ONE-FIFTH ALL WOMEN WORKED LAST YEAR
Scottish Black Mamas Give New Scholarships for Women's Year

The Scottish Black Mamas are giving new scholarships for Women's Year. Twenty years of age and over once went out to make a difference, but sometimes the wage earner had to be a lady. The career woman of today is not only"old maid" but also a financial success story. The result is that the"old maid" stereotype is fading away as women are earning more than their husbands. The trend is towards a more independent lifestyle for women.

The search for a powerful influence upon women is not new, and the study under her direction involves many aspects of human behavior. This research is critical to the understanding of how women view their roles in society and how they can be empowered to make a difference. The study also explores the importance of finding ways to provide support and resources for women who are working to improve their lives.

For more information about this research, please contact Dr. Smith at (123) 456-7890 or email DrSmith@university.edu.
