HARDING PLAN TO JAZZ TOUR NOT APPROVED

No New Issues Needed Say Advisors; May Press Industrial Court Move

By Raymond Clapper
(United News Staff Correspondent)

Washington, March 28—President Harding's desire to jazz up his speaking tour of the country next summer has stirred up the fears of his cautious advisors who insist that he exploit the achievements of the administration without treading on new and possibly dangerous ground. If their counsels prevail the president will engage in the same sort of safety first campaign which carried him through 1920 with the biggest vote in the history of the country.

The president, like many other politicians believes some fresh issues must be dug up to replace the present ones which have worn threadbare after many campaigns. Tariff, economy, taxes and such questions are universally recognized as of fundamental importance. But what the state managers of both parties are hunting for is a brand new line which will pull the voters up from their seats yelling for more.

It was on this theory that President Harding advanced the international court plan. He also looked favorably on the idea of telling the people just what he thinks of congress for rejecting his ship subsidy plan. Secretary of State Hughes has favored a fight before the country for the international court and has several tentative speaking engagements during the summer which would give him an opportunity to explain the workings of this judicial body and to answer the attack on it as a back door entry into the league of nations.

PICK EIGHT FOR FROSH ORATORICAL

6 Men and 2 Women Named For Finals From 39 Entrants

Six men and two women placed in the preliminary to the freshman declamatory contest for the Glenn N. Merry prizes, held in the liberal arts auditorium last night. Out of the thirty-nine competing, the eight selected to enter the final contest, with the name of their oration, are: Roy H. Keiselman of Fort Madison, "Emmet's Vindication"; David L. Terrell of Tangerine, Fla., "The American Conscience"; Philip C. Walker of Algona, "Address at Valley Forge"; Joseph M. Colby of Lake Mills, "Lay the Axe to the Root of the Evil"; Arnold A. Lassen of Avoca, "The Open Door"; Hildreth A. Spafford of Iowa City, "Plea for Cuba"; Opal A. Keeney of Carlisle, "Prince of Peace"; and Eva M. Threlkeld of Chariton, "The Union Soldier."

The selection of these eight from the thirty nine fell to three judges, Herbert C. Weller, Helen Langworthy and Harry T. Wood, all three instructors in the department of speech. They conferred for thirty-three minutes before agreeing upon the eight.

Each of the eight will deliver his declamation in the final contest before the public and another board of judges. The winner of first and second place in final event will be awarded $10 each by Prof. Glenn N. Merry, head of the department of speech. In addition, if a member of either the Philomathean or Irving Institute societies, the Zetagathians not having placed in the finals, wins this freshman declamatory, it will count substantially in the race for

Save All Your Old Papers For Y. M. and Y. W. Until April 7

The cripple kiddies in the children's hospital are without their usual Friday evening movies because the Y. M. C. A. budget for supply them has run out. The University Y. M. C. A. has been providing movies for these crippled children, but they have been compelled to stop recently. However the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. are jointly planning a paper campaign to get funds to again provide the movies.

All the fraternities and sororities on the campus will be asked to save all waste paper as well as all other students. The business houses will also be solicited. Any student or citizen of the city who has waste paper is asked to phone 774 and leave their name. The trucks which are to collect the paper will call on April 7.

IOWA TICKETS GO ON SALE APRIL 3

Everything Is Being Done To Make The Carnival A Success

Ticket for the Iowana party to be held after the carnival in the men's gymnasium will be placed on sale at Whetstone's Tuesday, 3, the first day after the spring vacation. Tickets will also be obtainable from the department managers and the members of the committee. Only a limited number of tickets will be offered for sale. The price of the tickets will be $150.

The gymnasium will be especially decorated for the occasion. The music will be furnished by the Lawson Engineers' orchestra which was so popular in the engineering show. Special plans for features are being made to make this one of the best informal parties of the year. The dance will start at 9 o'clock immediately following the parade and the other stunts of the carnival in the armory.

The party department is only one of the departments which are working to make the carnival a success. Alice Hagedorn A2 of Lu Verne Minn. is chairman of the party committee. Other members of the committee are Dorothy K. Pattie A3 of Clear Lake, Davenport I. Day Au of Iowa City and Ceylon B. Hayden D2 of Des Moines.

Bernadine Wendel A3 of Smithland has been appointed to fill a vacancy in the executive committee of the Iowana carnival. Jean Forbes A4 of Pine River, Minn. has resigned from the position of manager of exhibitions. Bernadine Wendel will take this position. The manager of exhibitions will have charge of all shows and musical attractions during the carnival.

Gidney Will Talk To Scout Club Here April 4

Capt. Francis Gidney, director of the camping and educational work of the British Boy Scouts, will give a short talk at the dinner to be given the visiting scout executives April 4 by the newly organized scout club and the Iowa City scout council. Captain Gidney is touring the United States in order to study the work of the Boy Scouts of America and will take an active part in the scout executive training course, beginning April 2. He was cited for bravery in the World war, and received several decorations.

The committee appointed at the first meeting of the scout club has studied the scout clubs in various eastern universities, and has a constitution prepared and ready to submit to the club for approval. The members of the committee are Murray Klingaman A2 of Iowa City, chairman; Robert Birchard A3 of Davenport; Charles Marshale Au of Knoxville; D. W. Scott and Harold Vasey S1 of Collins.

SENIOR MEDICS GET POSITIONS IN MANY CITIES

Iowa Graduates Will Be Spread From Coast To Coast As Internes

Graduates of the college of medicine of the University next year will be scattered from coast to coast while serving the year's internship required by the state board of examiners of a graduate before he may practice in Iowa. At those houses where chaperones are leaving the city during the vacation, substitutes approved by the dean of women have been secured.

NOTICE

With this issue the Daily Iowan suspends publication until the issue of April 4.

DRAMA LEAGUE GIVES "DULCY" HERE APRIL 18

Students and Residents Compose The Cast. Sueppel Is Director

As a prelude to the national convention of the Drama League of America, "Dulcy" the famous Bronnidian comedy, is to be given April 18 at the Englert theatre by the Drama League of Iowa City. The play by Marc Connelly and George F. Kaufman, is the keenest of modern satirical modern comedies, and has had an enormous success in New York and Chicago with Linn Fontaine in the title role. The play positively sparkles with clever comedy because of Dulcy who is characterized neatly as "an adorable fool."

Dulcy Smith is the type of modern woman who will urge you "now that you've found the way, come and see us often" and she'll remark on "what a wonderful little people the Japanese are." In short, she's a typical bromide. Dulcy means well, however, and with her innate love of running and arranging everything she succeeds in upsetting the quiet lives of the entire cast in such a way as to make a screamingly funny comedy. Her long suffering husband, her young brother, a scenarist, a twentieth century advertising engineer, a stern business man and his wife and daughter are just a few of those characters who are thrown into the most absurd situations by the machinations of Dulcy.

The play is being produced by the Drama League of Iowa City and the cast is composed of both residents in town and students of the University. It is under the direction of Frances N. Sueppel, the famous Shylock in the University theatre production of "The Merchant of Venice." Miss Helene Blattner, of the University speech department, will play the part of Dulcy. The rest of the cast is as follows:

Gordon Smith, Dulcy's husband—Vance M. Morton.

William Parker, her brother—Harvey Carter A1 of Shellrock.

C. Roger Forbes—Frances N. Sueppel.

Mrs. Forbes—Margery Roland.

Angela, their daughter—Mrs. Carter Hamilton.

Tom Sterrett, advertising engineer—Harry Hoeye A1 of Waukee.

Schuyler Van Dyke—Donald Rhynsbarger A2 of Oskaloosa.

Blair Patterson, attorney—Isaac Solzmann S2 of Council Bluffs.

Vincent Leach, scenarist—Harry Voltner L1 of Galva.

Henry, the butler—Holles Horrabin.

POPE PIUS' PROTEST TO RUSSIA IS PRESENTED

(By United News)

Rome, March 28—Professor Walsh, former member of the American famine relief mission, has communicated to the Russian government the Pope Pius' protest against carrying out the death sentences of Archbishop Kapliak, head of the Roman Catholic church in Russia and Monsenor Zautkavitch, his administrator.

The two were sentenced to death after conviction on charges of fermenting counter revolutionary plots but the execution was postponed.

G. F. Gould, American Millionaire, Is Near Death Of Pneumonia

Many New Books Are Announced By Local Book Stores

Students who will have more leisure time after the spring vacation and mid-semester examinations will be interested to learn that a number of new books have arrived at the book stores.

The book that has been the best seller so far is "The Covered Wagon" by Emerson Hough, an Iowa man who was born in Newton. Others about equally as popular as "Tarzan and the Golden Lion" by Edgar Rice Burroughs, "Black Oxen" by Gertrude Atherton, "Druidia" by John T. Frederick, "The Tale of Triona" by William J. Locke and "Cythera" by Joseph Hergesheimer, author of "Java Head."

Those who have read and liked the "Cappy Ricks" stories will be glad to know that Peter B. Kyne has written another story called "Cappy Ricks Returns." Dorothy Canfield, author of "The Brimming Cup," has written a new book entitled "Rough Hewn."

WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB APPEARS APRIL 6

Solo Dance and Whistling Solo Will be Feature of The Program

The members of the women's glee club are now perfecting in frequent rehearsals the program to be given in the annual home concert, which will be presented Wednesday evening, April 4, in natural science auditorium.

For many years the organization has appeared annually in concert in Iowa City and in other towns in Iowa, and it has built up an excellent reputation to which each group adds news lustre. Professor Walter Leon, director, expresses the hope that the club this year will present an even more pleasing concert than it has in the past, and with that aim in view is working to produce an artistic effect and an entertaining program. Several specialties will be given, and the ensemble numbers which will make up the body of the program have been carefully chosen.

A whistling solo by Raymond Hansen D4 of Estherville will be a novelty of the evening, and a solo dance by Nedra Berry will also be given to afford variety. The chorus will be most effective in its rendition of two Russian numbers, by Borodin and Tchaikowski, and "The Heavenly Noel," sung by Martha Althaus A4 of Muscatine and the glee club, is given a prominent place on the program.

Members of the club who will appear in the home concert are:

Sopranos: Florence Kings A3 of Sanborn, Jeanne Wolfe A3 of Clear Lake, Alice Ingham Au of Iowa City, Esther Dyke A1 of Iowa City, Alma Buuck A2 of Britt, Margaret Howell A2 of Iowa City, Helen Hammstrom A1 of Clinton and Mrs. Ruth Brady.

DEBATERS WORK DURING VACATION

Affirmatives Seem to Have the Harder Side of the Question

Members of the women's debating teams which will debate Washington university, St. Louis, will remain in Iowa City during vacation to work intensely on the question. The prevailing opinion among the debaters and on the campus generally seems to be that the affirmative is by far the harder side of the question, "Resolved, that France was justified in entering the Ruhr." This side of the proposition will be defended by Iowa's affirmative team on April 5.

The first speakers on the negative team who will journey to St. Louis is Frances Baker A4 of Iowa City. She was elected to Phi Beta Kappa last fall, is a member of Athena literary society and Y. W. C. A., and belongs to the Mathematics club, and the Classical club. She also won the Lowden Latin prize in 1921.

"A fascinating question," says Frances Dolliver A3 of Fort Dodge, second speaker on the negative, in speaking of the proposition. Miss Dolliver is a member of Erodelphian literary society, and is affiliated with Delta Gamma sorority. She had experience in high school debating when she was a member of the Fort Dodge team which defeated Sioux City.

The proposition is difficult because it may be settled any day, in the opinion of Clara Levy A4 of Pueblo, Colo., third speaker on the negative. Miss Levy is a member of the University Players, Octave Thanet literary society, and is one of the two women members of Delta Sigma Rho, honorary forensic fraternity, at Iowa. She was a member of the cast of "Dear Brutus" and played the part of Jessica in the "Merchant of Venice." She was elected a member of Delta Sigma Rho while at the University of Colorado in recognition of the ability shown on the debating teams which defeated Kansas and Oklahoma.

Blondes Beware! Don't Expect To Thrive In Cities

By Ralph H. Turner

United News Staff Correspondent LONDON, Mar. 27.—Cities are bad for blondes. If you belong to the fair-complexioned species, forsake the life of the gay metropolis. Take yourself to the great open spaces.

That's one phase of the inexorable rule: "Don't live against your color." British scientists have figured it out in their solution of the newest color problem.

Medical men declare that blondes more than brunettes, are victims of a confined in door life. They're in greater danger of influenza, tonsillitis and rheumatism. Being of the vigorous, fresh-air type, the blonde should live in the sunlight, out of the damp.

To substantiate this theory, an English physician points to the preponderance of fair-haired, fair-skinned English girls who may be seen in the Alps in the winter time. They also frequent the cold, windy resorts of England's east coast. But the brunettes go down to Devonshire, with its Rivieralike warmth.

The blonde dislikes distance, solitude—Canada and Australia are cited as good places for blondes—but the brunette is a devotee of the city. She likes closely peopled communities where social intercourse is easily established. The blonde, according to the color theory, cannot stand the tropics. This is obvious the experts say, from the fact that the tropical peoples are almost invariably brunette, while the people of the frigid north (Sweden and Minnesota are instanced) are light-complexioned.

The scientists are not certain whether the children of the darker races outlive the fair in the cities of the world. But they point out significantly that the Jews, in the survival of the fittest, have withstood city life more successfully than fair-skinned peoples.

Seven Stars Known As Big Dipper Are Gradually Changing

The cluster of seven stars which we call the big dipper, a constellation familiarly known to nearly everyone, is changing, according to the Detroit News. Five of these stars are slowly moving awal from the others. These stars are about seventy-five light years away from the earth. A light year is the distance that light travels in one year, and as it goes at the rate of 186,000 miles a second, some idea of the great distance of these stars may be gained.

The moving apart of the stars is extremely slow according to Dr. Hamilton M. Jeffers, instructor in astronomy, who says that it takes about twenty years for the change to be seen with the aid of the most delicate instruments. To the human eye it is not noticeable at all.

"It would take about five thousand years for the change in the position of these stars to become visible to the unaided eye," said Dr. Jeffers. "All of the stars in the heavens are moving at varying rates of speed; our own sun moves at the rate of 12 miles a second, and some stars move faster than 300 miles a second. Because of this fact, the position of all the stars is gradually changing, and the map of the sky which we now have will be obsolete at some far distant date."

Very evidently, then, student astronomers will go on observing the big dipper for many years to come, and seeing no difference due to its great distance from us and the limitations of the human eye, although the change is going on all the time.

JUNIOR ENGINEERS HAD SMOKER LAST NIGHT

governs the policies of the Hawkeye and elects the editor-in-chief and the business manager. All sophomores who are in good standing are eligible to vote.

The constitution of the Hawkeye provides that the candidates for the positions of trustee must publish their names in the Daily Iowan two weeks before the election. Those eligible are sophomores who have earned forty-five hours of credit and are in good and regular standing in the University. Each petition turned in to the Daily Iowan office must be accompanied by a statement from the registrar showing that these conditions have been met. The three faculty members of the board are appointed by the president of the University.

The committee in charge of the election has been appointed by the student council. The members are Oscar Strom A4 of Scarville, Leslie Schrubbe A4 of Decorah, Roscoe Nash Cm4 of Tipton, Buel G. Beems A3 of Anamosa.

Peculiar Sorority House Burglar At Michigan University Visits Six Houses Within Two Months

Michigan Daily, Ann Arbor, Mich.—Activities of the "Lone Kid" were increased early Sunday morning when he broke into two more sorority houses using the same peculiar methods of robbery that have marked his previous escapades. Delta Gamma sorority, 1205 Hill street, and Zeta Tau Alpha sorority, 816 Tappan avenue are the latest victims of this house breaker who is alleged to have robbed six girls' rooming houses in the past two months.

At three o'clock yesterday morning he awoke one of the girls in the Delta Gamma house and was promptly told to "Get out or I will fire." He ran and with an alarm clock flying after him. The light was tried but would not work. He had destroyed all the fuses in the house.

The police were notified and when they arrived and searched the house it was found that the burglar had taken a pocket book containing $4. Nothing else had been touched and all the doors were locked.

At 4 o'clock a similar robbery occurred at the Zeta Tau Alpha house 816 Tappan avenue, the robber breaking in through a locked front door and going through all the upstairs rooms. On awakening the chaperone he became frightened and ran out of the back door. He had taken $20 Sunday morning the purse which had been stolen from the Delta Gamma house was found hanging on the knob of the rear door. In the purse was a note which read, "Thanks for the entertainment girls." The inscription, "The Lone Kid" was written on a mirror in the basement.

This makes the sixth house that has been broken into by what police believe to be the same man. The first robbery was on Jan. 27 at the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority, 1414 Washtenaw avenue. Here $50 was taken and the name "The Lone Kid" was found on a mirror written with soap. On Feb. 22 and 23 the Chi Omega house, 1503 Washtenaw avenue and collegiate Sororis sorority 1505 Washtenaw, were broken into. The next robbery occurred last Friday night when a man was found in the Westminster hall rooming house, 602 E. Huron by one of the girls returning.

Almost every time the same thing has occurred: lights disconnected, telephone wires cut, and money stolen. Usually $30 to $50 amounts were taken. In no case has he entered a fraternity or man's rooming house.

Chief of Police Thomas O'Brien, who has a man working on the case warns those houses that have not yet been visited, against the robber. He thinks that it may be some student who is making the rounds of girls' houses in the role of a "Bat" or "Lone Wolf." Every effort will be made to catch the man, he says.

Conduct of Males Regulates Behavior Of Weaker Sex

By Rodney F. Dutcher
United News Staff Correspondent
CHICAGO, Mar. 27—Poor old Mother Eve, who has been taking knocks right and left for a long, long time, as the original sinner, has been very posthumously exonerated by a Chicago judge.

Judge Victor P. Arnold of Chicago's juvenile court has cast the blame on old Adam, claiming that the Adams of today, rather than the Eve's, are responsible for various wrong in society.

"If the men and boys are good, women and girls are bound to be," says the jurist.

"Those of the so-called stronger sex are the moral pace-makers. They set the standards of right and wrong and their measures of obedience of the laws regulating evil and supporting right is the gauge.

"And it is just as instinctive for women to regard men as their natural protectors. If the men, then, have high ideals and are good citizens, the women will be likewise for they involuntarily pattern after them."

Statistics, of those of his own court, prove, according to judge Arnold, that he was not talking through his hat. His overruling of the long-standing decision regarding Eve was partially based on figures just made public showing that delinquency of boys and girls in this county, Cook, had decreased during the past year.

Some 30 percent fewer boys got into official trouble in 1922 than in 1921, while the number of little girls who strayed far enough along the primrose path to reach the juvenile court diminished in just about the same ratio.

This improvement in the morale of the young, Judge Arnold declared in an interview, may be attributed to the fact that the young are now taking themselves seriously.

"With his parents and those of his own neighborhood regarding him as something more than dirty, always a troublesome member of society, the boy is bound to sense his own importance," he continued. That is the first step in the right direction which the delinquent or semi-bad boy can take.

"As soon as he feels that he is of some significance in his own community, he is going to respond by being better."

Whereupon, according to Judge

BASE BALL MEN REMAIN HERE FOR PRACTICE

Weather Permitting They Will Do Out Door Practice This Week End

"In order to make the most of the short time that is available for preparation for the coming of the baseball season the entire squad of candidates will be held over during the four days vacation beginning tomorrow." This statement was made by coach Sam Barry before the forty or more men who are out for baseball at the new armory yesterday afternoon. If the weather permits the men will be taken out-of-doors over the week-end for the daily practices, but if it remains inclement the workouts will continue to be held in the new armory.

Thus far the work has consisted mainly in limbering up, although some of the men have been facing the pitchers, and getting used to standing up to the plate. It is impossible to do much more than this in the present cramped quarters, although Coach Barry does intend to give the players a little practice in sliding and bunting before transferring out-of-doors.

The pitchers are rapidly rounding into shape after about a month of daily practice exercise, and several of the aspiring moundsmen are letting themselves out already. "Ching" Duhn and Marshall, both members of the yearling pitching staff last year have been showing a great deal of ability in form and control, under Coach Higbee's direction and present indications are that these two twirlers will give some of the older varsity pitchers a dandy run for the regular jobs. Both have a good deal of speed and are now working mainly on control, Voltmer, Becker and Lee also looked good in last night's workout, and these men should also make a strong bid for regular berths. Of course it is impossible to predict as yet how they will stand up under fire. Wells, another pitcher with varsity experience, was also out in uniform yesterday afternoon.

Among the men who reported for the workout yesterday were "Jack" Funk and "Jimmie" Laude, who are already well enough known through their basketball prowess.

The present squad will no doubt be added to after spring vacation. The schedule of games as it now stands is as follows:

- April 13—Iowa at Purdue.
- April 14—Iowa at Illinois.
- April 21—Chicago at Iowa.
- April 30—Illinois at Iowa.
- May 5—Iowa at Minnesota.
- May 7—Iowa at Michigan.
- May 8—Iowa at Notre Dame.
- May 14—Michigan at Iowa.
- May 19—Iowa at Chicago.
- May 26—Notre Dame at Iowa.
- June 4—Minnesota at Iowa.

SPRING FOOTBALL PRACTICE RESUMED WEDNESDAY

Spring football practice will not be held tonight but beginning next Wednesday, and continuing for three weeks practice will be held on the field if the weather permits. Uniforms and equipment will be issued next week for those going out.

MIXER FOR TRACK MEN NEXT TUESDAY

Mark For Those Interested In Track Is Higher Than Ever Before

The first step towards a track squad 350 men strong will be taken at the mixer for all men interested in track at the men's gymnasium at 7:15 next Tuesday. In an effort to get more men out for track and strengthen the Hawkeye track team Coach George Bresnahan has placed the mark for those interested in track higher than in any previous years and this year's quota if realized should greatly aid Iowa's chances in sport.

The staff of coaches for track are: George T. Bresnahan, varsity coach; Aubrey K. Devine, coach of freshmen in pole vault, high jump, and broad jump; Capt. Thomas E. Martin will probably have charge of throwing the hammer, discuss, javelin, and shot put; and Albert Jenkins, freshmen coach.

The track men will have lockers in the new locker room in the basement of the men's gymnasium and anyone who intends to go out for track and has not yet a locker may get one by seeing Ernest G. Schroeder, director of physical education.

The mixer will consist of short talks by Professor Lauer, Dr. Prentiss, the originator of track mixers, Dean Kay, Dean Teeters. Coach Howard Jones, Coach Bresnahan, and Eric Wilson. Moving pictures of the conference track meet at the University last year will be shown. Training refreshments, cider, sandwiches, and fruit, will be served.

Over 1000 Athletes Will Be Entered In Drake Relays

Des Moines, Ia., March 28.—Scores of Iowa track men will motor to Des Moines, April 27-28, for the 14th annual Drake University relay carnival, which will be the biggest and best track and field meet in the West this year.

Mail orders for tickets have been received by Athletic Director K. L. Wilson, of Drake, who is in charge of the meet, and practically all of the fans writing in to make ticket reservations indicated that they would rive to Des Moines for the 1923 western Athletic Classics.

Wilson declared today that, according to present indications, more than 1,000 star university, college, prep and high school athletes, from the Alleghenies to the Pacific Coast, will be entered in the Drake meet this year, and from the great indoor form shown by many of the athletes, a number of new records are expected to be established at the carnival this year.

Practically all of the important Iowa colleges and high schools will enter strong teams in the 1923 meet, and they will bring many rooters along to cheer for them.

Outside the state, the big schools that will be represented at the meet include Michigan, Notre Dame, Vanderbilt, Carnegie Tech, Florida, Utah, Illinois, Ohio, Chicago, Indiana, Purdue, Northwestern, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Kansas Aggies, Washington, and many others.

John L. Griffith, athletic commissioner of the Western Conference, who founded the Drake meet 14 years ago, will act as starter, while Charles W. Rawson, former U. S. Senator from Iowa, will serve as referee.

Reserve seat tickets, good on Friday and Saturday, both days of the meet, will sell for $2. The meet is not conducted for profit, all receipts being pro-rated among visiting teams to help defray part of their expenses.

S. U. I. Laboratory Receives Gift of Gasoline Launch

Dr. Ferdinand J. Smith, who owns a home on the shores of Lake Okoboji, has written to Dr. Robert B. Wylie of the Lakeside Laboratory staff offering to give his launch to the laboratory for scientific work. This launch carries a dozen persons comfortably, is in excellent condition, and will make a splendid addition to the laboratory equipment. It is provided with a new cover of special and convenient design. The hull is sound and Doctor Smith kindly offers to give it fresh paint before turning it over to the University station.

Doctor Smith, an alumnus of Ames, is also a graduate of the medical college of this university and was for several years on the faculty of Drake university before their medical school merged with that of the University of Iowa. He is a very prominent man in affairs about the Okoboji lakes and has been for several years the editor of the Okoboji Bulletin, an annual publication issued by the Okoboji association.

The new boat house erected at the Laboratory two years ago was fortunately built double width so that there will be convenient storage for the new launch along with the other boats belonging to the Lakeside laboratory.

SEVEN WOMEN GET THEIR SEAL EMBLEM

Two Members Are Denied Right To Wear Emblem In The Pool

Seven co-eds received seal's club emblems to wear on their navy blue swimming suits last night after the seal's club banquet in the gymnasium. The emblems are not awarded until the club requirements and tests are passed off and the probationer has shown herself to be worthy of and loyal to seals club.

The seven women taken into the club at this time are: Eleanor Chase A1 of Clinton, Marjorie Kay A2 of Iowa City, Sarah Cox A2 of Iowa City, Doris Green A2 of Des Moines, Gladys Brooker A1 of Omaha, Neb., Evelyn Byrne A2 of Dubuque, are Catherine Richter A1 of Davenport.

The emblems awarded are old gold seal's flippers against a background of black and with the initial "S" in the center.

All the seals who were members of the club before the red cross tests became a requirement have passed them off at this time with the exception of two people. These women will be denied the wearing of the emblems in the pool until they do pass off these tests, according to Margaret McGovney, A2 of Iowa City, president of the seal's club.

MANY ENROLL FOR TRAINING COURSE

Iowa is One of Three Schools Selected by National Scout Council

Men from as far west as Colorado and as far east as Indiana have enrolled in the scout executive training course starting April 2 and lasting for ten days. The course is being conducted by the University of Iowa in co-operation with the department of education of the Boy Scouts of America, for the purpose of giving practical training in the duties and responsibilities of a scout executive.

More than forty men have already sent in their registration and tuition fee, and every mail adds to the number. Only men who intend making the professional leadership in scouting their life-work are allowed to register.

The University of Iowa is one of the three places selected by the National Council of the Boy Scouts for the giving of a scout executive training course. Columbia university has a year course, and another course will be given at Macon, Ga., in May. Capt. Francis Gidney, director of the camping and education work of the British Bay Scouts, will be a speaker at the course. Lorne W. Barclay, director of the department of education of the Boy Scouts of America, is being sent here by the national headquarters, and will have charge of the morning sessions.

Prof. Charles F. Smith of the Teachers' college, Columbia university, will have charge of the afternoon session which will be held in the outdoors in order to give practical training in the main features of scouting. William M. Kiplinger, regional scout executive of Region 7, and John H. Piper, executive of Region 8, will also take part in the program.

Members of the faculty who will give lectures and conduct round-table discussions include Dean C. E. Seashore, Dean W. F. Russell, Dean George R. Kay, Prof. Frederic B. Knight and Prof. O. E. Klingaman.

BAND WAGONS BEGIN PARADE BEFORE VOTERS

Five Democrats Are Set For Nomination. With Some Hope For Ford

(By United News)
New York, Mar. 28—At the present writing there are five band wagons upon which divers and sundry democratic leaders are clamoring for the glorification of William C. McAdoo, Al Smith, James Cox, Oscar Underwood, and Henry Ford, respectively. Roughly it might be said also that the band wagons are constituted, at this writing, of the following materials in the form of campaign issues:

McAdoo—Rigid enforcement of the prohibition law, and greater control by the people if not actual public operation of the railroads and mines.

Al Smith—Modification of Volstead law and business governments.

Cox—League of Nations.

Underwood—More conservative application of democratic principles—a conservative business administration.

Henry Ford—Abolition of the gold standard, creation of energy units and above all, building to increase the productivity of the farmer.

At the present moment all of the visible political energies are being exerted in behalf of one of these five men. Opponents of Ford declare that, despairing of a chance to get the republican nominations he will accept the democratic nomination if tendered. And there are some prominent democratic leaders who believe Ford would make the strongest standard bearer they could nominate to win the agricultural sections of the West and South. In all events there are several Ford movements getting underway—mostly started thus far by men who

Those Who Bought Parisian Models At the Hat Exhibition Yesterday Are Envied by Everybody Today

(By Betty Brown)
No one in Iowa City needs to worry about the shortage of latest parisian hats as long as there remains in the University such a talented group of young women as are now enrolled in the home economics department. Wednesday afternoon, they gave an exhibition of hats in room 202 of the home economics building. Variety, color, and style were very much in evidence.

For those of us whom Spring spells color and lots of it, there were sky-blue models, rose, green, pink and red one. Some of these were severely plain, relying on their color only, while others were laden with flowers and ribbons in the most approved spring mode.

But for those others of us who shy from any brilliant shade, there were the more inconspicuous creations of navy-blue, black, or brown.

As for shapes—every conceivable kind was represented. Some were sailors, some turbans, some pokes and still others were mushroom shaped. No matter what your taste, you could find something on the two tables of hats to suit your particular style of beauty. If you had been un-wise enough to have already purchased your spring chapeau, you could see all you have missed. In spite of the fact that all these hats look like the latest parisian models, they all are made by the girls, and are offered for sale by the department at most reasonable prices. They are individual and exclusive and if you buy one of them, you need never fear that you will see another hat like it, and you will be an envied woman.

would seem to have an eye on the Ford exchange as their immediate prime concern.

There is money already being spent, according to some democratic authorities, on behalf of senator Underwood. Underwood might be regarded as the candidate of these democrats who have some republican blood running through their veins. Furthermore, once Governor Al Smith were put away Underwood might be expected to get a considerable vote in wet delegation—among the so-called professional politicians. Underwood upon his return from Europe, doubtlessly will formally throw his hat into the ring.

LEARNING SEX KNOWLEDGE

A small-town college of Missouri, as antiquated as it is obscure, recently purchased a large number of copies of "Town and Gown"—a scurrilous novel which professes to depict life at a state university—with the altruistic aim of acquainting parents of the evils of large co-educational schools and incidentally to further its own end by pointing to the absence of these evils within its own walls. A number of unsuspecting parents will fall into the trap for the bait has the official stench of the ages implanted upon it.

Frank and open relations between men and women constitute one of the outstanding characteristics of modern universities. It is hard for parents to grasp the full significance of this new situation and their first reaction is to regard it with suspicion. From time immemorial society has held that all knowledge of sex is illicit, that is, as far as polite society is concerned. What facts are learned must come from trial and error method of experience or from secret retreats of indecency. The home ignores its responsibility—such knowledge might contaminate the hearth. The church with solemn maledictions relegates it to the fires of Hell. The school refuses to consider it a part of education. The individual is left to work out his own salvation which, providing nothing interferes, he does with a fair degree of success.

Unfortunately circumstances are not always so favorable and the ignorant but well-meaning person stumbles over his first barrier. He is in somewhat the same position as a physician would be if he attempted to counteract disease without any knowledge of medicine.

While it can not be said that the university is the best place for the acquirement of sex knowledge, yet is the best that modern society has to offer. In free and serious discussions among men and among women the accumulated stock of knowledge becomes the common possession of all. While it is hardly possible that these facts should be correct at all times, or very complete they usually suffice to bring an understanding of the more important problems involved.

The time will be here shortly when sex questions will be openly discussed in the class room, under the critical direction of science. Until we have reached this stage the best substitute is the company of friends, male or female, who desire enlightenment on the most fundamental problem in the world.

THE AGE OF MARRIAGE

The span of human life has been appreciably lengthened during the past generation or two thanks to medicine. Similarly the age of marriage has been climbing markedly within the last few decades so that the ratio in years of single blessedness to marital bliss has remained virtually constant.

Thirty-five centuries ago King "Tut" married at the tender age of thirteen the chronicles from the Valley of the Kings say. And at approximately the age of thirty-years he died.

But the ever increasing complexity of civilization has tended toward shoving up the age of matrimony and parenthood. If the age of the Luxor celebrity may be taken as an average age for marriage three or four thousand years ago, and if the figures for Iowa a generation ago may be used as criteria for civilized countries in general, the age has advanced just seven years. Statistics bearing on this question of Dean Carl E. Seashore show that a young man's fancy a generation ago got the better of him at the age of twenty.

And since that time, about half a life time, the it has reached twenty-five years today in Iowa. age of marriage has been rapidly increasing until But the average lifetime has now been raised to about fifty years and so the ratio has remained the same.

Whether the "marriageable age" will continue to rise as eugenics and preventive medicine continue their rapid strides is an interesting matter.

CONTEMPORARY OPINION (Philadelphia Public Ledger)

Dr. CHARLES W. ELIOT, entering his ninth year, offers the world a remarkable example of the meaning of Wordsworth's lines descriptive of "old age serene and bright and lovely as a Lapland night." Joseph H. Choate when he became seventy said that the eighth decade of life was the best, instead of being that period of conscious weakness whose strength is "labor and sorrow," according to the Psalmist's affirmation. But Dr. Eliot has far exceeded that limit and still retains his intellectual vigor and physical stamina in a way that has won the admiration of his contemporaries.

He does not pretend to offer a secret of perennial youth, an infallible elixir of life in a terse recipe. The simple laws he suggests are homely, inexpensive, elemental. Any one who wills may follow them. Sleep with fresh air in circulation, exercise, abstinence from stimulants, enjoyment of the good things of life without excess, serenity of the spirit through prosperity and adversity, are the salient articles of his creed of health and happiness.

He is an example of his own preaching. He prescribes nothing that has not undergone the pragmatic test of his own rich and various experience. He has kept the human machine functioning at its fullest efficiency, because he has lived in conformity with the laws of nature. Therefore, in the years which for many have been a mere protracted sundown his useful creative energy has rebuked the inertia and the self-indulgence of much younger men.

"Belts are holding their own," we are relieved to learn," even though the suspender is coming back with more or less of a bang."

More or less snap, perhaps the writer means.

GLUTTONS FOR PUNISHMENT (Dispatch from New Sharon, Ia.)

Thirty-nine graduates of the New Sharon High School must prepare and deliver orations as the commencement exercises this year, according to the decision of the Board of Directors of that place.

Three evenings will be required to deliver this program.

GONE ARE THOSE DAYS

Dear Sounder:

In rummaging through old University papers lately my eye was caught by the following ghost of the past. Inasmuch as the Irvings have just held their annual banquet it may not be inappropriate to present the menu of the annual Irving banquet given in April, 1894:

- Boullion en Tasseo
- Fresh Lobster
- Young Turkey—Cranberry Sauce
- Larded Sweet Breads—Financier
- Saratoga Chips Sweet Potatoes
- Shrimp Salad Chicken Salad
- La la Rookh Ice Cream
- Angel Cake Silver Cake Layer Cake Lady Fingers
- Figs Raisins Oranges Bannanas
- Edam Cheese American Cheese
- Coffee

Surely the Iowa City hotels were never like this.

ALPHARHO.

A reader called our attention to the prize break we made in yesterday's column, when we referred to "Tennyson's 'Recessional.'" The terrible part about it is that we can't use the conventional alibi, "typographical error." We distinctly remember writing it that way.

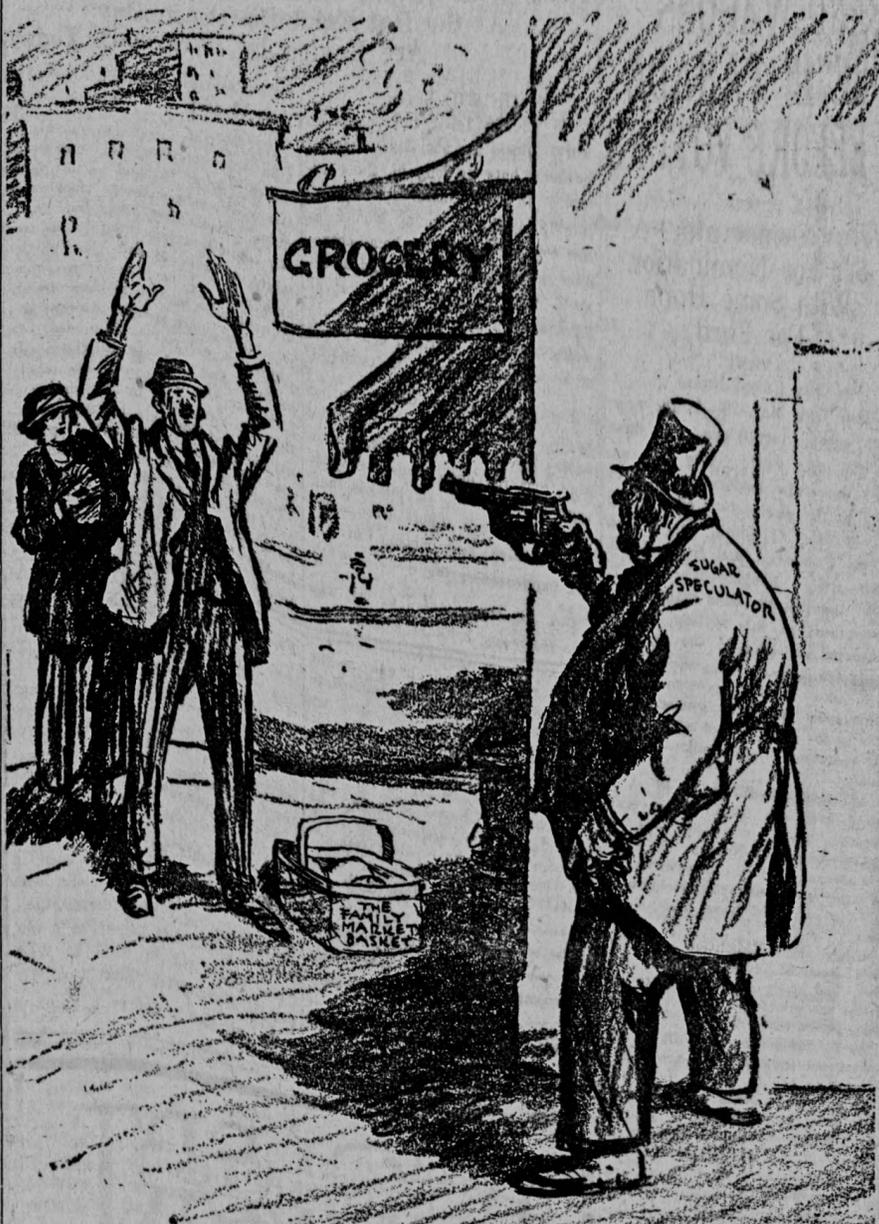

But then, even the most distinguished columnists make such slips occasionally. As for instance when Mr. Little remarked in the Line o' Type on the sentence, "Chicago is a lady caught changing her clothes," and called it a simile.

"Only a few students will go home for spring vacation," but we purpose to be one of the favored few. This afternoon we shall intrust our slight but wiry frame to the notorious C. R. & I. C.

There is one matter, however, which is causing us considerable worry, and we're afraid it's going to spoil our trip:

Where are those "flowers that bloom in the spring, tra-la-la!"

The Spellbinders

Reviewed By
Esther L. Swenson

(By Margate Culkin Banning)

Dr. Johnson used to be fond of saying that the most ingenious arguments were always on the wrong side. And I think every one who has felt himself baffled by the subtlety of an opponent while he was not one whit shaken in his convictions that his own opinion represented the only point of view tenable by common sense, must feel a certain sympathetic response to the assertion. One feels the truth at other times as well,—when one sees attempts to support the "right side" of the question, which leave little to recommend them beyond a certain anxious meaning well. I don't know why all the clever people should be on the wrong side, except that somehow the truth seems to be so obviously simple that there is nothing spectacular to say in defense of it, nothing to flatter a man's vanity or appeal to his love for ingenious subtleties. The great secret is always the open secret.

For some years now, we have had a great deal of controversial writing on the general subject of feminism, and surely no one who has followed the trend in modern fiction and heard that a host of speculators have had to say about the true sources of happiness for women can fail to feel that through them all, amusingly clever though they be, and sometimes keenly critical of modern life, there is a certain vein of morbidity, an exaggerated emphasis, a lack of wholesome common sense. Consequently when the writer of "Spellbinders" starts out to defend the thesis that we have become too analytical, too self-conscious with regard to our feelings with regard to the relationships between husbands and wives; that in proportion as we lose the quality of spontaneity in our affections and our loves, we lose the power to live wholesomely and well, I think many readers are inclined to agree with her. When one follows her story, however, one cannot fail to be impressed with the fact that it is very difficult to say anything vigorously significant in defense of plain common-sense.

In reacting against one kind of sentimentality the writer has fallen victim to an emotionalism which I believe to be equally morbid. Because she thinks there is something profane about probing, weighing, and constantly holding up for scientific investigation, the deepest and most intimately personal emotions that men and women can have, she allows herself to glorify mere secrecy. I think she expects her readers to admire the young Irish poet, patriot and his eager young bride, not only because they love one another with utter abandon, but more particularly because they feel that their love is too sacred to be made known, even to the girl's father and mother who are made to suffer much embarrassment, and not a little real anxiety in consequence. Gage Flanden, a man of thirty-eight, an experienced lawyer and politician, a man who up to the time of the beginning of the story has been perfectly happy in his home, and unusually ardent in his love for his very beautiful and charming wife, is represented as profoundly admiring this disposition to secrecy on the part of the young people. He feels that they indeed, have a sense for real human values. Bitterly he contracts Freda's ardor and jealous guarding of her secret that is too beautiful to share, with what he regards as a lack of proper delicacy, in his wife, but what most readers, I believe, will feel to be nothing more than a wife and mother. Helen is not the silly sort of heroine who feels that there is something inevitably narrowing and wasping in caring for a home and something as inevitably ennobling in attending conventions and making up speeches. She is a good mother, and a good wife, she has no desire to escape from their cares. She simply has an opportunity to do something in addition to these things, specifically, to attend as delegate, the republican convention at Chicago, and she wants to go. She does not understand her husband's feeling that she is spoiling his dream of her, as a beautiful and lovely woman who lives for him alone. She feels that his attitude towards her taking part in politics borders on hysteria. The reader is, as I believe, inclined to agree with her, while he suspects that the author expects him to admire the superior sensitiveness of her husband's idealism.

The close of the story is rather mystifying. One is not just sure what the solution of the problem is. Helen and Gage are made to understand one another again, and everybody is supposed to be happy. But whether Helen was convinced of the terror of her ways, or whether Gage decided to accept her views of the matter, the reader does not learn. All he knows is that in some mysterious fashion the influence of the younger lovers saves the husband and wife from what seemed to be an inevitable, if a most hysterically foolish tragedy.

There is a third thread in the plot which is possibly the least convincing part of the story. It is the tragic love story of two people who have passed the first ardent abandon of youth, and is a somewhat overdrawn reiteration of the general theme that when a woman develops her power of intellectual analysis she loses her capacity for whole-souled emotion.

DECIDE UPON FIXED SHADE OF OLD GOLD

End Uncertainty As To Official Color Of University Of Iowa

No longer will any and every shade of yellow stand for "Old Gold". The University has adopted a standard shade for the University color. Hereafter "I" sweaters, pennants, and decorations, instead of ranging from a brilliant yellow to a dull orange will be the real, true "Old Gold".

Just as standards of weights and measures are kept in Washington, D. C., so will the standard "Old Gold" be kept here. Permanent samples have been purchased and are kept in light proof cases to prevent fading. One standard is to be kept in the office of the president, Walter A. Jessup, another in the office of the dean of the graduate college, Carl E. Seashore, and a third in the office of Howard H. Jones, director of athletics.

All University organizations and persons who make use of the University color in any way should consult these standards before buying goods representing "Old Gold", so that a uniform shade will be used.

The selection of the standardized "Old Gold" was made after consulting a large number of people well qualified to judge on the basis of standardized exhibits. The shade chosen is the one proposed by the Cotrell & Leonard company, the largest firm in the country furnishing University colors, particularly for academic hoods.

Since 1865 old gold has had a history of varied shades. In that year a senior committee recommended gold as the University color. At this time old gold was a popular color, and, while gold was formally adopted, old gold was commonly used. However, in a few years the use of gold went out of style and various shades of yellow were used for the university color.

In 1894 old gold was decided upon as the University color in place of gold. A state field day was to be held and it was felt that for this occasion the color must be uniform if a respectable appearance was to be made at the field meet. There were many different opinions as to what the color should be, but it was generally desired to replace gold by old gold.

The Y. W. C. A., which was holding a fair on the day of the field meet, desired a uniform color with which to decorate canes, fans, banners, and badges, and requested that a vote be taken.

Students, faculty, and alumni were allowed to vote. The voting resulted 213 to 98 in favor of "Old Gold". After the election many students considered selecting a committee to decide on a certain shade of "Old Gold" and to keep it on hand to use in ordering, but such a step seems not to have been taken. From 1894 the University color has continued to be "Old Gold" though varying shades have been employed to represent it.

Rosenberg Makes Move Toward A Peace Proposal

By FERDINAND JAHN
(United News Staff Correspondent)
Berlin, March 27.—Germany is again stretching out her arms to America. Baron Von Rosenberg, foreign minister in the German cabinet, made a bid for the favor of the United States Tuesday when he told members of the Reichstag foreign affairs committee that the government favored Secretary Hughes' suggestion that an international conference be called to settle the Ruhr and reparations problem.

Germany, Rosenberg declared, now is ready to participate in such a conference which, he said, should ascertain:

1. To what extent Germany has already fulfilled the terms of the Versailles peace treaty.

2. What further payment could be reasonably expected.

3. By what means the obligations could be met.

Despite the decision of the cabinet against capitulation in the Ruhr the Rosenberg announcement is believed to constitute the biggest move toward a peace proposal yet made and has caused a stir in all quarters here.

Rosenberg stated that in event the Hughes plan is adopted the government is prepared to sound out the international money markets for the largest loan possible and is also prepared to provide the necessary guarantees for such a loan, the proceeds of which are to be handed over to France or the allies as an advance reparations payment.

The foreign minister said he favored bringing pressure to bear on the rich industrialists to pay the balance of the reparations account.

SUMMER TRIPS ARE PLANNED TO EUROPE

Miss Franklin Of Randolph-Macon College Is To Conduct A Tour

It is planned at this time year that summer vacation trips to Europe are being planned. This University has been notified of a trip which is planned for university women to tour Europe with a group under the charge of Miss Katherine M. Franklin of Randolph-Macon College at Lynchburg, Va. Any university women may be included in the group but the party will consist of only twenty people which fact makes it necessary that booking be made early.

The trip is particularly arranged for those people interested in history, art, and architecture for there is sufficient time for observation and study. The party plans to sail from New York on June 29, and leave for Paris on the next day. Various places which will be visited are: Avignon, Nice, Monte Carlo, Genoa, Rome, Naples, Pompeii, Amalfi, Sorrento, Capri, Florence, Venice, Milan, Bellagio, Lugano, Gletsch, Interlaken, Brunig Pass, Lucerne, University of Heidelberg, Frankfurt on-Main, Rhine by steamer, Cologne, Amsterdam, the Hague, Brussels, London, Stratford, Shottery, Warwick, Kenilworth, Liverpool, and Montreal.

This tour combines the most interesting countries, a carefully selected route, and experienced leader, a generous allotment of time, thorough sightseeing and numerous side trips and excursions. Miss Beatrice M. Roach will chaperon and she has studied at the Sorbonne in Paris and has had several years of experience in conducting parties through Europe. Her knowledge of foreign languages, art, history, and literature especially fits her to help the members of her party to appreciate and enjoy a European tour.

If any women in the University are interested in this trip they may secure further information from the office of the Dean of Women here.

HAROLD LLOYD is coming to Town, in his latest and greatest 7 reel super special "SAFETY LAST". See it, and you'll still be laughing a year from Saturday. At the PASTIME THEATRE Starting Saturday for 6 days.

MANY PEOPLE GO TO DENTAL CLINIC

Each Student Must Have 1197 Points For Graduation From Here

The number of people who have had work done in the University dental clinic up to this time this year surpasses the number of last year. There were 5,797 people who were patients at the clinic last year, while up to date this year there have been 5,587. Authorities at the clinic expect that there will be 6,500 patients by the close of the present school session.

It is usually thought that University students took advantage of the opportunities offered by the clinic more than town people, but it is found that there is a large number of people from out of town, particularly from Cedar Rapids, Wellman and other towns near here. Often the patients come in and remain a week or until their work is finished.

The clinical work done by the juniors and seniors is carried on by the point system. There is a certain amount of work which is required to be completed before the course may be completed. This year there must be a total of 300 points in gold. The following lists the points: in proximo-occlusal cavities, 10 fillings to make 68 points. May substitute four gold inlays. In proximo-incisal cavities; 5 fillings to make 33 points. May substitute three gold inlays. Proximal cavities, 8 fillings to make 32 points. May substitute two inlays. Gingival cavities, 5 fillings to make 30 points. May substitute three inlays.

There must be two porcelain inlays to make 8 points; twenty-five fillings to make 170 points in the 375 points for amalgam work; treatment and filling of infected root canals for 36 points; 200 points for prophylactic treatment; 75 for gum and pyorrhea treatment.

Each junior student is required to make at least 500 points during the year. The total number of points for junior and senior years is 1197.

BOATMAN FUNERAL IS TODAY AT BARNES CITY

The body of John H. Boatman G of Barnes City, who died Tuesday following an operation for appendicitis, was taken to Barnes City today by his brother Leslye Boatman G of Barnes City. The funeral will take place there today.

Friends of Mr. Boatman testify to his remarkable scholarship. He was a member of Phi Delta Kappa, honorary educational fraternity, and was working on his thesis for his master's degree.

He had made many friends at the University, at Hudson, and at Aurelia where he was superintendent of schools, and at the State Teacher's College where he graduated in 1916.

Publication Of All U. S. Treaties Not Checked by League

(By United News)

GENEVA, Mar.27.—Although the United States by reason of the fact that it is not a member of the League, is not obliged to register with the Secretariat for publication all of its treaties, secret or otherwise, the same result is obtained through the fact that nearly all of the rest of the nations are members of the League.

As a consequence when any of these negotiate a treaty with the United States, whether secret or otherwise, they are obliged to file it with the League so that the entire world may know of its existence.

The last two American treaties to be filed with the Secretariat are now negotiated with Norway providing for arbitration of the claims of Norwegian shipowners against the United States and one between England and the United States relative to extradition.

England has also just filed a treaty with Afghanistan providing for the establishment of neighborly relations.
