Coats

"I dislike to see young girls wear rouge. If they are healthy, rouge really isn't necessary and it does cause enlarged pores. Personally, I have never used cosmetics—due to my mother's forbidding, perhaps. I like to see college girls dress in simple, comfortable clothes. Watching women on the campus from my window at the Berkeley, I have observed the absence of extremely long skirts here. Skirts should be lengthened in proportion to height and not style alone. I also like the leather coats worn so commonly now. They must be both comfortable and convenient."

The picture showing at the Strand, where Miss Murray appears today, is "The Headless Horseman." The garments worn are furnished by Yetter's and the shoes by Stewart. Morning, afternoon and evening clothes are shown. There are two performances, one at 3:30 and one at 7:30.

Leaving Iowa City tomorrow night, the Murrays will go to Chicago where they will investigate the courses offered by the Art Institute.

W. A. A. INITIATES 60 WOMEN WEDNESDAY; GIVE VARIOUS STUNTS

Sixty women were initiated into W. A. A. at the women's gymnasium Wednesday night. About twice this number took the pledge of loyalty, but they do not become members in full standing, until their dues are paid. The stunts put on by the groups of initiates were unusually clever. There was a take off on the Seals' bathing beauties' style revue. Regular swimming suits had been decorated with bright colored crepe paper frills.

The Currier hall group acted out a freshman's marriage to W. A. A., a strictly athletic ceremony being used. The ceremony represented all phases of women's athletics. The last group showed a corrective gym class in progress.

After the short business meeting and welcome address by Gladys Taggart A4 of Spencer, president of W. A. A., everybody sang W. A. A. songs.

Initiates

Those who were initiated are: Helen Larson A1 of Stanton, Lura Camery A3 of Harlan, Gertrude Riecky A1 of Woodward, Lillian Sirbausek A1 of Cedar Rapids, Kathryn Letts A3 of Letts, Lois Burns A3 of Hartley, Isadore Sidwell A1 of Iowa City, Ardith Lawhorn A1 of Garner, Ruth Williams A3 of Decorah, Leona Benjergedes A3 of Manley, Gladys Brooker A1 of Omaha, Neb., Laura Beckhaus A1 of Manley, Olive Cook A3 of Waverly, Helen Vogel A1 of Marshalltown, Gladys Gulickson A3 of Northwood, Ada Tallefson A4 of St. Ansgar.

Mildred Augustine A1 of Ludora, Mrs. F. E. Humeston A1 of Iowa City, Pearl Eikenburg A1 of Lincoln, Neb., Edith Evans A3 of Webster City, Lucille Smith A3 of Spencer, Jeanette Carman A2 of Bancroft, Esther Burns A2 of Tiffin, Margaret Hauer A3 of Davenport, Sylvia Plotts A4 of Russell, Nora Cusack A2 of Iowa City, Cecelia Sommers A2 of Davenport, Aileen Shriver A1 of Estherville, Genevieve Harter A1 of Keokuk, Naomi Moore of Iowa City, Doris Hogan A1 of Iowa City, Opal Thompson of Vinton, Imogene Kerrins A1 of Wesley, Emma Hanson A1 of Callender.

Eleanor Waldschmidt A1 of Burlington, Myrtle Dollmire A2 of Oxford, Sarah Guernsey A1 of Marshalltown, Deborah Hawley A2 of San Diego, Cal., Idella Harris A4 of Tipton, Edith Decker A1 of Osage, Annalaura Lee of Sutherland, Ruth Schutzbank A1 of Centerville, Ruth Morris A3 of Stockport, Helen Hanzon A1 of Essex, Gertrude Schroeder A4 of Emmetsburg, Lola Lund A1 of St. Ansgar, Martha Walker A3 of Corydon, Grace Walker A3 of Wagon, Irene Perry A3 of Greene, Gertrude Sidwell A1 of Iowa City, Chloe Carson A1 of Toledo, Maurine Comery A4 of Sutherland, Ellen Walpole A1 of Rock Valley, Nellie Klay A1 of Rock Valley, Katherine Brose A1 of Dubuque, Catherine Guernsey A1 of Marshalltown, Ruth Davis A4 of Iowa City, Mary Boling A1 of Tipton, Paline Larson A1 of Stanton and Pauline Mullins A1 of Perry.

ACTUAL WORK ON 1924 HAWKEYE TO BEGIN SOON

With the 1924 Hawkeye departmental heads to be appointed early this week, actual work on the State University of Iowa year book will soon be begun, is the promise made by Stephen M. Wollman A3 of Council Bluffs, who is editor-in-chief of the 1924 Hawkeye. "The few sophomores who have indicated their intentions of helping to put out the year book this year will in some cases be given assignments," said Wollman yesterday. "They will also read and mark copy, and will rewrite it if necessary. Ordinarily their work will be of such a nature that they will be able to manage and publish another distinctive year book next year."

There are six sophomores that have already applied for positions of this nature on the Hawkeye. Those hoping to be chosen by the Hawkeye board of trustees for the position of editor-in-chief of the 1925 Hawkeye are: John H. Sheldon of Webster City; Tyrrell M. Ingersoll of Algona; Wesley A. Hughes of Des Moines; John B. Potter of Harlan; Frances M. Neis of Charles City; and Freda M. Snyder of Fort Dodge.

The two men trying out for business manager of the 1925 Hawkeye are: Isaac I. Bolzman and Daniel W. Holcomb, both of Iowa City.

WOLTERS RETURNS FROM CONVENTION

Local Delegate of Sigma Delta Chi Reports On Convention of Journalists

Lorenz G. Wolters A3 of Waukon returned from Manhattan, Kansas, Sunday evening where he has been attending the eighth annual national convention of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic fraternity, November 15, 16 and 17, as representative of the local chapter of Sigma Delta Chi. Representatives from every large college and university in the Union from Leland Stanford to Maine and from Louisiana to Minnesota, were there as well as newspaper men of national prominence.

The convention opened Wednesday morning with a big meeting of all the delegates at which M. M. Jardins, president of the college, gave the official speech of welcome. The business meeting was held in the afternoon at which matters of interest to Sigma Delta Chi's all over the country were discussed. Among other things a chapter was granted to the Kansas City Alumni, and Donald Clark of Des Moines, a Grinnell graduate was appointed National Alumni Secretary.

Ames Gets Cup

The Efficiency Cup was awarded to Iowa State College at Ames at this meeting. This is a cup that is given to the Sigma Delta Chi chapter in the country which has accomplished the most in campus activities. It was awarded to the Ames delegates by the Honorary President F. W. Beckman.

Wednesday evening the Manhattan Chamber of Commerce entertained the delegates at a smoker.

"At 8:30 the delegates went as the guests of the local chapter of Sigma Delta Chi to the College Auditorium to see a play produced by the college.

Thursday noon they were entertained at luncheon in the California Hotel by the Manhattan chapter of Theta Sigma Phi, national journalistic sorority and the local chapter of Sigma Delta Chi assisted by all the social sororities entertained them at a dance Thursday evening.

The Manhattan Department of Journalism Friday noon entertained the delegates with a luncheon at the College cafeteria and the local chapter of Sigma Delta Chi gave a dinner that night at 9 o'clock at the Hotel Gillette at which some of the most prominent journalists of the country acted as speakers. Among them were E. Haldeman Julius, editor of "The Appeal to Reason" and author of a new book, "Dust," Kenneth C. Hogate, editor of the Wall Street Journal and also retiring national president of Sigma Delta Chi; Ward A. Neff, editor of Drovers Journal and newly elected national president of Sigma Delta Chi; and Lee A. White, editor of the Detroit News.

Attend Game

Saturday morning the delegates left Manhattan and as the guests of the Capper publications went to Topeka and through the publication buildings in that city as well as to luncheon. They motored from there to the State University at Lawrence where the local chapter of Sigma Delta Chi there had arranged for a section of seats for the Kansas-Colorado football game. After a dinner given in their honor the delegates returned to their universities.

Mr. Wolters was enthusiastic in his reports of both the journalistic work done in Kansas and the hospitality he met in that state. "The local dealers in Manhattan wouldn't take money," he said. "The journalism department in the Kansas Agricultural college has an enrollment of about 150, but they specialize more than we do. They publish industrial agricultural magazines, home economics and magazines and papers of that sort."

LOOMIS, UNIVERSITY ALUMNUS WRITES FOR AMERICAN MAGAZINE

"People Do Love to See Their Names in Print" is the title of an article in the November number of the American Magazine, written by William W. Loomis, University of Iowa graduate, A '99, who was editor-in-chief of the old Vidette-Reporter for two years. He is now president of the Citizen Publishing company of LaGrange, Illinois, publishing six papers in the suburban field near Chicago.

Besides his work in the magazine field, Mr. Loomis is author of "Newspaper Law," a reference book for publishers, directors, and reporters. The book is authoritative in matters pertaining to newspapers, circulation, subscriptions, advertising (legal and commercial), lotteries, libel and contempt, copyright and postal regulations, stripped and legal phraseology. Authority for such material is taken from 405 court decisions and has been indexed for convenient reference.

"Newspaper Law," edited by the Iowa alumnus, is divided into twelve chapters under the following headings: (1) Newspapers; (2) Subscriptions;

Circulation; (3) Commercial Advertising; (4) Legal Advertising; (5) Prices and Rates; (6) Lotteries; (7) Libel; (8) Contempt; (9) Liberty of the Press; (10) Privacy; (11) Copyright; (12) Postal Rules and Regulations.

LIBERAL ARTS STUDENTS PROVE HEAVY DRINKERS

That liberal arts students are the heaviest drinkers in the University is the conclusion John M. Fisk comes to after he watched the five-gallon tanks reach an empty stage for as many as twenty or twenty-five times during the day. In none of the other buildings or departments of the University, he declares, do the students consume as much water as they do in the liberal arts building. The use of the sanitary drinking cups has proven satisfactory, Mr. Fiske stated.

Miss Hilma Walker A4 of Newton, a commerce student, has planned to teach book-keeping and typewriting in some high school in Iowa.

Miss Pauline Davis A4 of Osage, whose major has been physical Education in some high school in Iowa.

Professor Mabel C. Williams of the psychology department addressed a gathering of about 100 students at the Sunday evening meeting of the Luther League. Professor Williams' subject, "Psychology and Christianity" was illustrated by making use of the self-measurement outline suggested by H. B. Wylie in his text book on "Self-measurement."
Hints as to judging one's own aptitudes and abilities were given by Prof. Williams in her talk.

Y. W. HEARS JAMES MANRY TOMORROW AFTERNOON

James Manry, graduate student and head of the student friendship fund for Iowa, will speak at the regular Y. W. C. A. meeting Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the liberal arts drawing room. Mr. Manry, who spent seven years in India doing Y. M. C. A. work, will illustrate his talk by stereopticon views of India. Tea will be served at the Wednesday afternoon meeting contrary to the custom of the last two meetings.
At each regular meeting the attendance has increased so that the committee plans to serve at least one hundred women tomorrow.
Freshman commission members will be chosen this afternoon at the regular meeting of the Y. W. council. Announcement as to the final selection will appear Wednesday. The Christmas service, December 13, given annually under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A., will be in charge of the new commission.
"Magazines, picture books, and papers are wanted by the children at the Perkins hospital, and the little boy wants dominos," says Miss Alvida Buck, association secretary.

THOMAS GIVES ADDRESS AT UNITARIAN CHURCH

Declaring that religion and evolution had a great deal in common, Prof. Abram O. Thomas, of the department of geology, spoke to a large audience at the Unitarian church Sunday evening. He discussed the processes of life from the stage of protozoa through the various ages. Professor Thomas declared the theory of evolution reflected highly upon the Master Builder of the work of creation. He maintained that from now on the evolution would consist largely in mental development. He compared the earth to a great book which should be studied with the minutest care.

MANY FACTS GROW OUT OF OHIO VICTORY

Was Sixteenth Straight Win for Hawkeyes; Jones Points To Purple

Several interesting facts came out of the Iowa-Ohio State football game last Saturday and some of which are not generally known. It was the first time that Iowa and Ohio State ever clashed on the gridiron. It was the third successive Big Ten defeat for the Buckeyes in their new stadium. It was Iowa's sixteenth successive victory. Here's the list; count 'em up:

- 1920—
- Iowa 20, Northwestern 0.
- Iowa 28, Minnesota 7.
- Iowa 14, Ames 10.

- 1921—
- Iowa 52, Knox 14.
- Iowa 10, Notre Dame 7.
- Iowa 14, Illinois 2.
- Iowa 13, Purdue 6.
- Iowa 41, Minnesota 7.
- Iowa 41, Indiana 0.
- Iowa 14, Northwestern 0.

- 1922—
- Iowa 61, Knox 0.
- Iowa 6, Yale 0.
- Iowa 8, Illinois 7.
- Iowa 56, Purdue 0.
- Iowa 28, Minnesota 14.
- Iowa 12, Ohio State 9.

Another interesting fact is that this record is yet to be broken, and will no doubt continue to grow, at least until the end of this season.

It is also interesting to note that Iowa has not lost a game since Shuttlesworth and "Tommy" Thompson have been playing regular on the team. Also when the Buckeyes scored the first touchdown in the first quarter of the game it was the first time the Hawkeyes have been behind in two years. It is almost safe to say that Iowa will lay its second successive claim to the Big Ten Conference championship after the Northwestern game next Saturday, but there is nothing that can be upset as easily as the dope.

The hard game with Ohio State, although it should have been won by a larger score, should have the effect of a tonic on the Iowa players, and should make them realize that the game with the Purple is yet to be won, and they will stack up against a never-say-die team when the two elevens clash on Iowa Field.

The Iowa team came out of the Ohio State fracas in fairly good shape, and all, with the exception of regular quarterback Parkin, were out in uniform for the last night's workout. Parkin was out and watched the practice from the sidelines. Present indications are that he will not participate in the final game of the season next Saturday.

Last night's practice, according to usual Monday night custom, was light, and only a short snappy signal drill was engaged in by the varsity eleven. The seconds took on the yearling eleven and found the going rather rough. Aubrey Devine has developed a wonderful team from his bunch of Freshman huskies, and it was a nip and tuck battle all the way. The seconds executed a lot of new forward pass plays that worked with only mediocre success.

Once a freshman wing man managed one of Fred Seiling's flips, and broke away for a touchdown.

SQUAD PREPARES FOR PURDUE MEET

Captain Ashton Unable To Work-out But Will Be In Shape for Meet

The Iowa cross country squad took a long, stiff run over a six mile course, south of Iowa City last night in preparation for the conference cross country run at Purdue next Saturday. The men did the course in very good time and stayed together well. Captain Ashton did not take the workout last evening because of trouble with his knee.

As yet the team that will represent Iowa at the Purdue meet has not been picked. Those men will be announced later. The team will leave Iowa City on Thursday night and arrive in Lafayette, Indiana at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon. They will go over the course on Friday and will start the run at 10:30 on Saturday morning.

Ten teams of six men each will start the run, which will be for five miles. The entries are: Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin, Iowa, Ohio State, Illinois, Minnesota, Purdue, Ames, and Michigan Aggies, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Ames have very strong teams and are expected to make strong bids for the championship.

The course is an exceptionally good one. It is over a distance of five miles and, with the exception of stretches of pavement in the second and fourth miles, is all of graveled country road. There are no real hills on the course but there is a gentle grade between the second and fourth miles. The race starts and finishes on the cinder track on the Purdue athletic field.

To win an "I" in this meet a Hawkeye runner must place in the first ten to finish. Furthermore, if the Iowa team wins the meet, each member will be awarded an "I". The "cle" sweater will be given on the showing that the men make in the run.

TRAVELS 2,000,000 MILES; QUILTS AS IT BECOMES MONOTONOUS

(By United News)
New York, Nov. 20.—Pat Kirwin, veteran conductor on the Lackawanna railroad, who travelled 2,000,000 miles while on the job, has retired because it is getting monotonous. Kirwin is 72 and stuck fifty-three years in the service of the railroad company. He never missed a run.

SISTERS WILL HELP FORM "I" SATURDAY

Organized yelling at the Iowa-Northwestern game by the "Sisters of the Howling 300" will be discussed at the meeting of the Sisters at 8 o'clock tonight in the liberal arts drawing room. They are planning an "I" formation, composed of 132 women in the center of section "P" on the west side of the bleachers to be surrounded by 168 of the "Howling 300".

An all-university mass meeting will be held for ten minutes directly after the game on the intersection of Washington and Clinton streets. Yells and cheers will be given, led by men and women cheer-leaders.

GYM CLASSES TO PLAY BASKETBALL

114 Freshmen Clash To Decide Basketball Championship

Last night marked the opening game of the first men's freshmen gym class basketball tournament here, in which 114 men will take part to decide the championship of the freshmen gym classes. Each class will be represented with teams and each team will play every other team in the league twice.

The championship will be decided on the percentage basis of victories and losses by January 10, the last day of the tournament, the members of the championship team to be awarded bronze basketballs.

All games will be played at the old armory beginning at 7 o'clock, the halves will be fifteen minutes long, instead of the usual rest between halves, another team will begin play as soon as the first team leaves the floor. This will give the spectators solid basketball during the evening.

The officials are men majoring in physical education. By using men as officials, the department of physical education will have solved the problem of refereeing, and the men, themselves will gain some valuable experience. Two men will work each night, on Monday, W. S. Grubb, and George B. Wiencke; Tuesday, C. M. Van De Venter, and C. A. Dahn; Wednesday, O. D. Hulse, and Dick Ulmeyer; Thursday, E. L. Fisher, and W. H. Thorn; Friday, James Hoffman, and Homer H. White.

The teams will go under names: Section A, class meeting on Monday and Wednesday, at 9 a. m., number one; section B, Monday and Wednesday at 10 a. m., number Two; section C, Monday and Wednesday, at 11 a. m., number Three; Section G, Monday and Friday at 2 p. m., number Four; section D, Thursday and Tuesday at 9 a. m., number Five; section E, Tuesday and Thursday at 10 a. m., number Six; section F, Tuesday and Thursday at 11 a. m., number Seven; and section H, Tuesday and Thursday at 2 a. m., number Eight.

This is the first time in the history of the University that this plan has been tried. If it proves successful, the freshman gym classes will hold a tournament every year.

FRATERNITY TEAMS WILL SWIM RELAY

Each Organization Enters Four Men In Inter-Fraternity Aquatic Relay

The inter-fraternity aquatic relay will be held tomorrow night at 7:30 in the men's pool. The inter-fraternity council has offered a plaque for first place. No other prizes will be given.

Each fraternity will enter a team composed of four men, each of whom will swim 40 yards. The winning team will be decided by a plan of elimination. The teams will be divided into heats and the winners of each heat will swim in the semi-finals. The winners of the semi-finals will compete in the final relay which will decide the conference championship.

The main swimming meet will be held the first part of next month. Prizes will be given for first, second and third places in this meet. The relay does not count in the main meet but is to be a separate feature this year. Last year the relay counted in points for the main meet.

This plan of separating the relay from the main meet was tried with success two years ago.

Any member of a fraternity is eligible for this meet except "I" and "Is" men who have won their letters in swimming.

Invitations have been sent to all members of the inter-fraternity conference and a good number have already signified their intention to enter the teams.

RIFLEMEN KNOCKING OUT POSSIBLES IN GALLERY PRACTICE

Eight men of the 150 who have been practicing for the coming inter-collegiate and war department matches have continually shot possible scores, according to Capt. Thomas E. Martin of the military department, who is coaching the men now firing on the indoor range in the new armory.

Two New Men

These eight men, six of whom were on last year's rifle team, and two others, who are freshmen in the University this year, are: George J. Fabricius A4 of Iowa City; Walter J. Dehner A4 of Iowa City; Fred W. DeKlots A2 of Filer, Idaho; Clarence W. Smith A2 of Fairfield; Ralph C. Woods S4 of Des Moines; Richard W. Ballard A1 of Davenport; and Richard C. Pray A1 of Des Moines.

Ballard has been on teams in three national rifle matches held at Camp Perry, Ohio. Pray was a member of the varsity rifle team at Culver Military academy, Culver, Indiana, last year, a team which has regularly held high records in national indoor rifle matches during recent years.

Small Bull's Eyes

"The Targets now being used for practice firing on the fifty-foot range have bulls' eyes nearly the size of a half dollar," stated Captain Martin. "The official targets used in the matches, however, will be only about three inches in diameter in all; the bulls' eyes are scarcely a quarter of an inch in diameter."

During the entire year the men firing on the Iowa indoor range will be primed for the National Inter-Collegiate match, which will be scheduled, it is thought, for sometime in April. At this time, the high ten per cent of the men on the rifle team will fire against practically every other potential team of picked men in the country.

Shoot Dual Matches

In the meantime, the Iowa rifle team when selected will practice for dual matches with Ohio State, Wisconsin, Northwestern, and Missouri.

"It is quite possible that the Iowa team may fire other dual matches," said Captain Martin. "Our high scores last year have attracted nationwide attention."

"At the present time, we have awaiting our acceptance, invitations from Maine to Washington State for matches to be scheduled at times convenient to us. Since we can only accept a few of these challenges, we shall choose to fire with the other Universities which we know have strong teams."

N. R. A. Match In Spring

Besides the National Inter-collegiate match in April, the University riflemen will be divided into three teams of five men each for the National Rifle association Inter-collegiate match. This match will open about January 15, to last for six weeks, according to information received by the local military department.

With this match shot, the Iowa rifle team will enter the seventh corps area match, in an effort to win again the cup that is awarded to the winning team each year. "Should Iowa be triumphant for two more years in succession," stated Captain Martin, "we will hold the cup permanently."

JUNIORS EXCITE WRATH OF SENIORS OF 1870

On the morning of commencement day way back in 1870, there was weeping and wailing among the seniors. A huge rock that they had hauled from the vicinity of Solon was to be the rostrum for the dedication ceremony they had planned for that day. But during the night a mischievous group of juniors plied pick and shovel diligently until they had dug a hole large enough to completely bury the boulder. The wrath of the seniors was intense for it was necessary to postpone the start of the ceremony for several hours until the stone was unearthed.

The two rocks on each side of the walk near the entrance to the Old Capitol building were placed there by the seniors of 1870 and 1880.

What Are the Young Men Up To?

"There may be something in this new art," you say, "but I don't get it; one modern thing looks as queer as the next to me. What's it all about—what are the new men up to?"

The Dial

is the one American magazine to intelligently explain the meaning and interpret the trend of the new movements in art and literature. It is the only magazine which publishes side by side

- the best work produced by Americans
- the best work produced abroad
- the best work in traditional styles
- the best work in the modern manner in fiction, poetry, essays, criticism, and reproductions of the fine arts.

You know that in a few years certain of our contemporaries, whose work is anathema to the present generation, will stand out like giants. They will be hailed as great artists and geniuses by those who now lack the critical discernment to understand what they are trying to do. The genius of Swift, Milton, Blake, Moliere, Ibsen, Shelley, Poe, Thoreau, Melville, and Whitman, to mention only a few, went unrecognized, except by the discriminating minority, in their own generation. Don't wait for the next generation to see your contemporaries in perspective, but enjoy their work now in The Dial, and accord them your appreciation while they are yet alive.

In addition to the best work by the new generation, The Dial presents the finest work by established writers: Joseph Conrad, E. A. Robinson, George Moore, Thomas Hardy, and Anatole France, appearing side by side with Sherwood Anderson, E. E. Cummings, Waldo Frank, Van Wyck Brooks, T. S. Eliot, D. H. Lawrence, and Ezra Pound. THE DIAL thus offers you the unusual pleasure of comparing and criticizing.

READ THE DIAL

and know the world of modern art and letters as it is.

THE DIAL FOR NOVEMBER

PADDOCK AND HIS RECORDS ARE IN BAD

One Timer Gives Charlie O Flat for Five Yards; Protest Races

By Westbrook Pegler

(United News Sports Editor)

New York, Nov. 20.—When Charlie Paddock wants to hurry he can urge more haste out of his bunched legs than any other man has or maybe ever will, but the records committee of the national Amateur Athletic union cannot concede him five yards in 0 flat or any fraction of 0. This was the record which one of the timers gave him in his great July 4 sprint at Santa Barba, Calif., last summer and it was this record more than any other which caused the committee to throw out the seven new unofficial world records which the antelope Californian almost established.

There was a row in the open convention of the A. A. U. Monday over the Paddock speed figures and the result was that all official records of 1922 are held up until the new board of governors can take further testimony concerning what Charlie did. The record committee also threw out three other records which did not cause the uproar which ensued upon the temporary rejection of Charlie Paddock's seven hustling stages from scratch to 175 yards.

Others Disqualified

These other three were the following:

7 minutes 55 and 1-5 seconds claimed as time of two mile indoor relay by

University of Pennsylvania at Milrose games, N. Y. Two hundred feet 9 1-2 inches claimed as javelin record on Milton Angier of the University of Illinois at the Drake relay games at Des Moines last April.

17 minutes 45 sec. claimed as time of 4 mile relay for the Univ. of Illinois at Drake.

Louis N. Goldsmith, a Philadelphian belonging to the middle atlantic branch of national union got into debate with Lorre Andrews, representing Honolulu, who is the official delegate for the southern pacific group, which is Paddock's home outfit.

Goldsmith, who is chairman of the records committee, produced the records as follows:

- 60 yards 6 1-5 sec.
- 70 yards 7 1-10.
- 75 yards 7 3-5.
- 80 yards 7 4-5.
- 100 yards 9 3-5.
- 125 yards 12 1-5.
- 175 yards 17 sec.

All right now, Goldsmith submitted. —Here is a fellow who can pick up and do five yards in 1-5 of a second after he had already gone 75 yards, breaking two world records hardly half that speed. But that wasn't all. The most difficult thing to believe was the report of one clocker who gave Paddock a mark of 7 3-5 sec. at 80 yards—in other words nothing flat for five yards between the 75 yard and 80 mark.

Andrews made such a strong plea for further opportunity to support the records with additional information that it was decided to hold over all records until the incoming Governor could consider Paddock's case.

Regardless of whether the southern pacific is able to give absolutely convincing proof, the records may be ignored because Paddock did not break any record for the only official distance which he covered in his sprint. This is the 100 yard event which is a "standard distance" for the A. A. U.

team of 1900 came on November 3, when they met the Chicago Maroons. Iowa won decisively by a score of 17 to 0. Those who saw the game praised the westerners highly. The Chicago papers united in the opinion that the best team had won. More than that, the Iowans apparently possessed all of the qualities of a championship team.

Defeat Michigan 28-5

Following the Chicago game the Hawkeye squad went into camp at Mt. Clemens near Detroit, where the men were taught an entirely new set of plays. A week later Iowa defeated the University of Michigan at Detroit by a score of 28 to 5, everyone was astonished because the representatives of Old Gold had piled up the largest score that any team had registered against the Maize and Blue in seven years.

The most gruelling test of the team of 1900 came when Iowa played Northwestern at Rock Island, when at the end of a rough and hard fought contest the score stood 5 to 5.

For the second consecutive season no opponent had defeated the Iowa eleven and none had crossed the Iowa goal line. That 1,900 Hawkeye football team it was generally conceded deserved the title of intercollegiate champions of the West.

OPPONENTS SCORED ONLY 10 POINTS ON IOWA'S GRID CHAMPS OF 1900

The football team of 1899 had been a splendid success for the State University of Iowa. A fast, powerful, well-coached team had gone through a series of ten games without a single defeat. No opponent had crossed the Iowa goal line—a distinction which no other university in the country could claim. At the close of the season Iowa had been admitted to the Inter-collegiate conference, popularly known thereafter as the "Big Nine."

When the University opened in the fall of 1900 hope ran high for even more glorious achievements on the gridiron. Dr. A. A. Knipe was entering upon his third season as football coach at Iowa. All but two of the team of '99 were back in school, and at least seven had had two years training in the "Pennsylvania system."

Captain Griffith Fullback

Captain John E. Griffith, now connected with the athletic department at the University of Illinois, was playing his fourth year of varsity football. Though one of the smallest men on the team his ability to gain ground qualified him for the position of fullback. Quarterback Clyde Williams was one of the fastest men in the west. He was a brilliant field general, accurate in passing the ball, and a marvel at returning punts. He was watched in every game and opposing teams found it necessary to devise a special defense against his wide end runs. Ray A. Morton, the fastest man on the squad, was ready for his third year as right halfback. W. C. Edson, who had played left halfback the preceding year, was out for his old position. The captain of the famous team of '99, Morey L. Eby, star end and tackle during three seasons, played right end. Bert Watters was the aggressive, sure tackling right end. Joseph S. Warner had played two years at left tackle and had developed into the best kicker on the team. At the other tackle position was Emmet F. Burrier. Asher W. Ely filled the position of "center rush."

Three weeks before the University opened a dozen or more candidates for the team went into training at Linder's boathouse on the Iowa river two miles north of Iowa City. Living in the open, learning anew the fundamentals of tackling, kicking, blocking, passing the ball, and running interference, the squad was in splendid condition for the first game on September 28.

Four Teams Fail to Score
The season opened when Upper Iowa University at Fayette was defeated by a score of 57 to 0. When the State Normal school was defeated by a score of 68 to 0 the following week, Iowa fans began to have championship aspirations.

For a time during the game with Simpson it appeared that the Hawkeyes had met their match, but at the end of the game the score stood 47 to 0 in favor of Iowa.

DUMB AND LAZY COLLEGE MEN

In an interview with a reporter of the Daily Princetonian, Thomas A. Edison expressed himself regarding colleges and college men, and his remarks were distinctly unfavorable to both.

"Modern colleges are not what they should be," Mr. Edison declared. "I do not approve of the present day college graduate, for, as a rule, the right kind of men don't go to college. The average college man's knowledge of his surroundings and environment is usually inadequate. What young men need is a broad, general understanding of every little thing in life, such as would fit them to be able to answer my questionnaires."

"The main objection that I have against a college graduate is that he objects to work, especially if it be dirty. He does not want a job with much work to it, and when he does get a position he expects to be appointed foreman at the end of the sixth week. Most of the men working for me have never gone to college. Those college graduates that I have usually show lack of imagination. They scarcely have any suggestions to make in their daily routine which might lead to improvements in their various departments. College is a good place for the man who wants to work, but unfortunately there are few of this type nowadays."

"The main quality necessary for success, in my estimation," said the inventor, "is ambition with a will to work."

Mr. Edison spoke part of the truth but not the whole truth. He is right in his statement that colleges are not what they should be if by this he means that it is the duty of a college to turn out paragons of ambition and masters of technicalities from the heterogeneous mass that comes to them. He is also right when he says that a large number of college men are stupid, object to dirty work, and are unimaginative. Yet one finds the same condition among men who are not in college, and possibly to a greater extent.

Mr. Edison rather overstates the case when he says that as a rule the right kind of men do not go to college; history, at least, does not bear out this fact. Again, judging from great men of today, it is not absolutely essential that a man know how to swing an axe or dig a ditch to make a success. College men are taught to look beyond the "little things" so necessary according to Mr. Edison's dogma, to broader and greater things of life. In doing this they may forfeit a certain amount of technical skill, and consequently a little of that all-important thing—money, but surely a broader view of life makes up for this deficiency.

All in all, Mr. Edison has laid himself open to a charge of narrow mindedness. Physicists, according to Robert Louis Stevenson, condemn the unphysical, financiers have only a superficial toleration for those who know little of stocks; literary persons despise the unlettered. Mr. Edison, it seems, abhors the untechnical. He is not able to see beyond his own little world of reality, and consequently his formula of success must be classed with the other hundred million.

THE FAILURE OF PSYCHOLOGY TESTS

The most serious problem confronting American colleges today is one of limiting enrollment.

A great increase in the number of applicants has made it impossible for institutions to supply physical accommodations for all. Since some must be rejected, the problem is to select the best, and, at the same time, to give all applicants an equal chance.

Various methods have been suggested by which colleges could meet this situation. Psychologists maintain that the intelligence test is the logical solution, but of late there has been a decided reaction against such a method. Dr. Charles Wesley Flint, in his inaugural address at Syracuse university, said:

"There is some danger of too liberal generalization and therefore too liberal application of the results of intelligence tests. Valuable as they are for placement, and probably with greater value ahead, there are powers of interpretation, analysis and expression, qualities of reliability, earnestness, persistence and resourcefulness, judgment and other forms of ability, which have not yet been metered. Indeed, our ability in this direction is so far short of omniscience that we can scarcely be justified in establishing a rigid system of educational foreordination or predestination."

Editorializing on the speech of Prof. Forest A. Kingsbury, of the University of Chicago, the New York Herald has this to say:

"There is no reliable measure of the potentialities men may possess for greatness in leadership, in invention, in literature. The human drama develops its great characters as it rolls along and unsuspecting and unsuspected heroes come to the fore. What rating would Lincoln, the rail splitter, have obtained in a Binet test? What quotient would U. S. Grant have recorded in an Alpha test when he went to offer his services to the Union army?"

The only basis for exclusion, according to Dr. Flint, is demonstrated unworthiness, and even in this, the university and not the individual must bear the burden of proof. This method is fair to the applicant, but it fails to solve the problem for on account of the scarcity of room and equipment it is necessary to select prospective students before they have a chance to prove their worthiness.

The only lasting solution is to enlighten the American public and to start building at once for larger student populations.

IOWA ROADS

Yesterday we were discussing Iowa's nationally known roads with a friend. In the course of the discussion he said in part:

"Iowa is at the top of the list when it comes to number of autos per capita and size of license fee. She is at the bottom when it comes to the matter of permanent roads. At a very conservative estimate there are 500,000 licensed automobiles in Iowa, and the average license fee paid is easily $15. By a simple mathematical process we arrive at the conclusion that the income from licenses is at least $7,500,000 per year. And look at the roads. What's the answer?"

We don't know what the answer is, but we think there certainly ought to be one.

FAMOUS CASES IN CONSTITUTIONAL LAW

Cedar Rapids & Iowa City Railway Co. vs. 356 Cases of Eggs, et al.

(92 U. S. 92)

Supreme Court of the United States. 1932. Marshall, C. J., delivered the opinion of the court.

This was an original suit brought in the Supreme Court of the United States by the Cedar Rapids & Iowa City Railway company, on behalf of certain of its employees, to recover for damages sustained while transporting eggs from Iowa City to Cedar Rapids. Plaintiff claimed the Supreme Court had jurisdiction on the ground that an ambassador, having eaten some of the eggs, was greatly affected. . . . After carefully considering the facts, the court decided that it possessed the requisite jurisdiction. . . . Counsel for defendants failing to appear, the case was tried on its merits, and judgement was entered against defendants in the sum of $57.23.

(Justice Taney and Justice Taft dissenting.)

NOTE: This decision was later reversed by the 23rd Amendment, which prohibited the bringing of a suit against articles of commerce without their consent.

HOVERING AROUND

Arnold Bennett's "Lilian"

Reviewed By George Carver

A new novel by Mr. Arnold Bennett I have learned to consider as something of an event. The newest one, entitled alluringly enough Lilian, because there has not been one for some time, meant for me more nearly an occasion. I recalled half-forgotten delights. There was Hilda, for instance, and Helen, Sophia and Constance. There was Leonora, Anna, and "The Pretty Lady," whose name I have forgotten in remembering the beauty of her face and the charm of her manner as she maneuvered prettily to be "put down among her own furniture. Naturally enough, I looked to Lilian for the same enjoyment that her predecessors had so lavishly bestowed. What I received was the sort of reaction one obtains from seeing a daintily pretty girl, swathed in Kolenki fur and shod exquisitely in silk, take out lip stick and mirror and repair the damages wrought by a ham handwrench.

To begin with, Lilian opens after the fashion of all Mr. Bennett's lighter writings: the chief character is sketched in in time, place, manner and appearance. There is no statement here of a problem or the meticulous blocking in of a background, as in the case in Clayhanger, These Twain, The Old Wives' Tale, and the rest of the Five Towns novels.

Having designated the character as a beautiful young typist in a typewriting agency, the author proceeds to put her through her paces. The agency is owned by a man named Grig but is conducted by his sister. The sister is jealous of Lilian and manages to give her the sack. Grig seeks her out and makes certain arrangements. They go to the south of France where finally Grig dies, not, however, until he has married Lilian and willed to her a not inconsiderable property.

As a story the novel is extremely thin. As a piece of exposition—one expects something expository from Mr. Bennett, usually—it is even thinner. Once in a while, however, there is a bit of comment that is at least interesting. For instance, Felix Grig is leading up to the statement of his proposition to Lilian. A woman wants making. Only a man can make a woman. She has to be formed. She can't do it herself. A young man may be able to do it, but he's like a teacher who prepares the might before what he has to teach the next day. And he's a fearful bungler, besides being cruel—unconsciously. Whereas an older man, a much older man—he knows! It's a unique chance for both of them. She has so much to give, and she has so much to learn.

It's a fair bargain. Perhaps a woman has a little the best of it. Because after all she loses nothing that isn't her business to lose—and the man may, well, he may kill himself. And the chance for a clever girl to be "made" without any clumsiness! What a chance! . . . Well, I won't say which of 'em has the best of it. . . . I'm speaking impartially. If you live to be as old as Ninon de l'Enclos you'll never meet a more honest man than I am.

This theme, for so far as there is a theme expressed in the book this is it, if it were carried out to its logical conclusion would make an interesting study. If, for example, Lilian, in her association with Felix Grig, had absorbed some of his savoir faire, his point of view with regard to human affairs, and had become skillful at using what she had learned, she might have amounted to something. But she did not. She, in the end, is as naive, as clumsy, as trite, and without, as decorative, as she was in the beginning.

In The Pretty Lady there is very definitely a character developed, and The Pretty Lady is by no means more than an entertaining story. Lilian, however, shadows forth no development—only a story, and, at that, one that is not new.

GREATER THAN A KING

The strong man of Italy is doing things which no crowned head in the world would dare to do. He is treating the legislative bodies of his country as if they were merely means for the accomplishment of his ends. It might have been expected that Mussolini, after attaining the premiership and sending his Fascisti home, would employ the methods of diplomacy in guiding the deputies. Instead of this he treats the chamber of deputies with a contempt that is at once astonishing and magnificent. He scorns a vote of confidence, knowing that he probably could not get it. He tells the deputies not what he wants them to do but what they must do or be dissolved.

Such a course as Mussolini has taken would be impossible in Anglo-Saxon countries. But the dictator knows his people. He knows that he is regarded as having rescued them from the violence of Bolsheviks and the cowardice of politicians. He took his premiership practically by force, with the king approving. He feels that by any methods available he must redeem Italy from anarchy, idleness, poverty and politics. As a dictator disguised as a prime minister he strikes at the enemy as directly as if he had an army of half a million men surrounding Rome.

A VERY FALSE ALARM

Only day before yesterday the democratic correspondents in Washington were riding up and down like so many Paul Reveres warning the republicans that a third party had been launched, that they had heard it splash in the sea, and that its dimensions and sailing orders were thus and so. And now already the sad truth is out. The only third party that anybody can see on the horizon is the Committee of Forty-eight, and that splashed overboard for better or worse these many moons ago, without anybody's becoming greatly excited one way or the other.

Nor is splash exactly the right word to describe the beginning of these amiable separatists. The craft of the Forty-eighters is an ark, not a ship. Their craft is round as the bowl of the voyagers from Gotham. It slipped overboard so quietly that millions are still unaware of its launching. It contains no mere political group, but a marvellously assorted lot of diverse reformers, each headed in a different direction. Its ark had to be round so that it could head toward forty-eight different points of the compass at one and the same moment.

So far from adding to the number of parties, the formation of the Forty-eighters effected a notable reduction in the census of parties. It cut the number of parties visible in this particular area of discontent from forty-eight to one.—New York Tribune.

HEP-ZET TO GIVE WELL KNOWN PLAY

"Mr. Pim Passes By" is One of Most Popular Successes Written By Milne

"Mr. Pim Passes By" by Alexander A. Milne will be given by the Hesperian and Zetaganian literary societies as their annual play Thursday November 23, at 8 p. m. The University orchestra will furnish the music as usual under the competent direction of Prof. Kendrick.

The author of "Mr. Pim Passes By" has also written "Dover Road", "The Truth About Balyes", "Bolinda", "The Broxope" and the "Romantic Age." The latter play is now being produced in New York this year under the direction of the Theatre Guild. "The Truth About Balyes" had a successful season in New York last year.

So successful was "Mr. Pim Passes By" on the tour last year that a second tour was planned. Not until a week ago were the rights of production for this play to be given by the University Theater received.

The play was announced for production last spring before rights were secured. Rights were withdrawn this fall, and just recently were given back. This is an evidence of the popularity of the play.

"Mr. Pim Passes By" has its setting in an old English home. Vance Morton, of the department of speech, has had his design for the stage setting of the play which he submitted in the course in stage craft accepted. The class in stage craft will execute the design submitted. The setting is of the interior of the home. It will involve much detail work in the decoration and the paneled doors and walls. The color scheme to be carried out will be rich browns with royal blue drapes tinged with purple.

There are no particular lighting effects to be worked out in connection with this play. Work has begun on the stage sets.

PLEDGE PROGRAM GIVEN BY HESPERIA TONIGHT

The Hesperia literary society will hold a business meeting at 7 o'clock tonight. The program of the pledges will follow at 7:30. The meeting is being held early because of the May Robson play.

The program consists of a solo by Helen Orcutt A2 of Monroe, accompanied by Grace Orcutt A2 of Monroe, and a play entitled, "The Six Who Pass While the Lentils Boil." Those who take the various parts in the play are: "The Prologue," Alice M. Hagedorn A2 of Luverne, Minn.; "You," Evelyn F. Mullaney A2 of Sioux City; "Devise Bearer," Florence E. Altman A2 of Livermore; "Little Boy," Alice Timberman A2 of Massena; "Queen," Francis M. Kleveland A2 of Jewell; "Mime," Mary F. Finlayson A1 of Des Moines; "Milkmaid," Julia Cray A1 of Grundy Center; "Blindman," Jane Wheeler A2 of Fort Dodge; "Ballad Singer," Helen Orcutt A2 of Monroe; and the "Greadful Headman," Francis Carpenter A4 of Marion.

Y. P. R. U. GOOD SOCIAL CENTER

Kay, Thomas, and Trowbridge Lead, Fireside Hour Discussions This Month

One of the most active religious organizations which functions on this campus is the Young People's Religious Union of the First Unitarian church. The primary aim of this organization is to bring the younger people together more in a religious atmosphere. It is under the government of a cabinet, the officers of which are: Kjaerstone Mathieson, of Iowa City, president; Pearl Elliott, vice president; Ross E. Moyer A4 of Fulton, Ill., secretary-treasurer. Various committees which have charge of the activities are headed by committee chairmen who are: Pearl Elliott—Sunday evening programs; Chester Wentworth G of Iowa City—outing committee; Bernice Daley A2 of Iowa City—Sunday evening suppers; Merritt L. Fossler A4 of Williamsburg—music; Winifred Fossler A4 of Williamsburg—social; Nannie Rogers—dramatics; and Vincent W. Allaben A4 of Goodell—religious and social service work. The motto which this religious group has adopted is "to promote freedom, fellowship and character in religion."

Each Sunday evening at seven o'clock "Fireside Hours" are held for the discussion of a series of subjects on anthropology and paleontology. There has been a regular program of this series arranged for the whole year. During the month of November, members of the geology department of the University are leading the discussions. On November 5 and 12, Dean G. F. Kay spoke on "A Scientist's Conception of Religion." On November 19, Professor A. O. Thomas told the "Geologists Story of Life." Next Sunday, November 26, Professor A. C. Trowbridge will talk on "The Evolution of Inanimate Things." All of the meetings held up to this time have been very successful and well attended.

On Sunday evenings at six o'clock the Y. P. R. U. members and friends come together for an informal supper and social hour, where the warmest welcome is given all those to whom true fellowship is an interest.

The religious committee has charge of the Bible study class which meets regularly on Sunday morning. This class, besides having a large attendance, is otherwise active in the church school, by giving programs of various sorts. Under the auspices of this committee, the Fireside room is open on Friday and Saturday evenings and on Sunday afternoon.

The outing committee is in charge of the Saunterers and has arranged cross-country tramps for Sunday afternoons. Two divisions of the group are made so that the members may accompany the group whose pace they desire to follow.

Various plays will be given later in the year, for which the casts will soon be chosen. The music committee has offered a prize for the best Y. P. R. U. song which any member may compose.

The social side of the organization is maintained in a large way by parties at which the members entertain.

These are held on Saturday nights and beginning with this month have been carried on on the invitation basis. Those who wish to attend are to apply to the social committee or cabinet members for "interest cards."

The Y. P. R. U. will hold its annual Thanksgiving dinner on the evening of Thanksgiving day. This is held especially for all of the members and friends who have no other holiday plans.

TWO college men were walking down the road, when a classmate whizzed by in his car.

"Pretty soft!" sighed one.

Said the other, "I'll show him. Some day I'll own a car that's got his stopped thirty ways."

The more some men want a thing, the harder they work to get it. And the time to start working—such men at college know—is right now.

All question of classroom honors aside, men would make college count for more if they realized this fact: You can buy a text book for two or three dollars, but you can sell it for as many thousand—once you have digested the contents.

This is worth remembering, should you be inclined to the self-pity which social comparisons sometimes cause. And anyway, these distinctions are bound to be felt, even though your college authorities bar certain luxuries as undemocratic—as perhaps they are.

The philosophy that will carry you through is this: "My day will come—and the more work I crowd into these four years, the quicker I'll make good."

COMMONS IS OPENED WITH MAD SCRAMBLE

Parliament Members Wait In Line and Then Fight for Their Seats

(By United News)

London, Nov. 20.—The house of Commons opened Wednesday like a good old-fashioned rough and tumble game of rugby. The scramble of members for seats in the legislative hall was fiercer than on any in memory of the oldest attendants.

The rush was caused by the fact that only about half enough seats were available for the 615 members who are qualified. The hall was built when the membership of the house was only about 300 and even though the numbers of representatives has more than doubled no steps have been taken to change the seating capacity. Members of parliament banged against the door hours before it was thrown open at 8 a. m. The assembly reminded one of a crowd of good-natured and boisterous Americans awaiting eagerly for the gallery door of a theater to be thrown open.

One M. P. who evidently did not desire to go through a session of parliament standing arrived at Westminster at midnight. Many others had arrived before 5 a. m. When the doors were opened the stampede was on. In keeping with custom the flinging of a silk hat or the placing of card on a seat was sufficient for a legislative season's reservation.

Lady Nancy Astor, the American born M. P. wasn't to be crowded up. She had her breakfast at an unusually early hour and joined the throng. After she had settled down to rearrange her hat she found that she had captured a seat next to Colonel Gedeppon 'Wet' champion of the house.

"I hope you don't mind if I sit here," Lady Astor, who was a prohibitionist, smiled at the colonel. "Not at all," the gallant said.

The election had evidently furnished David Lloyd George with enough excitement. He had a substitute deputy to do his pushing. The deputy laid the card of the former premier on the seat which was vacated when Horatio Bottomley, former editor of anti-American "John Bull" was sent to prison for appropriation of relief funds to his personal use.

As M. P.'s were still gasping for breath, T. P. O'Connor, "father of the House," proposed that J. H. Whitley be reelected speaker. The decision of members was unanimous. Preliminary matters of organization will occupy the house until Thursday, when King George will make his address in person.

THETA SIGMA PHI AND SIGMA DELTA CHI HOLD LUNCHEON WEDNESDAY

The first joint meeting of the year of Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalistic sorority and Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity, will be held at the Pagoda Tea Shop Wednesday noon. This initial meeting will be an informal get-together affair, where the newly initiated members will be introduced. Lorenz C. Wolters A4 of Waukon, will tell of his trip to the national convention of Sigma Delta Chi held at Manhattan, Kan., last week. Wolters was the delegate sent from the local chapter of Sigma Delta Chi.

CLEAN UP DRIVE NETS UNION $5000 FIRST DAY

The first day of the clean up drive for the Iowa Memorial Union has netted over $5,000. The members of the Union Council, who are doing all the work in this clean up feel confident that results equally as good or better will be obtained each of the following days of this week. It is planned that by the end of the week all of the freshman and sophomore women and all the students in the professional colleges will have been met by the Union representatives and given an opportunity to pledge. There are also a number of fraternities which have not made a report regarding their response to the Union.

H. H. Matt L3 of Iowa City, president of the Union Council, says, "The indications are that the half-million mark will easily be reached before the end of this drive, making the students total pledge over $275,000."

At a regular meeting of the Union Council last evening, plans for the rest of the week were discussed and eight new members were added to the council. These eight were selected because of the enthusiasm and interest they showed in the drive Homecoming week. Another reason for their choice is that the Council feels the need of bringing in some new members who will be on the campus next year as all but two of the original council are seniors. The following are the new members: Mar- arita McGovney A2, Buel G. Beems A3 of Cedar Rapids, Sara Cox A2 of Iowa City, Helen MacKintosh G of Hopkinton, Charles R. Sellers of Davenport, Mark Piper A3 of Iowa City, Floyd W. Miller A3 of Wapello, Helen Wylie A2 of Iowa City, William Chamberlain A1 of Anamosa, and Camilla Sperati A2 of Decorah. These new members will work on the clean up drive with the old members in order to become thoroughly acquainted with the purpose and organization of the Memorial Union so that they can carry on the Union plans next year.

BETAS NOW LEAD IN BRIDGE TOURNAMENT

Pan-Hellenic council determined to award the winning team of the bridge tournament a table.

With the bridge tournament one-third over it was necessary for the council to come to some definite decision on the trophy to go to the winner. At the present time the standing of the teams of the various fraternities in the group is as follows:

Beta Theta Pi is first; Alpha Tau Omega, second; Sigma Alpha Epsilon, third; Sigma Chi and Phi Delta Theta tied for fourth and fifth places; Phi Psi, sixth; Sigma Nu, seventh; Kappa Sigma, eighth; and Delta Tau Delta, last.

Delegates of the Pan-Hellenic group are: Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Franklin E. Gill L2 of Sioux City; Kappa Sigma, Louis P. Best L2 of Davenport; Delta Tau Delta, Walter F. Bergendorf A3 of Rock Island, Illinois; Phi Psi, Raymond Peterson A4 of Council Bluffs; Sigma Nu, Max E. Conn L2 of Hartley; Phi Delta Theta, Will J. Price L2 of Des Moines; Sigma Chi, Albert P. Jenkins L3 of Keokuk; Beta Theta Pi, Robert Boeys L1 of Webster City; and Alpha Tau Omega, Raymond J. Lemley A4 of Brighton.

To-night Kappa Sigs play Sig Alphas; Tau, Deltas, Sigma Nu; Phi Psis, Phi Deltas; Betas, A. T. O.'s; and the Sig Chis drew the bye.

RESERVATIONS FOR NEXT PLAY AT IOWA SUPPLY

Reservations for the Hep-Zet play "Mr. Pim Passes By," to be presented Thursday evening, may be made Wednesday morning at the Iowa Supply. The play, by A. A. Milne, is one of the cleverest comedies that has been produced in the last few years. It is to have a competent cast for the production here and the class in stagecraft has been at work in the University workshop working out designs and lighting systems for an artistic production.

THOMAS TO SPEAK ON FIJI ISLAND EXPEDITION

A lecture on "The Experiences of the Geologist in the Islands of the South Seas" will be given at 8 o'clock tonight in the natural science auditorium by Prof. Abram O. Thomas of the geology department. This will be the second group of weekly lectures delivered on the Fiji-New Zealand expedition.

Accompanying the lecture are a number of slides showing glaciers and beautiful Alpine scenery as well as illustrations of some of New Zealand's geysers.

Interspersed with these will be some scenes of the native life among the native tribes and life in the more densely settled communities in the Fiji Islands and New Zealand.

HOW THE STUDENTS GET "DECENT DRINKS"

Did you know that the "Use-It" drinking fountains were installed merely as an economic measure by the University?

Because of the tendency of most human beings to be wasteful, the authorities thought that in order to insure the students here of a drink at all times, some way of limiting the amount taken by each one would have to be arranged. The "use-it's" were the result. The water is supplied by the three University wells which are situated at each of the three heating plants. The water is placed in five-gallon bottles and then iced. The bottle is merely inverted over the tap arrangement from which the water is drawn by the student. The amount used is so variable that no definite figures can be given. Some days the liberal arts students use no more than five bottles, other times the amount is doubled or even tripled.

The sanitary drinking cups as well as water from a fully reliable source are the way the University has of giving the students a "decent drink" as Mr. John M. Fisk, superintendent of grounds and buildings, says.
