HARDING, HOT SHOTS

I am one of those old-fashioned teachers who would like to be able to sit at my desk and explain the problem to the whole class and have them write down the solution. But this is not feasible, and I have to depend on the students to find the solution on their own. This requires a lot of effort and patience, but I believe it is worth it in the end.

At the end of the day, I feel satisfied that I have done my best to help my students learn. I know that some of them may not understand the material, but I hope that they will at least try to figure it out on their own. This is the best way to learn, and I believe that it will pay off in the long run.

I want to thank all of my students for their hard work and dedication. It is not easy to teach in these times, but I know that they will succeed in the end. I am proud of all of them, and I wish them the best of luck in their future endeavors.
