IOWA TROUNCES CORNELL 7-2 IN EASY GAME

Cornell Coach Praises Hawkeyes; Paulson Allows Nine Hits

(By Howard Gordon)

"The Iowa nine looked good to me in every department of the game, and with more polish should be able to hold its own in the Big Ten games." This statement was made by Coach J. "Biffy" Lee of the visiting Cornell team immediately after the game yesterday, which Iowa incidentally won by a 7 to 2 count. Coach Lee, who is an ex-leaguer and a product of Notre Dame, had a good deal of praise for the way in which the Hawkeyes performed during the contest; but attributed his own team's defeat only to its lack of preparation. Paulson, the long, lanky twirler who was on the mound for the visiting nine, did not live up to expectations and was in hot water in almost every inning. He was nicked for nine hits by the Hawkeye sluggers, one a double by Schirm in the sixth. It was the first game that the Cornell star has worked this season, however, and with a little better support behind him, several Iowa scores could have been cut off.

Marshall was Coach Sam Barry's choice to start on the rubber for the Hawks, and for the five innings he was in he sailed along in impressive style, having but one bad inning. In the third he was nicked for consecutive singles by Reeck and Faragher, Reeck scoring on Paulson's sacrifice. He allowed but three bingles in the five frames. Duhm, who finished the fray, also pitched sterling ball, aided by some smart fielding behind him. The visitors got to him for two hits, one coming in the sixth and the other in the final frame.

Iowa scored in every inning but the first two, and it was only by inability to hit with men on the bags, that the Hawks were kept from scoring in those. Coming up in the third with the score 1 to 0 against them, Hicks and Locke started the fireworks for Iowa with singles. Paulson passed Scantlebury for the second time, loading the sacks. The next ball pitched got away from Faragher, letting Hicks in with Iowa's first tally. Captain Barrett and Locke, then pulled a squeeze play, which worked perfectly, Locke scoring easily on the (Continued from page 5)

IOWA WOMEN WIN ST. LOUIS DEBATE

Three Of Five Votes Give Hawkeye Co-eds Victory By Wide Margin

Iowa co-eds won a victory over Washington University in a return debate last night at St. Louis on the proposition "Resolved: That France was justified in entering the Ruhr." A telegram received from Miss Mildred Freburg, coach of the team, read as follows: "Won. Three of five votes. Royally entertained. Our girls did their best." Previously it was not known that five judges would decide the debate, as three had been determined upon.

The woman who compose the winning team are Frances Baker A4 of Iowa City, Frances Dolliver A3 of Fort Dodge and Clara Levy A4 of Pueblo, Colo. They took the negative side of the question. The Iowa affirmative team won their side of the question here last Thursday Miss Dolliver and Miss Levy will remain in St. Louis until Thursday.

The two debates were managed and financed by the women's forensic council in cooperation with the department of speech. Miss Mildred Freburg coached both teams.

MENTAL TEST REVEALS STUDENTS' IGNORANCE

(By United News)

Evanston, Ill., April 10—College professors take delight in showing up their students by quizzes on general information. Psychology tests given to 700 Northwestern university students reveals that: Cristie Mathewson is an actress. A Julu has four legs. Huckleberry Finn was written by Booth Tarkington or Edgar Allen Poe. The Brooklyn National baseball team is known as the Sox.

SAYS DEATH OF CARNAVON NOT DUE TO CURSE

Professor Case Shows Superstition Is Responsible For Rumor

"The superstitions which are prevalent concerning Lord Carnavon's death are not to be greatly wondered at," said Professor Clarence M. Case of the Sociology department, in a discussion of the death of the English archeologist.

"Superstition in its many forms is not only common in the magical practices of primitive peoples, but exists today, as can be shown by the examples of the many people who actually fear events connected with Friday, the thirteenth, black cats, and broken looking glasses."

"Coupled with this tendency toward superstition," he said, "the imagination of the world is still overwrought and unhealed as a result of the war. We can expect upheaval of mind and thought when all our standards are crumbled at our feet. That is why, at the present time, so many people, even important intellectuals, are swayed by supernatural and spiritual beliefs of which Lord Carnavon's death is merely an example."

"The tradition of the curse which the Egyptians are supposed to have cast over whomever disturbs the graves of their pharaohs, the many stories of the fates of others, and the awe and wonder with which we have come to regard the Egyptians adds to the atmosphere of mystery with which we have surrounded Lord Carnavon's death," he added. "However we know very well that the Egyptians weren't demigods at all, but very human members of the old Mediterranean race."

Dr. Case said that, from a psychological standpoint it follows that if one believes that a great curse will fall upon him that which might result would be caused, not by the magical power of the Egyptians but by the working of the individual's own mind.

"People who are sufficiently scientific are not superstitious," he concluded, "nor are the people who are sufficiently religious. The former snap their fingers in the face of occult beliefs and practices, while the latter won't believe in a world of curses and dark magic."

Lady Astor Causes Uproar In Commons With Liquor Bill

(By United News)

London, April 10—Lady Astor, American born member of parliament caused an uproar in the House of Commons Tuesday when she called one of the opponents of her bill which would prohibit the sale of intoxicants to minors a "village donkey."

She also rebuked J. H. Thomas a member of the labor party who was recently one of the guests at her home. Lady Astor later withdrew the remark.

DEFEATED BILL AUGERS ILL FOR BONAR LAW

English Premier Party Outvoted By New Combination In Parliament

(By United News)

London, April 10—Bonar Law government was handed its rebuke first in the House of Commons since the downfall of Lloyd George's coalition ministry.

The two liberal parties—Asquithians and Georgians—and the labor party united Tuesday night and defeated a motion of the government concerning aid to former soldiers, by a vote of 145 to 138.

This is the first time that the conservative government has been outvoted in parliament. Although the situation from the government's viewpoint is considered most serious it is not believed that Bonar Law will resign, which action would precipitate a general election.

If the question arose concerning a vote of confidence in the prime minister it is generally believed that Bonar Law could muster the necessary force.

The vote however in the opinion of many foreshadows another coalition government in England if the liberal parties of Lloyd George and Herbert Asquith and the laborites are able to agree on a common policy.

It is considered significant however that the two wings of the liberal parties cast their vote together. There have been odds for sometime but the first concrete evidence that they might come together in a united party was offered Monday when the two factions succeeded in electing a member to the Commons from the Angelsea constituency.

Council Suspends 11 Organizations

Eleven campus organizations have been suspended from the student council to the failure of their representatives to attend meetings or to take part in the work of the council. The representatives and organizations of which they are delegates follow: Buel G. Beems A3 of Cedar Rapids, forensic council; John J. Dondore A4 of Iowa City, A. F. I.; Charles R. Wilson A4 of Iowa City, Liberal arts college; and Interdenominational board (no member).

FREE STATE TROOPS ON TRAIL OF DE VALERA

(By United News)

Dublin, April 10—Free state troops have been sent out with orders to bring in Eamonn de Valera, president—pretender of the "Irish Republic" following the capture of Liam Lynch, right hand man of De Valera. Lynch, chief of staff of the insurgent forces, was taken into custody by a squad of Free State soldiers after he had been severely wounded near Clonmel. It is believed that De Valera was not far from his aid when the latter was captured.

The members of the Free State government are confident it will not be long before the scattered bands of rebels which total only about 2500 will be in jail.

HARDING WANTS 1924 CANDIDACY TO BE HUSHED

Insists That Western Tour Is Not To Be For Political Purposes

(By United News)

Washington, April 10—President Harding is trying desperately to tear off the second term label which has been fastened on him by the recent announcement of Attorney General Daugherty. That casual statement coming from the Hardings own political advisor has been generally accepted as an official announcement of the president's intention to run for reelection, it has resulted in giving an entire tinge of political color to every act and utterance of the president.

He has become so alarmed that an authorized spokesman at the Whitehouse in a moment of exasperation declared that if the country insists in regarding Hardings contemplated western trip as a political tour the President would stay at home and play with Laddie Boy. He emphasized that an inspection of Alaska is the principal purpose of the trip and that the addresses in a number of cities on the way to the coast and back are merely incidental.

Harding's distress over the political reaction to the announcement of his candidacy is not construed as a rebuke to Daugherty.

At first Harding apparently was pleased with the Daugherty announcement recognizing that its real purpose was to head off the republican progressives like Hiram Johnson who were taking advantage of the President's silence regarding 1924 to advance their own prospects. The president was completely taken by surprise when the statement provoked an avalanche of political speculation. It has made him a political candidate one year in advance of the nominating convention. The democratic national committee in a statement issued Tuesday took occasion to make the most of the situation.

"Reactions to be noted in the newspapers throughout the country following the announcement of President Hardings candidacy for re-nomination and reelection indicates that the influence of his appeals to the people during his swing around the circle next summer will be greatly impaired by reason of this notice of his desire for a second term," the committee stated.

England May Take Action If Russia Executes Tikhon

(By United News)

London, April 10—Grave international complications impend if communist Russia places Patriarch Tikhon, head of the Greek orthodox church in Russia, before a firing squad as was done in the case of kevich of the Roman Catholic Church, according to information given out by the British foreign office.

Downing Street Tuesday stated bluntly that the British foreign office had been advised by an unofficial representative in Moscow that Budkevich who was shot from behind by an executioner in the Russian capital was convicted on charges of the "filmsiest evidence".

Great Britain, it was made clear, regards the charges against Patriarch Tikhon as "trumped up" and "filmy" and in case he is convicted may recall the British representative to Moscow and expell the Russia trade delegation at London, which is headed by M. Rothstein.

GENE'S ENTRY INTO MOVIES CAUSES STIR

(By United News)

Los Angeles, April 10—Gene Sarazen's entry into the movie world has started the golf bug buzzing around Hollywood. The American champion of the links has been engaged by Warner Brother's Studio to produce six one-reel pictures on the history of golf.

The producers intend to depict the ancient game down from the time Scotch shepherds used their crooks to swat pebbles to the recent past when youthful Gene made his meteoric rise from boyhood to the recognized peer of the country's golfers.

FRENCH SIEZE FOUR OF CUNO'S HIGH OFFICIALS

Paris Starts Offensive Against Leaders Of Resistance In The Ruhr

(By United News)

Berlin, April 10—France has started an offensive against the "higher up" in the German campaign of passive resistance against the French occupation of the Ruhr.

Four prominent Germans, high in the councils of the government of Chancellor Cuno, were detained by French officials Tuesday and their baggage searched for evidence that they were actively engaged in a plot to defeat the French plan to dig reparations out of the German industrial area.

Those arrested were Hugo Stinnes, Germany's richest industrialist who holds extensive interests in the Ruhr. Stinnes was taken from a train at Scharnmorst though which he was passing with his wife. After his baggage was searched by the French he was allowed to proceed on his way.

Edward Hahn, a member of the cabinet of Chancellor Cuno and known as the right hand man of Cuno was detained by the French and led off to a jail in Scharnmorst.

Adam Stegerwald, a former premier of Prussia who has been actively identified with the Cuno government. Stegerwald was released after he was taken from a train at Scharnmorst.

Herr Gieberts, a deputy in the reichstag, who was also allowed to proceed on his journey after his personal belongings were searched at Scharnmorst.

Stinnes and other the three were apparently on their way from Berlin to Essen to attend he funeral of the 13 Krupp workers who were killed by French soldiers during a riot over a week ago. They were detained under the provisions of the French order which makes it illegal for German cabinet ministers to enter the Ruhr.

Germany Tuesday was in mourning for the dead workmen in Essen. A funeral procession 13 kilometres long followed the bodies of the workmen to the cemetery on the outskirts of Essen.

German embassies throughout the world placed their flags at half mast in honor of the dead.

THEEVES STEAL BODY

(By United News)

London, April 10—Thieves broke into a mortuary Tuesday and stole a coffin containing a body, carting it for 3-4 of a mile in a wheelbarrow. The vandals deserted the wheelbarrow and coffin in the middle of the street after they discovered they were being pursued. Authorities believe the thieves sought the lead contained in the coffin.

MAN LEAPS TO DEATH FROM PARK BRIDGE

Suicide Most Logical Explanation Of Morrison's Death

(By United News)

Students, firemen, policemen, and others who volunteered to help drag the river in search of the body of Chauncey Morrison, had found no trace of the body up to a late hour last night. The dragging was begun about noon yesterday, and continued all day. Search lights were used to enable the searchers to keep working last night.

Blood splashes on the railing of the City Park Bridge over the Iowa River, a man struggling in the icy water for a brief minute, then sinking from sight, leaving only a winding pool of blood on the muddy waters of the swollen stream, was the story of a swift tragedy yesterday morning.

Chauncey Morrison, age 24, a student at the State college at Ames was the victim. Various theories have been offered for the death but the one considered most likely is that of suicide. Morrison had been taking treatment at the University Hospital, and a long illness may have been responsible for mental weakness which caused him to be unable to resist a sudden impulse to take his own life. John Brink a fellow patient, was the only person with him, and according to his own story was not looking at Morrison so did not see what happened. The blood stains suggest that he cut his throat in some way and then dove into the river.

Another theory is that some sort of hemorrhage may have caused weakness which made him fall over the edge of the railing. This would account for the blood stains on the bridge and water, and also for the fact that he was seen to struggle when he was floating down the river. At times in his struggles his head and shoulders and a portion of his chest was visible, and he shook his head as if he were choking.

Dan Leuz a workman who was working on a house near the west end of the bridge told the following story:

"We were working and a man came up to us and said that he wanted us to help get a man out of the river. We thought he was fooling (Continued on page 8)

Margaret Wilson, A3 of Iowa City, editor of Frivol was selected president of Theta Sigma Phi honorary journalistic sorority at a meeting held yesterday noon in Room 13 L. A. Miss Wilson is known as the only woman editor of a humorous publication in America besides being a writer of some especially good work in the Daily Iowan, and a member of the Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority.

Bernice Capion A3 of Mechanicsville, vice-president; Edith Rule A3 of Mason City, Secretary; Beatrice McGarvey A3 of Waterloo and keeper of the Archives, Victoria M. Boyles A3 of Iowa City.

Bernice Capion has edited the Iowan paper this year and has written some especially good editorials for the paper. Edith Rule has reported for the paper and is also a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma. The newly elected secretary, Beatrice McGarvey is the author of a number of criticisms of current books that have appeared in New York and eastern papers while Victoria Boyles is a competent editor upon the staff of the Daily Iowan.

The installation of the new officers will take place at the first meeting of the sorority in May.

"Babbit" Still Leads The Best Sellers

Sinclair Lewis's "Babbit" still holds the lead in current fiction popularity, according to the local book dealers. Next in favor comes "The Covered Wagon" by Emerson Hough, an Iowa writer born in Newton. Others also popular are "Tarzan and the Golden Lion" by Edgar Rice Burroughs, "Black Oxen" by Gertrude Atherton, and "Glimpses of the Moon" by Edith Wharton.

Peter B. Kyne has written a new Cappy Ricks story entitled "Cappy Ricks Retires." "Druids" by John T. Frederick and "The Tale of Triona" by William J. Locke, are proving popular. Other best sellers are "This Freedom" by A. S. M. Hutchinson and "Fair Harbor" by Joseph C. Lincoln, "Rough Hewn" by Dorothy Canfield, "The Breakin' Point" by Mary Roberts Rhinehart, "Robin" by Frances Hodgson Burnett and "One of Ours," by Willa Cather.

In general subjects, "Self Mastery Through Conscious Auto-suggestion" by Emile Coue, has greatest demand, followed by Jackson and Salisbury's "Outwitting Our Nerves" and Basil King's "The Conquest of Fear," and Emily Post's "Etiquette."

THREE WOMEN WILL GRADUATE IN LAW CLASS

Group Of 55 Students In Law College Will Finish Work Soon

Among the fifty-five seniors who will soon graduate from the law school and who until that time, will sport the traditional cane are three women. Two of these, Miss Jennie E. Hance and Miss Gladys Yeaman both received their B. A. degrees from this University, and will soon receive their degrees from the law school. The other of the three women is Mrs. Grace Gillett Larson who earned her B. A. degree at the Iowa State Teachers College, Cedar Falls.

Miss Hance, from Mason City, is secretary of the senior law class. She is a member of Kappa Beta Pi, legal sorority. In 1921 Miss Hance graduated from Liberal Arts after majoring in History and Political Science. Next year she plans to take up the practice of law in Mason City.

Miss Gladys Yeaman is from Sioux City, and is, also a member of Kappa Beta Pi sorority. While in the liberal arts college in this University she majored in political science, receiving a degree in 1921. Miss Yeaman will take up criminal law work with her father next year in Sioux City.

Mrs. Grace Gillett Larson and husband will both graduate from law this spring. They are now residing in Iowa City, but next year they will practice law in Charles City. Mrs. Larson is a member of Kappa Beta Pi sorority.

Leland T. Ryan of Winthrop is president of the senior class and also of the all-senior class. He is a member of Phi Kappa fraternity and of Delta Theta Phi legal fraternity. The vice-president of the class is S. Mason Ladd of Des Moines. Mr. Ladd received his B. A. from Grinnell and attended Harvard law school for a year. He is a member of Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity. His father was former chief justice of Iowa Supreme Court.

Henry W. Wormley of Kingsley is the senior class orator whose duty it is to give the oration of the entire class. He is a member of Alpha Omega fraternity and also of Phi Alpha Delta, legal fraternity. James W. Fay of Emmetsburg is treasurer of the class. Mr. Fay was also financial instructor of Cane Bearing due undoubtedly to efficiency along this line. He is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity and of Phi Delta Phi.

The president of the Law Students Association, Clyde Charlton of Rolfe is a member of the senior class. He is a member of Sigma Nu and Phi Delta Phi fraternities and of A. F. I.

FLOWER CHAPLAIN TO LECTURE HERE

Major Thomas Dickson Will Describe Battle Of Verdun

Major Thomas J. Dickson, chaplain in the United States army during the war, will deliver a University lecture at the University on April 24. Major Dickson's subject will be "America and the Battle of Verdun."

In France Major Dickson is known by the nickname of "the flower chaplain" because he instituted near a town in France a system for collecting flowers from the homes nearby to place on the coffins of the soldiers when the last rites had been spoken over the graves.

Major Dickson went to France with the sixth artillery expedition of the first division, the regiment that fired the first American shot in the war. He exposed himself to danger throughout the war by remaining on the battle line to care for the sick and wounded. On one occasion, the battle of Verdun, he took an active part in the fighting by operating a machine gun. He is also a veteran of the Mexican border wars and rendered service during the Philippine insurrection.

Because Major Dickson saw more different phases of the fighting than most of the American officers, and because of his high war record, his description of the battle of Verdun will make a lecture that is different and interesting.

TESTS DEvised BY KIRBY SHOW SPEECH ERRORS

College Student Only 2 Percent Better Than Average Of Prep Scholar

A grammar test which was recently devised by Dr. Thomas J. Kirby of the department of education, shows that, in spite of the exactness of freshman English and other college courses, there are certain usages and principles of grammar which continue to puzzle the college senior.

The test was given to a group of ninety-six seniors who enrolled in Dr. Kirby's education course and has also been given to groups of high school seniors. The results show that the college senior has made an improvement of about two per cent over the high school senior in usages of grammatical principles in sentences. The average grade made by the college senior was 88 2-5 per cent, while that of the high school senior was 86 1-2 per cent. The test demands that a choice of a correct grammatical expression be employed in a sentence, and that a choice of the correct principles governing the selection be made. The college senior made a grade of 84 3-4 per cent in choosing the correct principle, thus showing that he is often able to employ the correct grammatical usage, even though he does not know the rule governing his choice.

Certain forms were missed far more frequently than others. Thirty-nine of the ninety-six college seniors used the form, "He is the man whom you said was injured," instead of the correct, "He is the man who you said were injured." Other mistakes which were rather frequently made were, "I laid on the sand two hours," instead of "I lay on the sand," and "Mens' suits were advertised" instead of "Men's suits"; "We admire those kind of people" instead of "that kind"; "We are the ones he called, 'you and me' instead of 'you and I'" and "It is a slight to me who have always been your friend" instead of "me who has."

Certain forms as for example "That book is not hers" in preference to the vulgarism "That book is not hern" were not missed by any member of the class.

This test will be very useful to those seniors who will teach school as they can ascertain the principles most frequently missed and then stress the correct forms in their teaching.

In speaking of overcoming grammatical errors, Dr Kirby said, "First there must be a desire or motivation to correct the error; second, the individual must consciously and persistently set situations in which he can use the correct form and thirdly, he must practice until the correct usage becomes a well established habit."

"DON QUIXOTE" IS SARG'S OPPORTUNITY

Remarkable Ability Of Cartoonist Given Expression In Puppet Play

"Don Quixote" has given Tony Sarg a brilliant opportunity to use his ability as a caricaturist, for the delightful romance is nothing more than a caricature in itself, humorous by virtue of characters, and exciting from the very nature of the action. This story which is so hard to produce on the legitimate stage, readily lends itself to effective presentation on the tiny stage of the marionette show.

Even though the players are not over eighteen inches in height, the famous puppeteer who is bringing them to Iowa City today, has spared neither time nor money in perfecting the production to an almost unbelievable stage of completeness. The cost of the play has mounted up into figures of five digits, and the famous Tony Sarg himself worked uninterruptedly for six months creating the characters after the dramatization of the novel had been made. The people who are responsible for the speeches of the actors were also subjected to intensive training so that their part might not lack in perfection.

The whole play is a riot of fun as the doughty Don tilts at windmills and his faithful Sancho Panza delightfully blunders as waiter and drinks hardly in accordance with the eighteenth amendment. But the characters are not all the prosaic human, they include animals and even insects. The bumblebee who buzzes through a portion of the story creates more amusement than perhaps the wittiest speech of Sancho Panza, the clown of the performance. The frolicing lamb also comes in for his share of the fun.

From the nature of the performance it may seem a child's play but even the sportsman can find in it something which is particularly interesting to one of his turn of mind. That thing is the two-thousand yards of the finest imported silk trout-line which can be found necessary to use so that poor, hare-brained, Don might properly wag his jaw when others want to learn how many teeth he had lost in the fray.

Aside from the detailed perfection of the whole thing, there are many outstanding points of beauty, ranging from the fine, hand made shawls of the ladies of the court to the leather saddles of the fiery steeds, including of course Rosnante, who has been called "the prince of equine comedians."

FANS CAN LISTEN TO RADIO DIVORCE CASE

(By United News)
Los Angeles, April 10—Divorce court fans here will soon have an opportunity to "listen in" on the first "radio divorce" suit.

Kenneth Purdy bought a radio set in 1922, his wife charges. It was his first "affair" since they were married in 1917, but the newcomer promptly alienated the husband's affections and broke up the Purdy home.

Purdy would not speak to her during broadcasting hours, says his wife. If anything went wrong with the set, he would vent his irritation on her and on one occasion struck at her when he was operating his apparatus, merely because she came to close to his beloved set.

The "radio" defendant is an automobile distributor, and according to Mrs. Purdy, is capable of earning $500 a month if not too much occupied with antennae and wave lengths.

Commerce Club Will Give Annual Dinner April 17

Arrangements are being made for 100 places at the Commerce Club dinner to be held at the Pagoda Tea Room at 6:15 p. m. Tuesday April 17, for all members of the club and students of the college of commerce. The guests of honor are Leslie Vickers, chief investigator for the National Industrial Conference Board, and Prof. Clyde O. Ruggles from Ohio State University, both of whom will speak at the banquet.

Mr. Vickers will talk to commerce students at ten o'clock Tuesday morning, April 17, and during his visit will interview students interested in industrial research work. The National Industrial board which Mr. Vickers represents is an organization of over thirty industries such as the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, the National Electric Light Association and other extensive associations.

Professor Ruggles will be in Iowa City from April 16 to 19 inclusive during which time he will give talks to the transportation classes. Professor Ruggles is at present professor of transportation and public utilities of the college of Commerce and Journalism at Ohio State.

DENTS EXPECT TRICK VESTS TO COME SOON

The gray vests which the senior dents had planned to wear for the mark of distinction of the class will be ready to be worn within the next ten days. The members of the class had planned to don the vests immediately after vacation, but due to the spring rush of the clothing manufacturing companies, it was impossible to secure them sooner. The vests will of various senior classes, the vests will be worn until the close of this school year. The idea of the vests be made exclusively by a company secured through Bremer's store, and will be of a light gray color trimmed in a darker color of gray. As the other marks of distinction and of the monthly dinners which the senior dental students will hold were originated by members of the Dental Association at various meetings of the year.

BIG THRONGS EXPECTED AT ANNUAL RELAY

Cream Of Talent In Midwest Will Take Part In Event

(By Davenport Day)

All roads in Iowa on April 27-28 will lead to Des Moines where the fourteenth annual Drake university relay meet—the track and field classic of the middle west—will be staged on those dates.

Iowa University has already received a block of 400 tickets and indications are that every seat will be taken long before the day of the meet. Ames has the same amount of tickets and from reports from the state college they expect to sell out. Most of the colleges of the state have entries in the college section of the relay which is certain to draw attendance from them.

Reservations are coming in fast at this time and practically every city and town will be represented by from five to five hundred sport lovers at this premier athletic event of the year in the middle west. Hundreds of star athletes, representing the leading universities, colleges, prep schools and high schools in the country will compete in the meet, and it is predicted that a crowd of 15,000 track fans will fill the big Drake stadium to witness the various events.

Unless the dope is upset, new records in several events will be established. Those marks most likely to fall are the pole vault, broad jump, shot put, discus throw and some of the relay races. Good marks have been made in nearly all of the indoor meets of the recent winter season which is an indication of the calibre of athletes who will compete in the mid-west classic.

The announcement that Joie Ray, Ray Buker, and one or two other runners will attempt to break the world's mile record is creating much enthusiasm. Ray broke eight world records during the indoor season just closed. Buker has two victories over Ray to his credit and when these two come together a great fight should take place. It is the ambition of the famous Chicago runner to smash the mark set by Norman S. Faber of 4:12 3-5 made in 1916. The blond taxi driver has a world of confidence in himself and believes under favorable conditions he can chalk up his ninth world record.

Word has been received from Denver University that that institution will enter their star weight man, Platt, in the discus and shot put. He has thrown the platter 144 six inches this year and this mark is good enough to place in any kind of competition. His best performance in the shot put is 42 feet 1 inch.

Workman are busy at the stadium every day putting the cinder track in first class condition for the meet. Temporary bleachers are being erected to take care of the capacity crowd expected. The stadium will be elaborately decorated with flags and other ensignia for the classic this year, in honor of famous visiting athletes and coaches.

John L. Griffith, athletic commissioner of the Western Conference, will serve as starter, and Charles A. Rawson, former U. S. senator from Iowa, will act as referee.

PLAN TO MATCH WALKER WITH SHADE

(By United News)

Chicago, April 10—Chicago promoters are making the most of their opportunities to show starving fight fans some real battles. Jim Mullen left for New York Tuesday hoping to close negotiations for a match between Mikey Walker, the middleweight title holder and Dave Shade. This racket is planned for sometime the last of the month.

Meanwhile the soldiers, and sailors marine posts of the American Legion is seeking Pancho Villa or Frank Genare for a ten rounder at a show here April 23. Moore thinks he found out all about Pancho and Frankie at their bout in New York recently, and hence can beat either of them with comparative ease.

bunt. Paulson than clamped down and struck out Barton and Marshall, ending the inning.

Hicks got on again in the fifth on Boilen's error, stole second and third, and scored on Locke's long fly to center. In the sixth Duhm started things off with a single and later scored on Schirm's long double down the third-base line. Two more counters were put across in the seventh, when the Iowa base-runners stole everything in sight. Poepsel stole second and third after singling in the ninth, and scored the last tally for the Hawkeyes, on Hick's hit to shortstop.

Just to show Coach Barry that they could hustle in the field as well as at the bat, the gang completed two neat double plays in the game. Three errors were rung up by Iowa as against five for the visitors.

Paulson struck out eight Iowa batsmen in the game.

Yesterday's contest will be the last for the Old Gold nine until they take on Purdue at Lafayette Friday afternoon in the first Big Ten Conference game.

CO-ED SWIMMERS PRIMING FOR MEET

Former Stars Barred From Competition; Contest On April 14

Co-ed swimmers, through the women's pool every night practising dives, fancy swimming strokes, and races in preparation for the novice swimming meet to be held on April 14. Ample chance will be given to new swimmers to make a record because those who placed formerly will be barred from the events in which they placed. Four women will be entirely eliminated from the meet, having placed in former contests. Catherine Wright A4 of Des Moines was individual winner of the W. A. A. meet in 1921, and took second place in the meet held this year. Gladys Taggart A4 of Spencer placed third in the W. A. A. meets of 1920 and 1923. Two years ago Helen Spencer A3 of Des Moines was given second place in a swimming meet held here. Amy Benner A3 of Keokuk was individual winner of the W. A. A. meet held this year.

A number of women will be barred from certain events of the meet because they have placed in former years. Gladys Brooker A1 of Omaha, Neb., Doris Greene A2 of Des Moines, Mable Quiner A3 of Iowa City and Edna Grimm A4 of Clear Lake will be barred from entering the twenty yard breast stroke. Emily Russell A2 of Aberdeen, S. D. can not enter the forty yard free style. The twenty yard side stroke will not be open to Gladys Brooker A1 of Omaha, Neb. Beatrice McGarvey and Mable Quiner can not enter the twenty yard back stroke. Lillian Lawler G of Iowa City, Pauline Spencer A4 of Des Moines and Beatrice McGarvey will be barred from both the plain and fancy diving. The plunge will not be open to Mable Quiner and Sara Cox A2 of Iowa City. Dorothy O'Donoghue L1 of Clear Lake can not enter the event which calls for the length of the pool in the least number of strokes.

Several Members Of School Of Music Go To Convention

Several members of the faculty of the school of music leave today to attend the meetings of the society of Music Teachers of Iowa, of which Dr. Philip G. Clapp is president, to be held in Des Moines April 11-13. The organization met in Iowa City last year, assembling here at the time of the appearance of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

Tonight at eight o'clock the opening concert will be given in the Hotel Chamberlain ball room by visiting teachers and some of the Des Moines talent. Prof. Frank Kendrie and Dr. Clapp, of the University school of music, have a prominent place upon the program. They will play the Cesar Franck sonata for violin and piano.

Those from the school of music who in attendance at the convention are Dr. and Mrs. Philip G. Clapp, Prof. Walter Leon, Mrs. Mildred B. Paddock, Prof. Frank Kendrie, Mr. Jacoi Kwalwasser, and Aubrey Camp. Miss Esther M. Swisher will be in Des Moines for Friday only.

IOWA DEBATERS NEARLY READY FOR LAST MEET

South Dakota Appears In Final Contest Here on April 19.

The two Iowa debating teams have had their last practice debate against each other in final preparation for the intercollegiate argument against the University of South Dakota in the natural science auditorium at 7:30 p. m. next Thursday night and against the University of Nebraska at Lincoln on the same evening. After tonight's clash between the Iowa affirmative and negative teams, only practice in rebuttal and individual research into the proposition remains before the debate. The question for argument is the same as that on which Lord Robert Cecil has been speaking in the east during the past week, "Resolved: That the United States should enter the League of Nations." In training for this Iowa-Nebraska-South Dakota affair on next Thursday evening, the Hawkeyes have been searching out evidence and building cases for the opast month. Yesterday at 4 o'clock, the six Iowan arguers met for discussion in Close hall.

Tomorrow the Iowa affirmative team leaves to meet the Nebraskans at Lincoln. The Iowans are James M. Stewart L1 of Runnells, C. Edwin Baker A3 of Iowa City, and Robert E. Birchard A3 of Davenport. It is the Iowa negative which faces the South Dakotans in the natural science auditorium on Thursday night. These debaters, opposing the entrance of the United States into the League of Nations, are Paul C. Bucy A2 of Hubbard, Charles R. Sellers A2 of Davenport, and Buel G. Beems A3 of Anamosa. This debate will be judged by John Barnes, professor of public speaking at State Teacher's College. The meeting will be presided over by Prof. Benjamin F. Shambaugh, head of the political science department. The Iowa-Nebraska contest at Lincoln will be open forum and judgeless. The third debate is between Nebraska and South Dakota at Vermillion.

Iowa Co-eds Devote Large Portion Of Time To Primping

Iowa co-eds spend from an hour and a half to ten minutes a day, according to the length of their tresses, before the mirror improving their looks, according to figures received from representative women. The time spent in "doing the hair" and "primping" shows the widest diversity among women having "bobs," especially the dutch bob, and those who still pile their hair on top in marcelled glory. The average for the bobs is about seventeen minutes, but the unshown spend on an average forty minutes a day wearing out the carpet in front of the mirror.

Figures compiled at Northwestern university by the Y. W. C. A. show that the co-eds there spend on an average of forty-five minutes daily in improving their looks, and this, computes the Y. W. C. A., is equal to a year and 9 months of a girl's life, figuring that she starts primping at the age of fifteen and continues until she is seventy. According to the same estimates, the Iowa woman spends a year and a half of her life in the cause of beauty who wears her hair long. Her bobbed sister saves 552 hours if she keeps her hair short during the four years of her course.

The record for brevity seems to be held by one co-ed who claims she spends only three minutes a day for vanity's sake, while on the other hand it is rumored that one Iowa woman gets up at five o'clock in order to get a proper "do" on her hair.

The greatest "primping ground" in the University is the women's gymnasium where disheveled locks must be set straight, and powder applied after the grind of a swimming class or a baseball game.

THE MANIA FOR CHAMPIONS

In a late issue of "Vanity Fair" the editor has listed, "Our Twelve Superwomen." His pen records the names of Jane Addams, Charlotte Perkins Gilman, Mrs. Raymond Robbins, M. Carey Thomas, Julia C. Lathrop, Mary Roberts Rinehart, Mary Bradford, Carrie Chapman Catt, Katherine Bement Davis, Ellen Boole, Cecilia Beaux and Maud Wood Park. Whether these are actually out twelve superwomen or not depends largely on the definition of the term as the editor has it in mind but at any event it illustrates pretty well the mania that Americans have for lists and particularly championship lists.

The fascination in this championship list making seems to lie in the fact that it is impossible to come to an absolute and definite conclusion about them. Even when there is such a fixed standard as Walter Eckersall's all-American football eleven, it has its argumentative aspects dependent directly upon whether the arguing university had her hero placed on it or omitted; or when Grantland Rice decides to realize a few extra dollars by picking the ten best golfers extant today his decision may be disputed by some submerged champion and his constituents who have never trod the green with the favored ten.

But when there is no standard as a basis of comparison at all there is as much room for argument as the squirrel and the mountain had regarding their respective prowess which in this particular case ended with the squirrel's triumphant rebuttal, "You say I cannot carry forests on my back? Right-o, Old Timer, but neither can you crack a nut."

A late dispatch from Illinois states that the sixteen super-cows have been chosen. William J. McNally has taken pains in his new book, "The Barb" to pick the six best fraternities at Minnesota and the five best sororities; even the champion rat-catching and pea shucking teams have been picked. But there the matter rests.

Princeton professors pick the ten greatest works in the world's literature while Harold Bell Wright prefers to write them himself. "Vanity Fair's" editor names Our Twelve Superwomen and tomorrow he will get another selection from a contributor who will pick his wife, his mother, his wives' mother, his three daughters and then his six first loves while another will select Annette Kellerman, Helen Wainwright and the other ten from the beach at Atlantic City.

One's opinion is as good as another's. Any selection may be the greatest in their lines and whether fair or merely funny they are always gladly read.

CAPITALISTIC PROPAGANDA

An Iowan who writes on economics states that a large publishing company has censored a chapter on socialism which he saw fit to include in his manuscript. While the chapter did not advocate socialism it did fail to show the necessity of capitalism in our economic system. It was pernicious heterodoxy, so thought the publishers, for it presented a new angle on the problem and stript capitalism of its sentimental background. Capitalism has all the advantage in the economic war for it commands all the weapons. The press is unquestionably in its power. Pedagogues dare not attack such an invulnerable stronghold. Even the text books are colored, as the above would seem to indicate. Of late years, strangely enough, the aggression has come from the capitalistic side. Today their propaganda has so inveigled the working class, that these dupes are fighting against their own cause. Mention the word socialism to the common laborer and he immediately quakes in his boots. Writing on this phase of Americanism, H. L. Mencken says:

"Nowhere else in the world, to my knowledge, is there such elaborate machinery for inoculating the proletariat with safe ideas. Every agency of public information, from the press to the pulpit and from chautauqua to the legislature, is rigidly controlled, and every agency of counter-propaganda is under a legal ban. The results are visible in two familiar phenomena of the past few years; the complete collapse of organized radicalism, and even of organized orthodox socialism, in the nation, and the successful organization of such societies as the American Legion and the Ku Klux Klan into engines of repression.

"It is impossible to imagine English soldiers or German soldiers or even French soldiers converting themselves into armed bands for putting down all criticism of the capitalistic system. They are too keenly aware that, in the late war, their sufferings worked its benefit—that it fortified itself while they were languishing in the trenches. But in America, partly because very few American soldiers (and certainly not many members of the American Legion) got to the trenches, but partly because Americans have a special vulnerability to official propaganda and a special talent for conformity, it has been quite easy to turn the late conscripts into an army of capitalistic mercenaries, ready at all times to inflict barbarous punishment upon every effective critic of the capitalistic system."

The Sounding Board

WARREN'S GAME

"Bronzed by Florida sunshine and showing the beneficial effects of his five weeks' vacation in Dixie," etc., etc., President Harding has returned to Washington. Intrigued by the lead on the story, we read the whole article in the hopes of finding out something new about Warren's golf game, but were bitterly disappointed.

This may be due to the fact that he shoots one of those games of which the less said the better. It is reported on good authority that he uses only three clubs—driver, niblick and putter. With the driver he wafts the ball from the tee into a perfect niblick lie. There now follow numerous swipes with the niblick until the ball eventually comes to rest on the green, whereupon a half-dozen well directed blows with the putter usually suffice to coax the pellet into the hole.

No one but a president could play a game like that.

The optimistic viewpoint is well stated by an officer of the Illinois Parent-Teachers' association, who says, "I do not feel that there is an increase in the number of morons during the last fifteen years."

Does it pay to think? Sometimes A professor at Kentucky Wesleyan has been suspended for upholding the theory of organic evolution. And he thinks "it is not likely that such a thing as my suspension could have happened anywhere in America outside the boundaries of this state."

We're not so sure about that, but he certainly had the right stuff when he said that William Jennings Bryan "is thoroughly discredited as a thinker."

Navajo Dancers and Others

BY ARTHUR CHAPMAN
NEW YORK TRIBUNE

The recent pronouncements from the Indian Bureau to the effect that the Indians must discontinue much of their tribal dancing within the next year or suffer dire consequences would stand a much better chance of being obeyed if religion and dances were not so generally intertwined on the reservations.

The Sioux fought before they gave up their Ghost Dance, and it requires no particular stretch of the imagination to see some of the other tribes resisting before giving over ancient and unwarlike ceremonials which were a part of their religion long before the Indian Bureau came into being.

The Navajos, for instance, have a dance in which are linked tribal art, religion and legendary lore. Also it is supposed to have potent influence in healing the sick. Giving up this Ybe-chi dance would not be easy for the Navajos. No doubt considerable pressure would have to be brought to bear from Washington to bring about that undivided devotion to agriculture which the silencers of the tomtom wish to see in effect among these independent people.

Not many white persons have witnessed the sacred dance of the Navajos. If one has seen the dance, which is the writer's privilege, he can sympathize with the Indians in their unwillingness to give it up. The dance starts with the ceremonial of the sand paintings—something typically Navajo. These sand paintings are made in a large, circular lodge, or hogan, under the direction of the shaman, who has the dance in charge. In the dim light afforded by a hole in the roof of the hogan several chosen artists, with little pouches of colored sands at their belts, create the sacred symbols which represent the legendary wanderings and adventures of the Navajo god, who is called Ya. The floor is covered smoothly with plain sand, and when the painting is complete the general effect resembles a huge Navajo blanket. Zig-zag designs represent lightning, and there are other designs which stand for rivers and mountains and the corn and the pumpkin. Every blanket design, swiftly and artistically made by these sand painters, tells some story of the wanderings of Ya.

The sand paintings occupy the first three days of the ceremonial, the evenings being given over to dancing.

After each sand painting is completed and has been duly admired by the Indians it is destroyed with due ceremony and preparations are made for the next one.

Generally a Ya-be-chi dance is held for the benefit of some sick person, who is brought in to view each painting. The dances continue for nine nights and are different each night. The music is furnished by drums and a chorus. The music is complicated, and, according to the Indian custom, is sung in unison, there being no part songs. There is great rivalry among the choruses furnishing the music. If one wanders about the sand hills of the Arizona or New Mexican desert just previous to a "big sing" of this sort, he will stumble on a chorus, in some out-of-the-way place, rehearsing just as earnestly as any church choir "back home". And when one listens at the complicated measures, sung so perfectly in unison, it is easy to understand why rehearsals are necessary.

The various teams of dancers taking part in the nine nights' entertainment are likewise well trained rivals. In some of the dances the medicine men appear and scatter sacred meal upon the dancers, dipping the flour from a bowl, and accompanying this ceremony with long intonations.

As the Ya-be-chi dance progresses those who take part become more deeply interested. The rival choruses and competing sets of dancers seem to throw an increasing spirit of rivalry into their work. Occasionally there creeps in a note of occultism, which goes back to the Asiatic origin of the Navajos. Tricks of magic are performed which would not be out of place in India. The fire dance, with which the long ceremony is concluded, sees the dancers lashing themselves with whips of blazing bark, yet escaping injury as remarkable a performance as that of the Hopi snake dancers, who handle rattlesnakes with material injury from any bites they may receive.

The other tribes have dances which mean as much to them as the Ya-be-chi dance means to the Navajo, though few of the tribal dances are as long or elaborate as this ceremonial of our Southwestern Bedouins. To see the Pueblo Indians at Taos, for instance, dancing in white robes and with the bright yellow leaves of the frost-touched cottonwood waving in their hands, on the eve of San Geronimo Day, is something at once beautiful and awe-inspiring.

The bureau that would force the Indians to forego such ancient rituals is indeed assuming a heavy responsibility.

THE QUESTION BOX

(Q.) Why does not the state build a Union building if the students need one so badly?

(A.) The tax rate in Iowa is already a high one and the state is heavily taxed to build all the required buildings at the state institutions. So many buildings are necessary to provide for the bare educational needs that the social and personal needs of the student body can not command attention until the other needs are first provided for. The University is growing so rapidly that it seems almost impossible to keep pace with the bare necessities.

If the state can meet the ever-increasing demands for classrooms and academic needs certainly the alumni, friends, students and faculty can provide for this one great social need. Other universities have done it and still others are doing it, why not Iowa? This Memorial Union must be built through the generosity and sacrifice of the sons and daughters of Old Gold.

(Q.) Don't present business conditions justify my refusal to pledge?

(A.) Two years ago that argument was effective when the giver did not take into consideration the terms of payment. Now business conditions are notably improved in every way. Very few of Iowa's graduates or ex-students are farmers. We find them in the professions, in banking, in mercantile and manufacturing interests and in the teaching profession. The farmer as well is now coming into his own. Financial reports, bank statements and estimates of present and future business conditions are all favorable and point definitely to greater prosperity during the five years these pledges will run. Other universities have completed their campaigns under conditions no more favorable than our own

TEACHERS OF LANGUAGE TO MEET TOMORROW

Third Annual Meeting Of Language Tutors Will Last For Two Days

The third annual conference of modern language teachers will open Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock in room 104 of the liberal arts building. The program will be opened by a greeting from Dean George F. Kay and three addresses will follow. J. F. Deihl, vice-principal of the Boy's Technical high school of Milwaukee, Wis., will speak to the conference on "Reading Ability." Prof. A. Coleman, of the University of Chicago, former editor of the modern language Journal, will speak on "Objectives in Language Teaching." Prof. E. H. Lauer, of the German department, will give an address entitled "Incredibili Celeritati." Prof. Ralph E. House, of the Spanish department, will preside.

A discussion and exhibition of Spanish, French and German textbooks will be held in room 121, liberal arts, under the supervision of Miss Helen E. Eddy, of the University high school, Prof. C. F. Ward of the French department, Miss Ilse Probst of the Spanish department, and Prof. C. H. Ibershoff of the German department.

In the evening M. Firmin Roz, the well known French journalist, author and critic, will speak in the French language on "French Opinion and the Great Problems of Today." This meeting will be held in the Triangle club rooms at 3 o'clock. Following his address, there will be a informal exchange of social amenities of which Prof Stephen H. Bush, head of the romance language department, will have charge.

The conference will be continued Friday morning afternoon and evening. All of the advanced French classes will be excused so the students will have an opportunity to attend these sessions.

Pre-Medics Given Chance To Lighten Regular Schedules

Pre-medics hard on the trail of the coveted degree of M. D., who have completed their entrance credits to the college of medicine, may get full time and subject credits during summer school on certain work thereby lightening their schedules during the regular school year, according to announcement today from the college of medicine.

The following subjects will be offered this summer leading to the degree of doctor of medicine: physical chemistry, entire course; embryology, entire course; histology, first semester only; physiology, one semester only.

"Any one course can be completed in the six weeks session, and by conference with the departments the student may be able to complete two of the courses," reads the announcement.

BOSE TO TELL OF CUSTOMS IN CHINA

Political Science Professor To Talk At Meeting To Honor Chinese Women

Dr. Sudhindra Bose, instructor in the department of political science, will speak at the regular Y. W. C. A. meeting in the liberal arts drawing room at 4 Wednesday afternoon. Dr. Bose will speak on Chinese customs and traditions, in connection with China week, an observance by the Y. W. C. A. to arouse interest in the work being done by the association in China. All women in the University who are interested are invited to attend.

One thousand hand painted invitations done by members of the art department have been sent out to association and faculty members for a tea party to be held Friday afternoon from 3:30 to 5:00 in the liberal arts drawing room. The party is given in honor of the Chinese women who are attending the University. Decoration will consist of posters, mottoes, pictures and curios borrowed from foreign students here.

AT OTHER CAMPUSES

Dean Isidore Loeb has been named acting president of the University of Missouri, to succeed Dr. J. C. Jones, whose resignation takes place April 29. Dean Loeb was selected by a commission of a board of curators for the University.

SENIORS RECEIVE INTERNE BILLETS

Sixteen Given University Hospital Positions; Others Scatter

Practically all the seniors in the college of medicine have made arrangements for taking their year's internship in an approved hospital in compliance with the regulation of the Iowa state board of examiners. Sixteen of the students have received appointments in the hospitals here. Prof. Samuel T. Orton, director of the psychiatry hospital, has recently nominated for appointment in his department Everett S. Rademacher M4 of Gilmore City and Roletta O. Jolly M4 of Pleasantville.

Twenty-seven of the men have looked farther afield for internships and will be scattered the breadth of the country after July 1. Carter C. Hamilton M4 of Thornburg will go to Miller hospital, St. Paul, in company with Emmet V. Kenefick M4 of Eagle Grove, Keith W. Diddy M4 of Redfield and David M. Gallagher M4 of Iowa City. Frederick E. Barrett M4 of Iowa City will serve his internship at Ogden, Utah, Raymond A. Burnside M4 of Des Moines goes to the Methodist hospital at Des Moines, Edward C. Vogt of Iowa City to St. Vincent's hospital, Cincinnati, Ohio, and John Eiel M4 of Buffalo Center to La Crosse, Wis., in company with Vincent J. Horton M4 of Lime Springs. Permission has been received from the state board of examiners to take the state board examinations in June so that it will be unnecessary for graduates to return after their internships to take them. They will not be given their licenses to practice until they have completed their year's service, however.

Small Spruce Trees May Solve Mystery Of Ill-Fated Ship

(By United News)

Chicago, April 10—A number of small spruce trees tied in bundles caught in a haul by fisherman near Two Rivers, Wisconsin, Monday may solve a mystery of Lake Michigan's Davy Jones' locker which has baffled trappers, lumbermen and fishermen for years.

Twelve years ago the schooner "Rouse Simmons" bearing its cargo of spruce trees to gladden hearts of thousands at Christmas time was caught in a gale on Lake Michigan and went down with all on board. No trace of the crew, its skipper or cargo has even been discovered.

Several weeks ago several fishermen dropped their nets into Two Rivers. Then came inclement weather making dragging of the nets impossible until Monday. Bits of the unidentifiable wreckage and numbers of small spruce trees were found in the net as part of the haul.

Captain James Schuenemann, commander of the ill fated schooner, had made the annual journey from Barlie's Harbor to Chicago for a number of years prior to 1910. Although his wife waited for days and days long after the ship was due in port, there came no word, so she outfitted a new ship and sailed it herself until her children grew large enough to aid her.

The fishing grounds of the Two Rivers fishermen are on the regular longshore traffic between Norwood and Chicago and lakemen pointed out that Mrs. Schuenemann must have sailed over the very spot where it is now believed the sunken ship is located.

Man Wants Conflict Not Peace States Iowa Professor

Professor G. T. W. Patrick, department of psychology and philosophy, is the author of an article entitled "War As a Form of Relaxation" which is used as one of a group of selected readings in the department of sociology in this University.

Professor Patrick says in part: "It is by no means sure that what man wants is peace and quiet and tranquility. That is too close to ennui, which is his greatest dread. What man wants is not peace but a battle. He must pit his force against someone or something. Every language is most rich in synonyms for battle, war, contest, conflict, quarrel, combat, fight. German children play all day long with their toy soldiers. Our sports take the form of contests in football, baseball, and hundreds of others Prize fights, dog fights, cock fights, have pleased in all ages. When Rome for a season was not engaged in real war, Claudius staged a sea fight for the delectation of a immense concourse, in which 19,000 gladiators were compelled to take a tragic part, so that the ships were broken to pieces and the waters of the lake were red with blood.

What men want, is something more precititious, something with more zest in it, with more adventure, than in a utopia of society where there is no poverty of crime.

Man is not originally a working animal. Civilization has imposed work upon man, and if you work him too hard he will quit and go to war. Nietzsche says man wants two things danger and play. War represents that kind of danger."

ENGINEERS TO BE GIVEN FIVE YEAR COURSES

Technical Staff Will Plan More General Training For Students

At a recent meeting of the technical staff of the college of applied science the project of changing the four year engineering courses to five year courses received the unanimous endorsement of the staff. The following committee was appointed to formulate a course of study: Dean W. G. Raymond, Prof. B. J. Lambert of the department of civil engineering, Prof. A. H. Ford of the department of electrical engineering, Prof. B. P. Fleming of the department of mechanical engineering, Prof. Edward Bartow of the department of chemistry, Prof. Sherm M. Woodward of the department of mechanics and hydraulics, and Prof. F. G. Higbee of the department of drawing and descriptive geometry.

The general principles which the committee has been asked to keep in mind in formulating the course of study are the following:

(1)—That the courses shall include within the first four years an increased amount of the so-called liberal arts studies, as much or more of the basic sciences as are now given in our present course, and as much of the basic engineering subjects as time permits, to the end that those who leave the course at the end of the four years of successful study may be said to have a somewhat more general training than now and a sufficient training in the fundamentals of engineering to enter that work and succeed if they have the necessary personal qualifications.

(2)—That the course shall include a fifth year of highly specialized engineering work, coupled with "an increased attention to the social aspects of engineering", to develop in engineering students the spirit of, and a capacity for active leadership.

CHICAGO ATTORNEY OUTLINES CLEANUP

Iowa Oriental Dancers And Collapsible Swords To Be Taboo

(By United News)

Chicago, April 10—When Hiram and Hezekiah speed their Lizzie along country roads to mix with the ballyhoo, crowds and noise at the county fair or carnival or even the circus they are going to find that "things ain't what they used to be."

The note from a scotch bagpipe may take the place of the tom-tom-tom-tom and the "oriental" dancers from Missouri and Iowa will be buried deeper than old King Tut was with odds of 100 to 1 against a discovery of their tombs.

The "slick city feller" won't be allowed to sell a two cent balloon for two bits, and the short change artist will wear hand cuffs if he doesn't watch out.

This is what Attorney Thomas J. Johnson, of Chicago, "czar of the outdoor showmen" has on his clean-up menu.

And the house-cleaning is to start right away, Johnson says. It won't be a thing like a congressional investigation, he says, because he wants to make the outdoor shows safe for the suckers, and wants it done right away, too.

Johnson is council for the showmen's league of America, which, he says, embraces in its fold all the respectful and leading showmen of the country. It was at a recent meeting of ten of the league's leading members that Johnson was chosen to wield the big stick over the unscrupulous showman.

In so many words, Johnson's ultimatum to the outdoor showmen means just this down to brass tacks, as he explained it.

It means that if Hezekiah is told there is a 50 foot snake in that sideshow and that he must fork up a dime to see it, that he'll see a 50-foot snake and not a four-inch moccasin when he gets in there—that is if he pays his dime and no one ever slips by the door-man but the cops.

Tillie, the fat woman will have to be fat. If she weighs 650 pounds ygbg byggymwyrbpbpppywyakoh by the manager's scales, 650 pounds she must weigh by any other scale nearby.

Henri, the sword eater, will sure have to learn to eat steel or else—Collapsible swords will be about as welcome to Johnson's eye as Volstead at a bootlegger's picnic.

ALUMNI PRESENT RARE SPECIMENS

Zoological Museum Is Given Extensive Collection By Colorado Man

Rare additions have been made to the zoological museums of the University of Iowa through the courtesy of two alumni, Alfred M. Bailey, curator of birds and mammals in the Colorado Museum of Natural History, Denver, Colo., and Clarence J. Albrecht, curator of zoological exhibits at the University of Washington. Numerous birds and some animal skins comprise the new collections which were presented first to Professor Homer R. Dill, director of the vertebrate museum at the University of Iowa, who in turn presented them to the university.

Mr. Bailey's collection consists of material from the southwestern part of the country. Included in the gift were very rare Scaled Partridges, Road Runners, Long Crested Jays, Mountain Quail, a Raven, Lewis' Woodpecker, a number of different ducks and two antelope skins to supplement the university's present group. "We are especially glad to get this material because we have very little from the southwest," said Professor Dill.

An Alaskan group of birds is now being prepared for mounting in the university museum which was also given to Professor Dill and the university by Mr. Bailey. This collection is valued at many thousands of dollars. The birds and scenery will be arranged to copy exactly after the native habitat. Mr. Bailey graduated from the university in 1918 after specializing in museum work.

The Albrecht collection consists of a series of Bohemian Waxwings, a Pileated Woodpecker and a number of sea ducks. Mr. Albrecht has promised Professor Dill a complete collection of sea birds from the Puget Sound region. "One of the most gratifying things about this work is to have the students who graduate send back these splendid gifts," said Professor Dill. Mr. Albrecht graduated in 1914.

Crippled French Scientist Martyr Extends Sympathy

(By Hudson Hawley)

United News Staff Correspondent Paris, April 10—Dr. Charles Vaillant, French scientist, both of whose hands have been ut away bit by bit as a result of the mysterious disease engendered by handling an X-ray outfit, went to the Lariboisiere Hospital the other day to visit Dr. Soret, of Havre, who had just been forced to undergo the amputation of part of his right hand, the second operation of the kind in the course of his long radiographic career.

When Dr. Vaillant left, Dr. Soret, who is close to seventy, remarked: "What a pity that he should have lost both hands! He is young and his life work is ahead of him. I have finished mine, I have no longer need of hands, I feel that I have accomplished a lot of work, useful work, I hope. The only thing that I regret is that the loss of my hands—further operations like that of this morning are inevitable in my case—will prevent me from indulging in my one hobby, which is gardening."

More than thirty years ago, Dr. Soret was carrying on experiments similar to those of Roentgen, the famous discoverer of the X-rays: in an inadequately fitted laboratory in Havre. The German scientist won the glory of the discovery of the radio emanations and the obscure French physicist, not at all embittered, devoted himself to the utilization of the new weapon in the fight against disease. In 1914 his left hand had to be amputated. Today both hands have been sacrificed by this martyr of science and love of the healing art.

MCERICKSON IS NOW AT LOMBARD

Former Iowa Student Now On Staff As Professor At Galesburg School

Prof. E. McErickson, who took a Ph. D. degree here in 1922 and who is now a professor of history at Lombard college, is the writer of an article in the Historical Outlook of April, 1923.

The article entitled "Third Year of the League of Nations" reviews the three years of the league, listing its successes and failures. In the course of his article Prof. Erickson says, "A fair minded person must admit that the league is functioning, that it has accomplished much that is worth while and that it is justifying its existence. It is true that it has shown weaknesses and that it has been powerless to solve some great political and economic problems. But it is not fair to expect this organization to overcome international animosities and to establish order out of political and economic chaos all within three years. The fact remains that the league has made a good beginning in dealing with such problems."

UNION WORKERS WILL MEET TODAY

part in the inter-collegiate debate, visited the five people whose names appeared on his list, immediately after the dinner, Monday evening, which marked the opening of the campaign. Before nine o'clock Tuesday morning, Mr. Stewart turned in five pledged cards with subscriptions amounting to $850.00.

R. F. Fitzgerald stated yesterday afternoon that he is very much encouraged by the attitude of confidence in and loyalty to the Union which is beginning to pervade the campus. This attitude is no doubt due to the fact that such men as Virgil Hancher L2 of Rolfe, Gordon Locke L1 of Denison, Aubrey Devine L3 of Des Moines, and all other campus leaders are giving their loyal support to the Union.

The women who have taken part in the campaign have shown the finest spirit. At a meeting of the majors yesterday a new note of confidence was expressed.

Several of the Union workers have found that on their cards the names of only three or four persons, who have not subscribed to the Union, appear instead of five as was the original plan. This is due to the fact that many students have called at Mr. Fitzgerald's office, asking that they be given something to do in helping make the campaign a success. Monday evening a captain regretfully handed to Mr. Fitzgerald the card bearing the names of five persons, after it was learned that one of the workers had found it impossible to take part in the campaign as he had planned. Early the next day four students called asking for a list of names.

because he said it in such a strange way. We asked him if he was sure there was a man in the river and he said, "Yes, he isn't on the bridge, and he's down in the river and won't come up. I think he must have cut his throat."

"I ran for help, and we cut loose a boat to go out on the river after him. We could see him struggling in the water all the time we were getting the boat loose. He floated about two or three hundred yards down the river before he finally sunk."

"Brink stayed and talked to one of my men for a few minutes, then he said, 'Well, I guess I'd better go back to the hospital and tell them he won't be there for dinner.'"

David A. Armbruster, head of the Iowa Life Saving Corps of the Red Cross, thinks that the body has gone a long way down the river.

"His body never would sink," he said. "The blood in his throat would prevent water from getting into his lungs. A person who drowns sinks because the lungs fill with water. The body then lodges against an obstruction and stays there until it is swollen enough to float. Morrison's body would not act in that fashion at all. It will be found farther down the river."

An Actual Experience

A young lady, University student, called at this bank a few days ago and advised one of our tellers that a check for $35.00 and $30.00 in cash had been taken from her hand bag. This young lady was able to get a duplicate of the check and with it she immediately opened a checking account with this bank. The cash, however, was a total loss, except in that it served to teach a lesson. In the future this young lady will carry her check book instead of the cash and will pay her bills by check.
