Teaching Engineering—a Real Man’s Work

“Why are you satisfied to spend your days here when you might be doing bigger and more remunerative work with us?”

The speaker was the Vice President of a big corporation, and he was addressing a great chemist.

The man to whom he spoke looked from his study window out over a well-loved campus for several moments before he replied. Finally his answer came, “I guess it’s because I am more interested in helping to make men than I would be in just making things.”

This thing of building men is one of the most fascinating vocations known. The pleasure that grows out of watching men develop, out of seeing them make effective use of the fundamentals that have been so carefully given to them— it is doubtless if there can be any pleasure much deeper or more satisfying.

The teacher honors himself in the usefulness of his students. And the teacher of engineering, especially. His laboratory and his materials are in the minds of men. He shows them the right and constructive use of the senses and the means in re- storing and storing information. He trains the judgment and the will to analyze and to decide. Little by little he develops the will to do, the ability to turn decision into accomplishment, the quality that always marks the successful engineer, who is a man who gets things done.

Westinghouse, and every engineering business, must acknowledge a deep obligation to those teachers whose training and interest have been an inspiration and a sure foundation for the individual successes that are constantly being recorded. And nothing that men or events may do can deplete the teacher of his rightful share of such triumphs.

German People With United Front Against France Claims Miles

(From United News)

Washington, March 32—From collecting German reparations France has been unable to raise enough gold from the 80 bill of the occupation fees required by Article 215 of the Treaty of Versailles. This is the assertion of Paul Miles, administrative officer of the American section of the International Chamber of Commerce at Bremen, who has returned from a trip through the occupied territory and is in Berlin.

The passive resistance policy of the German government Miles found had "practically universal support" among the German people and indications of unrest in Germany of discontent over rising prices and enormous taxation, which were evident before the trip.

"Before the occupation," the report continued, "France was so strong nothing like $600,000,000 was so tactful a day from the French. It is questionable whether accumulated in two weeks, and then in the first five weeks manufac- thing the like that they previously got in a year."

"The occupation of the Ruhr has been something like buying a match, not tactful, not exactly disturbing."

In the face of "systematic resistance" Miles said the French military had acted "with moderation."
