May Day Uprisings Take Death Toll In Europe

DISCOVER NORTHWESTERN STUDENT'S BODY IN LAKE YESTERDAY

YOUTH MISSED AFTER ANNUAL CLASS BATTLE

University Claimed He Ran Away After Trouble With Woman

(By United News)

Chicago, May 1—The little light that gleamed all night in the Evanston home of Mrs. J. L. Mount will not burn any more after Mrs. Mount, a sorrow torn mother, retires tonight and tries to sleep.

After her boy Leighton Mount, a Northwestern University freshman disappeared in the hazing following the university's class rush in September 1921, Mrs. Mount turned on the light in her little front room early each evening and extinguished it at morning. She believed that Leighton was being held captive by other boys who had injured his body or his mind and that eventually he would return.

Everyone Forgets

Everyone was beginning to forget about Leighton Mount except his mother and father; any Northwestern university student would tell you he would run away after a difficulty with a young woman and president Walter Dill Scott and the faculty also consoled the mother with a little boy found a probe of the case.

But what remaining hopes the mother might have had were extinguished when a little boy found a ghastly skeleton hand protruding from the breakwater of the lake where the young disciples of the intellectual life at Northwestern bind lone students and throw them in. The body was buried under stones and sand.

"Murder" Says Chief

"The boy was murdered" chief of police Leggett of Evanston said. "His body was thrust in and hidden by the man who killed him. I am going to find the murderer if I have to question the whole student body."

Mrs. Mount with red rimmed eyes peering from a tear stained and grief racked face, her body quivering and hands shaking, recalled Tuesday that her boy had been unfortunate enough to be a freshman. She told of vain attempts to interview President Scott concerning her missing boy.

The University has been appropriately shocked and horrified: the discovery of Leighton's skeleton came at a bad time. Just a few days ago another student had been killed in an automobile chase which occurred following a hazing episode.

"I am distressed and humiliated beyond your powers of appreciation," Dr. Scott told the student body in chapel Tuesday.

Then came the blow—the announcement that Northwestern's favorite sport must go. All class rushes and hazing demonstrations are abolished.

OFFICERS INSPECT UNIVERSITY R.O.T.C.

Rating Of Iowa Unit Will Not Be Announced Until Boards Report In June

Results of the inspection of R. O. T. C. units throughout the country will not be known until June, when the five boards who are carrying on the work for the war department will meet in Washington to give their reports, according to Major Charles E. T. Lull, of the coast artillery, who with Major William E. Bergin, infantry, composes the board which is in Iowa City inspecting the Iowa Unit of the R. O. T. C.

Col. Carl Muller of the field artillery is accompanying the board, which has completed about half of its work, in Iowa City. The entire Iowa unit of the R. O. T. C. passed in review before these officers on Iowa field yesterday afternoon. Following the review there was an inspection with very close attention to such details as care and handling of the rifles, and appearance of the men. The unit band attired in their new uniforms played during the review and inspection.

We are much pleased with what we have seen so far," said Major Lull. "We intend to stay here and watch the regular work of the department Wednesday, and will probably leave Iowa City on Thursday." "Of course I can't tell you anything about whether Iowa will be placed on the approved list until after the reports have come in from all of the units when the other four boards meet in Washington in June and give their reports of the units they have inspected."

DEBATERS TO TRY FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

Monticello To Meet Mt. Ayr Team Here Friday For Title

Immediately following the extemporaneous speaking contest Friday afternoon at 3:30 in Irving-Ero Hall, debaters from Monticello and Mt. Ayr will contest for the state high school championship in debate. Monticello will represent Eastern Iowa and Mt. Ayr the western section.

The question for the debate is "Resolved that the state should, by suitable and proper legislation, provide for the immediate hard surfacing of the primary roads of this state and provide for a bond issue, Constitutionality Granted."

The affirmative side is to be taken by Helen Willis, Ainslee Hickerson, and Esther Fuller of Mt. Ayr, and the negative will be supported by Raymond Deukhoff, James Nielson, and Ted Koop of Monticello.

Jacob Van Ek of the political science department of the University, Arthur C. Trowbridge instructor of geology, and Bruce E. Mahan teacher of history in the Iowa City High school will judge the contest.

Each member of the debating teams will win a four-year scholarship through his work in the contest, and the school represented by the winning team will receive a silver plaque. Tickets to the Iowa and to the Interscholastic track meet will be given to the contestants.

SORORITIES HALT STUDY AS ORCHESTRA PLAYS

Sororities last night called a halt on study hours while "Doc" Lawson's nine-piece orchestra, mounted on a truck, dispensed the latest jazz music. The flattered sisters, at the appointed intervals, expressed their gratification by well modulated cheers.

Following the orchestra and chiming in on the applause with screeching Klaxons were some fifty cars laden with the less diligent of the student body. The procession, headed by the truck, found its way to all the sororities recognized by the social committee and at the present time in good standing with the pan-Hellenic association.

The moon cast a romantic glamour over the scene and it was apparent to even those on the outskirts of the large crowd which engulfed the truck that the girls were highly tickled with the performance. At some, it is rumored, even the chaparrons raised their windows to allow the jazzy strains to occupy their thoughts, forgetting at the time, the damaging effect on the morals of their proteges.

VISITING ATHLETES TO SEE IOWA

Tickets For Iowiggle Are On Sale Today; Fraternities To Enter Parade

More than one-third of the available tickets for the Iowawa dance, Iowiggle to be held Friday May 4 in the Men's gymnasium, have been sold at Whetstone's and by the committee. This dance will be the only student dance in the city. There will be no dance at Varsity or Cotillion. Some difficulty is being experienced by the committee in getting the gymnasium owing to the plans of the athletic board to use it for the visiting athletes.

Several hundred high school athletes and the Northwestern track team will be in Iowa City for the state high school track meet and Northwestern-Iowa dual meet. The visiting high school athletes will have a chance to see one of the university's most representative social events, for each one of them will be given a free ticket.

The limited number of tickets for the dance will be on sale at Whetstone's today and tomorrow for the price of $1.50. Lawson's orchestra will furnish the music.

Among the features reported by the committee on entertainment will be a special dance at one of the booths by Paul Foley A1 of Corwith who has gained fame for his dances given in conjunction with the university glee club during its tour. Many other novel features will be introduced during the carnival.

Plans for the parade are going forward rapidly and most of the fraternities have promised floats according to the statement of Walter Dehner A4 of Iowa City who has charge of the fraternity parade. All fraternities who are planning to enter a float and have not notified him are urged to do so at once.

PARIS SOLDIERS ARE KILLED BY LABOR RIOTERS

English Demand Jap's Evacuation of Isle Strike On In France

(By United News)

Bulletin, Paris, May 1—Sixty-one Paris gendarmes were injured seriously, in a clash with May day rioters near the headquarters of the Laborites.

Sixty were arrested, fifteen of them being held for examination. May day was very quiet in the provinces.

London, May 1—Radical European workmen in many countries left their posts of duty to stage May day demonstrations and this is what happened:

2,000 English Celebrate

1. Two thousand communist sympathizers demonstrated in front of the Japanese embassy in London, demanding that Japan evacuate the island of Saghalian, north of Japan. This island was occupied jointly by Russia and Japan before the war but since then the Japanese have taken entire possession.

2. One was killed and several seriously wounded in a clash between German fascists and radicals in Regensburg, Germany. There was also an exchange of shots at Lichtenfels, Germany.

3. Hundreds of thousands of Paris workmen left their jobs to parade the streets. The police charged a mob which stoned a street car, injuring several passengers in Place Du Combat. Several were arrested during a fight in which one demonstrator was slashed with a knife. Bakers, metal workers, building workers and taxi drivers conducted a strike which was almost 100 percent effective.

No Trouble At Essen

4. At Essen in the Ruhr where the French had prohibited demonstrations, workers held quiet celebrations without interference. There were few demonstrations in other portions of the German industrial area.

Two communists were killed and several wounded in Milan, Italy, when radicals attempted to hold a demonstration in violation of orders issued by the fascists.

May day in Europe was more quiet than for any time in several years.

Quiet In Mexico

Mexico City, May 1—Mexico City had a quiet May day celebration, unmarked by any radical happenings.

GERMANY WILL PAY BY TAXING INDUSTRIALISTS

Make Announcement of New Offer; Will Put Up Railroads As Security

(By United News)

Berlin, May 1—Germany proposes to pay her reparations account to the allies by heavily taxing Hugo Stinnes and the other industrialists who amassed great wealth during the war. This was revealed Monday when further details of Germany's new reparations offer which is to be made Tuesday became known.

The government in a note to the allies and the United States will offer to settle for thirty billion gold marks which is said to be raised by an international loan.

The national railroads of the country are to be offered as security for the loan.

Germany will promise the allies to institute financial reforms and to compel the industrialists to pay heavy taxes to carry the reparation burden. The fact that the national railroads will be offered as security instead of the iron and steel works of the industrialists is taken to mean that Stinnes and his associates are not heartily back of the government's offer. Furthermore the intention of the government to force the industrialists to bear a share of the tax burden—which they hitherto have been able to dodge—is considered as further evidence that they are not lending their support to the government.

The government plans to turn the thirty billion gold marks raised by the international loan over to the allies and to pay any additional sum that any international commission decides that Germany should pay. Advice from Paris indicates that France will call a conference of allies to discuss the German offer as soon as it is made. The British, American and Italian ambassadors conferred with Chancellor Cuno Monday concerning the forthcoming offer.

No Lectures But Daily Conferences

At Babson Institute they make a business of teaching business to college trained men who wish to fill positions of responsibility and trust without spending years at routine work. Standard office equipment throughout. No classes or lectures, but a business schedule of work from 8:30 to 5:00 o'clock, including daily conferences directed by men with years of business experience, and discussions with active factory and office executives at their plants. This removes the instruction from the hypothetical stage and helps the student to look at things in the same light as a man actually engaged in business. Babson Institute, an educational institution endowed for the purpose of fitting men for executive responsibilities, invites you to send for the booklet, "The Way for Business Leadership," free today.

IOWA ENGINEERS MAKE ACCURACY RECORD IN TEST

Computation Work Sent To Washington Found To Be Perfect

A record for accuracy in computation work which has never been duplicated in the Washington office itself, is the achievement of University of Iowa engineers who have been in the employ of the U. S. department of agriculture bureau of public roads in testing, through the university hydraulic laboratory resources, the relative carrying capacities of vitrified clay and corrugated iron pipes.

The record which became known to engineers here when D. L. Yarnell, senior drainage engineer of the department of agriculture, came to Iowa recently to direct additional research work which the government is carrying on through the University, was made possible by the following engineers employed: Albert W. Volkmer, now instructor in drawing and descriptive geometry in the engineering college, Edward Wilsey G of Keokuk, Glenn Rick S4 of Cedar Rapids, J. Fred Phillips G of Elk Point, S. Dak., and Alan C. Rockwood G of Iowa City.

When the results were turned into central office at Washington D. C., over three-fourths of the computations were rechecked by faultless computing machines, with the result that not a single error was discovered and further checking was abandoned.

The research work which is being supervised here by Mr. Yarnell at the present time consists of the testing of the carrying capacity of concrete pipe. The staff of fifteen engineers and students engaged in the work includes: D. L. Yarnell, Prof. Floyd A. Nagler, Prof. A. W. Volkmer, Prof. D. D. Curtis, Prof. F. E. Holmes, Edward Wilsey G of Keokuk, H. J. Ajwani, G. E. Miller S4 of Waterloo, Glenn Rick S4 of Cedar Rapids, Theodore Palls S4 of Orange City, J. Hummer S3 of Iowa City, W. A. Turner S4 of Des Moines, George Shafer S4 of Reinbeck, J. Harrington S3 of Maquoketa, and Thomas L. Herrick S4 of Frederickburg.

Iowa river and the unusually good hydraulic laboratory, of which the University of Iowa is the owner, are together responsible for the government choosing Iowa as their experimental ground in scientific research.

British Are Not In Favor of U. S. Search for Liquor Vessels

London, May 1—Great Britain is "cold" on the suggestion of the United States government that America be given the right to search British ships which are believed to have aboard liquor cargoes designed for the United States.

British officials Monday pointed out that even though the United States did discover liquor stores in ships leaving English ports it would be impossible to prevent them from sailing or to chaperon them across the Atlantic to see that the liquor was not smuggled into the United States.

It was suggested in official circles that the United States government, instead of singling out Britain, should also take the matter up with other countries in as much as French wines and cognacs, Italian wines, and Dutch gin are also smuggled into the country.

Ronald O'Neille, undersecretary of the foreign office announced in the House of Commons Monday that diplomatic correspondence between the United States and Britain concerning the seizure of a suspected British rum runner last year, was still proceeding.

O'Neille said that American authorities were still holding the ships seized outside the three mile limit despite the fact that the act of the American government had been challenged by Britain.

Senior Members Of Y. W. C. A. Hold Special Meeting

A special meeting for senior members of the Y. W. C. A. is planned for today, in liberal arts drawing room at 4 p. m. The entire program will be in charge of senior women according to Helen Cunningham A4 of Washington, chairman. Margaret Stephenson A4 of Cedar Falls will review University life, Mildred Walker A4 of Corydon will talk on the future, and Louise Jerrel A4 of Oskaloosa will consider the things missed. NO LET UP FOR HAWKEYE NINE AFTER VICTORY

Coach Barry Drives Men For Three Coming Contests Away From Home

There was no let up in activities on Iowa Field for the baseball squad yesterday afternoon after their well-earned victory over the pace-setting Illini crew on Monday. Coach Sam Barry took the two-hour practice period to send his men through a long practice on hitting the ball, finishing up with a snappy fielding drill.

Paul Lee, Vintner, and Carter Hamilton, well-known ex-Iowa twirling star, took turns on the mound serving them up to the varsity sluggers, the men taking the opportunity to improve their swings and incidentally to practice placing the ball. Frank Shimek was also in hand during the practice, and took a short walk in the field.

No Injuries Suffered

No injuries of any consequence

wer suffered by the Iowa nine in the Illinois game and every man on the squad is in good shape to put in some hard licks in preparation for the hard and important trip to Minnesota, Michigan, and Notre Dame over the week-end. The fight for first place in the regular season seems to be pretty well settled but the battle for the second place between Thompson and Chaloupka still goes on. Both men have been playing on about a par all season and both, no doubt, will get the opportunity to show their wares in the coming games.

The Hawkeyes, although slipping up on a couple of occasions in the Illinois game, deserve a great deal of credit for the manner in which they put the Illinois Indians through the taming process Monday, for it was only by playing some mighty smart baseball and taking advantage of the visitors' slips that the Hawks were able to defeat the Illini.

Look Toward Title

The Illinois game, like the Michigan game in basketball, was no doubt one of the big early season stumbling blocks in the team's journey toward another Big Ten championship; and now that it has gone down into history as a decisive win for Iowa every backer of the Old Gold nine is confident that another championship for Iowa is not an impossibility. The team is showing up better in every game, both at the stick and in the field, and with the necessary confidence in their teammates, the varsity twirlers should turn in several more neat wins before the season is completed.

The Hawkeyes will battle with Minnesota at Minneapolis on Saturday, Michigan at Ann Arbor Monday, and Notre Dame at South Bend on Tuesday. The trip will take up the greater part of five days. If Coach Sam Barry's men come through with victories with these strong teams, the success of the season is practically assured.

Thirty Five Report For First Practice Of Frosh Players

Uncle Sam's review interfered with freshman baseball practice last night, and only thirty-five men were able to report for the first workout on the freshman field. The majority of those who did report looked ragged, and gave little promise of turning into the calibre of players needed to fill holes in next year's varsity. Part of this poor display, however, is undoubtedly due to the late start of freshman baseball.

Last year nearly 100 preps reported for baseball, and a strong team which administered several defeats to the varsity was formed. Three of the men on the varsity this year, Scantlebury, Laude, and Chaloupka and two of the pitchers, Marshall and Duhn, were members of that team.

All freshmen who are going out for baseball are expected to report today at the freshman field, west side, for practice at 4 p. m.

Co-Eds To Compete In Inter-Class Tank Contests on May 15

Co-eds are showing interest in the inter-class swimming meet which will be held on May 15. To date thirteen women have signed up for the tryouts, which include swimming for form, swimming for speed, diving, and the plunge.

The following women have signed up: Martha Mount A1 of Iowa City, Emily Russell A2 of Aberdeen, S. D. Almeda Cutting A4 of Decorah, Lela Trager A4 of Sioux City, Emily Hartman A4 of Junction City, Kans., Genevieve Hansen A4 of Clear Lake, Catherine Richter A1 of Davenport, Gladys Brooker A1 of Omaha, Neb., Margarita McGovney A2 of Iowa City, Sara Cox A2 of Iowa City, Julia Darrow A4 of Columbus Junction, and Amy Bonner A3 of Dubuque.

AT OTHER CAMPUSES

COLUMBIA—Sixty men reported for the first spring football practice last Wednesday, and Coach Houghton saw prospects for a few weeks of successful drill in fundamentals of the game. But by Friday things took a decided slump for only thirty men appeared on the field in uniform. Spring is here!

ILLINOIS—Backsliding stadium subscribers were forcibly reminded of their overdue pledges yesterday when a pay-up campaign got into action and a personal solicitation of all backward pledges was made. The drive is to continue throughout the week.

PURDUE—The program for the 1923 Military Carnival held here last week was commended by the commanding officers of the R. O. T. C. A band concert, mass singing, physical training exercises, and a tractor drawn battery demonstration were interesting numbers. The most spectacular feature of the evening was the advance attack, in which the infantry and cavalry supported by machine guns and light artillery crept forward under cover of partial darkness.

COLUMBIA—Seventy Blue and White athletes were awarded athletic insignia at a meeting of the Athletic Association recently. Most of the recognitions were given for participation in fall and winter sports.

MICHIGAN—Decorations for the annual Military ball which was held in the two gymnasiums last Friday evening surpassed those of all previous occasions. The entire wall surface was lined with dark blue cloth which blended with gold streamers. The flags of many nations were draped about the buildings. Bugle calls were the signals for the various events, and military police were on hand to manage the ball.

ST. LOUIS SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA WILL PRESENT
NOTEWORTHY CONCERT AT UNIVERSITY ON MAY 7

RUDOLPH GANZ AND HIS ORCHESTRA

Considerable interest is being displayed in the programs to be presented here by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra on Monday, May 7th.

The outstanding orchestral number on the evening program is Tschalkowsky's magnificent fourth symphony whose first movement is built around a striking motive and whose finale is especially well-known. The program opens with the overture to

"Oberon" and closes with Chabrier's brilliant and popular Spanish rhapsody. "Finlandia" by Sibelius is the last number in the afternoon. An interesting history attaches to this composition. Sibelius, born in 1865 and still living has long been the foremost Finnish composer. His splendid work so impressed the Russian government that they granted him a pension so that he might be relieved from financial anxiety and devote himself to musical work.

After some time Sibelius composed this tone-poem, giving out no "story" about it, but simply calling it "Finlandia." The first time the work was performed the audience listened with interest, understanding immediately the patriotic message of the music with its sinister undercurrent of revolt and its dirge-like chorale and when the music was finished they left the hall in great commotion and went out and rioted in the streets against the oppression of Russia. The Russian government, finding that the performance of this work always stirred up the people to a tremendous pitch of excitement, prohibited its performance and took away the pension they had granted Sibelius.

At the afternoon concert Michel Gusikoff, the concertmaster of the orchestra, will be the soloist, playing upon his $10,000 Stradivarius violin the second and third movements of the Saint-Saens concerto in B minor.

A treat is offered at the evening concert when the soloist is to be Carolina Lazzari, contralto, now famous throughout the country. In her short five years before the public Miss Lazzari has not only sung leading contralto roles with three opera companies, the Chicago, the Metropolitan, and the Colon Opera Co. of Buenos Aires, but she has made a name for herself as a recitalist. Miss Lazzari will appear twice on the program singing the "Page Song" from "The Huenots" and "My Heart at thy Sweet Voice" from "Samson and Dalila."

Tickets are now on sale at the Book and Music stores and Whetstone's. Up to and including Friday festivals tickets which admit to both concerts will be on sale for $2.50, while a single ticket for either concert is $1.50. Reservations begin on Friday for season ticket holders and on Saturday for the general public.

Chicago—"The armies and navies of the world are the greatest aids to peace. They are not the causes of war. Race hatred incites all great conflicts," Chaplain M. M. Witherspoon, U. S. N., declared in a speech here recently. "If the navies were scrapped," he added "the world would soon reach a state of chaos."

EMERSON HOUGH

"Life is short." Such was Emerson Hough's motto and guide in work. Indeed it was too short for this "man of the plains" for it robbed Iowa and the West of not only a great writer but also a great exponent. The news of his death in Evanston was received with a feeling of real sorrow at the University for it was here that Mr. Hough obtained his education. Somewhat similar to the case of Frank Bacon, the actor, Mr. Hough's death came just as he was nearing the pinnacle of achievement.

Few persons were better fitted to write of Iowa and the West than Emerson Hough. He was born at Newton in June 1857. His parents were Virginians and his father was a lover of the great out-of-doors, a love that took deep root in the life of the son. Emerson was graduated from the University in 1880 and most of his subsequent life was spent in traveling. He visited every state in the Union, but spent by far the greater part of his life in the West. During the winter of 1895 he explored the Yellowstone park on skis and because of his findings and reports Congress passed a law protecting the park buffalo. Another portion of his life was spent in New Mexico where he practiced law. He gave that profession up, however, in order that he might devote his full time to writing, for which he was better fitted.

Hough was a hard worker and a hard player. His early novels were written between midnight and 4 o'clock in the morning. "54-40 Or Fight" one of his earlier successes, was written in the surprisingly short time of two weeks.

His latest novel "The Covered Wagon" was at the crest of its popularity at the time of his death. It had been reproduced in motion pictures and was credited with being notable for its truthfulness and accuracy—a point in which Hough always excelled. Indeed it was through his painstaking accuracy that the West was so truthfully portrayed in his novels, and it is largely because of this quality that his name in American literature will live.

AIR LAWS

A hundred years ago nobody thought of regulating the use of the air with laws, but now the time is approaching when such regulation is really necessary. Within another hundred years the privilege of using the air for navigation and communication may be as strictly limited as our highways and our billboards now are. The radio and the extensive use of aeroplanes have created a new situation in the air which we formerly thought of only as empty, useless space.

Herbert Hoover in a recent address urged that the government assume control of the air to check the abuses of radio. Recently an American in France successfully marred a grand opera radio program by breaking in with caustic comments, sent out on the same wave length. There is absolutely no privacy to the radio now, and the government cannot use it for official business unless they want everybody to listen in, and perhaps interrupt.

Day and night aerial mail service is definitely established now, but the government has no laws to protect its interests. In the future it seems probable that there may be more strict licensing of pilots, and traffic regulations will be enforced. Already many cities have specified the minimum height at which planes may fly over them.

There are not enough aeroplanes in the air now to create a pressing demand for laws, but such men as Hoover are anticipating a great increase. The air cannot remain common property when it is used for such essential government projects as official orders and mail carrying, and air law dawns as a necessity.

CONTEMPORARY OPINION
(New York Herald)

TAKING THEIR SPORT MADLY

In the way of sporting frenzy England appears to have beaten the record on Saturday, when 200,000 persons jammed into the Wembley Hill Stadium to watch the final of the soccer football championship while other thousands stormed the gates, and there were 1,000 casualties, including many broken limbs. We have seen some great crowds at the Yale Bowl, in the Polo Grounds and the Yankee Stadium, but all of them together would hardly hold the mad army that tramped over the police at Wembley. King George was present, and doubtless he was never closer to his people.

The terrific interest in association football in Great Britain is due to sectional rivalry, growing to a climax as the process of elimination goes on until two teams are left to fight it out. In the tight little island distance does not forbid every enthusiast to make an heroic effort to see the fray.

Then there is the gambling factor. The British sporting populace on little and great occasions is given to betting beyond the American habit. Where their money is there will their hearts be, and their eyes and ears also, so long as trains and motors are running.

The Wembley riot suggests that it may become more hazardous to try to see manly sport than to engage in it unless British stadia are enlarged indefinitely. The sporting fever may run as high over here, but it breaks out in a thousand scattered fields from New York to California—several millions here, there and everywhere, but not 200,000 in one spot.

This Year's Bride Wears An Orange Blossom Engagement Ring

THESE are the Orange Blossom engagement rings, hand wrought, in platinum or gold. The one at the right is of platinum, the one at the left of gold or platinum.

From the day when the upper caste women of Egypt first symbolized their love by wearing a circlet, legend has spun romantic and fascinating stories around the wedding ring.

What more fitting than an engagement ring replete with sentiment and prophetic in the Orange Blossoms which are so exquisitely chased all around it. It comes fashioned in platinum for the bride who is to wear an Orange Blossom platinum wedding ring and in gold for one who chooses the gold wedding ring. Nothing could be in better taste than to have one's engagement and wedding rings alike in design, especially when the design is as beautifully expressive as these Orange Blossoms make it.

FATHER WILL SEE WHAT PRESENT DAY UNIVERSITY LIFE IS LIKE ON "DAD'S DAY"

By ARNOLD J. HAND

The second annual University "Dad's Day," May 5, sponsored by A. F. I., will necessitate the Rock Island and interurban traction companies putting on several extra cars—not to mention Iowa City's street car line. Everybody will be on his—or her—best behavior and consequently Dad will see Son—or Daughter—on a normal day doing a normal day's work.

But let us actually see what will happen to the ordinary Dad who accepts his duly accorded invitation to "see Iowa." After a dirty journey on Iowa's well-known railroads—highly conducive to an evenness of temper—Dad arrives in Iowa City, waits an hour or two for a taxi, which after five or six minutes of hurdling deposits its burden at the proper destination. Father and Son eagerly greet one another, and the survey of Iowa commences.

To begin in any other way than first visiting the Iowa Supply—in the old days Whetstone's—where the mail is rationed out and dates are made and broken would be a sacrilege par excellence. If Dad survives the push, pull, tug and vamp of the thousand or two girls who are always and ever waiting—Lord only knows what for—the line of march is resumed and such historical spots as the Laysan Island cyclorama, Ranney library, medical building, law, engineering, liberal arts, state historical library and dental infirmary will be visited. So far Dad is favorably impressed. He learns that the Academy is not part of the University proper, as those Dads who check over our stubs are wont to believe, but nothing more or less than a cigar store where all good college men spend their only too few leisure moments. When, ah, when, shall we have the Union?

Comes a time when Son is compelled to go to the gymnasium for his "physical torture," and Dad must needs come along to see how Son is coming physically—for be it known to all that Iowa develops men not only mentally but physically. At the gymnasium, if Son is lucky, he will meet such men as Coaches Jones, Bresnahan, Howard, Barry, Schroeder and several of the more prominent athletes—whom he will attempt to call by their first names in the hope that they will favor him with a return salute and thereby impress on paternal parent his drag with the athletic force.

About this time Dad is ready to cash in as far as walking is concerned, and in order to facilitate matters a short visit is made to the Rent-a-Ford company. Here Dad gets another angle on "That's where my money goes." Having secured a chariot they proceed to the new armory (Colonel Mumma's stronghold) where Dad is impressed with Son's ability to defend his country in times of peril.

In the good old summer time it would be impossible to conceive a visit without a cruise on the good river Iowa. Fitzgerald furnishes a canoe (several hours after the order is put in) and the party glides smoothly up the river to such romantic points as Picnic Point, Lover's Leap or the Country club—students not allowed. On returning they journey southward a few blocks to Iowa Field, where a telegraphic meet is in progress—the biggest liar wins. Dad fails to comprehend where the competition comes in but after several attempts Son finally convinces him that time isn't such a poor competitor after all.

"It's Monday and I have to go to freshmen lectures," thinks Son and accordingly to the auditorium they wend their way and listen to "the friend of the student" for approximately fifty minutes. Dad is much impressed and thinks what a wonderful help is, the development of "my boy's character." Meanwhile Son is dreaming and wondering when it will all be over.

After passing the time of day with such nobilities as Professors Philip G. Clapp, Edward C. Mabie, Barney Dondore and Clyde Charlton—Iowa's most prominent politicians—and Miss Emma Harvat, the much-tooted lady mayor, Son takes Dad to fraternity house, quadrangle or joint—as the individual case may be—and shows him what home like was meant to be.

In the evening Son has a date, and of course he cannot think of breaking it. So Dad goes along to chaperon the party and during the hour or so he is able to stay he wonders how these contortionists manage to wiggle and glide around. After the dance all repair to Reichardt's where an abundance of people of both sexes vie with another in seeing who can talk the loudest and the fastest and all sing in unison, "This is the end of a perfect day."—Iowa Alumnus.

Research Council Offers Fellowships To Advance Work

The National Research Council has a system of post-doctorate fellowships in the sciences designed to encourage research men who have found themselves effectively in research work. Nearly $300,000 is given out annually for these appointments and stipends yield from $1,800 to $35,000 a year. The most recently established of these are for psychology, and one of the psychologists appointed under this new grant is an Iowa man, Mr. Donald Laird, who is scheduled to come up for his doctor's degree here this summer. He is now teaching in the University of Wyoming.

The holders of these stipends may study at any place where they can obtain satisfactory facilities. This offers an unusually fine opportunity for ambitious graduate students.

Professor Seashore is a member of the Board which awards these fellowships and can furnish information to applicants.

WITH BRANDON TYNAN, MARY ASTOR, NAOMI CHILDERS

"Success" is an artistically clever production that dwells on the masculine head of the family. A sweet story of temperaments, a story of Daddy, who erred in his youth, only to lose wife, daughter—everything—and suddenly at the threshold of happiness only to find that his past was a drawback. And Climax! Nothing in a D. W. Griffith production stirred us so strongly, so effectively as the climax in "Success," genially worked up with a punch that hits straight between the eyes.

Nearly twenty years ago the first screen drama was produced, "The Great Train Robbery." Remember it? It made the world grasp then; today it might make the world laugh, we've so far ahead. Nevertheless, that was the beginning. Men were inspired to tell their stories on the screen. They planned bigger things—each year something more masterly. . . . Gradually little actors became famous stars; real authors sought the screen; directors grew in dramatic art; and each year saw some one production worthy of the title "Masterpiece." . . . Now skip a span to nearer memories. Index these truly great: 1920—"Humoresque"; 1921—"Tol'able David"; 1922—"Smilin' Through." And 1923—the achievement Screen Art strove for twenty years to win, the first perfect fusion of all the arts—"The Bright Shawl." We're proud it's a Motion Picture.

HOUGH WAS FINE STUDENT AT IOWA

Death Yesterday Mourned by University And State Alike

Emerson Hough, famous author and journalist who died in Evanston, Illinois, Monday, was a brilliant student at the University of Iowa, the dusty tomes of the registrar's office revealed today. Most of his marks hover in the rarified atmosphere of 98, 99 and 100. Mr. Hough was graduated from the University in 1880 with the degree of bachelor of philosophy.

One interesting revelation of the records is the fact that Mr. Hough's lowest mark at the University was 88 and that was in literature, the field in which he later gained great fame. A note written beside the mark, however, reveals the fact that the missing of an examination might have had something to do with it. In his junior year he received a mark of 100 in English literature.

Mr. Hough began his college career at the University in 1876, coming from his place of birth, Newton, Iowa. He immediately began establishing high marks in Latin, mathematics, German, zoology, analytical geometry, court law, physics, botany, in fact, his courses during the entire four years covered a wide variety of subjects.

Judge O. A. Byington of this city was probably Mr. Hough's most intimate friend in their student days. They graduated together. Mr. Hough has been a frequent visitor at Judge Byington's home. In 1920 the class had a reunion commemorating the fortieth year since graduation. Mr. Hough was one of those to return for the event.

Although Mr. Hough was talented as a writer in his undergraduate days he had no intention of making writing his profession, said Judge Byington. One incident that revealed the ability of the man occurred in 1880 on the last day of school, class day it was called. On that day each class had a song written by one of its members. Mr. Hough had written the senior song but the day before class day a sophomore took it, copied it and the next morning at chapel the sophomores came in singing what was to be the senior song.

Although class day exercises were to be that afternoon Mr. Hough sat down and prepared a new song in time for the afternoon program. "We sang both songs at the exercises," said Judge Byington.

Mr. Hough was a member of Irving Institute, one of the university literary societies. He had no ability as a speaker, said Judge Byington, but he had great talent as a writer. His name appears in the flag of the University Reporter as one of its editors.

Judge Howell To Speak At Dinner For Dad's Saturday

Judge R. P. Howell will be the speaker at the dinner for students and their parents to be held at noon next Saturday in the Commercial Club rooms, as one of the events of Dad's Day. The calendar for the day will include visiting classes, if son or daughter has one or more on Saturday, or attending the preliminaries of the high school track meet in the morning. At noon the dinner will take place, and in the afternoon the Iowa-Northwestern track meet, and high school track meet which will start at 2 o'clock will be held.

A number of alumni who have sent their sons and daughters to their alma mater will be back to see what changes have been wrought in the generation since they were in school. Sororities and fraternities are making arrangements for taking care of the proud mothers and fathers of their members.

There will be no formal tour of the University as there was last year, but the students are encouraged to show their parents around by Henry A. Bender, president of A. F. I. Last year the day was held in conjunction with Foundation Day. Fathers filed through President Walter A. Jessup's office nearly all day, shaking hands with him. This is the second year Iowa has had a Dad's Day, and it is the hope of A. F. I. that the observance may become an annual custom, as it is in many midwest universities.
