Eckersall Picks 3 Hawkeyes For All-Conference Eleven

LOCKE, MINICK AND THOMPSON WIN POSITIONS

Badgers Win Three; Six Teams Represented On First Eleven

By Walter Eckersall

Selecting all western conference football elevens to be composed of players who have performed consistently throughout the season, offensively and defensively, the task of choosing the tackles and placing the wealth of back field material in positions where they will be the most valuable are the hardest.

It is the first time in many years, that the Big Ten has not produced tackles who stand out above all others. In former seasons there has generally been at least two whose right to the important positions was unquestioned because their playing in every game was far above that of other warriors occupying the same positions.

driving pair of tackles is an absolute necessity to the success of any football team. Their value is being emphasized more and more as the teams are leaning to the open and running styles of attack. They are now called upon to hurry the passers, help smash interference and at the same time protect the holes between guards and tackles. On offense, they are at times made eligible to receive forward passes while their many duties on various offensive plays make them among the important cogs in any successful football machine.

As the running attack developed by Michigan, Iowa and Wisconsin along with Minnesota will develop the absolute necessity of having guards who can get out of the lead, the interference is emphasized. Fortunately there are two men of such caliber in the conference who have done this to perfection all fall, while others will be made to do it in the future. The open or running attack has so many possibilities that the men who can get out to interfere for the runner, chances of making ground are improved greatly.

The absolute necessity of having a center who can pass accurately and timely is known to every close follower of football. Complex offensive tactics used by most coaches call for short and long passes, some of which must be slow and others fast. In fact success of every play depends largely upon how fast and sure the ball is fed to the man who is called upon to make the ground gaining effort.

Quarterback In Name Only

In these days of direct passing, the quarterback in the old sense is extinct. It is simply the name of a position. He is a back the same as the others who are called left, right, or fullbacks to designate the names of positions used ever since football was first played. The so-called quarterback of today rarely handles the ball to feed it to another back. The old rule of the ball having to pass through three sets of hands is obsolete. Smart coaches now realize the quicker the ball carrier gets to the line of scrimmage, the better his chances of making ground and the more drive he can get into his effort. Therefore, the direct pass is used and the so-called quarterback used in the interference.

Some coaches use their quarterbacks to carry the ball just as often as any of the other three backs and many are called into service to receive forward passes. As a roving offensive player, he is in a good position to direct his team's attack, which in most cases he does. Many coaches, however, want a man of football intelligence to act as their pilot, regardless of what back field position he plays.

Back Field Must Be Versatile

Back field players of today must be versatile. The day of the specialist is about gone. A back now must be able to plunge, drive off the tackles or run ends, not to mention toss or receive forward passes. In other words he must be a player of many deceptions.

PADEFORD TO GIVE DEDICATION ADDRESS TODAY

Will Open New $32,500 Baptist Student Center Parsonage Today

The dedication address for the new $32,500 Baptist student center parsonage, located at the corner of North Clinton and Bloomington streets, will be given by the Rev. F. W. Padelford, D. D., secretary of the board of education of the Northern Baptist convention, in the church auditorium at 7:30 tonight. At 9 o'clock a brief, formal ceremony will be held in the new parsonage under the direction of the Rev. G. W. Cassidy, D.D., executive secretary of Iowa Baptist convention.

A hundred representatives from neighboring districts, who were invited to participate in the dedication exercises, are being entertained by the local church. A reception was held Friday night, a sight seeing tour around the University and Iowa City was conducted yesterday morning, and last night a minstrel show, under the direction of William F. Goodell, was given in the church club rooms followed by a B. Y. P. U. social.

At 10:45, in place of the usual morning sermon, two brief addresses will be given by the Rev. G. P. Mitchell, D. D., and the Reverend Cassidy, secretaries of the Iowa Baptist convention, which holds title to the student center parsonage.

This afternoon at 2:30 open house will be held to which all students of the University and all out-of-town young people are especially invited. At 5:30 the young people's luncheon will be served as usual in the church club rooms. Following this, the B. Y. P. U. will give a demonstration of a model young people's devotional meeting. Discussions will be held for the purpose of exchanging ideas with the representatives of the other unions in the state.

FAMOUS ELI FOOTBALL ELEVEN HOLDS REUNION

A remarkable football reunion was held at the University club in New York when the survivors of the Yale team of 1892, captained by Vance McCormick, were brought together as Mr. McCormick's guests.

This was the famous Yale team that defeated Harvard 6 to 0 on Hampden park, just thirty years ago. Besides McCormick, who played quarterback, the team was composed of Phil Stillman, now a New York banker, at center; Jim McCrea, son of a Pennsylvania railroad president, and Ralph Hickok, holder of track and weight throwing records in intercollegiate competition, as guards; Hamilton Wallis and Wallie Winter as tackles; Frank Hinkley and Jack Greenway as ends; Frank Butterworth was full back, and Laurie and Clifford (Pop) Bliss as half backs.

EARL MARTINEAU, Minnesota; ROLLIE WILLIAMS, Wisconsin; GORDON LOCKE, Iowa; HARRY KIPKE, Michigan.

Ex-King's Brother Exiled for Life From Native Land

 Bulletin.—Athens Dec. 2.—Prince Andrew of Greece, brother of the deposed King Constantine, tonight was sentenced to life-long exile and military degradation for having disobeyed orders during the recent war with Turkey when he had a military command.

MOVIES AT PASTIME SHOW CAPTAIN LOCKE MAKING LAST SCORE

Another chance to see Captain Gordon Locke and his victorious University of Iowa eleven in action is presented to patrons of the Pastime theater with the showing of Iowa-Northwestern football pictures. The film, 1000 feet in all, will remain at Punch Dunkel's play house today, and tomorrow.

Because last Saturday, the day the game was played, was clear and snappy, the pictures, also, are clear. Some of them were taken from the press stand at Iowa field, while other parts of the film were taken on the sidelines. Captain Locke is seen making the final touchdown of his career.

The selection of an all-time University of Iowa football team from those who have fought to uphold the honor and fame of Old Gold is, indeed, a hazardous undertaking. It is doubtful if any selection can be made which will completely satisfy even a few of our alumni and friends. First of all, it must be noted that the period to be covered in our selection includes both the old and modern style of football,—two vastly different articles.

Those of the present generation are

BEARS OUTCLASS HAWKEYES BY 12 POINTS -- CHANEY

Former Iowa Professor Would Have Bruin and All-American Teams Identical

"I firmly believe the California football team to be two touchdowns better than the Iowa football team. Every one of their men should be placed on the all-American team", said Prof. Ralph W. Chaney, formerly of the geology department here and now doing research work at Berkeley, Cal., in an interesting interview with an Iowan reporter Friday. "California has four teams practicing regularly, any one of which could, in my estimation, beat the Iowa team. I am basing my opinion on my observation of Iowa's football team of last year, which was probably better than Iowa's team this year, and the California team of this year."

Gridders the Leading Influence

Of the interest shown football at California, Prof. Chaney says, "Everything is football there. It is the main athletic interest in fact it surpasses any other activity. The greatest thing in the school is the football team and the greatest man in the school is Andy Smith, the coach. Mass meetings of the most rousing sort take place a week before the games, and after the games the students celebrate on a much larger scale than was shown by Iowa in celebrating the victory over Yale." I repeat, the Iowa football team would be unmercifully cleaned if it played California."

Boosts California

In speaking of the other activities of the California university, Professor Chaney says, "Everything is maintained on a much larger scale, probably because it is a much larger school. Plays are staged by every literary society, and there are lots of them, as well as the dramatic societies. Their productions are almost professional. Besides the daily college paper, the California university issues weekly and monthly sheets, of a literary and athletic variety. I believe that the women put out a weekly issue of their own.

Students are always sitting on the street corners selling tickets for something or other. The Californians are forever having rallies—smoker rallies, class rallies, freshman rallies. Their college spirit is always so apparent that it grows a bit monotonous."

Lectures Smoke While Talking

(During the lecture Professor Chaney said, "It seems queer to see no one smoking in this room. In California most of the men in the audience smoke, the air is blue with smoke, and in some cases I have known the lecturer to smoke a cigar or pipe as he talks."

When asked how California students compare with Iowa students Professor Chaney said, "The Californians are much more frivolous than I have ever

ONLY TWO APPLY FOR STRONG GIFTS

Will Receive Applications For $200 Scholarships Until Wednesday

Only two applications for the five $200 scholarships contributed by the Henry Strong Educational Foundation have been received. One application was turned in to the office of Robert E. Reinow, dean of men, the other to Mrs. Adelaide L. Burge, acting dean of women. Further applications will be received at the two offices Monday and Tuesday, but not later than December 5.

Men and women under 25 years of age, who are to some degree financing themselves through the university, are eligible. The spirit of the strong awards is to help those who are helping themselves. It has been found that students are better enabled to enjoy the advantages of the university when relieved of financial worries. That is the spirit of the Strong gifts.

The scholarships are gifts to the women and loans to the men. The loan element has been lately introduced because men appreciate and value a loan above a gift. The money may be repaid after the student graduates and in terms convenient to him.

This is the first year the trustee of the foundation has set aside the $1,000 for the University of Iowa. The interest taken by the student body and the quality of the applicants will be strong factors in determining whether or not the appropriation will be repeated next year, according to Dean George F. Kay of the college of liberal arts.

Evangeline Booth Determined To Go On With Speeches

(By United News)
Chicago, Dec. 1.—From her bed in a downtown hotel where she has been ill with attacks of laryngitis, bronchitis and pleurisy, Evangeline Booth, commander of the Salvation army in America, Friday sent the following message to her "Soldiers of Christ" and friends throughout the country: "Tell them for me, that I am determined to go on with the fight. I am determined to leave this room Saturday and go to Minneapolis and if I can stand on my feet and make myself heard I will talk to the people who are expecting me. I have promised to be there, and I will." Commander Booth's illness, contrary to reports, is still giving her aides serious anxiety.

200 FRATERNITY MEN MEET FOR 1922 CONCLAVE

Delegates Representing 52 Fraternities Attend Conference at New York City

More than 200 fraternity men, representing the leading men's fraternities at American colleges and universities, met in convention under the auspices of the Interfraternity conference at the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York City, December 1 and 2. The conference was called to order at noon by its chairman, F. H. Nymeyer, a graduate of Illinois and a member of Zeta Psi.

The 200 delegates and alternates to the convention were from all parts of the country as far west as the University of Colorado and as far south as North Carolina State university. They represent the fifty-two fraternities which are members of the conference and come from ninety different colleges.

Prominent Speakers Present
Many prominent speakers were on the program of the conference for its two-day session. Among them were five college deans, one chancellor and more than a score of deans. Present were President William H. Faunce of Brown, who founded the conference fourteen years ago, President C. E. Richards of Lehigh, President S. W. Stratton of Massachusetts Tech, President John M. Thomas of Penn State, Chancellor E. H. Lindly of Kansas, and President F. C. Ferry of Hamilton. Among the deans who attended were Dean Thomas Clark of Illinois, educational adviser of the conference, Dean Burton P. Twitchell of Yale, Dean S. E. Goodnight of Wisconsin, Dean William C. Hammond of Cornell, Dean E. E. Nicholson of Minnesota, Dean Arthur Ray Warnock of Penn State, Dean William A. Alexander of Swarthmore, and Dean J. A. Bursley of Michigan.

The Interfraternity conference, established in 1909 at Chicago, is the result of a realization on the part of college fraternities of their common ideals and tasks. Through the efforts of the conference mutual jealousies and rivalries have diminished and a clearer conception grown up of the modern fraternity as an adjunct to self-government at American colleges and universities. Hamilton Wright Mabie was the first chairman of the conference.

Includes 52 Fraternities
The conference has grown until today it has a membership of fifty-two fraternities, containing nearly all of the long established fraternities in addition to a number of newer and less firmly established organizations. Each fraternity has named three delegates and two alternates to the convention.

F. H. Nymeyer, chairman, who called the meeting to order, is a member of Zeta Psi from Illinois, and now a broker in New York. Associated with him on the executive committee of the committee are Wayne M. Musgrave of Alpha Sigma Phi, Albrt S. Bard of Chi Psi, J. Lorton Francis of Pi Kappa Alpha, Willis O. Robb of Beta Theta Pi, Don R. Almy of Sigma Alpha Epsilon. Dr. Thomas A. Clark of Phi Sigma Kappa, dean of men at Illinois and a member of Alpha Tau Omega, is educational director of the conference. Peter Vischer of Phi Gamma Delta is chairman of its committee on publicity.

Distinguished visitors to the conference were Senator George Wharton Pepper, ex-vice-president Thomas R. Marshall, ex-Secretary of War Newton D. Baker.

1,439 IOWA ALIENS ASK FOR PAPERS

3242 Applied for Citizenship in United States During Last Year

A communication recently received by the department of political science in this University from the office of chief examiner, in the naturalization service of the United States, for the district including Iowa, contains some interesting statistics with special reference to Iowa.

The number of aliens in Iowa who took the first step toward citizenship, that is, declared their intention to become citizens of the United States, was 1,439 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922.

Great Number Apply
The number of aliens who applied for citizenship as civilians during the same year was 3,242. Power is given under the present act to naturalize aliens who were honorably discharged from the United States army. The number here given refers to those aliens who were not in the army and who were applying under the usual terms of the act.

The number naturalized in the state of Iowa during the year ended June 30, 1922, was 1,351. The number of applicants who were denied citizenship during the year was 568. Under the terms of the Act of Congress of July 19, 1919, there were seventy-seven honorably discharged soldiers naturalized.

Refusals Are Many
It is interesting to note the causes for the large number of denials of civilian petitions, which as above stated was 568. Of this number 189 claimed exemption from military service during the late world war; five had records of disloyalty during the war, in other words were not attached to the constitution of the United States; two were already citizens; eighteen were adjudged by the courts to be of immoral character; 125 were unfortunate in that they presented to the court in connection with their petitions, witnesses who were not, for some reason or other, qualified to act; that is, they may not themselves be citizens of the United States, or they may not have known the applicant the necessary time required, or not have been in sufficiently close touch with the applicant for the period in which they were supposed to have known him; six were denied because they did not possess the necessary United States or Iowa residence prior to the date of their application; eighteen were rejected because of ignorance; 121 for failure to appear before the court at the time of the final hearing; seven had died following their applications; and the rest for miscellaneous causes.

HELDT SECOND IOWA MAN TO WEAR FOUR STRIPES AND STAR

John C. Heldt A4 of Lyons was won the unusual privilege of wearing four stripes and a star on his "I" sweater. The only other man who has the same honor is Lester C. Belding '22, now on the coaching staff of the University of Colorado, Boulder, Colo. The four stripes were only given to those who played on the Iowa team during the S. A. T. C. regime and three other years. A ruling was passed that playing on the S. A. T. C. team would not affect the eligibility of the player, the year not being counted as collegiate competition. Since the days of the military rule ended with Christmas 1918 no other branch of athletics was affected. "Duke" Slater, famous Iowa tackle, is the only other four stripe man.

The addition of the star, earned by Belding and Heldt, indicates that the wearer has been elected captain of some Iowa team. There is no necessary connection between th stripes and the star. That is, the stripes do not indicate that the man has won his "I" for every stripe in the branch in which he was elected captain. Belding was captain of the 1921 track team and Heldt is captain of this year's wrestling team.

MICHIGAN IS ON IOWA FOOTBALL CARD FOR 1923

6 Conference Teams On Schedule; Wolverines Will Come Here On November 3

A game scheduled between Iowa and Michigan, to be played at Iowa City, November 3, is included in the Iowa football schedule for 1923 announced following the meeting of Big Ten athletic directors and coaches held at Chicago which closed yesterday.

Michigan is the only new conference opponent to be taken on by Iowa in 1923 and in order to schedule the game it was necessary for Iowa to arrange for six conference games during next season instead of five as has been the custom in the past.

Purdue Comes First
The first conference game will be Purdue at Iowa City October 13, followed by Illinois at Iowa City October 20, Ohio State at Columbus, October 27, Michigan at Iowa City November 3, Minnesota at Minneapolis, November 17, and Northwestern at Evanston, November 24.

The indoor and outdoor track and field and baseball schedules for next spring were also arranged at this meeting. The conference track and field meet will be held at Ann Arbor, Mich., June 13 and the national meet will be held at Chicago four days later.

The first baseball game will be April 13, Purdue at Lafayette, followed by Illinois at Urbana, April 14, Chicago at Iowa City, April 21, Indiana at Iowa City, April 28, Illinois at Iowa City, April 30, Minnesota at Minneapolis May 5, Michigan at Ann Arbor, May 7, Notre Dame at South Bend, May 8, Michigan at Iowa City, May 14, and Chicago at Chicago, May 19.

Track Season Starts Feb. 24
The first indoor track meet on the Iowa schedule will be with Wisconsin at Iowa City, February 24. The Illinois relays at Urbana are scheduled for March 3 and Iowa will meet Illinois alone at Urbana March 10. The indoor conference meet will be held at Evanston, April 23, and the Drake or Penn relays will be scheduled the week following.

Outdoor meets with Northwestern at Iowa City May 5, Chicago at Iowa City May 12, and Minnesota at Minneapolis May 26 lead up to the conference outdoor track and field meet leaving one open date on May 19.

Arrange Wrestling Schedule
At a meeting of physical directors, also held in Chicago, wrestling, gym team, tennis, and swimming schedules for this winter and spring were arranged. Iowa's first mat contest will be with Minnesota at Minneapolis, February 3. Northwestern will be taken on at Evanston, February 9, Wisconsin at Madison, February 23, Michigan at Iowa City, March 9 and Illinois at Iowa City, March 3.

The Iowa gym team will travel to Minneapolis for a contest with the Minnesota gymnasts February 17 and Illinois will come to Iowa City March 9 for a similar contest. Five tennis matches were arranged with Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Chicago, and Northwestern. The Iowa tennis team will go to Madison, meeting Wisconsin on April 28 and will play Minnesota at Minneapolis May 12. The dates for the Illinois, Chicago, and Northwestern matches will be arranged later.

The Northwestern swimming squad will come to Iowa City February 10 and Illinois will come to Iowa City February 17. The Iowa tank men meet Chicago at Chicago February 23 and Minnesota at Minneapolis March 9. The Conference swimming meet will be held at Chicago March 15 and 16.

WEST DEFEATS EAST 6-0 IN GRID CONTEST

Heldt and Minick Represent Iowa On Intersectional Team

Columbus, Ohio, Dec. 2.—West triumphed over East today 6 to 0 in the annual "grid-grid" game here. "Brick" Mueller all-American football hero of California blocked the place kick of "Red" Roberts, Center College star, snatched the pigskin and dashed seventy yards for the only touchdown of the classic contest. In a thrilling run Mueller showed the Ohioans one of the chief reasons they lost the great inter-sectional contest at the end of their victorious season in 1920 when California defeated Ohio at the Tournament of Roses at Pasadena.

Mueller Stars
Mueller was the whole show in today's game. The "Bo" McMillen of Center and the Harold Jones of Yale didn't have a chance.

Early in the third quarter, Mueller crashed through the eastern line like a shot, blocking Robert's place kick and before opponents or fans knew what had happened he was flying down the field.

Five players were still sprawling on the turf when Mueller placed the ball over the eastern goal line.
Thurman Tries Hard
Try as he would the famous Thurman of Penn State, playing at right guard was unable to lead his men to victory. Kick after kick failed to make any headway against the western stars. Only once the western goal was endangered; that was when Thurman succeeded in working the ball down to the one yard line. Then he fumbled and "Bo" McMillen recovered and punted out to safety.

A GREAT SCHEDULE

University of Iowa football fans voice their approval of the schedule of games for next year. The charge laid frequently at Iowa's door that she plays only the weaker teams in the conference will no longer hold water for of the six conference games scheduled, Iowa meets four teams which are always to be feared, namely: Illinois, Ohio, Michigan and Minnesota.

For the first time in a number of years the Hawkeyes will mix it up with the Wolverines on Iowa Field, November 3. Since both teams are laying claim to the conference title this year, the football world in general and the University of Iowa and Michigan in particular will look forward to this game as the climax of the season.

The only question likely to be raised by students here will concern the Yale game. There are only two dates open on the schedule, October 6 and November 10. Iowa students want to play Yale again and if a game can be arranged for either of these two dates, the schedule will be pronounced perfect.

PROFESSOR CHANEY RUBS IT IN

Prof. Ralph W. Chaney, formerly connected with the department of geology and now doing research work in California, is rather profuse in his praise of University of California students and their football team and at the same time not so complimentary to Iowa. In an interview regarding comparative merits of the two teams, printed elsewhere in the Daily Iowan, Professor Chaney says in part:

"I firmly believe the California football team to be two touchdowns better than Iowa. . . . California has four teams practicing regularly, any one of which, in my estimation, could beat Iowa's eleven. . . . The Iowa team would be unmercifully cleaned should the two meet. . . . Every one of California's men should be placed on the all-American team."

Professor Chaney's research work, evidently, has been confined mostly to the field of geology. A discerning reader might even catch a glimpse of California's hot sun in his statements, which, were they not so far over-drawn, might merit consideration. California no doubt has a good team, but the professor's picture of it requires more than ordinary credence. Whether or not it is better than Iowa's is neither here nor there since the two teams are unlikely to meet. Professor Chaney has a right to his opinion nevertheless, and for voicing it here, deserves to be commended for his temerity. The whole matter is a little beside the point. We are only glad that they like the game out West as well as we do here.

Professor Chaney's remarks on the attitude of the student body in regard to athletics and other activities, since they are plausible, may be taken more seriously. Regarding these, he says:

"Everything is football there. . . . It surpasses any other activity. . . . Mass meetings of the most rousing sort take place a week before the games, and after the games the students celebrate on a much larger scale than was shown by Iowa in celebrating the victory over Yale. . . . Their college spirit is always so apparent that it grows a bit monotonous."

A hint of disapproval enters here in Professor Chaney's remarks. The rah-rah stage in college development seems to have been reached at California. It smacks of prep school antics and of youthful exuberance. We have sufficient enthusiasm for football at the University of Iowa. If they have more at California, they are to be sympathized with.

Professor Chaney, however, drives his point home when he mentions the same enthusiasm for other activities. And it is here that Iowa can take a lesson from the professor for at best Iowa students are an unenthusiastic lot. Football alone of all student activities receives anything in the proximity of enthusiasm.

College spirit as it is intense is likely to be narrow. A certain amount of enthusiasm, however, for something whether it be football, studies, dramatics, literary work, petting or just loafing is a healthy sign, and when it is lacking, as it certainly is at the University of Iowa, it gives evidence of a rather dead-to-the-world student body.

EVOLUTION STILL A THEORY

When A. L. Karober of the University of California said that the human race has only improved one per cent physically and mentally in 25,000 years he reiterated a fact long known among scientists, and as yet not satisfactorily explained. Prima facie it seems to be incompatible with the theory of evolution. If it can be proved that man has not advanced any during this long period of time of which our knowledge is most complete, it is hard to believe that change is ever going on, and that man developed from a higher animal.

Anthropologists explain this paradox by assigning certain periods of non-development or "plateaus" to the history of evolution. They say that we are now on a plateau. But this explains nothing. It merely dodges the fundamental concept of the theory that life is incessantly changing and developing into a higher form.

There has been a decided evolution in society, which has meant more to mankind probably than a like development in the human body. We have developed a highly complex civilization without increasing our innate mental capacity. Our brains, it has been pointed out, have developed in a qualitative sense but this is merely a hypothesis. The facts seem to be that we have not developed either physically or mentally for 25,000 years. It offers food for thought for those among us who believe that the world has been explained.

CAMPUS SKETCHES—THE STUDENT

Long before we ever actually saw a college, we knew all about college students from having seen them in the movies. They sported ice-cream pants and white, roll-neck sweaters all the year 'round, and were obsessed with a passion for wearing tennis shoes. They never ventured out at night without stringed instruments with which to serenade their favorite co-eds. And nothing could induce an honest-to-gosh college student to appear on the campus without one of those little toques on his head.

Imagine our surprise, then, when it first dawned upon us that real college rah-rahs (as distinguished from the movie variety) were bell-muzzled instead of ice-cream pants, trick hats instead of toques, slicked (their hair back and parted it in the middle, and didn't wear tennis shoes in the winter. Our faith in the movie as a mirror of contemporary life and manners was almost shaken. Almost, we said, but no quite—for on true American ever loses faith in the movie.

After eating some in a restaurant, we often think the menu should read:

FORMER IOWAN EDITOR DESCRIBES LIFE AND EXPERIENCES IN EGYPT

In a letter from Cairo, Egypt, dated September 15, Cloyce K. Huston, last year's editor-in-chief of the Daily Iowan, tells of his experiences since leaving the University last spring. Mr. Huston worked his way to London from New York City, from there he went to Paris, Berlin and then to Cairo, Egypt, where he now is teaching English in the university there. His letter says in part:

"I have had a curious time during the last few minutes since I wrote the foregoing paragraph. An Egyptian member of the plumber's union has been repairing our shower across the hall and when he finished he consulted me concerning a further matter. His Arabic-speaking majesty, our servant, was forced to leave us last night because of a contagious eye disease (I think by the end of the week there will be no good eyes in the country) and my mastery of the language is not yet complete, so our consultation ended with no more result than a modern international conference. The poor fellow was laboring under the impression that if he could, by straining all his powers, talk loud enough and fast enough he would in the end make me understand. I proved a poor pupil, however, and I suppose by now he is kicking his bare feet in the dust of the street below philosophizing disparagingly on the stupidity of the American intellect."

Stopped at London
"The expostulatory elucidation which you requested concerning my trip and general status here will, I fear, be rather uninteresting. I worked my way from New York to London—I was butler and valet to a bunch of English hunting horses that were returning to the old country—and spent a couple of weeks renewing my acquaintance with Piccadilly and the Strand. From there I went to Paris and gave instruction for the future conduct of Montmartre until my return, and proceeded to Berlin. There, for the first time in my life, I was a rich man. The German mark was crawling around between the cracks in the floor of the cellar while the dollar was drifting out in ambitious smoke from the chimney above. I was there on the day it reached the highest mark; the mark sold at 2050 to the dollar the day before I left. Needless to say, I had a Turkish bath, and a big porterhouse steak and champagne for dinner that evening. I found it utterly impossible to spend my money! Can you imagine it? For the most luxurious evening, and the most extravagant, I ever had in my life I found it impossible to spend the change from a dollar bill. I thought of the old saying, "Ain't it a grand and glorious feeling?" But all things end, so I returned to Paris, headed for Marseilles, and boarded a drunken German seagoing craft that finally dropped me off at Port Said. Thence to Cairo, the city of bad eyes, persistent dragomans, more persistent flies, and most persistent mosquitoes.

I tried to say the proper thing when I saw the pyramids, and looked ethereal when I stood before the sphinx. But I needed no promptings when old Luna floated up out of the overflow of the Nile and cast a deep red light over the great pyramids; I didn't try to exclaim at the chorus that floated across the sands from a million voices that were using the Nile for a frogpond; I forgot to appear impressed when two Egyptians with long white flowing robes rode up below us, like phantoms from a majestic past, and halted their camels to listen to a few good old American songs. Then the fair damsel at my side giggled, and the spell was broken."

Gives Entrance Exams

"We are giving entrance examinations at the university these days. We are limiting the attendance and find that a good way to do it. I had the very great privilege of flunking sixteen thoroughly ambitious lads in English yesterday and look forward to sending still more of them home to their ascendants with discouraging reports after I have scanned their algebraic attempts tonight. Classes begin Tuesday, September 19.

"I think I am going to enjoy things here immensely. Five of us American teachers occupy bachelor quarters (we call it the Chateau) making us extremely comfortable. I find all the competition that I could desire in the way of chess and tennis, and the fellow in the next room has a guitar that keeps my ukulele from getting lonesome. My greatest difficulties right now lie in remembering to keep out of the sun, in learning how to carry a stick and in achieving the proper angle for my sun helmet. The afternoon siestas and four o'clock teas come more natural for me."

"I think this will have to serve as a letter. I don't dare start trying to enumerate all the curious things out here, and I hate to burden you with any more about myself."

Sincerely,
CLOYCE K. HUSTON.

"FAITH HEALER" TO BE GIVEN DEC. 14

Ero-Irving To Give Play That Shows Marked Contrast With "Beyond The Horizon"

The Ero-Irving production of William Vaughn Moody's "Faith Healer," to be given this year, December 14, presents an interesting and startling contrast to last year's production, Eugene O'Neil's "Beyond the Horizon." They are both plays indicative of middle western life but the viewpoint of each is as different as the life and viewpoint of their respective authors. Both are intensely emotional and dramatic, but Eugene O'Neil, sailor and more or less of a roustabout, gives the cynical, sordid tragic idea of life as opposed to the idealistic shading that William Vaughn Moody, the college professor, puts into his "Faith Healer."

In both plays a child takes part. In "Beyond the Horizon" the little girl, played by Mary Ellen Burns, dies at the end of the play; in "The Faith Healer" the little boy, played by John Jewett Hicks, lives and flourishes. Both of the principal male characters pass through the most severe emotional crises; Robert Mills in "Beyond the Horizon" emerges broken and depressed, while Ulrich Michaelis, in this year's production, comes through inspired. Albert Ward A4 of Clinton, whose ability made the part of Mills last year, will play Michaelis in "The Faith Healer."

The leading woman in each play also passes through an emotional crisis. Ruth Mills in "Beyond the Horizon" faces a drab existence, while Rhoda Williams has a clearer, happier life before her. The invalid mother in O'Neil's play dies; the paralytic in Moody's drama is finally cured by the faith healer. In fact, the entire effect of "Beyond the Horizon" was depressing, while this year's play is inspirational.

Both have unique and striking lighting effects, each telling a symbolical story by the use of sunlight effects. "Beyond the Horizon" opens with a glorious sunset, passes through the scorching heat of midday to a gray dawn and the death of the child at sunrise. "The Faith Healer" opens with a drab dawn. A brilliant sunset is shown and the play closes with a flood of sunrise on Easter morning.

The idea of Moody's play is to show that no man or woman's life is complete until he has taken into his heart a full and well rounded love. The characters are all symbolical—each reacts to the work of the faith healer in such a way as to show the reaction of a group of society under the same conditions. Littlefield, the scientist, openly scoffs at the faith healer's ideals; Culpepper, the orthodox minister, is intolerant of them; the old negro servant superstitiously accepts the miracles with awe. The wife who is healed of paralysis is eager and ready to believe and Beeler and his sister Martha accept the beliefs only after their practical minds have been relieved of doubt by actual proof.

ENGINEERS PARTIAL TO CANDY

"We want candy!" cried the engineers; so the Y. W. C. A. candy committee consented to set up a table at the entrance to the engineer's building. Sales reports vary according to the candy seller's personal ability and attraction. A surprising number of girls suddenly volunteered time to sell, specifying the place, and an equally surprising number of men developed the sweet tooth habit. Predictions are that the dents will profit by the engineer's dissipation. Medics may do likewise.

PROFESSORS KEEP FROM FREEZING OR STARVING BY EATING VITAMINES

College professors grow fat and well fed in terms of calories and vitamins, according to a statement made by leading grocers and physicians. Most of the educators seem to believe that means should be made up in terms of heat unites; so much in protein, so much in fat, and so much in carbohydrates. The average instructor eats 104 grams of protein, 125 grams of fats, and 423 grams of carbohydrates every day. Of this amount, ninety-six grams of protein, 119 grams of fat, and 410 grams of carbohydrates are actually digested. The actual food value amounts to 3220 calories each day; while the nutritive ratio amounts to 7.1 per cent.

A member of the football team just through training would eat about 5,005 calories made up of protein, fats, and carbohydrates.

The following table shows the round of pleasure which the average professor goes through, as far as could be ascertained approximately:

8 hrs. sleep, 65 calories to hour..	520 cal.
2 hrs. light exercise.....	340 cal.
8 hrs. activity, 290.....	2320 cal.
6 hrs. sitting at rest, 100.....	600 cal.
Total	3780 cal.

A professor's meals for a day, taken at random, were made up something like the following:

One shredded wheat biscuit, weight, 30 grams; protein, 106 grams; food, 3.15 calories.

One teacup of cream, weight, 120 grams; protein, 200 grams; food, 3.12 calories.

One water roll, weight 57 grams; protein, 165 grams; food, 5.07 calories.

Two one-inch cubes of butter, weight, 38 grams; protein, 284 grams; food, .38 calories.

Three-fourths of a cup of coffee, weight, 100 grams; food, .26 calories.

One-fourth of a teacup of cream, weight, 30 grams; protein, 51 grams; food, .78 calories.

One lump of sugar, weight, 10 grams; protein, 38 grams.

Lunch
One teacup homemade chicken soup. One Parkerhouse roll. Two one-inch cubes of butter. One slice lean bacon.

One small baked potato tw(0 oz.) One rice croquette. Two ounces maple syrup. One cup of tea with slice of lemon. One lump sugar.

Dinner
One teacup of corn soup. One bun. One cube of butter.

One small lamb chop broiled, or lean meat. One teacup mashed potato. Apple, celery, lettuce.

One Boston cracker. One half teacup bread pudding. One half-inch cube of American cheese.

One demitasse of coffee. One lump of sugar.

Philomatheans Win Sophomore Debate Friday

The Philomathean sophomore debating team, by defeating the Irving Institute team with a 2-1 decision, Friday evening in Close hall, won the right to contest with the Zetagathians on January 11 for the sophomore championship.

The subject for debate was "Resolved: That a federal court similar to the Kansas Industrial court should be established to settle disputes in essential industries, constitutionality waived." The Philomathean team, which upheld the affirmative, was composed of Harold F. Fristedt of Burlington; Daniel W. Holcomb of Iowa City; and Charles R. Sellers of Daventry.

The members of the Irving team were Murray O. Klingaman of Iowa City; William J. Berry of Washington, D. C.; and Charles E. Baker of Iowa City.

The judges of the debate were Prof. Abram O. Thomas of the geology department, Jacob Van Ek instructor in political science, and Attorney William R. Hart of Iowa City.

In the final championship debate between the Philos and the Zets the proposition for debate will be the same as was debated upon Friday night by the Philos and Irvings. The negative side of this debate will be upheld by the Philos.

Y. W. C. A. PLANS FOR RECOGNITION SERVICE OF NEW MEMBERS

Plans for the recognition service for new members, the annual custom of the Y. W. C. A., have been made. "Invitations will be issued to the new members, but those who wish to join or who have not received invitations are invited to come," said Miss Alvida J. Buck, general secretary.

The candle service will be used as in former years, and the council women will take part. This year's council is composed of: E. Roberta Anderson A3 of Madrid, Alice M. Hagedorn A2 of Luverne, Minn., Marion Ansel A2 of Iowa City, Margaret E. Sayers A2 of Jefferson, Catherine Hamilton A4 of Pasadena, Cal., Irene C. Boughton A4 of Sioux City, Charlotte Fisk A3 of Iowa City, Louise Jerrel A4 of Oskaloosa, Marjery Turner A3 of Corning, Helen E. Patterson A4 of Marengo, Maudine Shoemaker A3 of Guthrie Center, and Leona M. Hambrecht A3 of Iowa City.

LIBERAL ARTS COLLEGE OFFERS 600 COURSES

There are over 600 courses offered to students of the college of liberal arts. Hence, the "corrugated brows" on the otherwise outwardly calm and collected upper classmen, and the prematurely aged look of the "frosh" during the days when we are presented with "material" and called upon to state which of the same 600 courses we prefer to absorb in the ensuing term. In answer to the time-worn question, "why not taken 'em all and be done with it," someone has figured it out that if a man took regular work with no summer sessions, he would be able to complete the work offered by the registrar in ninety some years, provided no new courses were introduced during that time.

Y. W. MAKES VACATION PLANS

Miss Alvida J. Buck, general secretary of the Y. W. C. A., is anxious to obtain the names of women who will be in Iowa City during the Christmas vacation. Plans will be made for their entertainment during the holidays. This is the first year such arrangements have been planned.

LIBRARY RULES FOR LOANING OF BOOKS STRICT

Very severe penalties are in force at the University library this year for any who violate the library regulations. Every student who makes use of the library would do well to pause long enough to become familiar with the regulations, and with the penalties which are being enforced in case these rules are violated.

The pamphlet of information about the library, which was given to all students when they registered in September, contains the regulations regarding the loan of books, and also the penalties in case these rules are violated.

SELECT TWO ALL-TIME ELEVEN FOR OLD GOLD

line with terrific force. The success of these plays depended upon each player being in his proper place in the interference at the right time, and if he was not, the play failed. Yet these plays ran as quickly and as smoothly as any we have seen in recent years. To meet these impacts required not only quick thinking, but also courage, strength and endurance.

Style of Old and New Differ

The modern game is more open and, since the advent of the forward pass, it has become more spectacular. Its style and the qualities inherent in the men who play it successfully are known to all. It is safe to assert, however, and without fear of contradiction, that in speed, alertness and football instinct those so-called men of "beef and brawn" would compare favorably with the players of the present day. Coached in the modern game they would not fail to displace many who in recent years have been stars on our teams.

Find Two High Marks

The two high points in Iowa football history, center around the great teams of 1899 and 1900 and those of 1921 and 1922. During the intervening period and in the years previous to 1900, our teams have ranged from average to mediocre. Occasionally a team has produced one or more players who on better teams might have become scintillating stars.

In selecting the first and second teams, as well as the honor roll, consideration was taken of the man's general ability, his alertness and football instinct, his ability to carry the ball, punt, dodge, pass, and run interference, in a mass play, the great college game.

It would be interesting to know what would have been the result of the mighty men who made up the 1900 championship team could they have been coached by Howard H. Jones under the rules of the modern game.

We predict, however, that the 1900 team, as our first team under his coaching would press any other team, past or present, for all American honors.

THREE HAWKEYES ON ECKERSALL'S HONOR TEAM

five qualifications and such warriors should be chosen for the Big Ten honorary elevens.

Although the term "triple threat" is not countenanced by the close up follower of the game, it is the best way to explain the qualifications of a great offensive back. A man who can kick, run or pass is a most valuable asset to any football squad and efforts are made at the beginning of each season by coaches to develop just such warriors.

Offense Without Defense Used.
The best offense in the world is useless unless the team can perform just as brilliantly defensively. While some mentors contend a strong offense is the best defense, it is not true in the long run. Any team which can tackle and block never will be beaten badly and, for this reason, players selected for these all conference elevens must be strong defensively. They must be quick to scent an opponent's plays and move to his points of attack quickly and direct others of their team to the danger zone. They should always be in the vicinity of the ball and have that cunning to scoop up loose ovals, breaks which have turned the entire complexion of many evenly fought contests.

In other words, a player selected for any honorary eleven should be analyzed from every angle of football. He should not be chosen because he is a line plunger only, and end runner or a great kicker. He must combine as nearly as possible all the qualifications which go to make a real football player in every sense of the word. His work in every game should be considered and he should be so placed as to be of most value to his eleven.

Must Fortify Every Angle
Such an honorary eleven must be fortified in every angle of offensive tactics. Punting, field goal kicking, throwing and receiving forward passes, line plunging, slanting off the tackles or running the ends are only a few of the many details which such a team must be able to execute. There must be union in attack and perfect coordination between line and backfield. Such an eleven should also be fortified with tricks so that fast runners could be slipped away at opportune times.

It has been many years since the conference was blessed with such excellent backfield material, men who have performed consistently and brilliantly throughout the season. Their play in most cases, both offensively and defensively, made them marked men in all contests. Despite this handicap they have come through, and for this reason are deserving of the honors.

While some may not agree with the fullback selection, because of the line smashing of John Thomas of Chicago, the honor goes to Gordon Locke of Iowa, whose team successfully defended the championship won last year for the first time since 1900. Locke is also made captain of the team because of the faultless manner he has piloted his eleven through a successful season, featured by the 6 to 0 victory over Yale.

Locke Hard Line Plunger
Locke is just as hard a line plunger as Thomas. He is a better man in the interference and has made as many gains around the ends as the Hawkeye backs, something which the Maroon has not done. On defense, the Iowan is a much more valuable man. Playing in the secondary defense, he generally anticipated opponents' attacks and often met them before they crossed the line of scrimmage. In the Yale game, he tore through the Blue line with as many as three Old Eli players hanging on his back or legs. He did the same in the Ohio, Minnesota, and Northwestern games and scored the lone touchdown against Illinois. He is a natural football player, one of the best ever developed at the Hawkeye institution.

Franklin Cappon of Michigan is nearly the equal of the Hawkeye in all around play and is placed on the second team. In fact, there is little to choose between them, except that Locke is faster and better in carrying the ball around the ends. The Wolverine is a strong defensive player and was one of the reasons why Wisconsin was unable to make such headway with its open attack. It was Cappon's last year and his sterling ability may be gathered from the fact that during his three years of service he has played tackle, end, half back, and full back. Because of his all-around qualifications, Cappon is made the general utility player on the first eleven and placed at full back on the second team.

John Thomas is a specialist. He is a line plunger, one of the best in western conference football history, but he does not match up with Locke and Cappon in other football requirements. He has done nobly all fall, his great work in the Princeton game being among his greatest achievements. He has another year on the Midway, and it is hoped he will be used more to advance the oval on other than line drives.

Rollie Williams at Quarter
Rollie Williams, who led Wisconsin through a season which was made successful by the scoreless tie with Chicago, is placed at quarter back, although he played in a half back's position all year. Last season, Rollie occupied the quarter back position and filled the bill nicely. As previously stated, quarter back is the name of a position, and placing Williams in this given place would not impair his great offensive ability. Any one who has seen the Badger in action this year is well aware of the fact he is entitled to any honor which can be given him. He has been a marked man, but has always delivered. Fearless on defense and dangerous on offense, he was a great player with nough football intelligence to lead the team in any sort of battle.

Irwin Uteritz of Michigan would be given this position had it not been for the wealth of backfield men who must be placed on the first eleven. Utz is a grand little general, the best catcher of punts in the conference and a player who fits into the Yost style of play in a pleasing manner. Barr of Wisconsin, Clark of Illinois and Parkin of Iowa were among the other quarter backs who performed well.

Harry Kipke of Michigan is the outstanding back of the year. There is nothing about football which this player does not know. He is tricky and fast, alert at all times to take advantage of opponents' momentary hesitation and a triple performer. He was a menace to all Michigan's opponents in that he could run, kick or pass. He was one of the best punters in the Big Ten and a reliable drop kicker.

Earl Martineau a Star
Earl Martineau of Minnesota is awarded the other half back position like Williams and Kipke, he was handled roughly in every game but always came through with his share of offensive and defensive play. Like Kipke, he is a three way man, his forward passing and open field running always making him a respected player. If it had not been for this player the Gophers would not have had such a successful season.

Shuttleworth of Iowa was another good back who really did not receive credit. Pyott and Harry Thomas of Chicago, McCreery of Minnesota, Palmer of Northwestern, Happenny of Illinois and Klee of Ohio State were other backs who played consistently all year.

Bernie Kirk of Michigan was unquestionably the best end in the conference. The Wolverine, while not of the spectacular type, did things in so easy a manner that his performances were not appreciated. He gathered in forward passes with the ease and grace of a polished baseball player, while his keen knowledge of football made it possible for him to move to dangerous points with speed and accuracy. There was nothing about end plays which Kirk did not know. He always turned plays in, drove catchers of punts to the inside, and had an uncanny knack to get out in the open to catch passes. At Ann Arbor he is rated one of the best in Wolverine history.

Tobell Fearless Player
The other wing position is given to Gus Tobell of Wisconsin, a fearless player, who performed consistently all season. The Badger was everywhere in the Chicago game and played hang-up football against Michigan up to the time he was injured. Like Kirk, he knew the play of the position thoroughly, and is entitled to the honors. Paul Goebel, captain of Michigan's undefeated eleven, was another great end who was injured in the Ohio State game. The injury kept the Wolverine leader from showing his true form in the remaining games. Kadesky of Iowa, Wilson of Illinois, Hanny of Indiana, Eklund of Minnesota, and Strohmair of Chicago were other reliable players in the position.

Martin Below of Wisconsin, who will lead the 1923 Badger eleven, and George Thompson of Iowa are awarded the tackle positions. While it cannot be said either played up to the form of tackles of recent years, they did about all that was expected of them. Each had plenty of range, covered a lot of ground and in most cases hurried the forward passers. At times they were blocked out of plays, but soon adjusted themselves so as to close the openings. Muirhead of Michigan was another good tackle, nearly the equal of Below and Thompson. Fletcher of Chicago played consistently all season and he could be placed on the first team with credit. Penfield of Northwestern showed better this year while Petchoff of Ohio State played a sterling game against Illinois. Swank of Purdue would undoubtedly have shown better if he had been with a stronger team.

John McMillen of Illinois and Paul Minnick of Iowa are given the guard positions. Their ability to get out to lead interference was a striking feature of their play, while they were just as effective on defense. They blocked faultlessly and it was not uncommon for both to get down the field to cover punts.

Pondelik of Chicago was another great guard who should be a tower of strength on the Midway next fall. Other good guards were Meade of Iowa, Pixley of Ohio State, Hohfeld of Wisconsin, and Clay of Indiana.

Ralph King of Chicago is given the center position, although closely pressed by Johnny Heldt of Iowa. With 200 pounds or more, the Maroon was a tower of strength on defense, while his passing was accurate and sure. He and Pondelik made a lot of John Thomas' gains possible, although neither received much credit.

Heldt Great Pivot Man
Heldt was also a great pivot man. He was fast and active for a heavy player, and, like King, his passing was excellent most of the year. In the Ohio State game he covered punts well, and on one occasion recovered a fumbled kick. Oliver Aas of Minnesota was the other outstanding center in the conference.

Such a team would have a powerful running attack, the style which will be used to advantage in coming seasons. McMillen and Minnick could be used nicely to lead the interference with any of the four backs carrying the oval. Kipke and Martineau could be used for triple threat purposes, while Locke could be called upon to run the ends, hit the line from either straight formation or from split backs or delayed plunges. Kipke could be used to throw or receive forward passes along with Kirk and Tobell, while Williams could be used for any sort of attack. Defensively the team speaks for itself.
