INTERNATIONAL NIGHT SHOWS FOREIGN LIFE

Cosmopolitan Club To Present Program Tomorrow Night

"The International night program which the Cosmopolitan club is to present tomorrow will give the University a chance to show its support of the foreign students on the campus. It is my conviction that everything which that organization does is highly worthy of the consideration of the student body," said Lee Norvelle, instructor in the department of speech, speaking of the program to be presented by the club in the natural science auditorium. The entire entertainment is made up of little glimpses into the life of foreign lands, and costumes from those lands have been imported by the students to make the production effective in every way possible.

The price of admission is fifty-five cents including war tax, and the proceeds are to be used in starting a foreign student loan fund. Tickets may be purchased from the members of the club, the University Book Store, the Iowa Supply, Coast's, and Ries' Book Store. Reservations will be made tonight at the Iowa Supply from 6:00 to 7:00 and on Wednesday morning from 8:00 to 12:00.

Harvey Wants U. S. To Join England On St. George Day

(By United News) London, April 23—Ambassador George Harvey in an address to members of the Royal Society of St. George today suggested that America share St. George's Day. "Britannia and Columbia clasping hands across the sea gratefully and gladly doing homage to their common motherland."

Harvey paid a tribute to "Old England" to whom, he said, America "owes her very being."

England, he declared, is true to English principles as against socialist theories and true to English Christian faith was opposed to bolshevistic and pagan practices.

ARMY "FLOWER CHAPLAIN" TO SPEAK TONIGHT

"America And The Battle Of Verdun" Subject Of Lecture

A historic lecture on the World War entitled "America and the Battle of Verdun" will be given tonight at 8:00 o'clock in the natural science auditorium, as a regular number of the University lecture course, by Lieut. Col. Thomas J. Dickson, "flower chaplain" of the United States army. The lecture is free to the public.

Lieut. Col. Dickson has been delivering lectures for the past several years and in the last three years has devoted most of his time to lecturing. He has appeared before almost all of the large colleges and universities and the press notices of both his oratory and his subject matter are most flattering.

From here Lieut. Col. Dickson will go to Cedar Rapids where he will appear before the Kiwanis club on Wednesday, then to the University of Minnesota and from there on a long circuit of engagements.

Lieut. Col. Dickson made a great record in the war for the time spent on the front and his part in action. He went to France with the first American artillery expedition and was chaplain of the sixth field artillery of the first division. He was offered relief from his duties at the front on several occasions but declined the offer, expressing his wish to remain with the troops. Instead of retiring to the rear during battle he hung on to the last looking after wounded soldiers.

Once he was in a hurry to get to two dying artillerymen and took a short cut which led him across No Man's Land in front of a battalion of Yank infantry which was forced to cease firing to prevent hitting him. The Boche, unable to figure it out, stopped firing also while the chaplain walked his horse across the open.

Lieut. Col. Dickson is called the "flower chaplain" because he established the custom of gathering flowers from the French homes to place on the soldiers' graves and coffins. Every day for a time he held funeral services at 4 o'clock in the afternoon so that every honor might be rendered to the dead soldiers. Many times the funerals were bombed and shelled.

GIVE LABOR BEER IS GOMPERS' PLEA

Unions Will Do The Rest In Making Good Citizens, Labor Head Declares

(By United News) Albany, New York, April 23—Give the workman his beer and protection against cheap imported labor, and the unions will complete making him a first class American citizen. So declared Samuel Gompers president of the American Federation of labor speaking Monday for a state compensation plan before the New York legisature.

Gompers said he favored been but not saloons. He attacked the reported attempts of Elbert H. Gary, U. S. Steel head and others, to lift the immigration bars to permit more southern European mill hands to enter this country.

KANSAS TAKES CONTEST FROM HAWKEYE NINE

Visitors Get 8 Hits Off Iowa Pitchers And Win 7-5

Iowa lost to the University of Kansas team, score 7-5, yesterday afternoon on Iowa field. It was the first defeat of the year for the Hawkeyes by a non-conference team. After the second inning Kansas exhibited a versatile machine, with fielding ability and batters who are clever with the sticks when timely hits are needed. Davis who did the pitching for Kansas kept the Iowa batters from fattening their averages, as they have in other games. All they got during the game was four hits while the Kansas men got to Becker's and Fabricius' offerings for eight hits. Davis' pitching was one of the features of the contest. He never used speed but effectively mixed a slow one with his curves.

In the first inning neither team scored. In the second with one down the Iowa men took advantage of a couple of slips and with the aid of a hit put over the first score.

The Iowa infield went to pieces in the third and Kansas got three scores.

Iowa put two across in the fourth inning after Kansas had added one to their string. Iowa came within one of tying the count in the seventh when Chaloupka's homer into left field and Poepsel's hit were the big factors in boosting the total to five. Iowa failed however to bunch hits after the lucky seventh. In their part of the ninth Kansas got another making the total 7-5.

Four of the visitors' runs were earned. The seven errors that lent a sombre aspect to the playing of the Iowa team accounted for the rest. Kansas made only two errors.

NOTED HUMORIST WILL SPEAK HERE

Stephen Leacock, Personal Friend Of Dean G. F. Kay To Give Lecture Saturday

Stephen Leacock, noted Anglo-American humorist, will deliver a University lecture here on next Saturday evening. Professor Leacock is head of the department of political economy at McGill university at Montreal, Canada.

George F. Kay Dean of the college of liberal arts, is personally acquainted with Professor Leacock. Both were born in the same township in York county, Canada. The two spent their boyhood days four miles apart and went to adjoining country schools.

After securing his country school education, Professor Leacock attended the University of Toronto and as an undergraduate there made a brilliant writer. While at the University of Toronto he specialized in modern languages and political science.

Later he pursued graduate study at the University of Chicago. He received a Ph.D. degree in political science there and is stated to have passed a more brilliant oral examination than anyone who had previously taken that degree in that department.

For many years he has been connected with McGill university and is now well known not only in America but abroad as a writer and as a lecturer. This is Professor Leacock's second visit to the University. Two or three years ago he lectured here and made a fine impression on all who heard him.

NINTH STRAIGHT VICTORY TAKEN BY RIFLE TEAM

Iowa Marksmen Win Over Lehigh University By 2-Point Margin

Winning by 2 points, the narrowest margin this year, the Iowa varsity rifle team won its ninth straight victory of the season last week-end, over the marksmen of Lehigh University. The total score was 985 points to 983 points, out of a possible 1000. The match was fired from the prone position only, with 10 men firing on each team. For the Iowa team, Gibson and Woods both made perfect scores, the possible 100.

The individual score of the Iowa men follows.

F. D. Gibson	100
R. C. Woods	100
P. Custer	99
D. W. Bray	99
W. J. Dehner	99
G. Houston	99
George Fabricius (c)	98
G. H. Hickox	97
E. R. Kinniard	97
K. Kinsler	97

In the John-Hopkins match which was also fired last week-end, the Iowa team fired the best score that has been made in a dual match for the last two years. The reports from John-Hopkins have not been received but Captain Martin believes that the Hawkeye team easily won the match. The last match of the scheduled season will be fired this week-end with Massachusetts Institute of Technology. After the season closes, work will be started for the Governor's Day match.

AUDIENCE PLEASSED BY SPANISH PLAYS

Three Plays Presented Last Night In Little Theater To Be Repeated Tonight

The first presentation of the three Spanish plays under the direction of Miss Margaret Mulroney and other members of the Spanish department last evening in the Little Theatre on the third floor of the University high school was a most successful production. The plays will be repeated again this evening in the same place at 8:00 o'clock, in order to accommodate all those who wish to attend.

Different settings were used for each of the three plays. For the first production, "No Smoking," the stage was made to appear as a compartment in a train. A park in Spain with characteristic palm trees and oleanders was reproduced for the play, "A Sunny Morning" and the old-fashioned Spanish home of two old people was used for "The Old Maids."

The play "A Sunny Morning" was an outstandingly pleasing number. Vedaste Samonte, who appeared in

LONG TROUBLE WITH MEXICO TO BE ENDED

Peace Conference Will Meet Soon In Mexico City To Discuss Treaty

(By United News) Washington, April 23—Peace with Mexico, after ten years of intermittent friction and guerilla warfare is now just around the corner.

Secretary Hughes has announced that a conference will be held soon at Mexico City for the purpose of reaching a mutual understanding. This meeting will be actually in the nature of a peace conference.

Be secret informal exchanges during the past few weeks the state department and president Obregon of Mexico have already reached a general understanding as to the chief points to be covered in the treaty, which will be put into documentary form at the forthcoming conference. Each government will have two commissioners whose names will be announced soon.

The state department Monday night issued the following statement:

"With the view to hasten thereaching of a mutual understanding between the governments of United States and Mexico, two American commissioners and two Mexican commissioners will be appointed to meet for the purpose of exchanging impressions and of reporting them to their respective authorities."

The hospitality of Mexico City has been offered to the American commissioners as the city's guests of honor and the commission will convene there.

A similar announcement is being made at Mexico City. Thomas Lamont, of J. P. Morgan and company conferred with officials here prior to the announcement.

In the last few days the Mexican embassy here has received communications from its government which have convinced Secretary Hughes that President Obregon is ready to give the guarantee regarded to be in a sounder position than any since the Portisrie Diaz regime.

APPEALING TO PREJUDICE

Blackguard the character of the witness when you cannot refute the truth of his evidence, is a discreditable practice which public discussion has known too often. Slandering your opponent is not an answer to his argument. It is begging the question. The opposition to the entrance of the United States into the International Court of Justice maintains itself by attacking the League of Nations and ignoring the court. By participating in the court, the United States is entering the League by the back door. That is the argument. It is not an argument at all; it is a skillful appeal to prejudice. It is not a valid argument, first and last, because it is not true. By signing the protocol under which we support the world court we are not joining the League.

The International Court of Justice was created by a commission of jurists, of whom Elihu Root was a member. Two ties connect it with the League. The Covenant authorizes its creation. Its judges are elected by the members of the Council and Assembly of the League. If we were connected with the court, an American representative would vote in the League at the election of the judges. The Council and the Assembly as an elective body and as a political discussion group are two different things. The membership is the same, but the functions are different. When the United States votes in the election of judges along with the representatives of forty-six other nations, we are not joining the League any more than a man who purchases a cigar over the counter in a pool-hall is thereby made a party to the gambling game carried on in a rear room of same poolhall.

We are not entangling ourselves in the League. Instead we are agreeing that such disputes with other nations as may arise which in our own judgment are suitable for trial in the international court be submitted to the court at our option. No other nation can summon us into court. The court cannot compel us to submit our disputes to it. The court does not have obligatory jurisdiction. We lose not an iota of our national sovereignty except with our own consent at the time.

The claim that by entering the Court we have joined the League is not true. It is therefore no argument at all. It is only an appeal to prejudice, an appeal intended to mislead. To a large portion of the American public the League lies under the same taboo that Bolshevism, free-love, socialism, and certain other ideas do. By playing upon this prejudice against the League, the opposition seeks to discredit the court, whose relation to the League is remote. Instead the court should be judged as a judicial body for the just and impartial settlement of international disputes provocative of war. To characterize the court as a satellite of the League is to provoke prejudice and ignore truth. Give the court a fair hearing on the basis of its merits. When the American people understand the facts they will willingly enter. The United States should enter.

WHO WANTS TO BE A GENIUS?

Judging from the editorial columns of the Daily Iowan, the university student is profoundly interested in the problem of genius. The student, about to commence his own life-work, is almost envious of those men who have possessed what the world calls genius.

But, after all, who wants to be a genius? Men of genius have lived notoriously miserable lives. Lonely and companionless, misunderstood by their fellow creatures, their ability under-rated, many of these men have lived and died in poverty without knowing that the work which they did would some day be recognized by the world. Unlike common folk, they could not rest, for they were constantly spurred on by the desire to create, and they were burned by a hatred of inefficiency and convention which does not disturb the mediocre person.

Someone once said that "the happiest men, like the happiest countries, leave no history." This is true, for in the end, it is the man of ordinary ability, the respectable citizen, who has the better time in life. He lives comfortably and attains a fair degree of success in his business. When he dies, he is forgotten for all time, but while he lived, he enjoyed himself. The man of genius has lived with such detachment and passion for his art that he has missed the real joy in living and has become a mere onlooker and not an actor in the great drama of life.

AN OPTIMIST ADVERTISES

(From the Waukon Republican and Standard)

Lost, a large hair pin Friday on the town line road. Leave at this office and receive reward.—Advertisement.

Comes now Miss Tilden, physical director of women at Ames, saying that "the buxom, corn-fed country lassie" is 'way behind her city sister when it comes to such matters as health, grace, appearance and the like. We don't doubt that a bit, as the saying is, and we forbear making the obvious comment on the Ames co-eds.

UNCONSCIOUS EPIGRAMS

"I don't know that I believe in love at first sight, but I can tell by one look at a girl whether I want a date with her."

Point of law: Who is legally responsible—the author, the actors, or the management?

How's the following late entry in the trick headline contest? It comes from a South Dakota journal, and captioned an account of the escape and subsequent capture of one Mr. Coop:

"Coop Escapes from Coop But Is Recouped."

"All possible steps are being taken and will continue to be taken at Simpson college," we read, "to discourage the use of tobacco."

Isn't that nice? And so the world continues to be made safe for the innocent student.

According to reports 30,000 stills are in operation in Porto Rico, an average of about ten to the square mile. And since Porto Rico is a country of some 1,200,000 souls, this means a very adequate average of one still for every 40 inhabitants.

Cable rates to England have been reduced from 25c to 20c a word, according to a press dispatch. About how much will that reduce the cost of living, do you imagine?

MEN I DON'T LIKE

1. THE FUSSER

(By a Co-ed)

He has a Ford coupe, and he used to take me riding sometimes. He sings his fraternity "sweetheart song" to me with sentimental emphasis, and a tender smile when he finishes. I always am at a loss for a comeback to these sweetheart songs. I used to say in a pleasantly casual and matter of fact tone, "That's one of the prettiest fraternity songs I know," but after the first few times, this fails to start a conversation as to the merits of songs, so now I just try to act unconcerned.

The fusser I know is a decidedly worthwhile person, otherwise. He is a star athlete and the coaches talk of him as their "right hand man". He is easily familiar with the books you like to talk about, and has a perfectly nice sense of humor that steers him to the Line O'Type, but that fails him completely in regard to his own line.

He is a shining light in the engineering school. People say that he has a real future, but he doesn't want to talk about that. He wants to discuss the pro's and con's of kissing me. He likes me very much indeed, he assures me, more than any girl he has ever known (Oh, if the Ford could tell!) and he simply can not understand why I don't want him to kiss me. When I become dignified and squelching he sulks and takes me home.

Of all the men I dislike, I dislike the fusser the most intensely because he could be so nice and isn't!

Tennis Team Gets First Workout In Coe Match Today

Coach Jacob Van der Zee's tennis team will meet its first real competition this afternoon at three o'clock when it plays the Coe net men on the courts by the men's gymnasium. Iowa's first tennis meet will be played with Wisconsin at Madison, April 28, and the game today will go far in showing the strength of the Hawk-eyes.

The matches have been postponed several times because of the lateness of the Cohawks in getting outside and bad weather. The Old Gold team easily won its matches from Coe last fall and should have no trouble in winning tomorrow.

The meet will consist of three double matches and six single matches. The team getting the majority of the victories taking the meet. Janse, Swenson, Silliman, Dorsey, Marquardt McCullough and Searle have been showing up best in workouts and six of them will make up tomorrow's team.

With Janse and Swenson almost sure of winning their singles and the two paired in the doubles, the Hawk-eyes should have little trouble in taking their first meet. Both of these men were in the semi-finals in the state tournament last summer, and are Iowa's strongest men. The other men have had less competition and experience, but by the time the conference season begins should be playing a good game.

HARVARD Graduate School of Business

A two-year course in business, open to college graduates, leading to the degree of Master in Business Administration

Points of interest regarding the Harvard Business School:

- The above graph shows the growth in enrollment and the large number of students coming from institutions other than Harvard. During the present year 158 colleges are represented.
- The case method is used. Actual problems obtained from business are used as the basis of instruction. A staff of investigators is constantly at work gathering problems.
- Business is regarded and studied as a profession.
- What the students in the School think of the training which they receive is indicated by the high percentage of eligible first year men who return to complete the course—84 per cent. the present year.
- The training in the School materially shortens the apprentice period in business. A prominent business man recently said: "On the basis of our experience with your graduates, I estimate that you are saving them five years net. Six months after they come to us, your men are as well fitted to assume responsibility and to make decisions as the typical college man at thirty." The enrollment is limited in first year courses.

For further information and enrolment blanks, write to Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration University 23, Cambridge, Massachusetts

What do they mean "Senior Wrangler"?

YOU may not have met one of those dear old boys,—Oxonian stuff, what, what?—but our idea of a senior wrangler is a '23 man trying to work up a lather with the wrong kind of shaving cream.

There's no "wrangling" necessary to get a lather with Williams' Shaving Cream. Squeeze out a spendthrift's dab or a tightwad's dab—it's all the same. Either way you get a big, efficient lather that softens the beard right down to the base of every hair.

And best of all, this big Williams' lather has a decidedly beneficial effect on your skin. No complexion soap could do more for you than Williams' does every time you shave. Get a tube of Williams' today and begin giving your face this helpful care.

Judge F. F. Faville Delivers Second Bible Law Talk

Judge F. F. Faville delivered the second of his series of lectures on "The Law in the Bible" Sunday afternoon at two o'clock at the law college. The topic was "The Criminal Law of the Bible" and dealt mainly with the laws of Moses as did the lecture last Sunday on "The Civil Law."

Judge Faville treated the influence of these laws as a matter of history, and pointed out the great influence which those of the Old Testament have had upon the political development of all the laws which are in existence now. The cause of the laws to be laid down by Moses was the exodus of the little tribe of Hebrews from the bondage of Egypt. Moses took this small tribe of wanderers and impressed upon them the paramount power of God.

Specific code section numbers were referred to in reference to the corresponding chapters of the Bible, and the great similarity pointed out. Next Sunday Judge Faville will deliver another lecture on other similarities existing between the Bible laws and those of the present time.

The lectures are held in the senior class room in the law college and all law students and their friends may attend.

last year's Spanish play and will also carry an important part in the Cosmopolitan club's program Wednesday evening, did exceptionally good work in the part of the young man Don Gonzola. The cast of this play showed unusual linguistic ability as the players were all Spaniards or people who have had considerable acquaintance with Spanish people.

The other two plays were popular because of the humor which they contained. A decidedly comic situation was produced in "No Smoking" when the gentleman's baggage was thrown out of the train by the eccentric but well-meaning lady. The numerous overtures of the parents in "The Three Old Maids" to secure lovers for their daughters was likewise decidedly funny.

Music by stringed instruments was supplied between the plays.

The casts for the plays were: "A Sunny Morning"—Otilia Hernandez A4 of Greeley as Dona Laura, Vedaste Samonte A4 of Laoage, P. I. as Donzola, Esther Louise Whitfield A4 of Cedar Rapids as Petra, Pedro del V. Hernandez A4 of Isabelle, P. R. as Juanita.

In "No Smoking"—Oscar Johnson A3 of Iowa City appeared as the gentleman; Della A. Grizel Au of Iowa City as the lady; and Helen Benson A1 of Denver, Colo., as the daughter.

In "The Old Maids"—Jane Kauffman A2 of Des Moines as Pura; Jeanette Rothschild A1 of Iowa City as Casta; Edward S. Pressman A2 of Springfield, Mass., as the young man, Claudio; Dillard W. Bray Cm3 of Burnside, Ill., as Procopio, the father of the girls; and Mildred A. Keller A4 of Iowa City as Sandaha, the mother of the girls.
