BOARD AWARDS 16 LETTERS TO FOOTBALL SQUAD

Gold and Silver Footballs Will Be Given To Members of Squad

Sixteen members of the football squad of this year's championship Hawkeye football team, eight of whom have played their last game, were awarded "I's" by the board in control of athletics at a meeting last night. Besides these, fourteen "L's" were granted to other men on the football squad, and seven "C's" were awarded to the cross country men who made the trip to Purdue.

Block "I's" were given to Max Kadesky of Dubuque, G. D. Thompson of Webster City, P. D. Minick of Des Moines, John Heldt of Lyons, Chester I. Meade of Cherokee, Leo J. Kriz of Garner, Karl Engeldinger of Iowa City, John Hancock of Superior, Wis., F. L. Otto of Sidney, V. C. Shuttleworth of Sibley, Glen W. Miller of Waterloo, Lee C. Parkin of Waterloo, C. E. Nugent of Algona, Scott McIntyre of Superior, Wis., E. G. Rich of Maquoketa, and Gordon C. Locke of Denison.

SEARLES TO TALK ON THANKSGIVING AT Y. W. MEETING

The Rev. Herbert Searles, student pastor of the Presbyterian church of Iowa City, will speak on Thanksgiving at the regular Y. W. C. A. meeting, Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the liberal arts drawing room. The speaker is well known among students on the campus. Mr. Searles took his undergraduate work at Bangor in Maine and later at Dartmouth. He studied at the Union Theological Seminary in New York City. From the University of Iowa he received his master's degree and is now working on his doctor's degree.

BETTY BOILER IMPROVING

Tad Jones May Be Replaced As Coach of Yale

(By United News) New York, Nov. 28.—Three football coaches are more or less definitely out of their job. Bill Roper of Princeton is undecided between his private career and further coaching of the Tiger team, and Tad Jones of Yale is under attack from influential critics but may pull through.

ANNA CASE SINGS IN NEXT CONCERT

Plan to Use Men's Gymnasium For Famous Recitalist's First Appearance

"So much interest is being shown in the approaching concert by Anna Case on December 8," says Prof. Philip G. Clapp, of the music department, "that arrangements are now being made to use the men's gymnasium instead of the natural science auditorium."

CHANGE WIRELESS TO ENGINEERING BUILDING

The University of Iowa wireless station, WHAA, will move this week from the basement in the physics building to the engineering building and so no broadcasting will be sent out Saturday or Sunday, but the regular schedule will be resumed beginning next Monday.

NOTRE DAME-NEBRASKA REPORTS TO BE GIVEN

Telegraphic reports of the Notre Dame-Nebraska football game, which will be played at Lincoln, Neb., on Thanksgiving afternoon, will be received in the men's gymnasium at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon. These reports will be given by the new grid-graph which was recently purchased by the athletic department.

6 MEMBERS OF GREEK CABINET PUT TO DEATH

Executed for Responsibility of Greek Debacle in Asia Minor

(By United News) Athens, Nov. 28.—Six members of the cabinet of deposed King Constantine lined up before a firing squad and were executed today in defiance of warning sent the government by Great Britain.

COUNCIL PICKS CANDIDATES FOR L. A. ELECTION

December 6 Set as Fatal Election Day Candidates Names Not Divulged

The election of class officers in the college of liberal arts will take place on Wednesday, December 6. The names to be placed upon the ballot were selected by the student council last night. These names will not be released for publication until Tuesday, December 5, when they will appear in The Daily Iowan.

SUSPEND CLASSES ON THANKSGIVING

Tomorrow has been proclaimed an official holiday, because of Thanksgiving day, and all University exercises will be suspended.

NEW INSTRUCTOR IN MILITARY DEPARTMENT

Capt. Anthony P. Lagorio assigned to the infantry unit of the University R. O. T. C. to serve as an assistant professor of military science and tactics. His arrival is expected within two or three days, according to Lt. Col. Morton C. Mumma, professor of military science and tactics.

Craig's Article Leads In Recent Iowa Alumnus

"The Iowa Alumnus" for November went on sale Tuesday morning at bookstores and on the campus for twenty cents a copy. Sales reports from sorority women who co-operated in selling this issue, though indefinite, were generally high. The cover design, by George Stout of the university art department, is the same for all nine issues published during the year.

AMERICA MUST THROW MIGHT AGAINST WAR

"Let Us Have Faith" Is Clemenceau's Text In Third Formal Plea

(By United News) Chicago, Nov. 28.—The shadow of an "unholy" alliance of Russia, Turkey, and Germany hangs over Europe, Georges Clemenceau told an overflowed audience at the auditorium Tuesday afternoon in his third formal plea for France.

AMERICA "Went Home"

It was a good speech once he got to it. He declared upon some of the barbs hurled at New York and Boston; he rubbed them in. He reiterated that America had "gone home" leaving the job unfinished; he hammered home the jibe that Russian and German markets were "so tempting" that the United States shut off credit to France and demanded what was owed.

CHANGE PRELIMINARY SOPHOMORE DEBATE

ERO-IRVING'S GIVE PRODUCTION SOON

Select Cast for "The Faith Healer," Play Typifies Middle West

Single tickets are to go on sale immediately for the Ero-Irving production of William Vaughn Moody's "Faith Healer" to be given December 14, in the natural science auditorium. The tickets may be purchased from any member of the two societies.

Cast of Characters
The cast has been selected from the try-outs and Prof. E. C. Mabie, of the department of speech, has begun work upon the rehearsals. The cast is made up of the best dramatic talent in the two societies and is to be as follows: Ulrich Michaelis—Albert Ward A4 of Clinton; Mathew Beeler—Gregory Foley A4 of Rock Rapids; Mary Beeler, his wife—Maudine Shoemith A3 of Guthrie Center; Martha Beller, his sister—Dorothy McClenahan Au of Des Moines; Annie Beeler, his daughter—Doris Dayton A2 of Iowa City; Rhoda Williams, Mrs. Beeler's niece—Frances Smith A4 of Montezuma; Dr. George Littlefield—Gordon Johnston A2 of Des Moines; Uncle Abe, an old negro—James Barton A4 of Ottumwa; a young mother—Roberta Anderson A3 of Madrid; and the baby—John Jewett Hicks.

Typical of Middle West
"The Faith Healer" is a virile spiritual play, typical of the Middle West, and contains passages of fine thought and imagination. The story concerns the coming of Ulrich Michaelis, the faith healer, into the farm home of Mathew Beeler in southwestern Missouri. His coming strangely excites the members of Beeler's household. Beeler's wife, a paralytic, passes the night in feverish restlessness. Rhoda Williams, her niece, is stirred to new religious fervor. Anne, the child, and Uncle Abe, the negro, are bewildered by the strange desert prophet. Suddenly an amazing thing happens—Mary, the paralytic, is made to walk. Then crowds gather from far and near calling upon the healer. In his great hour he fails but he struggles forward until his love and life have been made complete "by faith which makes all things possible, which brings all things to pass." The play on a whole has remarkable characterization, and wholesome elements of comedy accompany its emotional appeal.

The games for the last week of the tournament are: The Tau Deltas play the Betas; the Kappa Sigs play the Sig Chis; the Phi Psi play the Sig Alphas; Sigma Nus play the A. T. O.'s; and the Phi Deltas draw the bye.

LITERARY SOCIETIES PLAN FOR MIXER

The arrangements for the literary mixer between the three men's societies, Irving Institute, Philomathean, and Zetagean, and the five women's organizations, Octave Thanet, Erodolphian, Hesperian, Athena, and Whitby, were placed in the hands of a committee consisting of the chairman of the program and social committees in each of the three men's societies by the men's Forensic Council at the meeting in Close hall last Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. This committee will cooperate with a similar committee from the women's societies. The date for the mixer has been tentatively set for December 13.

The men's committee on arrangements consists of Charles E. Baker A2 of Iowa City, David H. Scott A4 of Emmetsburg Harry Voltmer L1 of Galva, Philomathean; and Tyrrell M. Ingersoll A2 of Algona, Kenneth B. Welty L1 of Spirit Lake, Zetagean.

There will be a short important meeting of the Seals Club, Wednesday at five o'clock.
Margarita McGovney, president.

No Lectures But Daily Conferences

At Babson Institute they make a business of teaching business to college trained men who wish to fill positions of responsibility and trust without spending years at routine work. Standard office equipment throughout. No classes or lectures, but a business schedule of work from 8:30 to 5:00 o'clock, including daily conferences directed by men with years of business experience, and discussions with active factory and office executives at their plants. This removes the instruction from the hypothetical stage and helps the student to look at things in the same light as a man actually engaged in business. Babson Institute, an educational institution endowed for the purpose of fitting men for executive responsibilities, invites you to send for the booklet, "Training for Business Leadership." COMMERCE AT IOWA WINS RECOGNITION

Business Journal States Theory Method At Iowa Is Success

The Journal of Commerce, published at New York, and probably the most complete business newspaper in the country, has been conducting a survey of the work of all the Commerce schools and colleges in this country, with a view of ascertaining the best possible system of conducting such schools and colleges. Mr. V. G. Iden has been writing up the results of the survey in a series of articles, appearing at regular intervals in the Journal of Commerce, under the head of "Are the American Universities Adapting Themselves to Practical Requirements?" The big question seems to be the old and much debated one of theory vs. practice and whether the best results in business education are obtained through theory or through practice. The survey has gone into detail on the work of the practical schools and in a recent current issue Mr. Iden takes up the work of the College of Commerce at the University of Iowa which he states has made a distinct success as a college of business which bases its teaching on theory. The schools based on theory are in the minority, he continues but the splendid results had from these schools shows that their methods are essentially sound.

The test between the two methods lies in the question as to which method adapts itself to commercial requirements, the most readily and advocates of both methods claim their superiority. The University of Iowa College of Commerce places stress on basic principles and economic laws rather than on specific preparation for a given line of industry and the success of this method has been well established at Iowa. Students with this basic training are fit to enter lines of endeavor for which they have no specific training whatever, and often change from one industry to another.

Mr. Iden goes on to remark on the remarkable growth of the College of Commerce at Iowa. During the past year the attendance has increased over twenty percent over the previous year and the rapid growth of the college has been greater than most other departments.

Iowa authorities declare that the Business training offered is being increasingly appreciated by business men and is resulting in the opening of definite business careers to students leaving college. And moreover that the financial and industrial leaders are expressing that the college of Commerce at Iowa gives a satisfactory training for life.

There has been a great demand for high grade managers in business, especially in the distribution and market end. The business problem of today is one of distribution, rather than production. The business schools throughout the country have filled a great need brought on by economic conditions which have created a demand for differently trained men.

Mr. Iden concludes with the remark that "Inasmuch as such tangible and practicable results have so far been attained, it must be acknowledged that the College of Commerce at Iowa University has been just as successful as the highly practicalized schools at other colleges."

IOWA'S DEBATING SUBJECT POPULAR

8 Colleges Favor University Question; Industrial Topics Proposed

The choice of debate propositions among the colleges and universities of the United States constitutes one of the most reliable barometers of intelligent valuation of the real problems of the day. From the questions for debate compiled by Pi Kappa Delta, national honorary forensic fraternity, it appears that the proposition chosen for the Iowa-Minnesota-Illinois debate on December 15, "Resolved, that congress should have the power to override decisions of the supreme court by reenacting laws after they have been declared unconstitutional," was also recommended for debate by Colgate college, Alleghany college, Wooster college, Hamilton college, Washington and Jefferson college, the University of Chicago, Western Reserve college and Ohio Wesleyan college.

Debates on industrial questions are popular, such as the nationalization of the coal mines, federal prohibition of strikes, adoption of a federal Kansas industrial court plan, establishment of federal unemployment insurance, similar to the British system, compulsory arbitration of labor disputes, merchant marine subsidy and regulation or abolition of labor unions.

The University of Wisconsin suggested the repeal of the eighteenth amendment as a topic for argument; Michigan and Ohio recommend the discussion of the Great Lakes to the Atlantic canal project. Harvard and Oxford debated whether or not America should join the League of Nations. The cancellation of the allied war debt, which was contested in the Iowa-Nebraska debate last spring, the abandonment of the allied reparation claims against Germany, the calling of an international conference by the United States to consider the readjustment of international finance, the return of the excess profits tax, and restrictions of attendance at state universities for the next five years often suggested for argument.

PHILOMATHEAN REJECTS CONSTITUTION OF KAPPA PHI ALPHA NATIONAL

The Philomathean literary society refused to ratify the constitution of Kappa Phi Alpha, national lit. society organization, at the closed session in close hall Friday night. Kappa Phi Alpha was organized and the constitution drafted at the convention at the University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill., during November 17 and 18, to which literary societies at the Universities of Iowa, Illinois, Michigan, Purdue, Iowa State College, and Monmouth colleges sent delegates. The Philomathean society of the University of Iowa was represented by George O. Hurley Ll of Rolfe and James M. Stewart Ll of Runnells. The opposition to the ratification of the national constitution by the local society developed on the grounds that Kappa Phi Alpha, while at present a literary society organization, showed a tendency towards conversion into a fraternity. The two delegates to the convention recommended its rejection. In order to maintain their independence as a literary society, the Philomatheans rejected the constitution drafted at the recent convention.

Sentiment in the society, for the formation of a national Philo organization is strong, however, and a committee was appointed to further the project. The committee consists of George O. Hurley Ll of Rolfe, James M. Stewart Ll of Runnells, Byrl A. Whitney A4 of Cherokee, Floyd W. Miller A3 of Wapello, George Kloek A4 of Doon, and Harry W. Voltmer A1 of Galva.

AILENE BARGER HEADS FRESHMAN COMMISSION

Freshman commission, composed of twenty girls recently appointed by the Y. W. C. A. council, elected officers for the year at the first regular meeting, Monday afternoon, as follows: Ailene Barger of Spirit Lake, president; Frances Hansen of Holstein, vice president; Mildred Miles of Corydon, secretary; and Elspeth Close of Iowa City, treasurer. The purpose of the commission is to assist the dean of women, to train for Y. W. cabinet, and to help all freshman women. The vice-president of Y. W. C. A., Alice Hagedorn A2 of Luyverne, Minn., serves also as commission advisor at all business meetings.

The commission will meet hereafter the second and fourth Wednesday of each month from 7 to 8 in 116 liberal arts.

The Christmas service, December 13, for all Y. W. C. A. members will be planned by the new commission. Definite arrangements will be announced later according to the committee.

Recognition service for all new members will be held at the regular Wednesday afternoon meeting, Dec. 6.

VAN NESS AND BENDER WIN TURKEY AND GOOSE PRIZES

CLOSE FINISH IN SECOND ANNUAL X-COUNTRY RACE

Jarnigan, Snyder, Bedell and Graham Win Duck, Rooster, Hen, and Egg

J. E. Van Ness A1 of Sidney won first place and a large Thanksgiving turkey in the second annual Hawkeye cross country run which started yesterday noon at the corner of Iowa avenue and Madison streets directly below the Old Capitol.

During all the time of the race, however, he was hard pushed by A. N. Bender A1 of Waterloo who finished a close second and won the second place prize, the goose. J. F. Jarnigan S3 of Prairie City came in next and won the duck. G. E. Snyder M1 of Des Moines and F. L. Bedell A2 of Glidden finished in fourth and fifth places and carried home the rooster and the hen. The egg, which was awarded to the one who finished last, was presented to D. H. Graham A1 of Sac City, as he went under the finish tape.

Van Ness' time for the run was 10 minutes and 24 seconds. This time is considerable slower than that of H. R. Phelps who won last year's run in the time of 10 minutes and 4-5 seconds. The roads were hard to run over yesterday morning, however, and slowed up the time considerably.

Yesterday's winner, beside eating Thanksgiving turkey, will have his name engraved on the traveling cup which he will be privileged to keep for the coming year. He was also awarded a first place ribbon.

Ribbons Awarded

Ribbons were awarded to the first twenty men to finish. Twenty-four men started the run. Those who finished after the first five are as follows in order of their finish:

H. Dalmaage A1 of Buffalo Center, B. G. Marchi A1 of Salida, Colo., O.

F. Grahame A2 of Shellburg, N. L. Ashton S2 of Lyons, R. B. Foster D3 of Newton, L. E. Benetier of Washington, J. L. Carlson A3 of Boxholm, H. Barghardt of Britt, W. W. Wilson A1 of Melcher, F. H. BOXING, SWIMMING, FENCING, WRESTLING CLASSES ORGANIZED

Boxing, fencing, swimming, wrestling and apparatus classes are being organized at the men's gymnasium. Any man in the university may register for any of these classes whether physical training is required or not. Registration takes place this week at Mr. Schroeder's office in the gymnasium and actual work will begin next Monday, December 4.

Boxing classes will be held Mondays and Fridays at 5 p. m.

Fencing classes, under the direction of Prof. John H. Scott, of the English department, will be held on Wednesdays and Fridays at 4 o'clock. Professor Scott has acted as instructor for the last two years.

Intermediate swimming classes will be held on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 3 o'clock and Wednesdays and Fridays at the same hour. A man must be able to swim a quarter of a mile in order to enter this class. The advanced swimming class will be on Mondays and Saturdays at 3 p. m. An elementary class will also be held on Mondays and Thursdays at 4 o'clock.

Men desiring to take up wrestling will consult Coach "Mike" Howard to arrange the hours.

The apparatus classes will be in charge of Harold E. Briceland, instructor at the men's gymnasium.

Men who change over from regular physical training work will remain in the new branch of physical education until about the spring vacation next March.

FRATERNITY TANK MEET POSTPONED

Swimmers Given More Time To Practice For Meet

The second annual interfraternity swimming meet will be held December 9, in the men's gymnasium. The date of this meet has been changed from December 2 to December 9 in order to allow more time for practice and organization of the teams which will compete.

The interfraternity meet will be open to all fraternity members in the interfraternity conference who have never won a straight "I" or a numeral in swimming. The events will be the same as those in the novice meet two weeks ago. Entry blanks are being mailed this week. In the first interfraternity meet last year fourteen organizations were represented. Coach Armbruster expects more this year.

The meet was won last year by the Sigma Chi fraternity who beat the Kappa Sigmas by only 2 points, when they won the relay. The next swimming meet after this will be the Championship swim on December 15. The schedules for the dual meets and the conference meet for the coming season will be arranged at Chicago, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Secret Practice Held Last Night For Basketeers

Coach Sam Barry's varsity basketball squad practiced last night, for the first time, behind closed doors. For the next couple of weeks all varsity practice will be secret, except for one or two open nights which will be announced later.

For the past several weeks between thirty and forty men have been reporting for varsity basketball. With the close of the football season the squad will be enlarged by the addition of several football men. Yerkes and Hancock of last year's freshman squad will probably be out for practice before the week is over. The squad has been divided into two parts; the first squad being called the "Old Gold" sweater squad and the second string, the white sweater squad. Twelve men have been put on the "Old Gold" sweater squad but several of the white sweater squad have shown up so well that probably some changes will be made soon. The squad will be cut down before Christmas.

Dahme, Janse, Laude, Swenson, and Funk of last year's freshmen squad all have been given Old Gold sweaters and have a good chance for the team. Captain Hicks, Burgitt, Emmert, McGovney, Voltmer, and Vivquin are at present first string men.

The squad did not scrimmage last night but worked on fundamentals of offense. They will scrimmage tonight. Practice is held on Monday's and Tuesday's at 5 p. m. and the remaining week nights at 4 p. m. The first game will be with Cornell December 19.

SELECT THIRTY FROSH FROM FOOTBALL SQUAD FOR SPECIAL COACHING

Thirty men out for freshman football have been selected by Coach Howard Jones to receive special training for a period of two weeks following the regular season. The purpose of this is to find out what the prospective material is for next year's team. The following is a list of men selected:

Harold W. Griffen, Sioux City; James J. Lutz, Des Moines; Richard E. Romey, Mason City; Elmer L. Cohen, Waterloo; William P. Fleckenstein, Fairbault, Minn.; Lester V. Coons, Carson; Clyde Q. Guthrie, Milford; Avery E. Fry, Marengo; Raymond G. Rauber, Estherville; Grattan L. Applegate, Edgewood, S. D.; Milton S. Hauser, Charles City; Donald T. Hines, Cedar Rapids; Paul R. Krasuski, Davenport; John A. Schirmer, Sioux Falls, S. D.; Marion V. McFarland, Shenandoah; Captain Francis J. Starzl, Le Mars; Fred E. Pain, Maquoketa; William W. Stevenson, Rockwell City; Francis W. Hobart, Rockwell City; Lynn G. Swaney, Spirit

"SHICK" TEST IS USED FOR DIPHTHERIA DATA

The "shick" test, which is a test for determining those who are susceptible to diphtheria, has been tried on several of the students in the various classes in the department of bacteriology. The test, which is being carried on under the direction of Dr. F. W. Mulso, head of the department, reveals that about one half of the students are susceptible to diphtheria.

The test consists of injecting a very small amount of diphtheria toxin into the skin of the arm or forearm with a control test. In those who are susceptible there is a slight reddening around the point of injection, while those not susceptible show no reaction. Those whom the test shows to be susceptible may be vaccinated against diphtheria.

WOMEN'S MASS MEETING DRAWS BIG ATTENDANCE

A Meeting of All House Presidents Billed for December Fifth

If numbers indicate interest, the mass meeting held yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in natural science auditorium under the direction of women's association, proved a distinct success. Freshmen women attended the meeting as a regular lecture, while the attendance of upperclass women was entirely voluntary. About one thousand women attended the first mass meeting for women only in the history of the University.

The meeting started off with typical Iowa pep when the University band played "On Iowa" and Max Livingston and Robert Cass both of Waterloo, led the yells.

"When I think of the power represented in such an assemblage as this, I am overwhelmed by the significance," Mrs. Adelaide Burge, dean of women, said in introduction. "Certainly the women on the campus in 1922 can accomplish anything they want providing they act unitedly. The machinery, the women's association, is at hand. Upon matriculation in the University every woman becomes a member of the association. It is all embracing. No other campus organization, however worthy, includes all. Again, every woman is a member, whether she appreciates the honor or not."

Board Considers Cases

The administrative board of women's association consists of a president, vice president, secretary, treasurer, two representatives from Staff and Circle, district captains, one house president, and three women appointed by the faculty. This division considers cases recommended by the dean of women and suggests appropriate penalties. The decisions returned have been entirely satisfactory to the dean.

"First of all, we ask for cooperation," said Lois Jackson A3 of Mechanicsville, chairman of all district captains. "Iowa City is divided into nineteen districts with a captain at the head of each. Every house where University women room, regardless of the number, is considered in representation. Each house must elect a house president. If only one girl lives at one address, she is the house president. When notified by district captains, house presidents must attend meetings. The meetings during the year will be short and few. Tuesday, December 5, such a meeting will be called of all house presidents. Definite announcement as to time and place will appear later. House presidents, after attending the scheduled meeting will report back to other women in that particular house. The opinion of women in general will be carefully considered at women's association council meeting."

"We appreciate the cooperation and response of the women in attending the mass meeting," says Catherine Wright A4 of Des Moines, president of women's association. "If only they display similar interest in electing house presidents, we shall be able to accomplish anything."

WYLLIE ILLUSTRATES LECTURE ON FIJI'S AND NEW ZEALAND

In the third of the Fiji-New Zealand lectures given last night in the natural science auditorium, Prof. Robert B. Wylie, who was a member of the expedition in the interests of the botany department, gave an interesting talk of the trip from the botanist's point of view.

The botanical object of the expedition, Professor Wylie pointed out, was to gather material for lecture and laboratory illustrations, to procure research material along certain lines, to get photographs, and in general to study tropical agriculture.

While in Fiji, Professor Wylie had a fine laboratory to work in, and was assisted by the government chemist, Dr. Wright, an Englishman, and a graduate of Cambridge.

The climate of Fiji, it was pointed out, though warmer than we are accustomed to, is not hot enough to cause any great physical discomfort. The vegetation of Fiji is very luxuriant, the islands being essentially wild. Most of the eastward side of the island is forest, with a most interesting array of economic plants. Coconuts, bananas, and sugar cane are the three chief exports. For home consumption the natives raise taro, yams, and sweet potatoes. Then too, cattle and sheep are very abundant and supply ample meat for the Fijians. The natives are very fond of fish, especially crayfish from the fresh water, and crabs from the salt water.

The lecture was fully illustrated by slides of the natural vegetation, forests, economic tropical plants. Slides were also shown of the natives and their dwellings.

MEN'S QUARTETS WILL PRESENT PROGRAM AT OAKDALE TOMORROW

Three quartets picked from the men's glee club will present a musical program for the patients of Oakdale on Thanksgiving afternoon under the direction of Prof. Walter Leon of the music department. Each quartet will sing a selection and the combined quartets will be heard in several numbers. Clees McKray A1 of Earlham will play the piano accompaniments.

The entire group will sing "Little Mother of Mine," by Burleigh and "On Iowa" by W. B. Law. "Oh, Lovely Night," by Evilsizer, will be rendered by the first quartet consisting of Wilbur R. Anderson A1 of Perry, Alan Maxwell A1 of Avoca, Albert J. Grother S1 of Omaha, Neb., and Harold G. Reuschlein A1 of Burlington. "Deep River" by Burleigh and "Nut Brown Maiden" will be sung by the combined quartets. The second quartet, which will give "Honeysuckle Babe" by Clay Smith, Wesley C. Drummond A1 of Spirit Lake, P. Stansell A1 of Osceola, Arthur R. Jewett A3 of Cedar Rapids, and Carl S. Kringle A2 of Atlantic. "Ti, Tum, Ti," will be sung by the entire group. Third quartet will sing "Mah Punkin Sue." This quartet is composed of Arnold A. Hansen A1 of Avoca, Arthur A. Hansen A1 of Portsmouth, and Earl M. Emerson A2 of Kenwood Park. As a closing selection the entire group will sing "Old Gold."

Prof. Walter Leon, says, "I hope to divide the entire men's glee club into groups of four so that each man may appear in a quartet selection. From all these groups one permanent quartet will be chosen to represent the club."

FRANCE PLANS TO INVADE RICH RUHR DISTRICT

Nation Receives News With Enthusiasm; Added Troops Not Needed

(By United News)

Paris, Nov. 28—Marshall Ferdinand Foch on instructions from the French cabinet is laying plans for the invasion of Germany to collect reparations on which the former enemy country defaulted. The rich Ruhr valley on the left bank of the Rhine is to be seized by the French who have formally notified the allies of their intentions.

The nation received with enthusiasm the tidings that a force of drastic action in connection with war debt had been decided upon.

"At last" was the comment of many newspapers.

The "Temps" an official organ hopes that the Allies would aid the French in the German occupation and pointed out that France has no thought of selfishness or domination but merely wants to be paid. The occupation of the Ruhr basin will not take place it is believed until January 15th.

Simultaneously with the announcement of the French course the nation was reassured that no new classes would be called into service and that the Chamber of Deputies had not asked for additional credit to carry out the expedition. It was emphasized that the troops already along the Rhine were sufficient to fulfil the plan.

London, Nov. 28—The British government is not inclined to oppose the proposed seizure of the Ruhr valley by the French, the United News has been informed.

This is the official view of the decision of France.

COLLEGE OPENS COURSE FOR CULTURE ONLY

(By United News)

Madison, Wis., Nov. 27—A course for culture only, designed for the student who wants an education for enlightenment and intellectual development, not for utilitarian purposes, is being offered for the first time at the University of Wisconsin this year.

This new "Course in Humanities" is based on the curriculum of the old "College of Liberal Arts" of a few generations ago, and will lead to the degree of Bachelor of Literature, or perhaps Bachelor of Arts in Literature.

Fifty students enrolled in the course this year, a number greatly in excess of the expectation of the chairman of the faculty committee in charge, Prof. Carl Russell Fish.

The popularity of the course, Prof.

Fish declares, is another indication of the present reaction against technical and professional studies in American universities.

"The war was an overwhelming conviction to many persons that materialistic education is a fake," he says.

The function of this course is to "make people happier by giving them a more thorough knowledge and understanding of life in general."

Literature, languages, and the arts predominate in the studies which make up the course.

Three types of students are recommended by the faculty for this course—those who wish a broad foundation for later professional study; the clever ones who seek knowledge for its own sake; and the rich men's sons who have their fathers' businesses open to them when they leave school.

THE ALL-WORLD ELEVEN

Students are eagerly scanning Chicago and eastern papers today to see whom sports editors have chosen for their all-conference, all-Western, and all-American elevens.

The difficulty of the task bears consideration. A mythical team represents the judgment of one man usually and ought to be considered only as such. A team is usually successful because it has played as a team and not as so many players. Naturally, a few stand out from the rest. But to compare the stars of one team with those of another, is indeed a problem and one which permits of any number of errors.

Providing the critics choose a large number of Iowa stars, the fans are satisfied. If their decisions aren't quite so favorable, an uproar follows and the critic is in for a "fazzing". The merits of the few are sung, while those of the majority go unheralded.

But since critics will pick all-teams, let's have our share of the honors. If we had to select an all-conference eleven there would be eleven Iowa men on the first team. And it would be not only all-conference but all-world.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING

The Ku Klux Klan has offered the newspapers of the country much in the way of sensational news; and as a consequence of this wide publicity, the nation has greatly exaggerated the Klan's importance. Instead of stamping out the organization, publicity has acted as a stimulant to its growth.

Recently a group of lawyers made a thorough investigation of the effect of publicity on crime waves in cities. It was found that in every case in which a city had advertised its determination to stamp out a crime wave, the number of crimes increased proportionately. On the other hand, cities which made little ado of the prevalence of disorder within its limits, had little trouble in checking the increase in crimes.

Recently the Klan movement is said to have gained foothold in New York and Washington. Mayor Hylan of New York, on being advised that the Ku Klux was becoming active in his city, gave orders to "treat this group of racial and religious haters as you would reds and bomb throwers." He would resort to the same lawlessness in driving them out of the city which the Klan is charged with using. Undoubtedly, instead of driving them out, Mayor Hylan's high-handed attack will give a great impetus to the movement in his city.

The Ku Klux Klan is not the terrible monster which it is usually pictured to be. Some of its motives are excellent, yet it deserves the condemnation of the country for attempting to usurp the right of regularly established bodies for the enforcement of the law. Racial freedom and religious freedom are fundamentals of American faith and must always be observed. The best way, it seems, to stamp out the Klan is to ignore it as much as possible. The life of such an organization is publicity. Since the New York World "exposed" the inner workings of the Klan over a year ago, it has spread from a little unheard-of group in the South to a country wide and even world wide movement. The regular law-enforcing arm of the government is able to cope with the organization, leaving little need for hysteria on the part of the public, or publicity on the part of the press.

CONTEMPORARY OPINION

(Christian Science Opinion)

LABOR SAVING LANGUAGE

In the early eighties people were buying up edition after edition of an inimitable production by one Pedro Carolino. He had conceived the happy idea of showing his fellow Portuguese a short cut to the English language. His real success lay in providing mirth for countless readers by the simple circumstance that he was totally unacquainted with the language into which he proposed to initiate the unlearned. A generation of writers enjoyed a delicious compilation of extracts from Carolino's handbook and quoted the jokes threadbare. How good it would be to know what they would think of "English as she is spoke" today by the English-speaking races!

We can all laugh over the mistakes made in a foreign language, but a sense of humor is apt to forsake us when we see how a workaday world and the general rush of life is doing its best to rob us of the real value of language and leave us merely a labor-saving means of rapid communication. The really practical man may see progress in this and he is probably seconded by the spelling modernists, who believe that to write "to-night" instead of "tonight" is to render as advanced a service to humanity as it is by comparison to supplant a stagecoach by a motor car.

Fortunately, however, things of real importance are not suppressed so easily, and protests against a debased use of English are springing up on both sides of the Atlantic. The enthusiasts for culture find themselves supported by the vast general body of educators, for the reason that clear and fluent expression in pure native language is found to be a mental discipline of the first utility. It is no mere affectation of superiority to learn to express thought in accurate speech, but a splendid method of mental training. That a real knowledge of language opens up to its possessor the experiences of the best thinkers both past and present is a point that need not be emphasized here.

Equally important is the social aspect of preserving a pure currency of speech. It is an essential of democracy, part of the process of the elimination of class prejudice and advantage, a leveling of the speech barriers that are so apt to cause misunderstanding and suspicion.

In the list of selections approved for the reading contest we notice "Far From the Madding Crowd" and a short story by "O'Henry."

NOTES OF THE STAGE

Word comes from New York that Jane Cowl and Ethel Barrymore are both to appear as Juliet in "Romeo and Juliet." David Warfield, Walter Hampden and Fritz Leiber will also be seen in Shakespearean roles in New York this season.

How would you classify the bird who wears overcoat, muffler and gloves, but no hat? Of course, where there is no life there can be no such thing as catching cold.

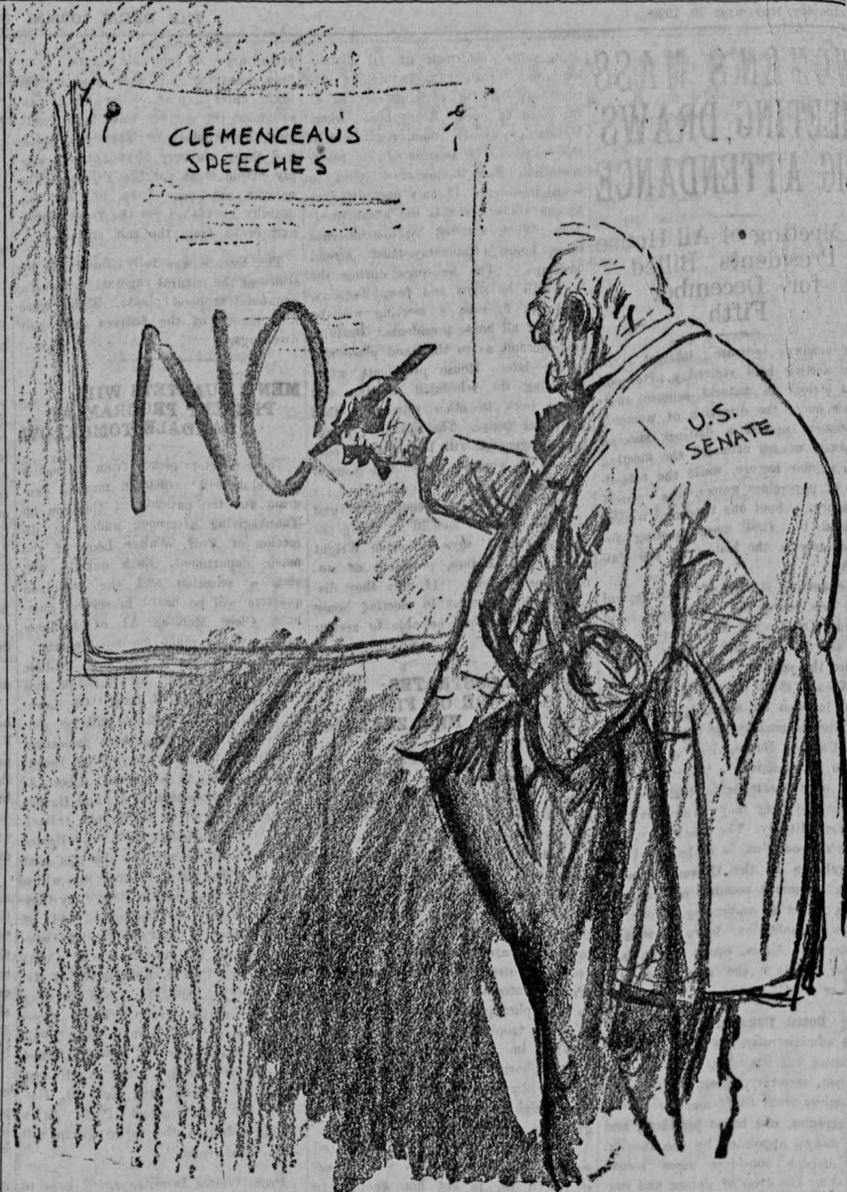

It is thought that veils will continue to be fashionable this season. No doubt about it. Almost any face, we have observed, looks pretty behind a veil.

Now that this year's football games are history, it is open season on all-star teams and decision of championships. And people will begin to sell their "I" books.

"Heartbreak"—Stacy Aumonier

Reviewed by Sherman J. McNally

Stacy Aumonier has chosen a picturesque title for his new novel, as well as for each of the three books into which it is divided. Impatient readers may think the story a little slow in getting under way, but the reason for this will become apparent as the tale progresses. "Heartbeat" might, one supposes be dubbed a "psychological novel," but unlike many psychological novels, it is never uninteresting. The subject matter is euphemistically referred to by critics as "difficult," which means, of course, that it is not a novel for Victorians.

Briefly, "Heartbeat" is the story of Barbara Powerscourt, the daughter of a Chancellor of the Exchequer and Kitty O'Bane, a musical comedy favorite. It has for its background life in English music halls, with a bit of English high life thrown in by way of contrast. It is an absorbing story, in spite of the time-worn plot of marriage without love and its inevitable consequences. It is intended to show, Mr. Aumonier admits, that heredity and environment work havoc with freedom of the will. Whether the author proves his point must remain for the reader to decide.

Barbara Powerscourt is the outstanding character of the book—a woman not fundamentally wicked, but unable to overcome inherited impulses and the demoralizing influence of a life of ease. The novel is a record of those forces, temperamental and circumstantial, which conspire against her.

George Champeys, a middle-aged comedian, is another character whom the author has realized rather vividly. Champeys is a man utterly selfish, absorbed in the theatrical business—a man none too strictly moral, but at the same time demanding absolute fidelity from his wife. Surely not an admirable character, but one drawn exceptionally true to life.

Of the other characters the most interesting is Isabel Weare, Barbara's show-girl chum, who has a philosophy all her own, "You can be taught to love," she tells Barbara, "in the same way that you can be taught to sing and dance, if you have a natural talent for it When you've been kissed properly it gets into your blood. You can't do without it." Isabel is an opportunist; she strongly advises Barbara to marry the wealthy actor whether she loves him or not. Love will come later, she says; but of course it doesn't.

Thomas Powerscourt, Barbara's father, comes into the story for only a short time, but in that time the reader gets to know him very well. He is the huge, pompous sort of man who eats what he please in spite of the doctor's orders; the sort of man who takes himself very seriously, and who, in consequence, is taken very seriously by other people.

The weakest piece of characterization in the book is that of Calob Thirkettle, Champeys' secretary, an intellectual and very serious-minded young fellow. The author's picture of him, for some vague reason, is less convincing than one feels it should be in order to make the denouement inevitable.

The story contains some fine touches of irony, for example, Barbara's life after her marriage. She and her husband agree on everything; the tragic thing about it is that this agreement avails them nothing; their mutual dreams are shattered only because they do not love each other. And what could be more ironical than Champeys' discharge of handsome secretary as dangerous to his domestic peace, only to have his wife fall passionately in love with a homely one?

Mr. Aumonier writes simply, if not gracefully, and the reader grasps his thought at the first reading. This simplicity of style is indeed fortunate, for the book has suffered somewhat at the hands of the printer. We shudder to think what the effect of similar typography would be on Henry James, for instance, where a misplaced comma may cost the reader a precious half-hour.

MR. PIM PASSES BY—A REVIEW

By Leona I. White

The University Theatre under the direction of Prof. Edward C. Mabie presented the Hesperian and Zetaganian literary societies last Thursday evening in A. A. Milne's comedy, "Mr. Pim Passes By," as the second production for this season. In reviewing the play one must keep in mind the fact that the University Theatre is not attempting to produce plays in imitation of the professional stage. It has a standard of its own which it has established in regard to acting and interpretation of a play. And it must be granted that the plays which have been sponsored by the University Theatre do not have the earmarks of the typical amateur play, they are superior and meet a standard which is higher than the average College or University play.

"Mr. Pim Passes By," by Alexander A. Milne, is a charming three-act comedy full of clever situations and incidents. When it is well played it affords a pleasantly spent evening and leaves a general feeling of satisfaction.

The cast for "Mr. Pim" worked under many handicaps. Some of the members were not selected until one and two weeks before the production. Only two of the cast had ever appeared before a University audience and those two had minor parts. It is no mean accomplishment to produce an acceptable play with practically a whole group new to the way of the stage.

It is evident that some did unusually good work and all showed great promise. The sincere effort, earnestness and enthusiasm which characterized the work of every member of the cast were apparent and resulted in the success the players merited. The strangeness of appearing before an audience for the first time was evident in the manner in which the actors felt their way into the appreciation of the audience and their failure to wait for laughs after lines. After a short time of adapting themselves to the audience-player situation the play began to pick up and move.

The charming grace and poise with a definite and pleasing finish of interpretation characterized Isela M. Olerich, in the role of Olivia Mardem. Some of the light touches and fun were missed by Laurence Brierly in his interpretation of George Mardem.

Some mannerisms detracted from his work, but his keen feelings for the dramatic situations which arose during the play shows great future ability.

Dinah, his niece, played by Margaret Altman, was a delightful young girl who showed an appreciation of the character. Lady Mardem, Esther O'trogegge, was not quite so sharp nor as old as her sixty years would seem to indicate. Milton M. Kusher, the young artist, played his part with a sincere youthfulness which was a trifle more youthful than the role called for. Kusher, however, realized many good points of fun in his portrayal of Brian Strange. Mr. Pim, the absent-minded old man, who did not seem to realize the predicament that his news would bring to Olivia, was depicted by Sherman McNally. Although Mr. Pim lost his character a few times at the beginning of the play, his final characterization left the desired effect upon the audience. Anne, the maid, Lorraine Luthmer entered into the spirit of the situations.

THE RIGHT TO "PET"

To the Editor:
Hurrah! Another champion of liberty and freedom has been discovered! He dares to lift his voice in condemnation of certain dogmatic reformers who are trying to curtail the exercise of our inalienable rights. I suggest, however, that before he attempts another impassioned defense of the rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness (as exemplified by the practice of "petting") he should use proper care to ascertain the true source of his quotations.

It seems that our friend X. T. is more of an authority on petting parties than he is on the Constitution. I'll agree that the former subject is a far more interesting one to pursue; but my respect and admiration for the famous charter of our government compels me to object to its being so seriously misquoted. X. T. has probably caused Thomas Jefferson to turn over in his grave by attributing the most famous statement in the Declaration of Independence to the Constitution, and quoting it incorrectly at that. If X. T. thinks he must justify "petting parties" by the constitution, let him refer to the Bill of Rights which says "Congress shall make no law . . . abridging the right of the people peaceably to assemble." Undoubtedly the amorous young people of Iowa City have a constitutional right to "assemble" in the back seat of a motor car, even though it be parked in the campus. Still more to the point, this same clause clearly establishes the freedom of the press. Therefore, "flappers and flappers," you may proceed, secure in the knowledge that you are hedged about by the protection of the Constitution of the United States. A. B. C.

PUBLIC LOVE MAKING

To the Editor:
The mysterious X. T., in his reply to the recent complaint against the ill chosen trysting place of our campus lovers, has proved himself a master of words but deficient in logic and correctness. I will not spend my time bemoaning the mental processes of one who attempts to champion a cause for which there is no argument. The fact remains that the consensus of public opinion, as well as the weight of long established convention, is against the philanderers who flaunt their natural emotions before more self-controlled citizens.

Attention was called to that part of our constitution which enumerates the rights of our citizens to enjoy the pursuit of happiness unhampered. Let me, in turn, remind X. T. that this right is to be tolerated only as long as it does not interfere with the rights of other citizens. There are, mayhap, a number of sane minded and unmolesing individuals who consider it an insult and a menace to the morals of the community that persons, while in the execution of their daily duties, should be confronted by this mutual lack of self-control on the part of the flippers and flappers. One of the inherent prides of this free country of ours has been based upon the fact that our amorous instincts and passions have not been unduly displayed before the public eye. But this pride is rapidly losing its foundation by just such actions as those which nightly take place about our campus.

X. T., perhaps unconsciously, waxes satirical in his flowery treatment of the feeling of harmony to be derived from watching impulsive youths entwining themselves about one another in tender expression of regard. Possibly X. T., as in the case of the habitual drunkard, is thinking of the pleasure he has experienced upon specific occasions, rather than how the actions might affect the casual observer. The actions of the public lover are no more to be defended than are those of the confirmed drunkard. Either case is a result of weakness, a yielding to the temptation to be immoderate in public.

It is not a matter of concern to speculate as to what beneficial things a girl might be doing were she not in the rear seat of an automobile along a public thoroughfare at a late hour. The thing to be deplored is the fact that she and her lover should choose that place and that time which would make their presence there a public display of undeniably private emotions. The undoubted laxity of morals prevalent throughout the rising generation has its source in just such a flaunting of the mating instinct.

Finally, let me venture to say that the majority of those who resort to campus curbs in lieu of more secluded spots would be less anxious to act similarly in their home towns. A strange spirit of recklessness seems to pervade the youths as soon as they are out of sight of the parental eye or out of reach of ears which might stretch to their relatives. This fact denotes a certain self-condemnatory feeling which needs no other accuser. I stand firm in advocating a cessation of public love-making along our campus. It is immaterial whether this end is accomplished by law or by the common sense and honor of the individuals concerned. D. L. B.

Nationalism vs. Internationalism

To the Editor:

I have read with interest and sympathy Mr. H. J. Ajwani's letter in your issue of November 26 in regard to some remarks of mine reported in The Daily Iowan of November 23. If Mr. Ajwani will give an address on India himself and read the newspaper account of his own address, perhaps then he will be prepared to understand my present predicament. A newspaper report is only running true to form when it omits the main points and puts fully but inaccurately the insignificant details. I should have been grateful, however, as long as a report was published, if it had included some reference to my remarks on the evils of the exploitation of the masses, whether by Indians or by foreigners.

Every statement that Mr. Ajwani quotes without qualification was made by me with very careful qualification. I should have mentioned the Begam of Bhopal as an Indian woman ruler, if I had had time for more than a thumbnail sketch of conditions. But one swallow does not make spring, and the woman ruler of Bhopal does not prove equal rights to exist for Indian women any more than the instance of Queen Elizabeth proves that Anne Hathaway had rights equal to those of William Shakespeare. Nor would one go to the ancient Indian scriptures to determine the present position of women in India any more than one would determine the present position of women in Germany by reference to the writings of Julius Caesar.

In regard to the population, I said that the average rate of increase of population in British India has generally been greater than the average of the laudatory states. I do not see the relevance of Mr. Ajwani's addendum that several of the feudatory states have free and compulsory education. That is like trying to disprove that rural Colorado is more salubrious than Pittsburgh and Detroit because there is a better art museum in Boston. As one who has tried to promote both education and temperance reform in India, I am thankful for the splendid example that a few small states like Baroda and Bharatpur have set in these matters; and I can only say that I am ready to help any constructive effort in these directions.

The remark to which Mr. Ajwani refers as "Manry's private census report" was really a statement by me that in my personal experience I quite commonly found illiterate peasants believing that America is part of London. I did not say this in criticism of the peasants; I fail to see why they would be more or less praiseworthy for a more or less accurate idea of America. I said this rather to try to shock our American students into a realization of the comparative unimportance of their country for the great mass of mankind.

In imputing motives to the Women's Christian Temperance Union for declining to take up a certain line of work in India, Mr. Ajwani neglects the possibility that the ladies rejected the plan proposed because their experience led them to believe it a futile method. Mr. Ajwani's readers would have been able to judge for themselves if he had described the proposed plan in more exact if less colorful language.

What breathes through Mr. Ajwani's lines is the sensitiveness of a newborn nationalism that is wounded at a touch of anything but praise for the adored land. As with young lovers, more or less praise is too little. If one of the great Indians of the past, like Asoka, could return to earth to see his young countrymen panting in the fever of nationalism, just when the West seems possibly to be realizing the nature of the disease from which it has been suffering for a century—I mean, that national disease of "pooled self-esteem"—would he not say that the question is not whether "India can be held down by foreign domination" but whether India can learn from the experience of the West? Or must India be deaf to the warning voice of a Tagore, and learn only by repeating the foreigner's mistakes?

When Mr. Ajwani reads this he will probably say, "Oh, but Indian nationalism will be different, because the Indian nation is free from the defects of other nations." If he thinks that

(and his rhetorical "Thank God, India is not perfect" does not prove that he does not think that), he is only thinking of India what every nationalist, including the self-appointed guardian of American Kultur, tends to think of his own nation. The real issue he draws with me is therefore not whether or not certain phrases represent the facts in a certain part of the world at a certain time, but the issue of nationalism versus internationalism.

FIVE SCHOLARSHIPS WILL BE AWARDED

$1000 Fund To Be Treated As Gifts To Women and Loans To Men

Five scholarships of $200 each will be given away for the year 1922-1923 to students who are earning part or all of their way through the University and who have high scholastic standings. The degree with which a student is financing himself and his scholarship will be factors of equal importance in the decision. Both men and women under the age of 25 are eligible. Applications are being received at the offices of the deans of men and women and should be submitted no later than December 5.

The scholarships will be treated as gifts to the women and loans to the men. The terms of the loans are the easiest possible. No payment is made until the student graduates and then in the sum convenient to him. A committee composed of President Walter A. Jessup, Registrar Herbert C. Dorcas, Robert E. Reinow, dean of men, and Mrs. Adelaide L. Burge, acting dean of women, will award the scholarships. They have decided to award one to a member of the college of medicine, one to a dental student, and the other three to representatives of the colleges of liberal arts, law, applied science and pharmacy.

The question of scholarship will not be difficult for the committee, but that of determining to what extent each is financing himself will be a matter of investigation. This information will have to be gained mainly by interviewing the applicants.

The scholarships are contributed by the Henry Strong Educational Foundation. The trustee of this fund has set aside $1,000 to be awarded students of the University of Iowa this year. The committee named above has full authority in distributing the awards. This is the initial year for the $1,000 award and it is not known whether or not the gift will be repeated next year.

LIBRARY BOARD MAKES VIOLATION OF RULES VERY COSTLY OFFENSE

At a recent joint session of the library board and the board of education the following penalties were adopted in order to end the abuse by a few students of the library privileges.

1. Anyone who mutilates a book, paper or magazine shall for the first offense be fined five times the value of the book, paper, magazine, or set mutilated, the minimum fine being five dollars; or shall be fined the above amount and in addition be deprived of all library privileges for three months.
2. Anyone who removes from the library a book, paper or magazine without signing and depositing a charge card shall for the first offense be deprived of all library privileges.
3. Anyone who signs a name other than his own, shall be deprived of all library privileges for one year.
4. Anyone who is convicted of a second violation of these rules or fails to pay a fine imposed, shall be suspended from the University for one year.
5. Any person who is deprived of library privileges for any of the above offenses and who is proved to have entered the library or to have drawn library books during the period of the penalty shall be suspended from the University for one year.

6. Names of any persons adjudged guilty of any of the above offenses shall be posted on the library bulletin board during the period of the penalty.
