expressive radical views. Not infrequently college intellectuals and modernists on campus are not more drastically measures will be forthcoming. This is because universities have for centuries been the strong­house of all intellectual activity. The higher ed­ucation of humanity whose intellectual interests are demanding, and the students are forced to think about the things that interest them. The other day, in a newspaper article, we ran across a friend of ours whom we had not seen for the past two years. He had been a student at the university, and we had heard that he was doing well in his studies. We were glad to see him, and we asked him how he was doing. He said that he was doing well, but that he was finding it hard to concentrate on his studies because of the political climate on campus. The university administration had an opinion that the students were not being given an opportunity to express their views. The students were not happy with this, and they were protesting by means of sit-ins and marches. We felt that the university administration was not being fair to the students, and we supported their cause. We thought that the students were right, and we hoped that the university would change its ways. We ended the conversation by saying that we hoped that the future would bring better things for the students and for the society as a whole.
