University Student To Compete With Five Other Speakers Here

Oral R. Smith Jr. of North English, winner of the University Oratorical contest, left yesterday morning for Minneapolis to represent the University of Iowa in the North-central Oratorical League contest.

He was accompanied by Prof. Glenn M. Norris, head of the department of speech. Prof. Norris will be in company with five other \nintercollegiate centers from the Universities of Northwestern, Notre -Dame, and Wisconsin, will deliver his oration, "Fighting Back," in the Main Hall at the University of Minnesota this evening.

Mr. Smith first place from eleven other universities in this contest which was held in the University of Wisconsin on March 2.

State that then, under the conditions, he feels that his efforts have been for preparing his contest.

The section oratorical center was a "Court of Oratory." For the N. E. G. he. however, has long had a hearty applause.

In the evening the villagers register widespread excitement over the return of intellectuals from the University by the exceeding late hours kept by the student body. The bells still ring for a few minutes after the heath of their children and scratch lustily about for their first-terms-morning coffee, which holds a threat on that part of the population which do-al costs the latter an immense amount of time and human vitality. A deal of psychology attaches to this matter of late hours, not any part of which has yet been explained by the police or any other body. The only information has descended upon us from unknown sources, and they were learned, undoubtedly, by patient. The logic of a midnight regime was not accepted by the generous, the compositions or the learning of the "seeds of the body" fail open, yet, nevertheless, may serve of these superfluous considerations.

With such an authority as Heywood an interest is left. Heywood have been the subjects of long and important eras of learning will be revised. His arguments and instruction is a need to be a light. "Nature intended man's to be a night prowler. When big animals engross the earth our ancestors lived in caves until dark. Early rising was con- sidered neither healthy nor wise when made up by the natural histories. If nature had intended man to spend much time in day- light pursuits she would have given him green spots or some other protective coloration. In stead she implanted deep within him a love of late hours.

There should be little difficulty in getting up at 6 o'clock in the morning. This is not the plan of creation. It makes no differ- ence on the part of the animal world, and he will still be sleepy at 6 o'clock in the morning. Even those who are old enough to know what a man will do, will be very glad to have some proper sleep, or some other restorative procedure. In stead he implanted deep within him a love of late hours.
