Iowa Senate Passes Medical Appropriation Bill

ALL FRANCE PAYS HOMAGE TO BERNHARDT

Paris To Give Actress Public Funeral At Expense of City

By Hudson Rawley
(United News Staff Correspondent)
Paris, March 27—Persons and personages—from the little girl who placed a sou's worth of flowers on her doorstep and then frightened ran away, to the mightiest in literature drama and music—are paying homage to Sarah Bernhardt in death.

Tuesday perhaps brought a realization of those words she uttered hundreds of times in the death scene of Camille "Ah but I shall live after all."

The Paris municipal council voted that she shall have a public funeral at the city's expense. It is understood that the body will be placed in the casket Wednesday morning and that the funeral is to be held Thursday noon at the St. Francis de Sales church.

Shortly thereafter Bernhardt's remains will be conveyed to the tiny uninhabited island off the coast of Brittany as she had wished.

It seems impossible to grant one of the last requests of the famous actress—that her body be placed in the rosewood coffin she bought years ago and placed on the third floor of her home. The casket has deteriorated and it will be necessary to obtain another.

Only her intimates were allowed to pass out to the second floor of her home where Bernhardt, madonna like, reclined on a bed of lace, banked with white roses, lilies and lilacs. She was dressed in a white robe and her white hair was loosely hanging about her throat.

A crucifix surmounted the bed in the death chamber and the carmine cross of the Legion of Honor—France's tribute to the immortal—adorned her breast.

PROMINENT CHEMIST WILL LECTURE TONIGHT

The chemist in the Customs Service is the subject of the lecture to be given tonight at seven thirty o'clock by J. A. Hynes in room 110 of the chemistry building. The lecture is scheduled for a meeting of the Iowa Section of the American Chemical Society but anyone who is interested is invited to attend.

Mr. Hynes is chief chemist and drug examiner in the United States appraisers office in Chicago, which is one of the seven ports in the United States where all imports are examined in order that the duty to be fixed on various articles will neither be underrated or overrated. The lecture will emphasize the importance of the chemist in the customs service in determining taxes on imports on the basis of scientific judgment. Prof. Lemuel C. Raiford of the chemistry department was associated for a number of years with Mr. Hynes in Chicago and states that Mr. Hynes is an interesting speaker.

A dinner will be given at the Burkley Hotel at six-thirty o'clock tonight in honor of Mr. Hynes.

TURKS TO GET PEACE BY FORCE OF ARMS

(By United News)
Constantinople, March 27—The Turk is rattling the sabre again. Receipt of advices from London that the allies who have been conferring here, have rejected the Turkish counter proposal for Near Eastern peace, resulted in a meeting of the Turkish council of commissioners at Angora. Mustapha Kemal Pasha presided.

Wrestlers Split On Pfeffer and James In Vote For Captain

A hot race for the leadership of next year's Iowa wrestlers between James and Pfeffer has developed, an unofficial vote taken last night clearly shows. Two ballots were taken, and both ended with the same result, a tie.

The voting was done by the eight men who won wrestling letters during the past season. The official vote for the captaincy will probably be held during the week following vacation, after the athletic board has awarded letters to the men. It may have to be postponed, however, if Heldt, captain of this year's team has not returned from Ohio.

HARDING DEMANDS SUGAR PRICE PROBE

President Offers To Reduce Duty If Investigation Warrants

(By United News)

St. Augustine, Florida, March 27—President Harding Tuesday night ordered the permanent Tariff Commission to investigate the abnormal price of sugar. Deluged with democratic charges that the new republican tariff is responsible for prices, Harding offered to reduce the sugar duty if the probe warrants.

The president sent this telegram to Thomas O. Maryin, chairman of the tariff commission at Washington. "Have the tariff commission make an immediate inquiry into the relation of sugar tariff to the current prices on that commodity. It is difficult to believe that the duty on sugar can have any part in making the abnormal prices which prevail but if the commission finds there is any ground for believing the duty to be even partly responsible I shall be ready to proclaim a reduction in the duty as provided by the law."

Farm-Labor Party To Seek Coalition In July Convention

(By United News)

Chicago, Ill.—The national committee of the farmer labor party decided to call national convention here July 3rd which will attempt to organize a coalition of all labor farmer socialist, and other independent political groups.

The woman's party, the league of women voters, the nonpartisan league, the socialist party, the committee of 48, all state labor federations, international labor unions and hundreds of other organizations will be invited to send delegates with authority to merge votes for the political campaign of 1924.

Jay Brown, secretary of the farmer labor party points to the fact that nine gubernatorial candidates ran in the last Illinois election who were not on the republican or democratic tickets as an indication of the need for unity by the independent parties.

Brown says his party's aim is to secure united action behind single candidates in both national and state elections, but to allow each organization to continue complete freedom of action in its own special field.

BRYAN REVIEWS 1924 SITUATION FOR DEMOCRATS

Says Question Of Location and Prominence of Candidates Is Not Important

(By United News)

New York, March 27—Everything appears to be nicely cut and dried in so far as the renomination of President Harding for the republican standard bearer is concerned. Democratic leaders throughout the country are now giving serious consideration to their own destiny on and after convention day some fifteen months hence.

Seeking a starting point for the detailed discussion of the democratic situation what better place could be selected than Miami, Florida, where William Jennings Bryan, most consistent student of contemporary politics in the country holds forth in all the quiet retirement that the name of his home, "Villa Serena" implies. In response to a letter from the writer asking his judgment as to candidates and issues, the "commoner" sets the ground work for a study of the democratic situation as follows:

"There are certain general principles that should govern, no matter who may be a candidate. The first is that the question of location plays a less important part than in times past. It seems not to matter so much whether the candidate comes from the East, West, North, or South as it does that he shall stand for the things that the people want."

"Neither does it matter whether the candidate is prominent or not. There is nothing like a campaign to make a man known. An obscure man who will grow as the people become acquainted with him would be better than a prominent man whose popularity would decrease with investigation. The attitude of the candidate on the liquor issue is important. He must be dry and in favor of enforcement of the 18th Amendment and the laws passed for its enforcement. The democratic party cannot encourage lawlessness or enter into partnership with lawless elements of society. It would be fatal to do so if only men voted—it would be absurd to expect the women to vote for such a candidate. Our candidates must be with the people as against Wall Street.

"It is difficult at this time to estimate the relative importance of the international issue. The president has set out to secure cooperation with other nations in the promotion of peace. He is right, as far as he goes, and to the extent that he succeeds the importance of international questions will be lessened."

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE

There will be a lecture tonight on South America in the liberal arts auditorium at 7:30. The speaker will be Jose Hinojosa of Bolivia.

GOOD AND POOR BOXING MINGLE IN TOURNEY

Champion Dethroned, One Knockout, Are Features Of Contests

By J. STANLEY BRUNER

Clever boxing was interspersed with some exhibitions so replete with laughs that it made the annual University boxing tournament, held last evening at the men's gymnasium in connection with the staging of the freshmen wrestling tourney, the most successful in the history of the mitt game at Iowa.

When Jentoft, 135 pound champion, lost to Benatier in a bout that was filled with action from start to finish, it marked the passing of a champ who won his laurels in the tourney one year ago.

Kahler won over Killibrew in the 140-47 pound class by a technical knockout in the third round after he had battered the loser repeatedly during that session without a return.

Fred Colby ran into a vicious short arm jab in the initial settee of his bout in the 147-60 pound class from Corey, his opponent, and went to the canvass for a brief spell, only to come out and win by boxing carefully during the rest of the melee. It took one extra round to pick the winner, as points were very evenly distributed.

Paul Krasuski and John Tejedemann, heavyweights, poked each other for three lively stanzas with Krasuski using a left cross to bring him out on the winning end of the verdict. Krasuski staged another win a few minutes later in the wrestling tournament, when he beat Griffin by a decision, thus accomplishing a feat which has never been duplicated before in the history of the University; that of winning two titles in different sports in one evening.

Uyeno beat Widetsky in the 112-18 pound class. Uyeno won on clearly superior ring generalship, dodging, ducking and sidestepping the attack of Widetsky and sending counter attacks to his head and body that generally found their mark.

Wells won from Yepson in the 118-25 pound class by staging a comeback in the last two rounds. In the first he was unable to solve the southpaw style of Yepson. By forcing the fighting in the remaining two rounds he emerged a safe winner.

The rest of the bouts were without feature. Hauser beat Palmatier in the 135-40 pound class by virtue of a superior knowledge of hitting. Foley beat Westrope in the 160-75 pound division by aggressiveness.

Dr. Walter E. Fieseler, Coach Sam Berry, and Coach Dave Armbruster were the judges of the bouts. Dave Fidler, boxing instructor refereed the bouts.

The summary
112-18: Uyeno beat Widetsky by decision.
118-25: Wells beat Yepson by decision.
126-35: Benatier beat Jentoft by decision.
135-40: Hauser beat Palmatier by decision.
140-47: Kahler beat Killibrew, K. O. 3 rounds.
147-60: Colby beat Corey by decision.
160-75: Foley beat Westrope by decision.
Heavyweight: Krasuski beat Tiedemann by decision.

New City Council Meets For First Time On April 6

Two important matters are waiting for the new city council to settle when it holds its first meeting April 6. The refusal of the voters to grant the Iowa City Water Company a new franchise has raised a question that will have to be decided soon for as things now stand the council has no control whatever of the company's actions when the present franchise ends. The company however will continue to deal justly with the citizens according to Mr. Ball, general manager. A successor to D. T. Davis will have to be appointed by the council to take the position on the Park Board left vacant by his resignation last week. S. W. Mercer was elected to the park board Monday to succeed J. J. Englert. The city official chosen in the election will all take office April 1.

GRADUATE STUDENT DIES IN HOSPITAL

John H. Boatman of Barnes City Dead Following Operation

John H. Boatman G of Barnes City, who was operated on for appendicitis a week ago Sunday, died of complications yesterday at Mercy hospital.

Mr. Boatman was registered in the graduate college and was working on his master's thesis. He was to have received his M. A. degree in June. He was a graduate of State Teacher's college in the class of 1916. Previous to that time he had been superintendent of schools at Hudson for four years and held the same position at Aurelia for two years. He had also done some high school work at Barnes City, his home town. He registered at the University last semester and resided at 21 E. Bloomington Street with his brother, Laslye Boatman.

Mr. Boatman was a remarkable student and a member of Phi Delta Kappa, honorary educational fraternity. His fine personality made all who knew him his friends, who will feel keenly the loss that his death will mean.

McAdoo Crosses Father-In-Law In Picking Senator

Denver, Col., March 27—Guadalupe, Mexico, where William G. McAdoo is visiting at the present time may be out of touch with current events and that may be the reason that McAdoo appears on the face of things to have "crossed" his father-in-law Woodrow Wilson on the matter of a senatorial successor of the late Samuel G. Nicholson of Colorado.

However the mix up occurred, there is some light comment in state bonus circles here as the result of a telegram received by governor William E. Sweet Tuesday as follows:

"I earnestly hope that you will appoint Morrison Schafroth United States senator. He is worthy in every way and his appointment will be peculiarly appropriate. William G. McAdoo."

It was only Monday that Governor Sweet received a telegram from Woodrow Wilson urging the appointment of Houston Thompson to succeed Nicholson. It is believed here that McAdoo in his Mexican retreat probably did not know of his father-in-law's action. Schafroth is son of former U. S. Senator Schafroth.

STATE SOLONS VOTE $450,000 TO MATCH GIFT

Lower House Has Yet to Consider Measure; May Come to Vote Next Week

Des Moines, Iowa, Mar. 27—The Senate late today by a vote of 33 to 15 passed the appropriation bill for the University of Iowa's medical college. The bill calls for a yearly appropriation of $450,000 for the next five years to match a like sum of $2,250,000, the gift of the Rockefeller foundation and the General Education board. The vote came after a two hour's debate on the floor of the senate.

The bill has yet to pass the lower house of the state legislature. It is not likely that it will be brought to the floor for a vote this week. Friends of the bill believe that the vote taken last week when it was decided by a two to one majority to take the medical appropriation bill from the regular budget is indicative of the favor in which it is held by state representatives.

Providing the lower house passes favorably on the bill, the gift of the Rockefeller foundation of $1,125,000 becomes immediately available for building purposes.

WILL SING PARTS OF "FLORA DORA"

Women's Glee Club Concert April 4 Contains Old Favorites

The women's glee club will present a program that is certain to delight all who hear them in their annual home concert to be given Wednesday evening, April 4, in natural science auditorium. Variety has been obtained not only in the different groups sung by the whole chorus, but also in the features to be given, chief among which are the sextette from "Flora Dora" and the "Card Scene" from "Carmen".

"Flora Dora" was to the past generation with "Irene" has been to this. Anyone who hadn't seen "Flora Dora" really had not been around. When her best beau came a-courting, the maid of twenty years ago put the sextette on the piano rack and ogled at him while she sang the famous "For I must love someone really, And it might as well be you."

Passionate soap, five cent cigars, shoes, furniture polish, and baby girls,—all were named for "Flora Dora". The famous actresses who have claimed to be "one of the original sextette" make up an army, and the "stage door johnnie" with a Flora Dora girl had reached the surpeme ultimate.

This tuneful classic will be given by six girls of the glee club in the spirit of the old comic opera, the "gentlemen" dressed in swallow-tails, wearing high silk hats, and the ladies attired in evening gowns. A dainty dance accompanies the song, and the whole makes a charming picture as well as a musical gem. Those who will give the number are Gladys Obrecht A2 of Havelock, Helen Hammarström A1 of Clinton, Alma Buuck A2 of Britt, Ardeth Lawhorn A1 of Garner, Lydia Walker A2 of Des Moines and Anna Doornink A2 of Sioux Center.

The "Card Scene" from "Carmen" is a classic in the best sense of the word. It, also, will be enacted in costume, as Bizet's famous opera. The scene is laid in a gypsy camp, where Carmen lies on the ground apart from Mercedes and Frasqueta, watching her two gypsy friends telling each other's fortunes. The two are happy and carefree, and the cards fall as they wish, foretelling happiness for them, as they tell us in a spirited duet. Carmen then takes out her own cards and lays them before her. Spades turn up, an omen of death. She is sullen and bitter. In her solo she repeats morosely that shuffle the cards as she may they always foretell misfortune.

She is hardened, and knows that death will come as a result of her free flirtations and escapades. Of these things she sings. How true is the fortune the cards hold out, is disclosed in the tragic end of the opera, when she is driven to suicide. The "Card Scene" is vivid and its music the best of the opera. It will be sung by a trio composed of Beatrice Gates A4 of Pierre, S. Dak., as "Carmen", Jeanne Wolfe A3 of Clear Lake as "Frasqueta", and Florence Kings A3 of Sanborn as "Mercedes".

IOWA CO-EDS MAY RUN IN TRACK MEET

Invitation To Compete In National Telegraphic Meet For Women

An invitation to participate in a telegraphic track and field meet in which the co-eds of various schools will conduct a meet on their own fields on May 19 and will telegraph results to Modesto Junior college, Modesto, Cal., has been received by Mrs. Marion Lyon Schwob, of the gymnasium department. It is expected that this university will accept the invitation although no definite steps have been taken to do so. The meet will be under the direction of the national women's collegiate and scholastic track athletic association.

In case weather prevents holding the meet on that date, the meet may be held on any day of the following week. Tabulation of the telegraphic reports will be mailed and the results scored as in a regular track meet. The standing will be wired to each contestant in each event.

Contestants will be placed in the scoring according to the record made. The team winning will be awarded a suitable trophy. A recheck will be made from the letters, as there is a possibility of mistakes in telegram reports, possibly making some change in the final standings.

All colleges west of the Mississippi river will be included in the western section under the supervision of District Governor Howard G. Cleaveland, of the Modesto Junior college, at Modesto, Cal., and will be extended invitations.

The events to be competed in follow: 50-yard dash, 100-yard dash, 60-yard hurdles, 100-yard hurdles, 220-yard relay, 440-yard relay, 500-yard relay, running high jump, running broad jump, running hop, step and jump, 8-pound shot put, youth's discus throw, javelin throw, basketball throw, baseball throw.

The rules governing the meet follow in part:

No individual shall be permitted to compete in more than three events divided—two track and one field or two field and one track.

A. A. U. track and field rules shall govern all events covered by them.

Each contestant must be a bona fide student in the college for which she competes.

The letter which extended the invitation praised the last year's meet warmly, saying, "The first year of the telegraphic competition proved such a success that the association has decided to make it an annual event."

Senior Dents Will Don Gray Vests After Vacation

The gray vests which will serve as a mark of distinction for the senior dental students, have not been forgotten according to Howard A. Denbo D3 of Iowa City, president of the Associated Dental Students. Because of the present rush of work in the clinic the members of the class have postponed making further arrangements concerning the new acquisition in the way of dress of the seniors.

The vests will be made probably of silk brocade in a slate gray color trimmed in a lighter color of gray. They are being secured through Bremer's Golden Eagle store but are made by a special company. As no vest which is made now was desirable for the purpose the company has made them to order for the dents.

It is planned to begin wearing the vests as soon after vacation as possible and to continue wearing them until the close of the school year. The selection of this particular mark of distinction was made from a number of suggestions handed in by various members of the senior class in a recent contest. The presenter of the best idea was awarded ten dollars for the suggestion.

Professor Randall has been in the law college faculty for the past six years, and formerly taught in the Iowa City high school. FROSH WRESTLERS SHOW REAL STUFF

Lots of Promising Youngsters Perform in Successful Tournament

The finals of the third annual freshman wrestling tournament took place at the men's gym last night before a fair sized crowd. This tourney decided the freshman wrestling champions in the seven weights. The bouts were all high class. The combatants displayed good form for so little experience and training.

In order to maintain order and peace among the spectators the Athletic board engaged the "Big George", at all other times employed by the University as ground keeper of the campus. He was equipped with a brand new tailor made, blue serge uniform, a cap, and a bright and shining star pinned on his coat. The crowd was kept under control.

The middleweight bout between Gratten and Lassen was the best bout of the evening. Gratten won with a body scissor in 08. Although before the match Gratten was considered a heavy favorite, Lassen proved a dark horse throughout the tournament and gave him a hard mix to win. However Gratten displayed a superior knowledge of the game and was at an advantage most of the time. He looks like a comer for next year's varsity squad. Lassen's gameness and agility kept him from being thrown earlier in the match since Gratten continually had him in difficult positions but he always managed to wiggle free. Gratten won the middleweight championship of the freshman class and a wrestling numeral.

The heavyweight bout brought together two powerful giants and prospects for next year's football team—Krasuski and Griffin. Krasuski won with a time advantage of 01:12. There was little to choose between the two until the last 2 minutes when giant Krasuski took the husky Griffin off his feet and gained a decision being unable to secure a fall. Both men are gifted with a surplus of strength and with a little more training under Coach Mike Howard should develop into wrestlers of the first magnitude. Krasuski won the heavyweight boxing championship of the University about an hour before he went on the mat to compete for the wrestling title.

The welterweight title is still unsettled since both Martindale and Ries were under the weather and the match was postponed until a later date.

The lightweight bout between Landis and Lamb was a good go with lots of pepper and mixing. Landis won by a fall with a body-lock in 9:40.

Ringland early disposed of Schroeder in the lightweight class when he clamped a body scissor and armlock after two minutes of struggling. Morvic won from Strubbe in an overtime period with an advantage of 40 seconds. Neither of these men displayed any noticeable grappling ability or gameness. Gilje did away with Baldwin in the bantamweight division in the short time of 1:30 with a three-quarters nelson.

The summary:

115 pound class: Gilje wins over Baldwin, fall, with three-quarter nelson. Time 01:30

125 pounds: Morvic wins over Strubbe, decision in overtime period, with 40 seconds advantage

175 pounds: Landis wins over Lamb, fall, with body-lock. Time 09:40.

145 pounds: Martindals vs. Ries Bout postponed.

158 pounds: Gratten wins over Lassen, fall, with body scissors. Time 08:00

175 pounds: Ringland wins from Schroeder, fall with body scissors and armlock Time 2:00.

Heavyweight: Krasuski wins over Griffin. decision, with time advantage of 01:12

BASEBALL MEN IN INITIAL WORKOUT

Fifty Aspirants For Positions Take Hard Workout On First Night

Nearly fifty candidates reported in uniform yesterday afternoon at the new armory in answer to Coach Sam Barry's call for varsity baseball material. Due to the fact that the workout was the first of the season for most of the men, and that the accommodations afforded by the new armory are very limited no strenuous practice was held, and after a short period spent in warming up their throwing arms and a short talk by Coach Barry the players were sent to the showers.

It is needless to say that with but a little over two weeks before the first conference game, Coach Barry is faced with quite a task to pick a team of nine men from the large turnout of players that greeted his call yesterday. The outdoor playing field is yet far from being in playing condition, but it is hoped that it will be dry enough to allow the squad to get outdoors by the week end.

"It is impossible to accomplish very much in our present crowded quarters" Coach Barry told his men yesterday, "but when we do get outside we will have to make up in hustle what we lack in time for getting into shape for the hard season ahead." He also gave the players a few pointers on early season training.

It is impossible as yet to predict just how this year's nine will stack up in the Big Ten games, but more can be told after the men have been out-of-doors. Coach Barry has an option on a game with the Cedar Rapids team of the Mississippi Valley league for April 4, but the contest will not be scheduled until it is seen how well the men found into shape. Two or three other practice games will probably be booked before the beginning of the regular season on April 13.

Among the men who reported for the first workout yesterday were Captain Barrett, catcher; Becker, Volmer, and Fabricius, pitchers; Hicks, third base; and Poepsel outfield. All of these men were members of last year's nine. Gordon Locke, varsity first baseman last year, and Hurlbut, shortstop, are expected to report soon. It will be somewhat of a problem to find the best man for second base this year, as this seems to be the popular position among the candidates who are out. The graduation of Michaelson and Draper leaves two holes in the outfield that will also have to be filled. None of the positions on the team are cinched, however, and there will no doubt be some keen rivalry for the regular jobs.

In case the field is in shape for outdoor practice the entire squad will be held over during the spring vacation.

INVITATION WILL BE EXTENDED TO PREPS

Letters will be sent out to the high schools throughout the state during the present week inviting them to Iowa's fifteenth annual interscholastic track and field meet, to be held on May 5. This is the same day as the Northwestern-Iowa dual track meet.

WILL GIVE TALKS ON SEDIMENTATION

U. S. Geological Survey Expert To Address Staff And Students Of Geology

T. Wayland Vaughan, who is in charge of sedimentation in the United States Geological Survey and who is chairman of the committee on sedimentation of the National Research Council, will speak in the Department of Geology under the auspices of the graduate college on April 3, 4, 5, and 6.

Mr. Vaughan will arrive Monday, April 2, and will speak daily on the following Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday at 4 o'clock in room 108, old science hall. On Tuesday he will speak on the two following topics: "The Ecology of Corals with Particular Reference to Geological Interpretation", and "The Formation of Coral Reefs". The zoology seminar is invited to this first lecture because it will be of particular interest to them.

"Purpose and Methods of the Study of Sediments" and "The Origin of Limestones" are his two subjects for Wednesday afternoon. On Thursday Dr. Vaughan will speak on "The Tectonic Features of the Caribbean Region of America". Friday afternoon he will discuss "Comparison of the Salient Features of the Atlantic and Pacific Basins," and "The Problem of the Correlation of the Later Geologic Formations of the Atlantic and Pacific Regions".

Although these talks are intended primarily for the staff and the advanced students of the department of geology, they will be open to all those interested.

Mr. Vaughan is probably the only man in America qualified to give this set of talks, according to those who are familiar with his work. He will go to the University of Wisconsin from here, where he will repeat the lectures.

Women Enter Sports Hitherto Reserved For Male Athletes

Michigan Daily, Ann Arbor, Mich.—At last the women students of the American colleges and universities have begun to take part in intercollegiate athletic activities that heretofore have been reserved only for the men, or if the women indulged in a particular sport, the teams never being mixed.

Albion college has broken the ice and elected a woman to captain the tennis team. Miss Kate Wonsley, of St. Clair, is the recipient of the honor of being the first woman ever elected to the captaincy of, or playing on a college team with her team mates being men. The Albion tennis schedule calls for five matches this season and it is likely that Captain Wonsley will play in all of them.

Several times in the past ten years there have been controversies in regard to the status of the woman athlete. In the Big Ten the most recent instance has been at Northwestern university. Miss Sybil Bauer, holder of the world swimming record for women in the 150 yard back stroke is a student at that university. Miss Bauer's time for her event is between 1:55 and 1:56. Even racing at the latter time she would be able to beat any of the male backstroke swimmers in the Conference at present with the exception of Hubbard, of Michigan, who holds the Big Ten record with a time of 1:51. Hubbard's nearest competitor in his event at Dickey, of Northwestern, who formerly did 1:54 but this season has been unable to do better than 1:57. Miss Bauer, then ranks easily as the best 150 yard back stroke swimmer in the Conference today but because of public opinion she is kept off of Northwestern's team of natators.

Women playing in their basketball teams during the season just past have caused many of the critics to sit up and look wise. Some of these sages believe that if women played basketball under the same rules as do men in time they would rank equally with the latter. The matter of endurance proves the greatest drawback but with constant practice and indulgence it is possible to acquire endurance other things being equal.

A CRITERION OF GREAT MEN

Without indulging in platitudes it does seem pertinent now and then to inquire into the relative degree of improvement one can make in his own personality by the application of so-called principles of self-mastery, will power, executive ability and other traits peculiar to successful men. Some protection should be given those gullible persons who are led astray by loud-sounding advertisements of correspondence schools and publishing companies and by the recommendations of certain "great" men who purport to have reached the top of the ladder through specialized courses in self-improvement.

Needless to say it is almost as hard to change one's characteristics as it is to change the color of one's skin. This assertion should not be taken to include the stock of knowledge which the individual possesses for obviously this may be increased at will. But the slight development in important mental traits which it is possible to make by intensive drilling is more than offset by the loss of naturalness. Polishing and bolstering of certain weaknesses in one's character often only serve to make these failings more conspicuous.

Take the man with an inferiority complex. Nature is the teacher in his case and attempts to counteract the evil by continually reminding the particular person of his better points. To some this individual may even appear an egotist whereas he is the direct opposite. But whether Nature does the prompting or whether the man takes this task upon himself, the result is equally unsatisfactory and illusionary.

Recently a group of students were passing judgment on the merits of various members of the faculty. In the course of the discussion the name of one prominent professor was brought up. Without a single exception the students agreed that he is far superior to other members of the faculty in his college. There seemed no doubt as to his capabilities for as one student put it, "He makes no attempt to hide his shortcomings." From the discussion it was shown that the professor in question has enough confidence in his own ability that he can act a natural role—he can let his students and associates see his less meritorious side and still in his own mind continue to tower above others on the faculty.

This same fearlessness is to be found in most of the world's renowned men. Many have led despicable private lives. They have not been afraid to admit it. The confessions of Rousseau, Goethe and others bear witness to this fact. It is a safe rule to follow in picking the great men of tomorrow.

SARAH BERNHARDT

Sarah Bernhardt has interpreted many tragedies for many masters of literature but none was more powerful than that of her own life. Even in the contemplation of death she retained her artistic tendency, for years ago she chose her burial place—a jagged, lonely isle in the Atlantic. As in life she stood high and alone among artists, so in death will she remain in solitude.

Bernhardt's great force came from her varied experiences. She ran the gamut of human emotions—poverty, motherhood, despair and success. Her great mind read into these experiences and her knowledge of human nature was vitalized into the characters which she played. Her life illustrates vividly that the greatest artist must always be a profound student of human nature. Sarah Bernhardt has now experienced the final adventure—death. If she could live again and interpret its sensations to the world, she would achieve a greater triumph than any she has ever known in life, and reach a goal which poets, artists, and even scientists have been seeking to portray during many centuries.

CONTEMPORARY OPINION (New York Tribune)

FRENCH LYRICS vs. GERMAN HISTORY

Chancellor Cuno's insistence on the withdrawal of the French troops from the Ruhr as a first move in any settlement has that quality of naive simplicity so dear to the German mind. Injured innocence could not play a part better. It is therefore an impertinence to ask the good Chancellor for what purpose he thinks the French went into the Ruhr. Evidently he has in mind the nursery rhyme about the King of France, who with his 40,000 men marched up the hill and marched right down again. In the version which the Chancellor sings the word "Ruhr" has doubtless been substituted for "hill."

If the Chancellor, however, would drop lyrics for history and would turn to the correspondence of Bismarck in the early '70s, and to the story of the relations of Germany and France during those years, he would learn that German evacuation of French territory was always conditional upon a payment of a given portion of the indemnity. He would also learn that the German statesmen, diplomats, generals and business men demanded that French territory be held as a method of insuring payment by France and that the right of reoccupying certain of the departments as they were evacuated following the deposit of the required sums in Berlin, was especially insisted upon in order that the Germans might retain the upper hand over the French until the last centime had been paid.

England is worrying and wondering what has made her poet laureate's music mute. The question "is beginning seriously to agitate the steady-going British mind as one national event succeeds another and Robert Bridges fails to reveal himself to the world in odes or sonnets."

Hist! Britons, we have a tip for you. Shhhh! There are two good reasons: 1. The poetic muse generally refuses to be inspired at the right time (Tennyson's "Recessional" being a noteworthy exception); and 2. In order for a person to write poetry he must first be a poet.

We thank you. No charge for this lucid explanation.

TELEGRAPHIC COMMUNIQUE

(Special to the Sounding Board)

City Hall, Mar. 27.—All's quiet along the Iowa today after the terrific (political) battle which raged furiously yesterday and far into the night. Many dead soldiers scattered in grotesque poses along the city's highways and byways, bear mute testimony to the violence of the encounter. From the moment the first gun was fired when the polls opened, the fracas gained in intensity until Major Harvat led her Battalion of Death over the top and utterly put to rout the cohorts of the enemy. This proved to be the turning point in the fray, and the outcome was never afterwards in doubt.

Today the picturesque mid-Western peasantry are again busily engaged in their rusty pursuits, seemingly oblivious of the awful argument which tore the ozone to shreds only a paltry twenty-four hours before.

Rumor has just reached our ears that a member of a popular sorority has been suspended for failing to whistle when approaching the darkened porch.

FAINT PERFUME

Reviewed By
BEATRICE MCGARVEY

Zona Gale's new book "Faint Perfume" perhaps represents the author's best work. It reminds one of several works of the writers belonging to the so-called Wells group. In structure it is similar to A. S. M. Hutchinson's "If Winter Comes"—the whole book being divided into three sections, each one bearing the name of the proponent character in that division. While the sections are clear-cut and complete in themselves at the same time they dovetail so nicely that one is not at all conscious of any break.

The style of the novel reminds one of Dorothy Richardson's impressionistic manner—clauses and phrases doing the work of the whole sentences. Sometimes an entire paragraph is nothing but a group of short, definite clauses or words with perhaps one sentence holding all together, such as "Tweet wanted a child to have curls. To adopt, she said, 'a little girl.' Tweet, her face like a Madonna. Conscious. Unconscious too." Or again the very first paragraph of the book shows this fleeting touch, "A wet autumn night. A low lighted house. Wheels on the soaked gravel. The open door, and Led Perrin in her father's arms."

"Faint Perfume" as the title suggests is a symbolic novel, somewhat like Joseph Hergesheimer's "Bright Shawl". The theme of this story is a struggle between desire and circumstances in the life of a young woman, Leda Perrin, and a man Barnaby Powers. Leda on account of neuritis is forced to give up her work as an author for a year and take a complete rest. About the same time her father dies and leaves her penniless and dependent on her cousins, the Crumbs. Richmiel Crumb, a beautiful, but brainless and selfish woman was married to Barnaby, but they are now divorced. Apparently, there would be no obstacle in the way of Leda's and Barnaby's happiness, but it so happens that the selfish Richmiel has been given the custody of her child, Oliver, a boy of six. Oliver is very sensitive, passionate child devoted to his father, and becomes ill when separated from him. Richmiel on discovering Barnaby's love for Leda refuses to allow the child to live with its father although she considers Oliver a rather troublesome burden to herself. Herein is the crux of the whole novel. Shall a child's life be sacrificed to the selfish love of a man? Or, shall two lives be ruined because of a father's duty? The resolution of this situation forms the sketchy plot of the novel.

All the time the author never loses sight of "Faint Perfume" and her skill reaches a high intellectual point in Barnaby's declaration of his love for Leda. The inner essence of Leda, the delicate strength of her character; "fine flowing peace; the slow-breathing inner Her, the hidden one peering out; faint perfume; the Self of love; frail, evasive, she touched it with her thought and it was gone;" and the quiet understanding of the man are both carefully and delicately composed.

The characters of "Faint Perfume" reveal themselves in their colloquial speech, as is usual in Miss Gale's novels. Each one is clearly drawn, and the Crumb family is a beautiful picture of Philistinism. Orrin Crumb, the Gideonite, Mama Crumb, Tweet, and Pearl, all show the author's delicate irony and satirical attitude toward the pseudo-aristocratic.

"Faint Perfume" is an artistic work permeated with bits of humor and shows a great step forward from "Miss Lulu Bett." Perhaps the reason the book is good is because it is so human; it makes an appeal, and the characters are not mere puppets—they act and feel and suffer—they are fraught with human qualities.

GAY RUSSIAN GLOOM

We have been waiting in vain for some expert of the theatre to comment upon the gayety of Russian gloom. The comparison that occurs is between that dank, sodden mournfulness which dripped from "Miss Lulu Bett" and the merry bitterness and chuckling tragedy of "The Lower Depths" as the latest version of Gorky's "Night Lodging" is presented by the Moscow players.

There were no physical reasons for the awfulness of Miss Lulu's lot. Miss Zona Gale gave her a bathtub and a bright, sunny kitchen and flowers in the window box and plenty of food—all the household luxuries of the small American town, which is to say more than anybody else in the world, not excepting Louis XIV, ever boasted. The gloom which enveloped her was almost wholly spiritual. She had to work hard, to be sure; but many drudges are happy. The real tragedy was the oppression that held her down and the horrible dullness, the hopeless lovelessness of her oppressors. Miss Gale made one feel that a life of ease in the best spare room of Dwight Deacon's home, with never a vacuum cleaner to touch, would have been insupportable.

In the Gorky piece there is all the machinery of sordid, hopeless gloom. The characters are the lowest dregs of city life, criminals packed in a dingy cellar, diseased and dying or hanging themselves of despair. Their morals are inverted or non-existent. No ray of light or hope enters their lives. Yet it is no exaggeration to say that their doings sparkle with fun. The most depressing events stir tart old Bubnoff and the satiric Satine to grimly humorous philosophy. Even their rags are gay with color. At the final curtain, when the actor has just hanged himself and most of the other principal characters are dead or in jail, the survivors are singing so lustily and tunefully that one sympathizes deeply with Satine's last line, spoken of the dead actor: "Damned fool—he ruined the song!"

Just what the moral is we cannot pretend to decide. Roughly, it might be that pious Puritan gloom is as midnight to the sunlight of Slavic tragedy. As a pragmatic matter we know that we should prefer to live in the Night Lodging than in Dwight Deacon's house and lot; or, at any rate, that for a cheerful evening's entertainment give us the most down-trodden Russian realism ahead of any American realism every time.—New York Tribune.

Little Vacation For Nurses And Women Debaters

When Friday morning dawns and the greater number of University students have made their exodus, or are waiting at the station to do so, there will be at least two groups of students who will never get beyond the city limits during the four-day vacation.

The first group is the women who compose the intercollegiate debate teams which will clash with Washington University, St. Louis, on April 5. These women will be puzzling over whether or not France was justified in entering the Ruhr, while their companions who are less capable on the debating platform are going home—down Main street. The coach of the teams, Mildred Freburg G, instructor in the department of speech, will also remain in Iowa City.

The other group who will not see the home town depot are the student nurses. Nurses get no vacation during the year except three weeks in summer, and they are therefore able to complete their course in three years instead of four.

MAKE SUCCESSFUL SHAKESPEARE TOUR

Present "The Merchant Of Venice" at Fort Dodge and Cedar Falls

The most successful tour in the history of the University Theatre was made last week when "The Merchant of Venice" played to packed houses in Fort Dodge and Cedar Falls. Twenty-five people, including the entire cast and the executive staff made the trip to Fort Dodge Friday where they gave a performance there that night and another in Cedar Falls Saturday, returning to Iowa City Sunday afternoon. Full equipment for the production was taken in a special baggage car.

The performance in Fort Dodge was given under the auspices of the North Central Teacher's association where they played to 900 teachers from all over that part of the state. The Auditorium of the new High school in which the play was given seats 1250 and in the afternoon they began selling standing room. One of the features of the entire trip was the unusual efficiency of the stage crew under the direction of Gregory A. Foley A4 of Rock Rapids, stage manager.

The Cedar Falls performance was given in the Iowa State Teacher's College, auditorium and the company played again to a packed and enthusiastic house. The trip interested many instructors from all over the state in the work of the University Theatre and Prof. E. C. Mabie received a number of requests for future bookings. As a consequence he has decided to use "The Merchant of Venice" permanently in the University Theatre repertoire.

SEALS EMBLEMS GIVEN OUT TODAY

All Candidates Who Meet Success In Tests To Be Rewarded

Seals club emblems will be awarded at the banquet tonight at the gymnasium to those probationers who have completed their requirements by that time. In order to gain the Seal emblem, the club's tests and the Red Cross life saving tests must be passed satisfactorily and the probationer must show that she is ready to fill all requisites of the club.

The following co-eds are probationers of the club: Eleanor Chase

A1 of Clinton, Sara Cox A2 of Iowa City, Doris Greene A2 of Des Moines, Marjory Kay A1 of Iowa City, Katherine Rickett A1 of Davenport, Gladys Brooker A1 of Omaha, Neb., and Evelyn Byrne A2 of Des Moines. Most of them have passed their requirements.

"It will be considered a lack of interest if these women fail to pass their requirements by spring vacation, and unless further action is taken by the club they will be dropped. All Seals who do not pass the American Red Cross life saving test before this date will lose the privilege of wearing the Seal in the pool until they pass the requirement," said Margarita McGovney A2 of Iowa City, president of the Seals club, when interviewed concerning the situation.

IOWA RIFLE TEAM FINISHED SECOND

Official Report of National Rifle Tourney Score Corrects Error

The official report of the scores in the National Rifle Association tournament from the war department at Washington D. C. gives the Iowa first team second place instead of third place as was formerly announced. The final score shows that Iowa nosed out George Washington University of Washington D. C. by six points.

Iowa's winning by a six point margin in a match where the possible score was 4000 shows that the entire tournament was a closely contested affair. Georgetown University won the tournament which was completed some weeks ago. The Iowa team will not fire with them in any dual matches.

This record is the best showing made by an Iowa team since 1915 when the Hawkeye marksmen won the tournament.

LECTURES AT IOWA COLLEGES

Prof. Berthold L. Ullman, head of the department of Latin and Greek, will lecture today at Iowa Wesleyan college, Mt. Pleasant, and from there will go to Fairfield to lecture at Parsons college. Last Thursday Professor Ullman gave a graduate lecture at Simpson college, Indianola, and attended the State Teachers' association meeting, where he gave an address at the foreign language round table.

CAMP FOSTER BOYS TO GIVE BANQUET

50 To Attend Affair At Pagoda Tonight; Goodell To Preside

The first banquet for students who have attended Camp Foster, state Y. M. C. A camp for boys on Lake Okoboji, will be held tonight at 6 o'clock at the Pagoda tea shop. Over fifty students will attend. Plans for this banquet were started by William Goodell who has had charge of Hi-Y or among the high schools of the state and is at present at the university in charge of the university Y. M. C. A. while Secy. Robert H. Fitzgerald take charge of the memorial union drive among the students. The interest shown by the former camp men on the campus has lead those in charge to plan the formation of a Camp Foster club on the campus.

Following the banquet a toast program and music will be given. The old camp songs will be sung. The menus will be in the form of camp views with the menu and the names of the speakers. Harry Goodrich who has been state secre for several years and is well known to all the camp-goers is unable to be present on account of a conflict in his schedule. Robert Chaffee A1 of Iowa City will be Toastmaster. The program will be as follows: Funny Bone Ticklers by Oral Cunningham M3 of Washington, Times I will Never forget by David Armbruster, varsity swimming coach, What Camp Meant to Me, by C. C. Ball. Mr. Ball is a former secretary of boys' work in the High school and is at present time a student in the graduate college. The last toast will be "Carrying On" by R. H. Fitzgerald of the University Y. M. C. A.

A quartet consisting of Oral Cunningham M3 of Washington, Carl J. Lohman M2 of Burlington, Carl Seashore S1 of Iowa City and William Goodell will furnish the music and lead in the singing of the old camp songs.

Elect Delegates to State Convention of Disabled Veterans

Delegates will be elected for the Second Annual State Convention of the Disabled American Veterans at a meeting of the local chapter tonight. The state convention, for which three delegates and three alternates will be elected will be held at Davenport, April 19, 20, and 21.

William W. Phelps L1 of Central City, state commander of the Disabled American Veterans, said yesterday that the new officers for the coming year will be elected at the convention. In addition to the business meeting there will be several speakers. Major C. E. Robbins state commander of the American Legion and Senator Smith Brookhart have signified their intention of speaking at the convention. Invitations have been sent to Governor N. E. Kendall, Lieutenant-Governor John Hammill, Commander Alvin Ously, national commander of the American Legion, and C. Hamilton Cook, national commander of the Disabled American Veterans.

"Old Gold" chapter, the Iowa City organization, which has a membership of fifty-six men, is approximately a year old, and was the third chapter formed in Iowa. For that matter the national organization is just completing its second year, though at the present time there is a state organization in every state in the union," said Mr. Phelps.

Students Of All Colleges Participate About Equally In Extra-Curricular Activities, Compiled Figures Show

Do liberal arts students live up to their traditional nickname of lazy arts? Do the pharmacists and dents furnish the Herculean material from which the Iowa's super-athletic coaches pick the Beg-Ten conference champs? Are the engineers the much sought after tea hounds, and do the medics carry off the prizes in oratory in the University declamatory contests?

Probably not, and as a matter of fact extra-curricular activities at Iowa are participated in by students of every college on the campus, and no one college has monopoly on any indoor or outdoor sport. Statistics based on the number of times the names of students of the various colleges appear in print in the Daily Iowan show that university activities are evenly divided between the different colleges.

William Jennings Bryans are missing, but in wrestling, baseball, basketball and track, the "Kink" Howards of-the-future have placed many a star performer. The place of honor as the University's most glib tongued orator was recently captured by the Laws, which is as it should be considering the fact that these men are to be the pleaders from the legal rostrum. Thirty-two laws have taken time enough from their hours of recreation to win "I" sweaters, and on one occasion each year don the garb of chorus girls and musicians to display their talents along the line of musical comedy.

Commerce students have among their number, athletics, literary men, members of university players, and journalists. Engineers contribute a large number of the band memebra, varsity swimmers and track men, and rival the laws in their abilities as footlight performers.

And lastly, liberal arts students take a front seat in all line of student activities regardless of the fact that they have been dubbed a lazy lot. Time hangs a bit heavier on their hands and social aspirations are commonly characteristic, yet in forensics, dramatics, athletics, and scholarship, they cannot be equaled by any of their professional college brothers.

FEW STUDENTS LEAVE DURING SHORT HOLIDAY

Only a few students will go home for spring vacation according to reports echoed around the campus. Those whose homes are near Iowa City will probably leave, but the two days of actual vacation are not long enough to admit much traveling. Many of the students realizing this have decided to remain in the university city during that time.

Friday, March 30 to April 2 have officially been set aside as the time for spring vacation, really allowing only two extra days of vacation.
