French Soldiers Leave Dusseldorf For Ruhr

FARMER FAVORS IOWA CITY SITE FOR ORPHANAGE

500 Locations Proposed; Five Best Will Be Selected Within Few Weeks

"Were I to make my recommendations for the five best sites for our 'city of childhood,' I should certainly include the one offered by Iowa City and Cedar Rapids," stated Mr. A. N. Farmer, secretary of the Yeoman's children's home committee, whose duty it is in the next few weeks to select the best five of the five hundred sites offered for the home of fatherless and motherless children of Yeoman parentage. The ultimate investment in the home will be $15,000,000.

"The splendid facilities of the University of Iowa, and the splendid spirit of the community would be the reasons for my choice. It is my opinion that the university is leading the world in its child welfare laboratory work. Many sites have finer scenic qualifications but none offer the cooperation with such specialists as the university has here," added Mr. Farmer.

Mr. Farmer and many of the national officers of the Brotherhood of American Yeomen visited Iowa City Monday when a class of 500 citizens of Iowa City were initiated. President Walter A. Jessup, Dean William G. Raymond of the college of applied science, and Prof. Charles H. Weller, head of the department of history of art, were members of the class.

Testifies Men Who Killed Daniel and Richards Wore Mask

Bastrop, Louisiana, Jan. 9.—The Black Hood of terror and death worn by the mob which tortured and murdered Watt Daniels and Thomas F. Richards, was stripped off Tuesday by the state of Louisiana and was held up to the nation as the mask of the Ku Klux Klan in action. In testimony presented in open hearing, the state's legal forces backed by military and federal departments of justice, has publicly directed fire for first time straight at the invisible empire.

ASK ORGANIZATION AGAINST INVASION

(By United News) Munich, Jan. 9.—Pan-Germans in meeting held here Tuesday advocated that the national resistance against French invasion to Ruhr be organized.

DEMAND RETURN OF U. S. SOLDIERS

Administration Awaiting Developments Abroad Before Deciding Issue

By Raymond Clapper (United News Staff Correspondent) Washington, Jan. 9.—Demands for withdrawal of American troops from the Rhine and for summoning of a conference were renewed in the senate late Wednesday while the administration anxiously awaited developments abroad.

"We are waiting to see what way the cat jumps," one cabinet member told the United News on leaving the semi-weekly cabinet meeting at the White House, indicating that this government will suspend action regarding the recall of troops until Premier Poincare announces France's intention of advancing into the Ruhr in the chamber of deputies.

15000 BELGIANS LEAVE FOR RUHR

(By United News) Brussels, Jan. 9.—From 15000 to 18000 Belgian soldiers expected to depart for Ruhr under General Borems. The forces are principally infantrymen although some members of cavalry, artillery, tank corps, and aviation are included.

136 STUDENTS GUESTS TONIGHT AT KUEHNLE-FINKBINE DINNER

Prominent Alumni Will Be Present; Glee Club Quartet To Entertain

The sixth annual Kuehnle-Finkbine dinner will be held tonight at six o'clock at the Hotel Jefferson. One hundred and thirty-six guests representing all the student organizations of the campus, departments of the university, and prominent alumni have been invited. Prof. Forest C. Ensign, acting secretary of the University of Iowa Association, has been in charge of the arrangements.

The dinner is an annual affair promoted by Carl F. Kuehnle '81, L '82 of Denison, and William O. Finkbine '78, L '80, of Des Moines, prominent Iowa alumni and ardent boosters of the University. Mr. Kuehnle is one of the foremost lawyers and bankers of the western part of the state. Mr. Finkbine is connected with the Green Bay Lumber company with headquarters at Des Moines.

The first banquet was held in 1917. The next year the event was abandoned on account of the war, but has been given every year since. The number of guests this year is larger than ever before. An attempt has been made to have every student organization represented.

Old Grads Will Talk After the dinner Professor Ensign will preside over a short program, which follows: Greetings to the Guests William Finkbine, '78, L'80 Response Lehan T. Ryan, L'23 Iowa Campus in the Late Seventies Harvey Ingham, '80, L'81 The Dreams of the Fathers

SIX PRESIDENTS SELECT SENIOR HOP COMMITTEE

Committee To Consist of 18 Members, L. A. College Gets 6 Members

A tentative selection of the eighteen members of the senior hop committee, including two students from each professional college and six students from the liberal arts college, was made last night at the meeting of the association of senior class presidents.

In the new method each of the six presidents of the professional colleges will appoint eight committeemen and the president of the liberal arts college will appoint twenty-four committeemen, making a total of seventy-two members. The seventy-two members will later be apportioned among the various committees, so that the more important committees might have as many as eighteen members, and the less important ones have only two or three members. Last year there was a total of 128 members of all the committees and they were apportioned as follows: 7 invitation; 14 organization; 14 commencement exercises; 16 senior hop; 8 play; 6 pin; 7 senior memorial; 15 breakfast; 15 senior sing; 13 senior frolic; 13 hard times party.

The senior presidents are Lehan T. Ryan L3 of Winthrop; Gerhard B. Noll Cnd4 of Waukon; Burl R. Davis S4 of Mount Ayr; Edward F. Holdover P2 of Oxford Junction; George I. Nelson M4 of Cherokee; Max Kadsky D4 of Dubuque; Eric C. Wilson A4 of Iowa City.

GERMANS SAY FRANCE HAS NO TREATY RIGHT

Foreign Minister Claim Invasion Absurd; May Dissolve Reichstag

By Ferdinand Jahn (United News Staff Correspondent) Berlin, Jan. 9.—It is reported here that the German government sent a feeler to Washington asking the advisability of Germany making a formal protest against the French invasion of the Ruhr to America or a formal request for American intervention.

The United States government, it is reported, counseled against such action. Attempts of the French to justify the invasion of the Ruhr valley under treaty of Versailles are an "absurdity", Foreign Minister Rosenberg declared Tuesday.

Rosenberg added that he sees no justification for occupation under paragraph 18 or any other section of the treaty. "None of these articles give the allies right to occupy additional territory or to overstep Rhineland agreements to injure German rights there" he declared. These were other developments in the Ruhr situation of the day:

1. The majority of the German cabinet is opposed to French feelers which have been put out looking toward separate negotiations to end the reparations impasse.
2. The Reichstag may be dissolved in case it refuses to tender Chancellor Cuno a vote of confidence.
3. The government, according to a story carried in the "New Berliner" will protest to all signatories to the Versailles treaty and the armistice, the latter of course including the United States.
4. When the French occupy the Ruhr, the German ambassador to Paris, Herr Mayer, will, in all probability, be recalled.

Those in official circles are of the opinion that the French forces will march into Ruhr valley Thursday.

Preparations are completed, according to word received here from Rhineland. Large reinforcements with tanks, artillery and airplanes, are just outside of Essen, reports filtering through said. Resignation to the occupation is said to permeate the Rhineland although the people are figuratively gritting their teeth in an effort to bear up calmly. The mark slumped 10,000 to the American dollar Tuesday.

FRESHMAN SKATING PARTIES TABOO UNDER RULE 8, SAYS DEAN BURGE

(By Erica Riepe) Not at all daunted by the ruling against mid-week dating, numerous freshmen women are enjoying starlight skating at Fitzgerald's skating rink. Due to lucky coincidence, it not infrequently occurs that the freshman woman skater meets her admirer at the rink, and for that she can, of course, not be held responsible. It would be rudeness and sheer folly to turn a cold shoulder upon him, and to run the possible chance of having to struggle into her own skates while her more fortunate sophomore sister sits complacently by, with a willing swain on his knees before her dexterously adjusting her skates. And besides wouldn't it be dangerous to venture upon the slippery ice clinging hopelessly to a freshman girl friend who would skate no better than she?

BELLINGHAM TO GO TO FALMOUTH

(By United News) London, Jan. 9.—The U. S. S. vessel, Bellingham, which lost its steering gear 300 miles from Ireland, is expected to be able to proceed to Falmouth.

USE DEFER CARDS FOR REGISTRATION

Condition or Flunk In Course Basis for Students To Wait

A new system of notifying students of deferred registration is being used this year, that is the sending of the deferred registration cards to the students two weeks before the final semester examinations. Previous to this year the method has been to call the students to the offices of the dean of women and the dean of men and there tell them of their deferred registration. The purpose of the change is to avoid confusion which resulted in the schedules when the previous method was in use.

The deferred registration indicates the period within which registration for the second semester should be completed after the dean of women's office and the dean of men's office have had the opportunity to learn the outcome of all the first semester examinations through the instructors final grade reports.

The registrar sends the names of those who will receive deferred registration cards to the dean of women's office and the dean of men's office. From these offices the cards are sent directly to the students.

The basis on which students receive deferred registration cards is that they have either a condition or a flunk in some one of these courses. The deferred registration card is sent because of the apparent character of the student's record during the semester has caused a measure of uncertainty as to what the second semester's study list should include.

FEATURE IOWA LIFE FOR 1924 HAWKEYE

An entirely new and distinctive section called "Iowa Life" will be featured in the 1924 Hawkeye. This is only one of many new and interesting things to be found in this year's annual. So far only a few staff assignments have been made but the others will follow at a later date. Those receiving assignments are Buel G. Beems A3 of Cedar Rapids, societies; Alexander Miller A3 of Des Moines, publicity manager; and Fred M. Lazell A3 of Cedar Rapids, baseball.

POILUS HAPPY AS ORDERS ARE GIVEN TO START

Expect 250,000 Troops Will Be Quartered In Hotels and Schools

(By United News) Dusseldorf, Germany, Jan. 9.—The march of French legions on the Ruhr has started. Detachments of Poilus, garbed in slickers to ward off the rain, left the Dusseldorf concentration camp on Tuesday for the Ruhr Valley. French troops, which are being despatched further into Germany because the Berlin government defaulted on the reparations payment were jubilant when "forward march" was given.

Some left on trains; others jogged out of the German city in motor lorries and some detachments started on foot down muddy roads. Most of the departing detachments left under cover of darkness. The whole reminiscent of war time preparations on the eve of going into action.

Claim None Across Frontier Although it is admitted at French headquarters that some troops left for Ruhr, it was declared that none had yet crossed the frontier. In the meantime, French forces of all arms of military service are massing here from all parts of the Rhineland.

Gen. Degautte, commander of the French army of occupation, and his staff are expected here on Wednesday. The General spent the day at Mayence.

May Quarter 250,000 It is expected that headquarters for at least 250,000 troops will be established here. These, it is believed, will be accompanied on their march to Essen by engineers and customs officials.

The French authorities, the United News has learned, have requested the British to permit troop movements over railroads controlled by England.

The matter has been referred to London, but the French anticipate that the British will acquiesce.

French At Kettawig According to a despatch from Essen, the advance guard of French troops is already at Kettawig, a suburb of Essen. Hotels and other quarters have already been prepared for the invaders by the civil authorities. Gusburg advises the state that high French staff officers have arrived. From Meuse comes word that heavy artillery and engineer regiments have appeared on the scene. The bulk of French troops are quartered in zoological gardens and schools, owing to lack of barracks.

It is reported that Marshal Foch and General Weigand asked the French government for nine divisions totaling 120,000 men for use in the Ruhr. The roads between Dusseldorf and Essen are blockaded by the unusual number of motor cars and many are forced to detour.

FRENCH MAY TAKE GUESTS' PLACES IN HOTELS AT ESSEN

(By United News) Essen, Jan. 9.—Guests of hotels here had a rude awakening Wednesday night. Hotel clerks notified all occupants of rooms that they may be routed out at any time to make room for French officers and soldiers who are reported to be on the outskirts of Essen.

Miss Agnes Brady of the department of home economics addressed the freshman girls yesterday in fresh man lectures on the general subject of dress. Miss Brady says that the women of the university dress better this year than last but that the explanation is style rather than common sense or better taste.

Miss Ruth Whaley who received her bachelor of arts degree here last June is to teach English and history in the high school at Manilla, Iowa during the second semester.

Miss Mary Gitchell who received her master of arts degree in English here in 1921 has recently accepted the position of county normal director of Muskingum county, Ohio. She is located at Dresden, Ohio.

Miss Ethel Meardon, graduate student of Iowa City, has accepted the position of teaching biology in the high school at Agusta, Ill. Miss Meardon was secured for this position through the Committee on Recommendation of Teachers.

IOWA CHEMISTRY SOCIETY IN MEET

Wisconsin Professor To Talk On Selenium Oxychloride Here Friday

The Iowa section of the National American Chemical society will hold a meeting Friday evening, January 12, at 7:30 o'clock preceded by a 6 o'clock dinner at the Burkley hotel. Professor Lenher, of the University of Wisconsin, will address the meeting on the subject, "Selenium Oxychloride." The lecture will be illustrated by a number of experiments. Professor Bartow, head of the chemistry department here, heard the address given in St. Louis and says of it: "The lecture is of a popular character and not so technical that others than chemists can not understand and enjoy it."

Professor Lenher is chairman of the committee of the national research council of the uses of selenium and tellurium. The unusual solvent properties of selenium oxychloride for both organic and inorganic compounds were discovered by Prof. Lenher in 1920 and since that time a considerable study has been made of the properties of selenium oxychloride by Prof. Lenher and his students at the University of Wisconsin.

Professor Lahner is most noted for his work with this, particularly its solvent properties. Selenium oxychloride is a compound of selenium, oxygen and chloride. Selenium as a free element is a metal.

Iowa section of the American Chemical society, which includes the whole state with the exception of Ames and a radius of twenty-five miles thereabouts, has one hundred and fifty members here. Professor Lenher addresses the Ames section on Thursday before coming here Friday. The society has 15,000 members throughout the United States.

Any who are not members of the society but who are interested in the subject will be welcomed to the dinner or the lecture or both. Notify

G. H. Coleman, 610 Jefferson street, if you wish a dinner reservation.

Prof. Hill Resigns Position Here To Join Utility Firm

Jack S. Hill professor of electrical engineering, has resigned his position in the college of applied science effective February 1 to enter the public utility field in Lincoln Nebraska. He will be general manager of the Lincoln Gas and Electric company, a subsidiary company of the Gas and Electric corporation for which he will also be consulting engineer.

Professor Hill is a graduate of the school of electrical engineering of Purdue University and received his degrees of B. S. and E. E. and his professional degree of electrical engineering from that institution. Since his graduation at Purdue and before coming to the University of Iowa he was connected with some noted American corporation.

During the time of his connection with the university he has devoted a part of his time to a general consulting practice in Iowa and adjoining states. His consulting work has consisted largely of designs of transmission lines, power plants special investigations along engineering lines, vestigations along engineering lines, management and valuations of public utilities and rate investigations.

Prof. Hill is a member of Theta Xi social fraternity; Tau Beta Pi, honorary engineering fraternity and Sigma Xi, honorary scientific fraternity.

Parents Informed of Freshmen Sons' Works of Merit

More than 200 letters of commendation were sent to the parents of freshmen men during the Christmas vacation from the office of the dean of men. It has been the custom to send these letters to the parents to inform them that their sons have been doing good work in one or more of their courses. This custom is not followed at the dean of women's office.

STUDENTS REPLY "AW 'GWAN" FOR ALL KLAN YARNS

Investigations Fail To Reveal Existence of Secret Society; No Defenders

The existence of a chapter of the KuKlux Klan, firmly believed by many members of the student body and faculty to be a reality, seems extremely doubtful, and a careful investigation by an Iowan reporter brings forth the conclusion that there are no "sheet wearers" in the Iowa student body. The idea that there was a strong chapter in the city has been circulated consistently for some time and there were some strong indications that this was a fact, but all these on close scrutiny were found to be misleading. The existence of the Klan chapter was merely mental with a number of students who were willing to make themselves believe that it existed.

The atrocities of the Klan in Mer Rouge has again caused the Ku Kluxers to be brought in the limelight and with it the rumors establishing a chapter of the "night riders" have again started coming thick and fast. Everyone is willing to take information which will make it appear that the "knights of the flaming cross the campus at midnight on their noble steeds covered with a miscellaneous assortment of fraternity bed-sheets, but no one has definite information as to where the eager candidates are sworn into the famous service.

The general opinion among the students concerning the Klan and its activities in this community is that of "Aw G'wan." Night riding, sheet covered, emancipators of the country do not appeal to the student's 1923 chivalry. The humorous aspect of the Klansman's garb was not missed by most of the students whom the Iowa reporter interviewed in his investigation. One fraternity steward said that the prospect of the formation of a Klan chapter would be a serious problem as a shortage of bed sheets resulting from regular causes was already being noticed in some houses and the organization of a Klan here would undoubtedly be the cause of many men sleeping on beds without the customary supply of sheets.

Most students do not regard it as possible that a Klan could be formed here and that organizers would find it strenuous work to extract the fees, charged by the Klan, from the students. High wizards and grand goblins would find an eager audience of willing candidates ready to pour out their cash for the support of the Invisible Empire.

The secrecy of the membership of the Klan has been, well guarded generally, and this may be the reason that it is impossible to secure anything tangible concerning the existence of a chapter here. It is known that organizers of the organization have been in this city at different times and one of them is known to have been registered here as a student some years ago. He was not successful in organizing a Klan here at that time, as far as is known.

Members of the Klan are not prone to admit the fact that they are members but there could not be any great number of Klansmen without some indication of their presence. Such evidences are entirely lacking, at least, to the observation of all students who were interviewed in the investigation

The general sentiment of any group of students is usually against the Klan and what it calls its ideals. The atrocities committed in the name of and which are directly traceable to the activities of the Klan have made it an organization which is undesirable in a country of law and order, in the opinion of the student body as a whole. The secrecy of the organization certainly is not a commendable feature of it but entirely necessary for its existence outside the prison walls of Fort Madison was the opinion of one student more anti-Klannish than the rest.

One freshman in the University is still looking for the Ku Klux Klan chapter house in Iowa City. He says that he was pledged to that fraternity the day he arrived in Iowa City. Graphically he describes how three strangers told him that they were looking for the twelve best freshmen and that he had been selected. The famous Ku Klux Klan wanted to pledge him as one of its future members. The great benefits of the organization were explained to him in great detail and finally with great pride he accepted the pledge pin, a piece of white bed sheet. He was to meet the "rush committee" again at the Academy the next day but they never came. Jealously he guarded his "pledge pin" and diligently brushed it to keep it looking bright and new. It is rumored that he will "find" himself within a few years. At present he is close on the trail of the scent of the location of the chapter house. He wishes to get acquainted with the steward.

Y. W. C. A. SECURES WORK FOR WOMEN

Largest Number Ever Recorded Secure Employment Through Aid of Y. W. Bureau

More than one hundred and fifty university women have obtained work this semester through the agency of the Y. W. C. A. free employment bureau. At any time during the year, women may register in the office of the association for positions desired. As far as is possible, preferences are regarded. Local offices, business houses, housewives and departments in the university send in calls daily for help. This service is carried on without charge either to employer or employe.

The most desired work the files show, is stenographic and clerical work while the demands are fewer in this field. General housework, including dish washing, ironing, preparing and serving meals, caring for children and the like is most frequently listed. Other exceptional bits of work are checking wraps at parties, serving at fraternity and sorority houses embroidery work, reading to professors and teaching. One proposition still unfilled offers music lessons in payment for house work. Certain restaurants and tea shops give meal tickets for waitress service.

A follow up system is used by the employment committee. The woman employed reports back to the office regarding the work required and the compensation while the employer likewise reports on the work accomplished. In this way, both parties concerned are better satisfied.

Compensation is optional to be arranged by employer and employe and not by the association. Generally, stenographic work pays thirty-five cents per hour general housework thirty cents, caring for children twenty-five to thirty cents. When women work for board and room they are expected to work four hours each day.

The committee in charge of the Y. W. C. A. free employment bureau consists of Helen Wylie A2 of Iowa City, chairman, Bessie Rasmus A2 of Cherokee, Elspeth Close A1 of Iowa City, and Margaret Bailey A1 of Iowa City.

"There is no college bureau here in charge of employment and housing like in many universities, says Miss Alvida Buck, association secretary. "Our biggest difficulty lies in the fact that people complain about the help supplied when they themselves are obligated to the association. Girls often sign for any kind of work and later demand a particular kind. Complications occur when parties send in a call for a worker and while the worker is being secured get help through another agency."

The office of the dean of women refers all requests for work to the Y. W. C. A. except those calls which concern room and board. About thirty women in the university are working four hours daily in payment for room and board.

The varsity basketball team romped over Coach Albert Jenkins' yearlings last night at the new armory. Coach Sam Barry having returned from Columbus, Ohio, where he scouted the Illinois-Ohio game Monday evening, had the Old Gold team scrimmage for the first time since the Chicago victory last week.

The basketball squad worked long last night in preparation for the Michigan game here Monday, January 15. Besides the customary basket shooting, out-of-bound plays, and scrimmage, Coach Barry instructed the men in shooting with one hand when close in and guarded. The first and second string also worked the ball through a five man defense for offensive drill. The squad has been strengthened by the addition of Robert Shick of Davenport. Shick was placed on the all-state basketball team in 1921 and won his numeral last year. Due to ineligibility he has not been working out but should be eligible the second semester he will now be in shape.

Reserved seats on the north side of the basketball court can be secured at the athletic office for the entire season. Reserved seats for any game can be purchased at Whetstone's the day before any game for fifty cents.

Skipping the Rope On Program for Wrestling Team

Wrestling Coach Mike Howard sent his grappling proteges through a snappy workout last night, skipping the rope, throwing the medicine ball, and work on the mat. The coach has been teaching the mat men several new holds during the last few days, stressing the double wrist lock, the body lock, the head and body scissors and the head lock.

Roberts, an "12" football man, who was showing up well in the light heavyweight division, has given up his ambition to become a Farmer Burns, in order to devote his entire time to track. He was a member of the freshman track squad last spring.

Harris Thom, the scrappy little middleweight, is working hard to get in condition. He has been handicapped all season because of sickness, but now that he is fully recovered he is putting in lots of hard licks in order to make up for lost time.

Now that Roberts has answered Coach George Bresnahan's call for track men James is left without a serious contender in the light heavyweight class. James wrestled in the middleweight division last year, but during the summer he put on weight and is now a full fledged light heavyweight.

SIGMA NU'S SCORE 17-8 OVER A.T.O.'S.

Evan's Foul Shooting for Sigma Nu Team Nets Seven Points

In a fast game last night the Sigma Nu's defeated the A. T. O.'s 17 to 8 in the interfraternity basketball league. The foul shooting of Evans for the Sigma Nu team was the feature of the game. He missed only two out of nine trials. The second game between Delta Chi and Delta Theta Pi was slow during the first period but livened up as the game progressed. The Delta Chi's had a six point lead up until the last five minutes of play when Stever made a basket and was closely followed by Thoma. Other points were made in quick succession until the score was 14 to 13 in favor of the Delta Chis. Treneman put the game on ice by making a free throw and a field goal with one minute left to play.

EIGHT ELECTED TO HONORARY SWIMMING CLUB

Eels Will Initiate New Members At the Men's Pool Tuesday

Ceylon B. Hayden, D2 of Des Moines, Eugene L. Fisher A3 of Garden Grove, George C. Ashton, S4 of Lyons, DeWitt H. Smith L3 of Marion, Douglas L. Bess, Au of St. Paul, Minn., Ralph E. McIntosh, Cm4 of Davenport, Roy O. McIntosh, Cm4 of Davenport, and Frank J. Hogan were elected into membership of the Eel club, men's honorary swimming organization, last night at the regular business meeting in the men's gymnasium.

This is the highest honor that can be awarded to swimmers at the State University of Iowa.

Initiation of the new members will take place next Tuesday evening at the men's pool after a dinner at the Pagoda.

These men were elected because of their zealness for the sport. The club also purchased new suits and debated about a new emblem.

Some time ago Ernest G. Schroeder, director of physical education for men, and Professor Frederick G. Higbee, president of the University of Iowa Life Saving Corps, were elected honorary members in recognition and appreciation of the work they have done to help make the club a success.

General Duncan To Inspect Cadet Soldiers Today

Major General George B. Duncan, commander of the seventh corps area, will inspect the University military department informally today while here to speak at the Kuehne-Finkbine banquet on the subject: "The American Citizen as a Soldier." At noon he will address the members of Officers' club, at luncheon at the Burkley hotel.

General Duncan, in inspecting the department tomorrow, will see the cadets at their regular work. He will probably watch the basic course men drill, and attend the advanced course classes.

While in Iowa City, General Duncan will be the guest of Colonel and Mrs. Mumma.

During the late war, General Duncan received a Croix de Guerre from the French government for special valor at an advanced observation post near Verdun in August 1917. He later received a distinguished service cross for his exceptional work as commander of the eighty-eighth division.

General Duncan was born in Lexington, Ken., on October 10, 1861. In 1886 he graduated from the United States military academy in the same class with General Pershing. He also completed an advanced training course at the Army War college in 1912 after twenty-six years' service, both in the army and as an officer detailed for military research.

ELECT CAPTAIN TODAY

Members of Iowa's cross country team will meet this afternoon at 4:30 p. m. in the men's gym, and elect a captain for next year's team. The seven men who will vote are don, Zacher, R. R. Foster, Murray and Seashore. Payne and Sheldon are the only men who will be back for cross country next year.

Blazing Trails for Progress

Curiosity may have killed the well-known cat, but it has been underneath most of the hard-won developments that lastingly benefit mankind. Once in a great while, perhaps, accident has been the spark that has lighted the torch of achievement; but much more frequently—always, nearly—accomplishment, especially in the field of science and invention, has grown out of the insatiable curiosity that seems to be the heritage of us all. Mankind wants to know—and is slowly finding out. Curiosity, the complement of imagination, knows no appeasement.

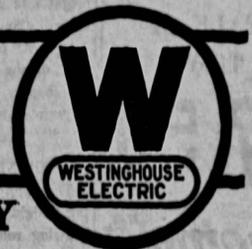

This is, however, no essay on the vague subject of idle curiosity. There is a vast difference between that and the organized, untinged, well-planned activity which, as an integral part of Westinghouse organization, searches continually for the answers to problems which intelligent speculation sets up. This, if you please, is curiosity in its highest and most intensified form; and it is a fundamental thing in the Westinghouse operations.

Research, as we know it, is the guiding hand upon the purely creative activities of business. Constantly it brings to light new aspects of known laws, new visions of laws yet to be uncovered. But the search for these is not haphazard nor whimsical; it is organized and planned as carefully and thoroughly as any other business activity. Whether chemical, electrical, or physical, it is engineering; and it follows engineering methods and tradition.

Many great engineers have been wholly at a loss in this specialized activity. For research, in a sense, reverses the usual order. Its endeavor is to discover unknown laws in the known facts—a thing which is quite at variance with ordinary engineering practice. Yet there is a fine type of engineering mind which finds its great opportunity in this kind of work. And to that type of mind, and that type of man, research beckons with an unmistakable hand. It is engineering pioneering, it blazes trails for progress, to new triumphs, in a wilderness into whose outskirts man has scarcely penetrated.

MILITARY BALL OPENS FORMAL SEASON FRIDAY

Silver Jubilee Idea Will Be Carried Out In Programs and Decorations

The formal season will officially open for the school year when the members of the Officers' club entertain the University on the dance floor and in the gallery Friday night on the occasion of the Silver Jubilee military ball. Programs which will become available to ticket holders at the Iowa Supply company at eight o'clock this morning, carry out the Silver Jubilee idea with cover of silver metal and appropriate cords of silver and black.

To the customary red white and blue seen in decorations at former Military Balls a huge silver star in the center of the ceiling will form the center piece of the decorating scheme and further carry out the idea of the silver jubilee.

To those not understanding why this year's party is designated as the Silver Jubilee it may be said that this is the twenty fifth military ball. The first one was held February 26, 1895 in Smiths armory at 221 East College St., (now occupied by the Smith Motor Company) and eighty couples, considered at that time the largest number that had ever attended a university social function, were in attendance. Since that date twenty-four military formals have been held. The Military ball incidentally, is the oldest all-university formal.

Gabel's Orchestra Will Play
The orchestra will play under a canopy in the center of the floor and the silver star will be high in the ceiling in order that the canopy, while in harmony with the decorations will not interfere with the decorating scheme. Al Gabel's seven piece orchestra from La Crosse, Wis. has been engaged to furnish the music for the occasion and Mr. Gabel has promised the committee several new features for Friday night's party.

Patrons and patronesses who have been named are as follows: Pres. and Mrs. Walter A. Jessup; Col. and Mrs. Morton C. Mumma; Major and Mrs. Ray C. Hill; Major and Mrs. Elton L. Titus; Captain and Mrs. John N. Douglas; Capt. and Mrs. Michael O'Keefe; Capt. and Mrs. Martin Ackerson; Capt. and Mrs. Thomas E. Martin and Mrs. Charles S. Gilbert; Capt. and Mrs. Anthony P. Lagorio; and Lieut. and Mrs. Albert Riani.

Members of the committee in charge of the ball are Cadet Colonel George H. Seigle A4 of Muscatine, chairman, Cadet lieut. Colonel Raymond E. Hoynes L2 of Clarinda, Cadet Lieut. Col. Peter A. Stover S3 of Marengo, Cadet Maj. Walter J. Dehner Cm4 of Iowa City; Cadet Major William E. Carpenter L1 of Iowa City; Cadet Major Felix J. Vondracek A4 of Cedar Rapids; Cadet Major William D. DOCTORS DISCUSS WELFARE STATION

Baldwin and Stecher Describe Iowa Experiments On Young Children

The American Psychological association met in Boston recently and at that time an address was made by Drs. B. T. Baldwin and L. I. Stecher, both of the University of Iowa, describing the laboratory for psychological experiments with pre-school children, at the child welfare station here.

The station at the University of Iowa has for the past two years conducted such a laboratory and now has results on sixty children between the ages of two and five years. The children spend the morning in a specially constructed building with group rooms equipped for play and educational activities and with examining rooms for physical and psychological measurements.

The children are measured once a month in height, weight and eleven other physical traits, and take part in a series of psychological experiments designed to investigate such problems as the development of the sense of color, form, weight and number, the growth of motor control and poise, the promotion of proper habits and character traits and the acquisition of social virtues such as co-operation, group responsibility and leadership.

Dr. Baldwin and Dr. Stecher showed that young children from two to five years old furnish fertile and satisfactory subjects for psychological experimentation. The continuation of such experiments with these and even younger children, they predicted, will result in a body of information that will be invaluable for the subsequent training of the child entering school.

The laboratory will be able to receive a few more young children at the opening of the second semester. Application should be made in writing to the child welfare research station, if more desire to do it.

THE DAILY IOWAN PLATFORM FOR A GREATER UNIVERSITY OF IOWA

1. Curtailment by the social committee of all inactive organizations.
2. Maintenance of Iowa traditions and customs.
3. A strong student council.
4. Recognition of the cultural as well as practical background of education.
5. Broader democracy and greater unity of the student body.
6. The University of Iowa above all fraternities, sororities and other groups.
7. A change in student attitude which will make an honor system possible.
8. Every student and alumnus a member of the Memorial Union.

THE SIXTH DINNER

One of the greatest sources of strength of eastern colleges lies in the support, both spiritual and financial, given them by their alumni. Were it not for this support some of these colleges at least would have a hard time to exist and many of them would find it impossible to maintain their present scholastic standards.

Out in the West alumni soon forget the obligation they owe their alma mater. Especially is this true of state tax-supported institutions where the prevailing attitude is that the state owes each an education. A few, however, are discerning enough to see the influence which an education has had upon their lives and are willing to give back a part of that which was given to them.

Iowa has its few, foremost among whom are Carl F. Kuehne Law '82 of Denison, and William O. Finkbine Law '80 of Des Moines. Each year one of the many things of great material benefit which these alumni do for their University is to sponsor a dinner at which all the leaders of the University are present. It is the only occasion of the year when representatives of the faculty and student body meet on common ground to discuss the betterment of the University and of society.

Such a dinner is certain to create much enthusiasm, and although its effect may not be immediately apparent, it undoubtedly will bear fruit in later years. Tonight's dinner is the sixth given by Mr. Kuehne and Mr. Finkbine. During these six years the University has undergone a great change; alumni and students have come to realize the greatness of Iowa and the luke warm followers of former years have been supplanted by strong and active enthusiasts. Certainly some part of this transformation has been due to the annual Kuehne-Finkbine dinners.

HOLDING COURT WITH QUIPS

Recent criticism of American students for their lack of respect for those who have distinguished themselves in scholarship seems beside the point. Perhaps there is not the same reverence for scholastic achievement now as in years gone by, still, as a general rule, the student who has acquitted himself well is regarded highly by his fellow students.

Now and then a few quips may be leveled at the "high brows" but any one with the mental capacity necessary to qualify as the target of such remarks, must surely recognize them as such. It is only another way we humans have of showing our whole hearted respect for the real student. None of us will readily acknowledge that some other person is better than we are mentally although we may concede his superiority in a hundred other ways. This leads us to cast satiric references at the student who has demonstrated his mental superiority in the scholastic field.

Give the good student the same recognition which the football star receives, a few of our noted educators inpire. But the knowing scholar of today would not care to be held in the same light. A football hero is regarded in much the same light as a St. Bernard dog who has just made a perilous journey into a mountain pass to rescue a human life. We shower him with praise, herald his deeds to the world, and yet at the same time we do not recognize him as a superior being.

The whole question goes deeper than frivolous remarks. As long as human nature remains constant, it is extremely unlikely that we shall ever lose a bit of our honest respect for the man who has achieved success in any line whether it be as a scholar, an athlete, a statesman, merchant or what not.

CONTEMPORARY OPINION

(New York Tribune)

ABOLISHING THE ARCTIC

To a citizenry that shudders in the presence of a coal shortage Vilhjalmur Stefansson will experience some difficulty in "selling" the polar regions. However friendly the Arctic has been to him, however, much familiarity has bred in him and his fellow explorers a contempt for its terrors, the man who is wondering where his next ton of anthracite is coming from will not look favorably on a suggestion that he take the family to northern Greenland for the winter months.

To the average dweller in the temperate zone north is north and south is south, and never the twain shall meet. There was a lure in the very title of Mark Twain's book "Following the Equator" that no invitation to the Land of the Midnight Sun can equal.

It may be that the American race is becoming effeminate and ease-loving and that it would profit vastly by following the example which Mr. Stefansson's Viking blood enables him to set.

But until some means of collecting equatorial heat and piping it to the poles has been devised most people will consider Quebec as furthest north and think more wistfully in February of Palm Beach and Cuba than of Peary Land, the new islands that Mr. Stefansson has put on the map.

FLIPPANT PHILOSOPHY

Consider now the dinosaurs—
As big as all out-doors;
Some ambled on their hinder legs,
Some toddled on all fours.

Why did this beast become extinct,
Why leave his earthly home?
Because his carcass was too huge
For such a dinky dome.

Plan guaranteed to prevent being late to class (international copyright secured): If you see you're going to be late, omit that class and start with the next one.

CAMPUS SKETCHES—THE TEA SPANIEL

The tea spaniel (bimbo superfluos), sometimes called he-flapper, persists in small numbers at the University, although obviously not adapted to his environment. He is easily recognized by his trick haberdashery, and sometimes by his manner of speech. Naturalists interested in this species should not look for him in any intellectual gathering, but will obtain most satisfactory results by looking in on dances, parties, etc.

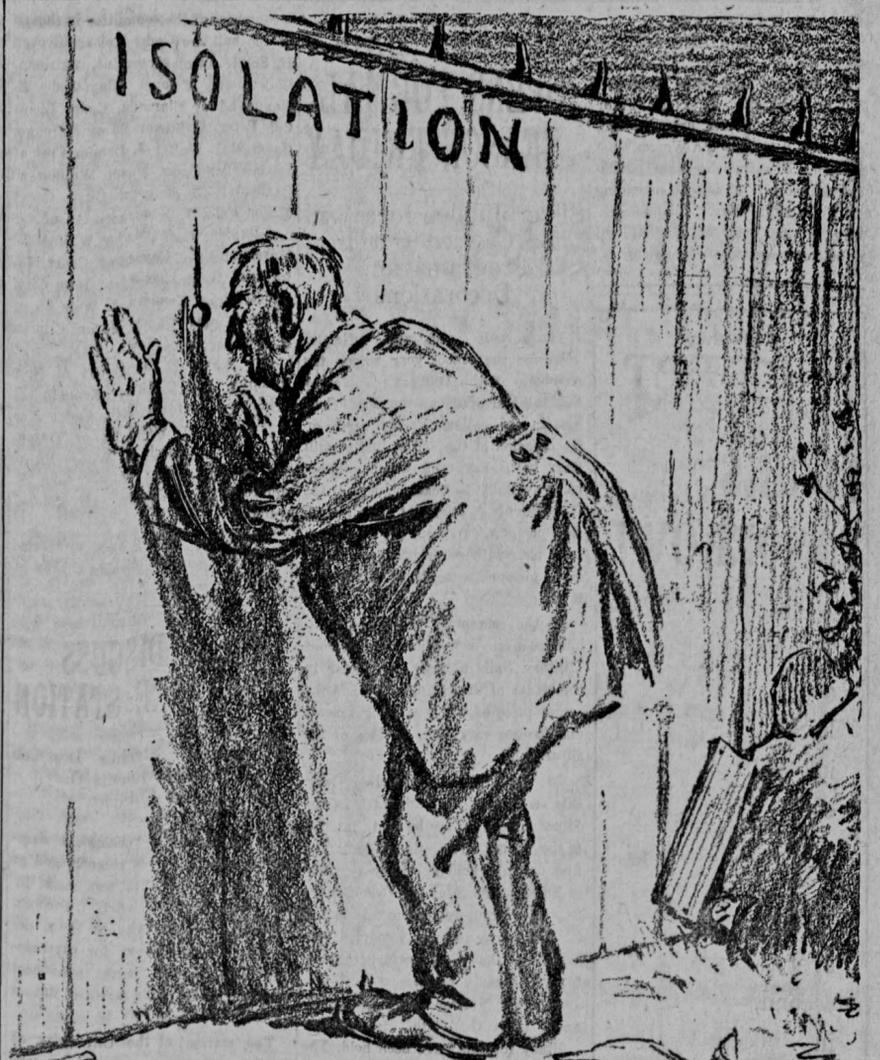

As is indicated by his name, this type is notoriously fond of tea, and will go to almost any length to get it. He has even been known to order tea for breakfast. He loves to sit on davenport, and many of the depressions in overstuffed sorority furniture were caused by the deprecations of his like. He has been known to frequent beauty parlors, and some authorities claim that he even has his hair marcelled. Needless to say, if this last allegation is true, under the Iowa game laws he automatically classifies as a species on which there is no closed season.

The range through which this variety roams is a matter for argument. Specimens are to be found in almost any section of the United States, and wherever found are as popular as small pox. Westerners are prone to believe they flourish in the effete East. Some naturalists of international reputation believe that in the struggle for existence, involving as it does advantageous variation and the survival of the fittest, the tea spaniel is doomed to extinction.

Here's hoping!

We received a letter yesterday that encouraged us immensely. A reader wrote in to say that he saw the point to one of our jests.

"The Judge"--By Rebecca West

Life's sordidness, as related by Mr. and Mrs. Haldeman-Julius in "Dust", the story of tragedy on a Kansas farm, was most depressing. It painted a picture of disillusionment far blacker than the night and cast its shadows over its very pages. "Dust" concerned a woman united in marriage by law but not by love. Hers was a pathetic life.

Rebecca West's "The Judge," published by George H. Doran company, is a story of love minus marriage. It, too, deals with life's sordidness but its pictures are not depressing. Love is its dominant theme. Richard's love for his mother; his mother's love for him; Ellen's love for Richard all tend to carry off the darker side. The author dwells on love and when it becomes necessary for murder or suicide she passes them off with a sentence or two.

With love, she deals strenuously. The conventions mean nothing to her. Marion Yaverland, waiting for her first baby, held her love for Harry even when the boys in the street stoned her and stared at her with their lustful eyes. She bore her scarlet letter with fortitude and then found life worth it when she nourished Richard, her illegitimate son, at her breast.

And that love forced her to try to be fair with Roger, her second son, legitimate through a marriage of convenience, even though she hated him from the first touch of his little hands. Perhaps, it was not love which she gave Roger but it was pity and that is akin to love.

Marion Yaverland was a great woman. She reminds one of Hester Prynne of Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter," especially when she is forced to undergo the torture of the curious crowd at Yaverland's End. "But when she had gone a few paces up the road someone shouted something at her, and there was a noise of laughter and then the shuffling of many feet behind her, and jeers and cat-calls and the beating of the tin can. . . . All the people were running out of the little houses on the right and throwing up the windows over the shuttered shops on the left, and all wore the flushed and amused masks that meant they were determined she should lose her child."

Marion's love for Richard, which she feeds him from the time she first knew of his coming, made him strong and great; Marion's refusal to share that love with Roger made him weak. Roger always knew that he did not get that love even though his love for Marion was strong. Richard, resembling his mother, was terrifying; Roger, resembling Peacey, his father, was insipid.

Roger, weak and cringing, was the more likeable of the two boys. His failures at least showed that he was human; when he "got Jesus" he became pathetic that is true, but he believed he had found someone who really loved him in the Hallelujah Army. His love for Poppy, the street woman, who "had got Jesus" before him showed the traits of Peacey, but withal is sincere.

Richard, the strong, virile son, was more or less an enigma. Morose most of the time, he seemed never to have a solid footing. His love for Ellen was always in a doubtful state as compared with that which he held for his mother.

Since "every mother is a judge who sentences the children for the sins of the father," Marion chose suicide for herself, but she failed to solve her problem, that of keeping Richard and Roger from quarreling. For Richard, the strong, kills Roger, the weak. That was her sentence, perhaps. She tried to hate Roger but she made a murderer out of her beloved offspring. Roger, to her, had been the scarlet letter.

Ellen Melville is a sweet girl. Her mother was a fine old lady, poor but fine, nevertheless. Ellen, unsophisticated, never imagined she would be "anything but the wee typist I am," until Richard Yaverland, with his magic of Spain, walked into the colorless office of Mr. Mactavish James, writer to the Signet. Ellen didn't care to know about life but she wanted love. Richard gave it to her and when he asked her to go away with him, as his mother had gone away with Harry, her love consents to his exorbitant demand.

Rebecca West is analytical and forceful. She goes deep into her subject, paints sincere pictures and spurns sentimentality. "The Judge" is a great book, this reviewer believes, because it deals with life shorn of its illusions. As the publisher says, "Life, at its beginning lovely as a corn of wheat, ground down to flour that must make bitter bread. . . ." is the orchestrated theme of this symphonic novel.

CONTRIBUTORS' COLUMN

Editors note—All communications addressed to the editor and not exceeding 200 words will be published in this column. Articles must be signed, not for publication necessarily, but as evidence of good faith.

To the Editor:

Last year several of the radical members of the student body insisted on wearing tuxedos to "formals." Iowa is the only university in the Big Ten in which the long established custom of requiring full dress has been violated as many times as was the case last season. Of course out here in the West one always finds several who want to deviate in order to be conspicuous. In the East this condition is not encountered because a college man will not entertain such an idea and furthermore no educated girl will disgrace herself by accompanying a man so attired when the occasion requires a full dress suit.

Possibly all the blame does not devolve upon the wearer of the tuxedo because in the case of the tickets for the coming military ball an insertion reads, "Dress suit or uniform." That may be interpreted as full dress, tuxedo, dinner jacket and "good gracious" what more. Surely those on the ticket committee know better but if they cannot express themselves otherwise, eventually our formals will be hard times parties.

To the Editor:

I wonder if the party committees of the coming formals can not distribute the tickets so that all students may have an equal chance to procure them?

The military ball, of course, is not a strictly University affair and therefore does not come under my criticism.

If all do not have a chance to buy them on equal terms, there is bound to arise a spirit which will not be conducive to the amicable relations of the University student body." S. T.

FIRST BOOK OF FORMER IOWAN WELL RECEIVED

John T. Frederick Is Highly Successful In First Novel of "Druida"

Advance copies of the first edition of "Druida," first novel of John Towner Frederick, graduate of this University and lecturer in the English department here last year, were received yesterday by friends of Mr. Frederick. The book is to be put on sale soon and is being published by Albert A. Knopf, New York city.

Mr. Frederick and his wife, who is also a graduate of the University, are at present connected with the faculty of the English department of the University of Pittsburgh. Mr.

Frederick was a lecturer in the English department here at various times during the past few years but severed his connections with the University last year.

In a rough shack on his farm near Glennie, Mich., Mr. Frederick did most of the writing of "Druida." This shack, which he calls his office, is situated near the farm house, on a hilltop, overlooking miles and miles of uninhabited country and numerous small lakes, being in the small lake region of Michigan. In these rustic surroundings, Mr. Frederick has written, what those who have read it, call a "great" story.

Scened in Minnesota Village

According to intimate friends here, the plot and scenes of the story are laid in the vicinity of Morehead, Minn. His characters are partly taken from real life, part of them are typical persons known to every community and a few are fictitious persons ably blended into a realistic story.

In issuing the book, Alfred A. Knopf, the publisher, states: "To those who have read it, 'Druida' courts and bears comparison with Miss Cather's 'My Antonia.' In any case, first novel that it is, it introduces a talent of which much is going to be heard."

The book is illustrated with wood cuts which were drawn by Wilfred Jones. According to friends here, the original plan to publish the book unillustrated was changed just a short time ago.

"Druida" represents a vast amount of work by the author. It required between three and four years to secure the material for and write the story. The manuscript was completed in the fall of 1921. It was sent to the publishers in November and accepted by the first publisher to whom it was sent. Mr. Frederick received a telegram on Christmas Day, 1921, stating that his book had been accepted. He has since then made several trips to New York in the interest of its publication.

Was Born in Iowa

Mr. Frederick is a true son of Iowa, both of the state and this University. He was born on a farm five miles from Corning, February 1, 1893. He attended school at Corning by riding five miles every day over a rough and lonely road. After completing his secondary education, he came to the University of Iowa and worked his way through school, including a two year interruption during which he was principal of a small town school.

In 1915 he founded the "Midland" a literary magazine of considerable note through the Middle West. In order to gain a knowledge of the technical side of printing and to be better able to conduct this magazine, he started working in a printing office, "sticking" type and washing forms.

Instructor at Iowa

Previous to this, he had engaged as an instructor in the English department of this University. He continued in the capacity of a lecturer in that department at different times until last year.

He has, also, at various times, with his father and wife, tilled the rough soil of his Michigan farm. For years he worked clearing a small tract in the wilderness to establish his "office," in which to write this novel and some notable short stories. Several of his short stories have been printed in "Smart Set" within the last few years.

Last summer, the page proofs of "Druida" were completed and were proof read by George L. Stout, instructor in graphic and plastic arts in this University. Mr. Stout was at the time camping on Mr. Frederick's picturesque Michigan farm. Mr. Stout is unqualifying in his endorsement of "Druida," as a great novel and one that will bring fame to its author. Frederick was rated as one of the five young writers who had made most progress in the last ten years by H. L. Mancken in the Literary Digest last July. His friends believe that the popularity which "Druida" will enjoy will be a full proof of Frederick's worthiness of his high rating.

PATRICK FLAYS BRYAN'S CHANGE

Says Orator Made Mistake In Shifting Energies To Fight On Evolution

Prof. George T. Patrick of the philosophy and psychology department declared yesterday that he considered it a great pity that William Jennings Bryan, several times candidate for the presidency of the United States, had given up his active fight against alcohol in order to take up the battle against evolution.

Professor Patrick made this statement when asked to comment on the orator's recent speech at Des Moines in which Bryan challenged any professor or scientist to debate him on the Bible basis of the theory of life. The lecture was attended by 8,000 people and was received with volleys of applause as the former politician attacked the theory of evolution as opposed to the Biblical story of the creation of life.

In speaking of Bryan's appearance in Des Moines Professor Patrick said:

"I heard Mr. Bryan deliver an eloquent address at the University Armory some years ago on the subject of temperance and the threatening ravages which alcohol is making upon the strength and manhood of our people. It seems to me a great pity that he could not continue to use his fine powers of persuasion in a great needed cause like this instead of wasting them in a hopeless battle against evolution.

"Many scientists today are discussing the merits of Darwinism but none I know of are questioning the fact of evolution. This has ceased to be a subject of controversy. Perhaps the applauding multitudes at Des Moines were cheering Mr. Bryan's courage and pertinacity, not his theory. Possibly they did not take him very seriously.

"I do not understand the ground of Mr. Bryan's grouch against evolution. I see no possible occasion for conflict between evolution and religion. It seems to me that the genetic or evolutionary conception of the world, which is simply the method of growth or gradual progressive change has greatly enriched every department of knowledge and strengthened immeasurably the religious attitude.

"The one thing he said that I cannot take exception to was 'You can't find anything in the world that doesn't rest on belief in God. Our sense of responsibility in everything comes from responsibility to God; you can't build morality except upon religion; and you can't build religion except on God. God is personal. He is everything and in everything and is in and a part of you.'"

TO HOLD FIRST NOVICE MEET FOR GYMNASTS

Schroeder Says Affair Is First of Its Kind To Be Put On In Big Ten

A novice gymnastic meet will be held on February 28 at the men's gymnasium.

"I know of no other Big Ten university which has held a meet of this kind," said Ernest G. Schroeder, director of physical education for men. This is the first meet of its kind at Iowa but it will be an annual affair. Its purpose is to get men interested in apparatus work and to furnish material for the freshman and varsity gymnastic teams.

Practice for this meet will continue from January 15 to February 27. Any man who takes physical training and who desires to take part in this meet will be transferred from his physical training class to Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday from four to six o'clock. He must report at least two days a week for an hour each time, but the more attendance he has the more points he will get. If a man can not come at these hours he will be permitted to practice at other times and given credit for attendance but will not be excused from regular class work.

One point will be allowed for each class attended, ten points for each exercise that is required and fifteen points for each optional exercise. These exercises will be on the horizon tal bar, side horse, flying rings, parallel bars, tumbling, and Indian clubs. The three men having the most points in each event will receive bronze medals, with the exception of the Indian clubs where only one medal is awarded. The three men having the highest number of total points in the meet will receive gold, silver and bronze medals for first, second and third places.

Each contestant may enter only three events and Indian club swingers must enter at least one more event than club swinging with a choice of two.

The awarding of points will be made on the basis of execution, difficulty and beauty of combination of the exercise.

Those wishing more information about the meet or who want the exercises demonstrated should go to Harold E. Briceland, physical training instructor. The exercises are so simple that any man in the university can go through them with a certain amount of practice. The whole program was outlined with the idea of getting men interested in the work who have never had any of it previously. It is another step in the direction of furnishing exercise and competition for men who are not on varsity teams. From present indications it is probable that a large number of men will enter.

Any undergraduate in good standing without previous gymnastic experience either here or at any Y. M. C. A., athlete association, or at any college or university, is eligible.

University Groups Present "Stabat Mater" At Easter

Work on the annual music presentation for the Easter vesper service will start this week, according to Professor Clapp. Rossini's "Stabat Mater" is to be presented by the university chorus and glee clubs, accompanied by the University orchestra on Palm Sunday.

"Stabat Mater" is a setting of a medieval poem, describing the anguish of the virgin Mary at the crucifixion. Its style is brilliant and dramatic, being a representation of the older Italian style at the height of its development.

NINE ORATORS TO SPEAK IN CONTEST

Winner of Final Contest To Represent Iowa
At N. O. L.

Nine orators entered the University oratorical contest by submitting the text of their orations to Prof. Glenn N. Merry, head of the department of speech, last Monday. Of these nine contestants two are women. Monday, January 8, was the deadline for entrance into the contest, which serves as a preliminary to the intercollegiate Northern Oratorical league contest.

The two women entering are Clara C. Levy A4 of Pueblo, Colo., writing on "The Americanization of America," and Marjorie E. Buhler A2 of Atlanta, Ga., whose subject is "National Education for the Negro."

The seven men competing, with the title of their oration, are: Mathew M. Stafford L1 of Dubuque, "Our Return to the Sea"; Carl W. Tucker S4 of Iowa City, "The National Heritage"; Robert E. Birchard A3 of Davenport, "Service—the Regulator of Class Hatred"; Edwin P. Schroeder L1 of Lost Nation, "A Plea for the American Soldier"; Oral S. Swift L1 of North English, "A Court for Industrial Disputes"; W. James Berry A2 of Washington, D. C., "Woodrow Wilson"; and Loren W. Van Dorn A2 of Seymour, "The New Idea."

Each oration is limited to 2,000 words of which not more than 100 can be quotation. Undergraduates in good standing in the university are eligible for the event. These nine contestants will be reduced to five or six by the preliminary try-out for the University oratorical contest on February 1. The text of the orations submitted will be judged on thought and composition by members of the English department. Then on February 1 each contestant will deliver seven or eight minutes from his oration before a board of judges selected from the department of speech. On the combined basis of thought and delivery, five or six orators will be named to enter the final University oratorical contest one week later on February 8.

The winner of the contest receives the Walter A. Jessup prize of $25. More than that, the winner will represent the University of Iowa in the Northern Oratorical league contest at Minneapolis on May 4 in competition with orators from the Universities of Minnesota, Illinois, Michigan, Northwestern and Wisconsin. No other intercollegiate oratorical event in the middle west compares with the N. O. L. contest. Vernon L. Sharpe L1 of Rolfe represented the University of Iowa last year.

The home folks enjoy reading university news, as well as world. Why not send the Iowan home?
