GOVERNOR'S DAY REVIEW CLOSES MILITARY YEAR

Company A of Engineer Unit Designated As Color Company Next Year

By J. Howard Sheldon
The military department closed the academic year yesterday afternoon with a final grand review of the entire cadet regiment, the Governor's field day, and the Governor's ball. The program for the morning consisted of various contests to decide the best drilled senior, junior, sophomore, freshman, squad and platoon. The governor's staff arrived at 10 o'clock in the morning and was escorted to Iowa field by the University band, and a company of infantry. The second formation of the regiment was at 1:30 in the afternoon, after which the formal presentation of the colors took place. Company B of the engineer unit had been designated as the color company because of the fact that it had won this title at the last Governor's day through excellence in the company contests. Company A of the engineer unit was designated today to act as color company next spring.

The general review was headed by the University band and the bugle corps and was reviewed by the officers of the University military department, Major General Duncan, commander of the seventh corps area, and the deans of the colleges of the University.

Following the review, the medals, cups, and other trophies were presented to the following units and commanders for winning the various contests.

The best drilled senior, Emil Stutt, captain of H company, infantry, received a silver shield in addition to a gold medal. M. M. Memler of A company, engineers, received a silver medal for second place and W. E. Carpenter of C company, infantry, received a bronze medal for third place.

W. D. Warriner of A company, motor transport unit, won the best drilled junior competition and was awarded a gold medal. Second place went to M. D. Rayner of the infantry, (Continued on page 8)

FIND NEW EVIDENCE IN MOUNT'S GRAVE

Discover Scrap of March 19, 1923, Newspaper Under Lake Pier

(By United Press)
Chicago, May 26—Evidence uncovered in the grave of Leighton Mount Northwestern University freshman who disappeared after a class rush in 1921 indicated that his body was secreted under the Lake Michigan pier only a short time before its discovery.

Scrap of newspaper dated March 19, 1923 was discovered where Mount's body had been hidden also officials discovered a small amount of clay which was entirely different from the sand of the beach.

The contractor who built the pier, said that no such soil as the clay had been encountered in the construction work. Authorities believe the finding of the newspaper and clay indicate that Mount may have been buried at another spot probably in the forest preserve and his body only recently hidden under the pier. Considerable hazing occurred the night of Mount's disappearance in the forest preserve.

Chicago University High Wins National Interscholastic Meet

Philadelphia, May 26—With small team of big stars the University of California won the intercollegiate track and field championship this afternoon on Franklin field for the third consecutive time. By the powerful offense in the field which moved everything in their way the "Golden Bears" from the Pacific coast, piled up 39 1-2 points, one less than it took to win the title last year at Harvard and enough to outstep the runner-up Tigers from Princeton who finished second again with a total of 31 points.

Yale scored 23, Pennsylvania 22, and 1-3, Cornell 15, Penn State 13, Syracuse 13, John Hopkins 12, Dartmouth 7, and the rest of the field left in the dust.

MANY WOUNDED IN CONTINUED BOCHUM RIOTS

Total Of Dead In Communist Disorders Reaches Fifteen, Reports Say

(By United Press)
Berlin, May 26.—Many persons were wounded in a renewal of communist riots in Gelsenkirchen and Bochum tonight. The disorders are continuing.

The number of dead in communist riots in the Ruhr increased to fifteen when strikers attacked a group of laborers who insisted on working. One man was killed and fifteen wounded. Early today three deaths had been reported in clashes, raising the total to fifteen.

Government advices tonight were that the strike was spreading rapidly through the occupied area.

Gelsenkirchen, Bochum, Dortmund, and Essen are all affected. Many of the mines are being closed down.

If the workers won't quit voluntarily, terrorist's bands drive them away. The cities where there have been riots bear many evidences of the unsettled conditions—shops and restaurants wrecked and yawning open in the streets—pavements littered with broken glass.

The communists are threatening to seize hostages from among the citizens who oppose them and manhandle them if their police manhandled captured Reds.

They are also ready to wrest power and water power plants and inflict darkness and thirst on thirty towns. This threat is directed particularly against Bochum as the police there are accused of manhandling captives.

Cuno Again Active
Berlin, May 26.—Spurred by the seriousness of the Ruhr situation, due to communist and general terrorists' activity Chancellor Cuno this evening evolved a new reparation payment plan.

The plan includes the mortgaging of all property in Germany to the value of ten percent. From the funds derived from this source it is proposed to pay annually one billion gold marks—about $250,000,000.

PROFESSOR TO MARRY

HAWKEYE RALLY IN NINTH FRAME FAILS--LOSE 3-2

Hicks Attempts A Steal Home With Two Men Out As Batter Strikes Out

By Hod Gordon
With Wayland Hicks sliding into home plate on an attempted steal in the last half of the ninth inning, the score 3 to 2 in favor of the visitors, two men out, two strikes already called, and a crowd that completely filled the Iowa Field bleachers begging for a hit, Ed Voltmer, pinch-hitting for Laude, failed to connect with one of Falvey's fast balls, for the third out, giving to Notre Dame one of the hardest-fought baseball battles ever witnessed on the Iowa diamond. Yesterday's win was the second victory for Notre Dame over Iowa this season.

It was by far the best game from the spectator's viewpoint that has been witnessed on Iowa Field this season, and it was only through the exceptional pitching ability of Falvey, the Notre Dame mound star, that the Hawks were forced to acknowledge defeat.

Iowa was the first to score, putting across one run in the very first frame. Locke, lead-off man, went to second when Curten, Notre Dame catcher, let the third strike go by. Poepsel fouled out and Scantlebury was thrown out on his hit to shortstop, Locke going to third on the play. Hicks then hit to Vergara, who fielded the ball cleanly but threw low to first base, Locke crossing the plate for the first run of the game on the error. Laude ended the inning with a pop fly to Kane.

"Gord" also scored the second Iowa run in the ninth. The Iowa first-baseman, again the first man up, worked Falvey for a pass and reached second on Curten's second passed ball. Poepsel hit to shortstop, but was thrown out at first, Locke taking third on the play. Coach Barry then sent in Hurlbut to hit for Scantlebury, and Ollie droppe dthe ball between the pitcher's box and third-base for a safety. Locke scampered home for his second run of the game.

Hicks, next Iowa man to step to the plate, hit to second and reached first on a fielder's choice, Kane throwing out Hurlbut at second. Hicks stole second and took third when another one of Falvey's benders slipped by Curten. But here the rally died as Voltmer failed to connect, making the third out.

The game was a pitchers' duel between Duhm of Iowa and Falvey of Notre Dame, and was every bit as close as the score indicates. Both twirlers worked in big-league fashion, but the Notre Dame sluggers solved Duhm's delivery in the sixth inning for four safe hits, which were responsible for their three runs. Had it not been for this one bad inning the Hawkeye pitcher's record would have been as good as that of Falvey. (Continued on page 4)

IOWA DEFEATS MINNESOTA IN CLOSE MEET

Hawks Win 6 Firsts On Track; Gophers Lead In Field; Score Is 76 1-2 to 58 1-2

Minneapolis, Minn., May 26 (Special to the Daily Iowan)—Iowa defeated Minnesota in a dual track meet here today by a score of 76 1-2 to 58 1-2. The meet was fairly close with the number of first places taken by each team being about even, Minnesota getting seven and Iowa getting seven and Iowa getting eight.

Running true to predictions, the meet developed into a dual between a team strong in the field and one strong on the track. Five of the Gophers' seven firsts came in field events, while six of Iowa's eight came in track events.

Few spills were recorded, most of the events running true to form. Brown surprised the spectators by defeating Ashton of Iowa in the mile run. Towler had little trouble winning the high hurdles, since Crawford, Iowa's star high hurdles, had been left at home with an injured knee. Probably the biggest surprise of the meet occurred when two Minnesota men took the first two places in the broad jump. The Iowa broad jumpers failed to live up to their usual form, and took only third place.

Wilson of Iowa and Towler of Minnesota tied for individual honors with thirteen points each. Both men won two first places and a second. Gross of Minnesota with two firsts and a third ranked just below them.

Iowa got away to a big lead when the Hawkeye runners scored a slam in the 100 yard dash. Besides this slam, Iowa gathered all the points in the pole vault and in the 440 yard dash. Minnesota took all but one point in the broad jump.

Summary
100 yard dash—Brookins (I) first, Wilson (I) second, Coulter (I) third. Time :09 8-10.

Mile—Brown (M) first, Ashton (I) second, Hirt (M) third. Time 4:28 5-10.

BELLIGERENTS, PRESSED, AGREE TO ARBITRATION

Ultimatum Preventing War Would Have Expired At Midnight Tonight

(By United Press)
Lausanne, May 26.—The allies stepped in at the last minute tonight and forbade the threatened war between Greece and Turkey.

Summoning the two belligerents into a council chamber, the allied representatives flatly told them they could not indulge in war at this time.

Under threat of strong opposition from Britain, France, and Italy the two agreed to submit to arbitration. Up to that very moment, however, both Greece and Turkey went through all the martial gestures. In Athens officers and troops were hurriedly called in from leave. They were raced to the Thracian frontier. The ultimatum expired at midnight tonight; after that-war.

Turkey hastily concentrated her troops about Adrianople while women and children fled the city fearing the Greek advance. Everywhere there was consternation. Then the allied representatives at the peace conference here, M. Venizelos and M. Alexandria of the Greek delegates, and Ismet Pasha, head of the Turks, sat about a table and talked for three hours. At the expiration of that time Venizelos burst from the room and shouted to newspaper men: "Peace, peace."

The word was flashed over ground and every national capital heaved a sigh of relief.

WELLER RESIGNS POSITION HERE

To Be Assistant Professor And Head of Public Speaking

Herbert C. Weller has resigned his position as instructor in the department of speech to become the head of the public speaking department at Beloit college, Beloit, Wisconsin. His rank will be that of assistant professor. In directing his department at Beloit, Mr. Weller plans to emphasize debate and oratory. For the past forty years Beloit College has had a proud forensic record, winning a majority of the Interstate Oratorical contests and intercollegiate debates. Mr. Weller will take up along with the headship of the speech department, the duty of maintaining this record.

Mr. Weller received his B. A. degree in 1921 from the University of Illinois. Since then for the past two years he has served as instructor in the department of speech, handling classes in argumentation and debate, advanced public speaking, and principles of speech. He acted as the varsity debating coach for last year's and this year's Iowa-Minnesota-Illinois and last year's Iowa-Nebraska debates; he has also been promoting intersociety forensic contests and the increased number of contestants in the Freshman declamatory contest this spring, double the number in any previous contest, was largely due to his efforts.

At the present time, Mr. Weller is working on his M. A. degree which he will receive from the University this summer. The subject of his thesis is, "The Study of the Time Element in Speech Delivery," a research field in which comparatively little has been worked out before. Mr. Weller is also the inventor of a color rheostat. He has applied for a patent and hopes to build a model of his invention this summer with which he can demonstrate its commercial possibilities.

832 TO GRADUATE JUNE 5; TOTAL FOR ENTIRE YEAR 1162

Class Of 1924 Is Largest In History Of The University

The largest class ever graduated from the University of Iowa will get diplomas June 5 when about 832 degrees and certificates will be awarded. Last year's June graduating class numbered a little over 700 while the number of graduates for all last year numbered only 784. Graduates for this year since last commencement will total 1,162.

Chancellor Ernest H. Lindley, of the University of Kansas, will deliver the commencement address, June 5, on "The New Pioneers." The Rev. Joseph Fort Newton, pastor of the Church of Devine Paternity, New York City, will give the baccalaureate sermon June 3. His subject is "Science and Salvation."

Nineteen classes are planning reunions for this commencement. The oldest class to return, that of 1873, will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of its graduation. James G. Berryhill, of San Francisco, Calif., is president. Among those who will return for the class banquet June 2 are Pres. Homer H. Seerley, of Iowa State Teachers college, and Judge Howard Homely of Anamosa, Ia. Guests at the banquet will include Simon Casady of Des Moines, and President and Mrs. Walter A. Jessup of the University.

Other classes planning reunions are those of 1878, 1882, 1883, 1893, 1898, 1903, 1908, 1913 and 1918. The professional colleges of law, medicine and engineering anticipate a number of reunions among their graduates. The silver cup, awarded each year to the class which returns the largest number of alumni to the commencement exercises, was won last June by the class of 1892, college of medicine. The cup is now in the hands of Dr. Walter L. Bierring of Des Moines, a member of the class.

The oldest living graduate of the University of Iowa, Dexter Edson Smith '58, of Santa Ana, Calif., 85 years old, will not be able to return to his alma mater this year to mark the sixty-fifth anniversary of his graduation. One of the two living members of the first law class, Samuel Holmes '68 of Alamogordo, N. Mex., will be unable to return for the commencement exercises on the fifty-fifth anniversary of his graduation. The only other member of that class still thought to be alive is Granger Smith, whose whereabouts are unknown. Vilhjamur Stefansson '03, the arctic explorer, cannot return for the twentieth anniversary of his class because he is on a special mission to the British cabinet for the prime minister of Canada.

Commencement exercises will begin on the morning of Saturday, June 2, with the senior class breakfast. An alumni baseball game, university band concert, an informal reception to seniors and friends at the home of President and Mrs. Jessup and informal parties complete the day's program.

The Rev. Mr. Newton will give the baccalaureate sermon Sunday, June 3, at 4 p. m. on the campus. The Rev. Mr. Newton was pastor of the Liberal Christian church at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, for eight years, going from there to The City Temple London, England, in 1916. The University band will give a sacred concert Sunday evening.

Informal parties, teas and class reunions will be scattered through commencement week with the University club of faculty women and alumnae as one of the hosts.

The Iowa Memorial Union association's annual meeting and the all-university senior class wrangle will be Monday morning, June 4.

The University of Iowa Alumni association will have its annual business meeting and luncheon Monday noon.

Iowa and Minnesota teams will play baseball Monday afternoon and at 4:30 p. m., the June Fete, a demonstration of aesthetic dancing directed by the department of physical education for women, will be on the president's lawn. An informal reception to alumni, faculty, and visitors will follow. Class reunion dinners are planned for Monday and the university band will give an evening concert on the campus.

Chancellor Lindley will give the commencement address Tuesday morning, June 5. Degrees will be awarded at this time. The annual university luncheon for the alumni, faculty, and visitors Tuesday noon will conclude the commencement program.

DEFENSE CONTINUES ATTACK ON WERTZ'S CHARACTER MONDAY

Witnesses Testify Liquor Was Kept In Home; Many
Booze Parties

Court was adjourned early yesterday morning until ten tomorrow morning and not much testimony of importance has been introduced since the startling statements made by Mrs. Mima Wertz, widow of the murdered man, Friday afternoon. The defense called to the stand a number of witnesses yesterday morning to show that Wertz was of a quarrelsome character and frequently made threats against members of his family.

Kendrick Stokes of New York City, who graduated from the University last year, testified that he frequently saw Wertz when he was intoxicated. Stokes lived in the Wertz home for two years. He said that there always was liquor around the Wertz home and admitted on cross examination that he had partaken of it with Wertz on several occasions.

Mrs. H. L. Steinmetz who lives in the upstairs part of the Wertz home, was called to the stand for the fourth time during the trial and the second time as a defense witness. She testified that on the night before the shooting, Wertz and some of his friends had staged an all-night party in the Wertz home.

Dr. Frederick W. Mulsow, acting head of the department of bacteriology and pathology of the college of medicine, testified that he had made tests of stains in the Wertz kitchen and told the jury where blood stains were found and where stains had been found that were not blood. The state attorneys made a motion that his testimony be struck from the record but the motion was overruled.

Willis Wertz, son of the murdered man, produced an exploded cartridge which he claimed to have found in the Wertz kitchen but the court refused to admit the cartridge as evidence after the state had objected to its admission.

Oregon

Now that the "craze for setting dance records is lapsing into history a group of university women have seemingly started a new contest," according to the editors of the Oregon Daily Emerald. This new fad is to arise at early hours in the morning and hold discussion groups for the day's classes. The first attempt was a couple of weeks ago when a class of girls met at 6:30 o'clock and together prepared for an examination.

Minnesota

Three students will compete here for honors in riding a wild steer. The affair will be held in connection with the annual stock show. One man claims that he has had experience while a cowpuncher, another says that he has driven a team of goats and in that way thinks that he is experienced for the task but the last man does not claim to have any asset except his strength and willingness to ride the bull. The steer will be brought from the range to test the skill and endurance of the riders.

Utah

A few of the rules to be observed when the freshmen and the sophomores meet in Salt Lake City are as follows: "Every male member of the University will report rain, snow or hail on the campus. Visitors and faculty men will not be tubbed, pro- will be ducked. No fussing will be vided that they do not interfere with allowed. No white collars, combed the proceedings. Those arriving late hair or neckties will be tolerated."

What's in a name? Wisdom of the Ages.

In the ancient City of Bagdad, in early times, lived one Hakeen, known throughout that region as the Wise One, and many people, in his day, came to him for counsel and for wisdom.

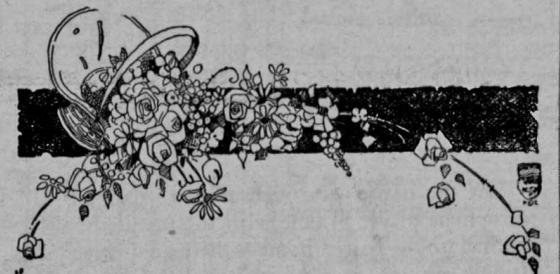

"It is related that, on one occasion, there came a young man and said to this Seer, 'Tell me, Wise One, what shall I do to receive the most for that which I spend?'"

"Hakeen answered, 'A thing that is bought or a thing that is sold has no value unless it contains that which cannot either be bought or sold. Look, therefore, for the priceless ingredient.'"

"The young man answered and said, 'But what, Wise One, is this priceless ingredient?'"

"Then spoke the Wise One, 'My Son, the priceless ingredient of any product is the Honor and Integrity of him who sells it. Consider his name before you buy.'"

HARDING UNABLE TO SPEAK IN IOWA CITY THIS SUMMER

President Will Return From Alaska By Way Of Panama Canal

In all probability President Harding will not be among the speakers at the Citizenship conference to be held in Iowa City during the early part of the summer.

President Harding has not definitely notified the conference committee that he cannot come to Iowa, but plans recently made public from the White House indicate that he has given up his mid-west tour.

If he adheres to the itinerary trip mapped out by the White House officials, he will return home from Alaska by way of Panama canal and practically his only stop on the way will be at Porto Rico. It had been his original intention to make a speaking tour in the mid-west on his return journey from Alaska to Washington. Chicago was one of the stops he had contemplated on the trip which was to include Iowa City.

However the President is considering a special trip to this section of the country next fall to speak in Chicago, Minneapolis, and cities in Wisconsin, Iowa, and Michigan, to which he has been invited. His feeling that he could not be away from Washington longer than two months is in part responsible for his change in the course of his homeward trip. Mrs. Harding plans to accompany the president north.

President and Mrs. Harding according to present arrangements leave the capital for Alaska June 20.

BEEMS ELECTED TO HEAD ZETAGATHIANS NEXT YEAR

HAWKEYES LOSE TO CATHOLICS 3 TO 2

(Continued from page 1) Falvey, who is one of the best college pitchers in the Middle West, allowed the Hawks but two safe hits, one by Chaloupka in the fifth, and the other Hurlbut's scratch hit in the ninth. Both pitchers struck out ten opposing batters.

It was Castner, visiting center-fielder, well-known through his prowess on the gridiron, who started the Notre Dame rally in the sixth by driving the ball into deep center field for a home run. The ball was hard hit and on a line, Laude failing to make the catch by inches. Singles by Nolan, Curten, and Falvey followed Castner's drive, accounting for the two remaining runs made by the visitors in the fatal sixth.

It looked as though the jinx was still on the trail of the Old Gold nine, as it was the fourth game in three weeks that the Hawkeyes have dropped by the margin of a single score.

Only one more game is left on the schedule for the 1923 season, that coming on June 4, when Minnesota will play Iowa in a return game on Iowa Field.

The University of Engineering

Of all the things that go to make the successful engineer, none is more important, nor more in step with the spirit of the profession, than a studious attitude. One man says about another—"he is always willing to learn," "he doesn't think he knows it all"—and he intends to pay a high compliment when he says it.

The great engineers are always at school, always learning, always seeking for more knowledge. They begin with this desire for fuller understanding, and they keep it up to the end.

Any engineering operation, over and above the primary purpose for which it is carried out, is an active and post-graduate class in engineering, also. So that Westinghouse, or any other great business, is, of its very nature, a University where theory and practice combine to make bigger, broader and more practical engineers.

The courses in this University are not limited to prescribed subjects nor terms—the subjects are almost infinite, and the semesters are endless. Men with the weight of years on their shoulders work and learn side-by-side with those whose day has just dawned.

This post-graduate school fits men for almost anything. Fits them for it, and makes them continually fitter. Out of this continuing fitness have grown the engineering accomplishments on which this institution has grown. It is, perhaps, one of the great educational institutions of its day.

Friendly Relations Marred By Business Dealing In Latin America

Buenos Aires, May 25 (by United News).—Political observers from the United States, who have wandered down below the line expecting to be greeted by flags full of stars fluttering in a tropic breeze, eventually arrive at the conclusion that there is something radically wrong in the land of the Latin-Americans.

They soon discovered some of the hitches in relations which they thought ought to be fine and friendly according to the southerners, are:

1. A belief that the United States is too paternalistic in its treatment of the republics of the rest of the hemisphere, and a feeling that the Yankees' inborn habit of preaching may find a ready audience.

2. Fear bred of business deals by North American buccaners who used to take what profit they could and skip, and a resultant conviction that Yankee is too darned clever to be trusted implicitly, or given a square deal when he can be cornered.

3. A general opinion that "big business" is back of every political move made by the United States and that this being true impartiality is not to be expected.

4. The firm conviction that every North American politician believes his are the only eyes that have seen "the glory of the coming of the Lord," and that he will proceed as if his judgments were infallible and his right divine.

And now, the said political observers will cast about in search of fundamental defects in our Latin neighbors, and eventually will hear the following Anglo-Saxon comment:

1. The Latin is wily customer, give into the suave words and polite usages in public, but in private addicted to stiletos and constitutionally opposed to the execution of contracts, wherefore he should be brow beaten and bullied.

2. The executive ability of a South American business man is a little less than nil—as witness the fact that foreigners own, control, or direct most of his industries—and the South American politicians have never done anything but start two-penny revolutions, borrow money abroad, fight bloodless duels when the only manly method of settling such affairs is a resort to the fists.

3. Acceptance of graft being an unwritten law, the only way to get along with South America officials, from a petty customs officer to president, is to oil the ways with money and then include it in the contracts.

4. The Latins being a temperamental and folk and prone to dispute with their neighbors encourage this prima donna disposition, by impressing upon the nationals of one republic that the nationals of another, or all the others are a flock of chattering monkeys.

The fact that there are a number of statesmen, politicians, and business men in the United States and in the South and Central American republics who have a large understanding of the conflicting political, economic, religious, and radical interests of North and South America, and are steadily working toward better understanding, has not served to eliminate the fact that Latin-Americanism, despite apparent discord, is a more potent factor in South American republics today than Pan-Americanism.

An Argentine business man gave this version of the situation:

"The outsider—and that includes the United States—who interfered in a quarrel between Latin South American republics would be in the position of the traveler in the Kentucky mountains who saw a mountaineer beating his wife and ran to the woman's assistance, upon which both the mountaineer and his wife turned on the stranger.

"Latin-Americans may fight among themselves, but it is purely a family affair and they do not want interference from the outside. The Latin-Americans assuredly will cooperate with the United States—that is to their advantage."

SORORITIES IMPORTANT IN COLLEGE LIFE AT UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS, SAYS SCRIBE

Sororities play a very important part in the university life at Illinois. The university was founded in 1867, but girls were not admitted until 1870. Twenty-five years later the first sorority was established on the campus, and since that time their growth has been commensurate with the expansion of the school, until at the present time Illinois, with a total of 10,000 students, some 2,000 of which are women, has 27 sororities. Eighteen of these are in the national pan-hellenic congress; four are national, but not admitted to N. P. C., and five are locals.

The outstanding problem with regard to sororities is that of their value both to the university and to the individuals constituting them; first, as regards scholarship, and second, in enforcing rules of the university, and last, to the developing of the individual to the fullest possible extent. The sororities at Illinois have rendered an incalculable service both to the university and to the woman students in offering a happy solution to the housing problem. To comfortably house 2,000 women within the university district of a town of 25,000 population is a problem of no small dimensions, especially when there is almost a total lack of university dormitories. Illinois at present has only two dormitories. One of them houses 160 girls and the other 24.

BODY OF CHILD FOUND IN RIVER NEAR DAM

The body of an infant that bore signs of having been in the water for a long period was recovered yesterday from the Iowa river, a short distance from the city dam, by unknown fishermen. Police were notified and the body was removed to the Donahue mortuary where an autopsy was held. Local police were unable to advance any clue. Officials in other cities will be notified of the finding of the body and every attempt will be made to solve the mystery that doubtlessly involves murder.

The size of the infant eliminates the theory that the child may have wandered away from its home and fallen into the water. Chances are strong, the local officers believe, that the body may have floated from some distant point up river, before being picked up here.

LAST FORMAL IS POPULAR AFFAIR

Governor Unable To Attend On Account Of His Illness

Sam Brown belts and spurred boots again mingled with tuxedos and swallow tails for the second military formal and the last University formal of the year, the Governor's ball held in the men's gymnasium last night.

Governor Kendall, who was to have been the guest of honor at the ball, due to serious sickness, was not able to come to Iowa City. Major General Duncan of the seventh corps area and other members of the governor's staff were the honor guests for the evening.

The decorations carried out the red, white, and blue effect of the flags, and shields. These were in charge of Clinton H. Smoke and were planned by the New Idea decorators. A white canopy covered the floor and from this were hung rubber balloons. The orchestra was seated on a raised platform in the middle of the floor.

The feature of the evening was the style show planned by the Ritestyle shop and Bremer's clothing store, was not carried out due to inability of getting the imported models.

Gilbert's Pictures Will Be Exhibited At Public Library

The paintings of Charles Gilbert which were exhibited last night in the liberal arts drawing room at a reception of the Iowa City Fine Arts association will be placed on exhibition at the public library Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

Mr. Gilbert, who gave a short talk last night at the reception, has studied several years abroad. He is well known here, as his grandfather, Charles Lewis, is a pioneer of Iowa City and his parents have both received degrees from the university.

The exhibit includes both landscapes and portraits. The Fine Arts association has provided for the public exhibition in order that those who do not belong to the association may have the opportunity of seeing Mr. Gilbert's pictures.

FOR A PROFITABLE SUMMER

The period of three months intervening between the close of one academic year and the opening of another has long been a troublesome point in the more general problem of how to spend one's time profitably. Happily a solution is to be found in the summer session. The view that education should be administered in doses extending over nine months and that the other three months is needed to give the mind a rest has given place to the more enlightened one, that education is a process which continues indefinitely.

The amazing growth in popularity of the summer session is easily explained. It is a question merely of shedding light on certain important matters confronting the student. Of these, two are perhaps predominant: the question of money, and the question of having an enjoyable vacation. The summer session answers both.

From the financial viewpoint, it is acknowledged that in comparison with the regular academic year, the summer session requires a much less outlay of money. The average student spends approximately $900 during the nine-months period. In this time he makes a total of thirty hours of University credit. In three months of the summer session he earns eleven hours of credit and need not spend more than $200. By attend three summer sessions between freshman and senior years he can finish a four year's course in three years. This strikes another $900 from his expense account. And by reason of his completed college course, his earning capacity for the fourth year is increased accordingly.

Considered from the viewpoint of an enjoyable vacation, few will deny that life in a University community during summer months is as tedious as that found in the average town or city in Iowa. Dramatic productions, canoeing, tennis, swimming, and social events, help to fill the hours spent outside the class room. The month between the close of the last session of summer school and the opening of the first semester affords ample time for a visit home.

The fact that most summer sessioners return the following years should be sufficient proof that summer school pays.

FACULTY VS. ATHLETIC BOARDS

The squabble at Ames between the faculty and the athletic department shows a lack of coordination and of unified purpose present not only in this institution but in practically every college in America. Athletics has come to hold a too-important place in student life and frequent clashes between athletic directors and the faculty are only a natural outcome of this fight for supremacy.

Sports, properly considered, should contribute to the scholastic well-being of the college or university. It should be a factor in the physical development of the entire student body. When scholastic interests and athletics come to cross purposes, then the latter, since it is by far the least important, should retire to a less conspicuous place.

Harvard only last week, settled once and for all the troublesome relations with its athletic association by laying down the principle that "athletics is an element in the education of the individual to be given its due place, but no more than that; the object being the all-around development—intellectual, physical, and moral—of the student."

CONTEMPORARY OPINION (New York World)

LATE YOUTH

"Youth would be an ideal state if it came a little later in life."

Thus former Premier Asquith philosophizes in paradox.

"It is only in age that we fully enjoy our youth . . . it is always worth while to begin again . . . when we are old we know that the best thing of all would be to be young again."

It is age speaking. Youth does not content itself with such reflections. Youth puts the thought in action, whether the years of youth happen to number 16 or 60.

This is a theory long held in Great Britain. The fox-hunting squire typified the youthfulness of those who scorned the march of years. Less commonly did we find the same thing in the United States. When we retired it was to die.

More often in recent years have we encountered Americans entering into Mr. Asquith's "ideal state." It is less disgraceful to retire to enjoy life and to play.

But these white-haired youths are not philosophizing on the matter. Rather are they putting it to the pragmatic test. They are living their youth, beginning again, are young again.

The Sounding Board

SONG

(After Tom Moore)

There's a pair of blue eyes that are haunting me still,
That have lights in their depths like the sparkle of wine;
There's a longing that you can efface if you will,
If only you tell me that you will be mine.

There are memories of you that all time can not kill,
That will ever be fragrant as sweet eglantine;
There's a place in my heart that nobody can fill Till the day when you tell me that you will be mine.

If you would get some inside dope on history, consult the Undergraduate Mind. "The Bonbons ruled in France," we learn, and Bismarck's policy was one of 'blood and sand'."

"Any person of either sex not an invalid, under 60 years of age, should not be allowed to play golf," writes James McClure to the Chicago Trib.

James does not realize the enormity of the task. As well try to keep people from contributing to the Voice of the People.

An enterprising Pittsburg man will attempt to build a $5,000,000 "island" three and a fraction miles off the Jersey coast, where the thirsty individual may loaf and invite his bowl.

"O CRIME MOST UNNATURAL!"

(From the Webster City Daily News)

The tulip thief is abroad again and is again devastating the tulip beds. Last night seventeen fine tulips were cut from the tulip bed of C. D. Carpenter, on south Wilson avenue. It is a petty thief, of the lowest type, who enters the lawn or premises of any man and helps himself to flowers which represent both outlay of money and labor. The thief who grabs a pocketful of apples or an arm load of lilacs is not to be compared with the one who devastates a tulip bed.

ONE OF THOSE BACHELOR GIRLS

(From the Chicago Trib)

Girl Hurt When Hit By Car

Miss Emma Orth, 64 years old, . . . suffered a fractured shoulder . . . when struck by a State street car at Washington street yesterday morning.

Dear Seventeen:

Every year about this time the perpetrators of some of our modern poems are wont to spring (in the spring) "What is so rare as a day in June?" If cool breezes continue to have their inception in the northwest I predict that the old one will be abandoned in favor of "What is so raw as a day in June?"

I object to frigid gusts of wind doing their nefarious work when we should be wiping the sweat from our brows. Just read about a lad in the northern part of the state getting his feet badly frost-bitten when he went barefooted for a few hours.

When June, which is the open season for getting spliced, appears "in the offing," a man should be able to shed coat and collar in comfort once in a while. I tried it the other day and the guardian of physical welfare of students said sadly that I had just missed negotiating, by the narrow margin of one sneeze, a fatal case of pleural pneumonia. Can't write any more—hands are numb.

All the campus elections, so they tell us, are over at last.

This knowledge helps to relieve the nervous strain under which we have been laboring. We were afraid there were going to be more.

A Flurry in Firsts

By Fairfax Downey

"What! You dabbling in stocks? You shamelessly speculating?"

At those accusing words of mine, my friend, the scholarly old bookseller, looked guiltily up from the ticker tape along which he had been nosing like a hound on a hot scent. His face was haggard and his hands shook. He had lost the rapt expression of one who dwells in the glories of the past, and it had been replaced by the look of one who gambles in uncertain futures.

"Well, yes, I do take a flyer on the market occasionally," he admitted, as he greeted me. "But it's all in the game."

It was spoken like a confirmed old wolf of Wall street. I must have showed how shocked I was, for the old chap hastened to defend himself.

"Oh, you've been out of the country for some time, haven't you?" he replied. "Of course, you can know nothing of what has happened to literature since those dark days in the spring of 1923, when such advanced authors as Mary Roberts Rinehart, Winchell Smith and others began to incorporate themselves."

It was all startling news to me. "That was just the beginning of it," the bookseller went on. "Big business hastened to get into books. All the best sellers are listed on the stock exchange now," he finished sadly.

There was some activity at the board and the old bookseller turned nervously. A new quotation was being marked up. But my friend turned away listlessly.

"Shakespeare preferred down a point," he laughed hollowly. "That's as much as the dead stuff has moved in a month. I bought a hundred copies of it for sentimental reasons a while ago. But you just can't mix sentiment with business. It's passed every dividend since. I'm going to have to sell at a loss."

It had been the same way with other classics, he confided—not even a good investment let alone a speculation. Only a few small export deals had netted a profit.

A foot of tape clicked off in his hand. Excitedly he chuckled to me: "Good old Harald Bell Wright. Rising again. Strong and steady as steel. The most active stock on the market excepting, possibly, H. G. Wells Common."

"You talk like a mad man," I cried. "You prattle of books as if they were so many grass commodities to be traded in for mere gain. You don't mean what you used to when you talk of margins and covering and gilt edges. You must have lost your mind!"

"Nonsense," the old scholar retorted. "I'm keener than I ever was. Have to be. I'm in on the ground floor when a writer incorporates and quick to take my profit. They can't fool me. When some of these log-rolling bulls get out on the floor and try to make a high market for each other's stuff, believe me I wait for the reaction that's sure to come when the bear critics break out with their statements. I'm wise to all of 'em but one, and that's what I've got my eyes on today."

My friend pointed to a strange chalk hieroglyph on the board and recommended I take his tip and buy now. But I could make nothing of the scrawl followed by the figures which many in the great exchange were watching with feverish attention. As near as I could determine it read:

Suddenly whispering groups began to gather. My friend the bookseller dashed from to another. Trading became frantic. Men rushed about wildly, shouting and screaming at one another or clutching jangling telephones.

Strangely calm through it all, my friend dictated orders to his broker.

At last the tumult subsided and the cryptic stock was erased from the board.

The old bookseller limply extended his hand to me.

"Congratulate me," he urged. "I am rich beyond the dreams of avarice. I sold out large holdings in the first edition of James Branch Cabell's new novel, which was said to out-Jurgen 'Jurgen'—just before the collapse of the rumor that it had been suppressed!"

TOO MUCH MATERIALISM IN COLLEGES, SAYS BABSON

"My appeal to you college men is to use your influence to get the colleges back again on the track and have them again teach what they were originally founded to teach—namely, the true fundamentals of prosperity."

Such is the declaration of Roger W. Babson, head of the Babson statistical bureau, in an open letter addressed to college graduates.

"The purpose of this letter is to urge you to use your influence in having our young people at school and college taught the truth of the situation. There is altogether too much materialism in our schools and colleges."

In emphasizing the spiritual factor in the growth of communities and nations, Mr. Babson declares that the failure to teach the importance of the great spiritual forces is not only doing the country much harm, but is giving the students an idea which is absolutely wrong economically and statistically.

COMMERCE FRATERNITY

INSTALLED HERE FRIDAY

With the initiation Friday evening at the commercial club rooms of 12 students and two faculty members, the installation of the local chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi, oldest national commerce fraternity, was completed.

At the close of the initiatory ceremonies, the members of the fraternity went in a body to the Burkley hotel for a dinner. The program consisted of toasts by Harold H. McCarty, Prof. C. O. Hardy, Walter J. Dehner and Harold A. Wyllie.

C. LaTrowski, of the Nebraska chapter, the installing officer, talked on the history and policy of the fraternity. Following the banquet a ruling was passed to the effect that a minimum grade of "C" is necessary before a person is declared eligible for membership.

Commerce faculty members who were initiated are Prof. Charles O. Hardy and Ass. Prof. Raleigh W. Stone.

The seniors include Harold H. McCarty of Ottumwa, William H. Moore of Fort Madison, Walter Dehner of Iowa City and Leslie H. Schrubbe of Decorah.

The juniors are Harold A. Wyllie of Keokuk, Glen Houston of Ryan, Henry E. Wageck of Council Bluffs, Robert Sellman of Newton, Dillard W. Bray of Burnside, Ill., Arthur R. Pommrehn of Alden, Marion C. Bridenstein of Iowa City and Floyd Dagetz of Bellvue.

"SEEING" BY SKINS IS NOW ADMITTED FACT TO SCIENTISTS

Group of Eminent French Specialists Convinced Of Truth Of Farigoule Theory

A clear explanation of the method by which a French scientist is said to have taught blind persons to "see" through their skins, the truth of which is now admitted by French specialists, is contained in these comments on the subject by American Medicine.

"Some two years ago we reported in these columns the interesting experiments of Professor Louis Farigoule of the University of Paris in extra retinal vision. Professor Farigoule trained several soldiers goule had trained several soldiers blinded in the war to see with their skins, to recognize objects, read numbers, distinguished colors, by holding their hands up to them, palms out. The experiments which were still in an early stage, nevertheless indicated numerous possibilities, but for two years nothing was again heard of either Professor Farigoule or his theories.

"The reason is now revealed. It appears that the scientists of our day have learned little from history, and the modern savant with unorthodox views is open if not to persecution at least to hostility, as in past centuries. Professor Farigoule's demonstrations two years ago were met with severe hostility by his colleagues and contemporaries, and, being a modest, sensitive man, he preferred to withdraw from the public eye, pursuing his studies privately.

"We hoped, however, that in the meantime some student, with an impartial passion for scientific truth, would take up his theories, put them to the test, and thus verify his findings. But no one came forward and it began to appear that a discovery of real scientific importance was being permitted to die of neglect through incredulity.

Farigoule's Patience
"During those two years the world was giving an amazing amount of credulity to the theories of obscure pharmacists from Nancy, chemists promising youth and long life to those who would partake of their magic elixirs, and other trifling innovations which smacked of the sixteenth century. Professor Farigoule was a patient man, but patience has its limits. He therefore decided to abandon his pacific methods and to become more aggressive, not because he sought publicity but because he felt his obligations to science. He thereupon recently called a conference of specialists, unbelievers as well as believers, to attend a seance in Paris.

"The seance was well attended. Eminent biologists, neurologists, specialists of many branches gathered at the seance. In two years of retirement, Professor Farigoule had made great progress, and his pupils showed a distinct and impressive advance. One of these pupils, blindfolded, was presented with letter-blocks, numerals and colored skeins of wool. Holding his hands up before him he was able to 'see' them and name them. The specialists present were permitted to impose any difficulties, to try any variations so as to convince themselves that no trickery was being employed. (There had been charges of a signaling system between the professor and his pupils).

"The tests resisted all these efforts, and the specialists, having themselves verified the genuineness of the unique performance they witnessed, at the end of the seance, readily signed a testimonial crediting Professor Farigoule with the discovery of a real scientific theory of great importance. The experiments in extra-retinal vision, being certified to by acknowledged authorities, have now taken a grip on the public interest, and the subject is at last receiving a publicity it merits.

He Explains His Theory
"Explaining his theory, Professor Farigoule declares that extra-retinal vision revolves the functioning of a sense until now ignored—what he calls the paroptic sense. This sense reposes in cells, discernible under the micro scope, in the skin. These cells he calls the 'ocelles,' veritable 'eyes,' rudimentary, microscopic, but complete. It is the training of these 'ocelles' in the blind which results in something close to actual vision. Asked what the blind may hope for from his experiments, Professor Farigoule said:

"It will require several years of further research in order to answer that question. In any case, we know at present that paroptic vision is distinctly inferior to ordinary vision in the clearness of the image the intensity of light, and probably in the rapidity of conception. To state the matter at optimistically as we can at present, we may be able to give the blind a sense of sight inferior to the one of which they have been deprived. But for an hour or two daily they will be able to read, recognize the faces about them, and "see" more or less as effectively as a near-sighted person deprived of his glasses.

"This is stating the case with the unsensational modesty and precision of the scientists, but, even so, it is promising something which in the future may assume the dimensions of an advance with infinite humanitarian possibilities."

Liberal Arts Seniors Outnumber All Other Colleges With 350 Candidates For B. A. Degrees

Of approximately 800 seniors who will graduate from the University next week, more than 350, or almost one-half of the entire number, are candidates for the degree of Bachelor of Arts. This number does not include those who are taking the degree, Bachelor of Science, in departments affiliated with the college of Liberal Arts.

This may be accepted as proof that a general cultural education is still the end sought by the majority of college students. Most students choose their courses of study that afford a broad preparation for life.

The group which next approaches the liberal arts seniors is the graduating class from the college of Dentistry. There are ninety-eight applicants for the degree of Doctor of Dental Surgery. Next in order is the college of Commerce with ninety in the graduating class. The college of Applied Science follows with sixty. The colleges of Law and Medicine rank in the order named with fifty and forty-six respectively. The degree Bachelor of Science in Medicine is sought by thirty-four while the nursing class is composed of nineteen.

These facts are disclosed by the senior invitation programs which were received early last week and are being distributed by Fred Goepfinger, chairman of the Invitation Committee, from room 14A in the Liberal Arts building. About one-half of the invitations ordered have been called for, according to Mr. Goepfinger.

The invitations are elaborate affairs bound in brown grained leather. Desirable for two couples or 4 or 5 responsible women. Black 290. 199.

BROOKINS MAY SET NEW TIME AT ANN ARBOR

Relay Team Expected To Make New Mile Record At Conference Meet

Iowa performers have a chance to better at least two records that stand on the books when they enter the conference meet at Ann Arbor on June 2nd and 3rd. Charles Brookins in the 220 yard low hurdles provided he has a fast track and favorable weather, should set a mark in this event that should stand for a number of years. He has twice been timed faster than the present world's record that is held jointly by Kranzlein and Bob Simpson. The present mark is 23 6-10. Brookins has stepped them in two successive races at 23 4-10 and 23 flat respectively. Coach A. A. Stagg of Chicago university, who is a member of the A. A. U. records committee, witnessed the race in which the Iowa Star crossed the tape in 23 flat and unofficially accepted the time. This is a favorable indication that if the record is broken at the Big Ten meet it will stand.

Kranzlein, university of Pennsylvania athlete, was the first man in the world to run the 220 yard low hurdles under 24 seconds flat. He accomplished this feat at the Intercollegiate track and field meet at New York City in 1898. Just eighteen years later Bob Simpson, who was at that time the premier hurdler of the country, running for the university of Missouri tied the record, of 23 6-10 seconds. Since that time none of the hurdlers of the country have seriously threatened this mark until Brookins, in the Northwestern dual meet, stepped away from the field and was caught by five watches in 23 4-10. Not content with this performance he came back a week later and bettered this time by 4-10 of a second to the utter astonishment of both officials and fans.

Kranzlein, according to professor Stephen H. Bush of the Romance a former Harvard middle-distance runner, was a remarkable all-around athlete. He broad jumped twenty-four feet consistently and high jumped over six feet besides taking part in the sprints. He possessed a remarkable physique and it is reported from reliable sources that he trained on beer, thereby breaking all the modern rule and regulations laid down by the best trainers and handlers of athletes in the country. He took part in the Olympic games in Greece in 1900 besides performing in meets throughout the country. Brookins is much slighter and gets his speed from his long legs. A race between these two specialists would be a feature that would be long remembered by track fans.

When the mile relay team composed of Captain Eric Wilson, Gerhard Noll, Harry Morrow, and Charles Brookins, go to the work in the conference classic they will be favorites to break the world mark set by a picked team of quarter milers back in 1916. If they do this they will accomplish what every coach in the country has been striving for; a team of four men from one institution that could run the quarter under 50 seconds. At Drake relays a month ago the Hawkeye quartette startled the athletic world by running the mile relay in the remarkable time of 3:16 9-10 1-10 slower than the mark set by the quicker team. They will be all primed for the gun in the Big Ten meet and will undoubtedly be in the best of condition.

CHINESE TO STORM BANDIT STRONGHOLD

Plan Rescue Of American Captives Held As Hostages By Brigands

Peking, May 26—"We have determined to storm the stronghold and rescue by force. Prepare for a severe ordeal."

This was in the warning conveyed to the American and other white captives of the Shantung bandits as government troops closed in on the fortress during the night.

The exact hour at which the attack will be launched was not determined. Chinese aeroplanes flew low over the outlaws mountain top Saturday with observers peering down on rude shelters where hostages lay awaiting ransom or rescue.

The brigands have repeatedly threatened to kill the prisoners if a serious attack were made upon them. Despite this the Chinese government is determined to go through with the proposed assault.

Sharpshooters slipping from rock to rock have gained vantage points on the slopes ready to do defective rifle work in early stages of advance.

The government evidently intends to hurdle an irresistible force against the outlaws and crush them with such swiftness and sureness that there will be no time to wreak vengeance on foreigners in their power.

Educational System In Russia Said To Be Near Collapse

"Hardly anything furnished such striking evidence of the slow death to which the Bolsheviks have reduced Russia as an examination of the condition of education in the country," writes the Warsaw correspondent of "The London Daily Mail".

Lunacharsky, the Minister of Education, has issued only one report since his ministry was founded. That report is full of admissions of the complete failure of the Bolsheviks' ambitious educational schemes, which were so glowingly described by many American and English pro-Bolshevik writers, but never carried out.

Lunacharsky's report describes how, immediately after the revolution, the number of schools was greatly increased, their principal source of maintenance being the general budget; but on account of expense the government abolished the educational commissariats and divided expenses among the local institutions.

A school crisis followed. The report adds; "In April 1922, there were 68,000 schools with 5,000,000 students. In October there were 55,000 schools and only 4,000,000 students. Primary schools showed a decrease of 50 per cent. Government financial aid for local institutions for children was so small that the children suffered hunger and mortality increased so much they had to return to their parents."

In October, 1922, workmen's courses numbered 927, with 52,000 students. There are now 246, with 14,000 students. "Our whole network of political teaching," the report adds, "was destroying when local institutions took charge of its financial maintenance. In the first year 28,000 reading rooms were open. There are now 3,000. Nearly 15,000 libraries existed then; now there are 3,600.

Ty Cobb Continues To Flash In Form That Won Him Fame

Detroit, May, 26—Tyrus Raymond Cobb, variously yclept "The Peerless One" and "The Georgia Peach," is not yet among the bench manager class, despite his 37 years and the thinning hairs on his head. Frequent predictions first heard when he succeeded Hughie Jennings as manager of the Detroit Tigers two years ago that he was through as a player, have failed of fulfillment.

It is a different Cobb who guides the destinies of the 1923 Tigers from the player who flashed among the major league constellations in 1905, gaining brilliancy and renown until in 1911 he became a .420 batter. The speed that gave Cobb a new major league record for stolen bases in 1915, with a total of 98, is waning, but in its place has come craftiness and because he had so much speed to lose, he still is a great outfielder still a dangerous man on the paths.

At bat, he is the same "Peach". His eye seems as clear a shis earlier days when he was the bug-bear of all pitchers in the league. He continues to meet the ball squarely, and his faculty of driving the ball out of reach of the fielders seems greater if anything this year than ever.

From the start of this season he has had the Tigers among the league leaders. Close followers of the game have seen in Detroit the princpal menace to the New York Yankees in this season's race. Cobb's heavy artillery is conceded to be equal of the New York club's "murder's row", and his pitchers, considered the principal weakness of the club, has shown surprisingly well during the first month, the veteran Dause especially appearing near the peak of his form.

Some critics see indications that Cobb may direct his club from bench soon, in the acquisition of two slugging recruits, Fothergill and Manush, both of whom have been used effectively this year, but Cobb smiles and continues to take his stand in centerfield.
